Democrats Claim Eisenhower Rules Through Regency

Challenge His Assertion He Is Fit for New Term

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's assertion that there isn't the slightest doubt that he can perform his duties as well as he ever did has drawn challenges from some Democrats.

They said that since his Sept. 24 heart attack he has been a "part-time president" operating through a "regency."

Replying to a talk in which Eisenhower told the people Wednesday night that he would accept the Republican nomination but would not engage in "whistle-stop" speaking, Democrats spoke of a frantically vigorous campaign of personal appearances by their nominee.

Speaking by television and radio, Eisenhower said he is a "recovered heart patient" who doctors say is "as well as before the attack occurred."

RISK PERCENTAGE

If my physician be a greater risk than is the normal person of my age (63)," he said with something of a grimace, "but my doctors assure me that this increased percentage of risk is not great.

"As of this moment, there is not the slightest doubt that I can now perform, asWell as I ever have, all of the important duties of the presidency. This I say because I am actually doing so, and have been doing so for many weeks."

Asserting his personal confidence that he can carry the duties of the presidency "indefinitely," Eisenhower said medical men have told him that "advance effects on my health will be low in the presidency than in any other position I might hold."

The talk to the people was a follow-up to Eisenhower's announcement at a press conference Wednesday that he is available for another White House term.

Almost to a man, Republicans greeted that announcement jubilantly.

DEMOCRATS' REACTION

Democrats generally voiced pleasure that Eisenhower's health had recovered to such a degree. And many of them added that they are confident of victory in a campaign waged on the record of Eisenhower's administration—the record on which the president said he will run.

Heads Research Board

OTTAWA (CP)—A Hartley Zimmerman today succeeded Dr. O. M. Solandt as chairman of the Defence Research Board.

Dr. Solandt, board head since its founding in 1947, has become CNR assistant vice-president in charge of research and development.

Mr. Zimmerman, 53, a mining engineer and geological and grade of Royal Military College, Kingston, has been DRB vice-president for the last year.

'Man in Street' Opinion Varies On Decision of Eisenhower to Run

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citizen the head of state," said Coues. reaction to President Eisenhower's who did not mention his politics. announcement that he is available for a second term has ranged from "the best thing for the country" to "doing himself and the country a disfavor."

In between those comments from Mrs. Richard Lowry, a Chicago Republican, and John J. Craig, a New Jersey Democrat, fell others of mounting concern for Eisenhower the man, varying opinion on Eisenhower the candidate, and thoughts on his value as a world leader.

Many of those interviewed by The Associated Press across the United States gave important consideration to Eisenhower's physical condition. Carl Sam Brown, a New Hampshire accountant, looked for a different kind of soundness.

"I like to see a man who is morally and spiritually sound as

The comment crossed party lines. Mrs. Alice of Lowe-New York Democrat, said Eisenhower must be there because the people are behind him and "he's the only man the Russians fear."

Thomas J. Pitts, a Democrat of Kansas, City, said Eisenhower "did only what the people who can maintain our influence in world affairs."

But Elbert Christison of Indianapolis, who said he is an independent who supported Eisenhower in 1952, said "I won't vote for him in the administration ought to change every four years."

Russell Williams, a Chicago steel fitter, and Sam Stanton, a New Orleans cab driver, each expressed the belief that the decision was the people, and I don't see how Eisenhower can get re-elected."

Three-Year Sales Total 44 Million Bus.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will gain a new market for wheat in Russia, with three-year sales totalling at least 44,000,000 bushels, under the trade trade agreement ever signed between the two countries.

The agreement signed Wednesday grants imports from Russia the same tariff treatment given goods from the United States and other countries having similar pacts with Canada. It is not a new commitment to buy any Russian goods.

Canada, however, reserves the right to levy special dumping duties if goods from the low-price world from Russia's state factories threatens to harm Canadian producers. And both countries can maintain export controls on strategic materials.

But the wheat-sales pact was this country's main goal during a month of negotiations. At present prices the guaranteed amount of 44,000,000 bushels represents roughly $60,000,000—many times normal exports to the Soviet Union.

BEFORE WAR

Canada has made no commercial wheat sales to Russia since before the Second World War, although some wartime shipments were sent under mutual aid.

Trade Minister Howe, announcing the historic pact in the Commons, said Parliament will be asked to ratify it within 90 days. It will run for three years and can be extended by mutual agreement.

Boy Recovering Despite Refusal Of Transfusion

HAMILTON (CP) — A nine-month-old boy, severely burned by scalding water, was in a recovering in hospital here despite his parents refusal to permit a blood transfusion.

The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Cole, are members of the Jehovah's Witness religious sect. They refused a doctor's plea to permit a transfusion and threatened to "fight to the bitter end" to prevent it.

A blood transfusion recently was administered to another Hamilton child whose parents refused to permit it after a court order was obtained by doctors. The child, out of his parents' custody and placing him under the care of the Children's Aid Society.

Said Mrs. Cole: "I told the doctors and hospital officials constantly whatsoever, regardless of how near death he may be, even they be give him blood. I'd rather see him die than violate the laws of Jehovah."

The boy was burned when he pulled a boiling pot of water off the stove.

Iran Arrests Red Attache With Top-Secret Documents

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian special agents arrested the Soviet Union's assistant military attache in Tehran Wednesday night. Officials said he was carrying top-secret Iranian military documents and had been "spying for a long time."

Brig.-Gen. Teimour Bakhtiar, military governor of Tehran, announced the arrest of Lt.-Col. Officer, Maj. Ivanovich Kounetsoff, and an Iranian army officer.

Kounetsoff was held overnight at the Iranian foreign ministry, where he refused to speak or eat. He was turned over to the Soviet embassy today after his diplomatic status was established. Foreign Minister Ali Gholi Ardelan said the Russian would not have been arrested if he had been carrying his diplomatic credentials.

The foreign ministry official said the government would declare the Soviet officer persona non grata (unacceptable) and that he would be forced to leave Iran immediately.

The Soviet embassy refused to comment.

19 Bombs Set Off As Peace-Seeker Leaves Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — Britain's Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd left by air today after a four-day visit with the crisis over this Mediterranean island colony's political future still unresolved.

Newspapers here headlined reports that a meeting Wednesday night with Archbishop Makarios, leader of the Greek Cypriot movement for union with Greece, failed to reach a settlement. An atmosphere of optimism was evident today among Greek Cypriot leaders.

All Lennox-Boyd would say before takeoff was: "I am returning home to report to the prime minister and my colleagues in the government, and will make a statement to the House of Commons soon."

The eve of his departure was marked by a flare-up in the anti-British incidents which have terrified Cyprus for months. Nineteen bombs exploded in Nicosia, injuring six persons. Two Greek Cypriots were shot dead in what appeared to be political killings.

Legislature's Sgt. at Arms Is Suspended

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia legislature's sergeant-at-arms was under suspension today for an admitted statement that he was out to "break" a cabinet minister.

E. A. Jamieson, $90-a-week sessional employee who is an engineer by profession, was suspended by House Speaker Thomas Irwin, who said he had no choice "under the circumstances."

Mr. Irwin said the statement referred to Robert Sommers, made before Mr. Sommers resigned as minister of lands and forests pilloried, and admitted Wednesday at a committee meeting, was an "expression of a minister of the crown."

Mr. Jamieson was testifying before the legislative committee on mining and railroads on a five-week inspection of a road project in northern B. C.

He was hired in his capacity as a professional engineer to inspect the mining assistance road. The committee now is investigating charges of irregularities in its construction.

VANCOUVER CHIEF ACCEPTED BRIBES TUPPER REPORTS

Clears All Accused But Mulligan, Cuthbert

VICTORIA (CP)—The Tupper report, "a tragic narrative of personal temptation and wrongdoing," accuses Walter H. Mulligan of accepting bribes while chief of the Vancouver police force.

The 78,000-word document was tabled in the legislature here Wednesday as the final report by R. H. Tupper on his six-month royal commission investigation into the affairs of the 750-man department.

It named Leo Cuthbert, a former detective sergeant, as "a man of weak character", who split gambling payoffs with the chief.

However, all other persons accused by name during the inquiry were cleared. Mr. Tupper made no recommendations as to possible legal action arising from the commission hearings.

Attorney-General Bonner, in tabling the report, said a committee of three lawyers had been appointed to determine whether there is any possibility of prosecution.

FOUNDED ON EVIDENCE

"It is satisfactory to be able to say that all conclusions reached herein were founded on evidence . . . which, in my opinion, would have been admissible in a court of law," the report said.

Mr. Tupper, 52-year-old lawyer grandson of one of Canada's Fathers of Confederation, said police information had been lacking "to the underworld and that "it was likely" that there had been a payoff by Chinese gamblers, but that there was no evidence against individuals.

The key figure of the 40 sessions held by the commission from June, 1955, to January this year, Ray Munro, was termed a man who "thinks of the world in terms more suitable to a melodrama than to the usual . . . circumstances of everyday life." He had been the dispenser with sensationalism."

Much of his evidence was rejected and many of his charges found to be untrue.

Toronto Murder Trial Adjourned to March 8

TORONTO (CP) — The murder trial of Robert Fitton, 21, charged with slaying six-year-old Linda Jarvis on January, today was adjourned to March 8 because of the illness of defence counsel.

Fitton, a mail truck driver, was remanded in custody.

REPORT 146 DEATHS

BELGRADE (AP)—The interior ministry Wednesday said 146 persons died in Yugoslavia in the month-long winter. Most deaths were killed in avalanche disasters and most of the others were victims of floods and storms aggravated by frigid conditions.

No New Taxes Nor Tax Increases Listed In Budget

Levy on Race-Track Betting Decreased by One Per Cent

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Porter today announced a record $233,000,000 road construction and maintenance program in Ontario for this year.

In his budget address to the Ontario legislature, Mr. Porter said direct spending by the province would amount to $183,000,000 including $50,000,000 in road subsidies to municipalities which he expected would spend approximately another $50,000,000. The total last year was $200,000,000.

Text of the address, distributed to the press in advance of delivery, announced only one tax change, a reduction to six per cent from seven in the levy on race-track pari-mutuel betting. There were no new taxes nor tax increases.

The budget was the first for Mr. Porter, who became treasurer last Aug. 31, succeeding Premier Frost who had held the post since 1943. He followed the lead of his predecessor, who had announced 12 consecutive surpluses and forecast a $13m. by declining a $749,000 surplus for the fiscal year ending next March 31 and a $768,000 surplus for the coming year.

MAJOR PROGRAM

Highways, with projected capital spending of $114,500,000, formed only a part of a major construction program. Public works and buildings will cost $43,800,000, compared with the previous record of $35,775,000 last year; $9,200,000 was appropriated for rural power extensions and $6,200,000 for parks, conservation and other projects.

The budget also hit new highs on gross ordinary account—the day-to-day cost of running government departments.

For the coming year, revenue was estimated at $438,322,000 and expenditure at $437,554,000.

The biggest percentage estimate was that given by Mr. Frost a year ago for the current fiscal year, which ends this month — $385,897,000 in revenue and $385,-032,000 in expenditure, a new $865,-000 surplus. However, Mr. Porter said the current year's figures are based on 10 months actual and two months estimated—would be $428,991,000 for revenue and $428,-242,000 for expenditure.

Stop Production

TORONTO (CP) — Production stopped at the Dunlop Canada Ltd. tire plant here today as 1,600 workers walked off their jobs in sympathy with 15 who stopped working at Woodbridge.

A company spokesman said the trouble started when a new piece-work rate was established for five employees in the tire building room. Protesting, they walked off the job and were joined by 10 others.

The employees, members of the United Rubber Workers Union (CIO-CCL), held an emergency meeting and today they decided to strike.

Chartered Banks Agree to Set Up New Limitation on Bank Credit

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's chartered banks have agreed at the request of Bank of Canada to maintain a 15-per-cent floor in the ratio of liquid assets to deposits, providing a new central weapon to fight inflation, Finance Minister Harris Hoor, first of its kind for Canada, becomes effective next month. The ratio now is 14 per cent. Banks now are required to maintain minimum liquid assets—cash, treasury bills and day-to-day loans—to meet the floor. The ratio was 11.3 per cent last November when the move was decided; it now is about 14 per cent.

The chartered banks also have agreed on the insistence of the central bank to halt term lending and this was done by November by governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada said at a press conference and in his annual report to shareholders in the legislature.

Term loans are those running between one and 10 years, usually made to big corporations which might find it cheaper to borrow from the banks than to float bond issues in the securities market.

Mr. Coyne conceded that the two moves might discourage some borrowers and borrowings by Canadians in the United States, with the liquid asset ratio curb providing a new limiting factor in bank credit.

But the imposition of the ratio floor, he said, will make for a financial system which will "expand more quickly, smoothly and predictably" as measures of monetary restraint when these are required in the future and which will help the better able to serve the national interest."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Milder air from the south and west is pushing into southern Ontario and temperatures are expected to be above normal today. A storm centre presently near Lake Nipigon will move east and northeast across northern Ontario province in the cold air. As this disturbance moves, across the province tonight slightly cooler Pacific air will arrive in western Ontario on Friday with little change in temperature.

Asks City Pay As Whisky Bottle Broken in Fall

SUDBURY (CP) — A suburban Waters township man wants the city to pay him for a bottle of whisky which broke when he slipped and fell on Elm street Tuesday.

The claim for the liquor and the cost of dry cleaning his clothes was received by deputy clerk Horne Hoodless today.

It is the first such claim received in the memory of city hall officials. There was no indication of the brand or cost of the liquor. The claim has been sent to the city's insurance adjusters.

Defence Policy Of British Govt. Endorsed 316-250

LONDON (Reuters)—The House of Commons Wednesday night endorsed the Conservative government's defence policy, rejecting a Labor want-of-confidence motion by a vote of 316 to 250.

The motion urged the House to censure the government statement on defence last week because it disclosed "grave weaknesses" in Britain's defences in spite of an increase of £1,700,000,000 in four years.

Critics regretted that the government did not propose to make an immediate cut in the two-year period of conscription.

Cyril Osborne, a Conservative, told Britain's earning an unfair share of the Commonwealth defence burden.

Canada last year had a credit balance of £200,000,000 with this country, he said.

"One quarter of our trade exp $428,991,000 for revenue and $428,-242,000 for expenditure. ports from one trade with Canada.

"Canada has the wealth and we are entitled to ask whether she is doing her share in the defence of the Commonwealth. . . .

"The same, of course, should apply to Australia, New Zealand and South Africa."

Free Clinics Swinging into South Hastings

Free clinics for the vaccination of dogs and cats against rabies will swing into South Hastings next week, it was announced today by Dr. H. M. Younghusband, head veterinarian with the health of animals branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture at Belleville.

The vaccinations clinics were started in Central Hastings two weeks ago and moved into North Hastings last week, with a clinic also being held at Campbellford. Monday, over 850 dogs and cats were vaccinated at Campbellford while Tuesday 150 were vaccinated at Bancroft.

Clinics in South Hastings will swing into action at Marlbank on Monday, March 5th, where veterinarians will give vaccinations from 1 to 4 and 7 to 8 in the evening.

Tuesday the clinic will move to Tweed where it will operate at the township hall from 10 to 12 in the morning, from 2 to 4 in the afternoon and from 6 to 8 in the evening.

Wednesday veterinarians will be at Tom White's garage at Thomasburg from 9 to 11 in the afternoon and at the Maple Leaf School on Highway No. 62 at Ivanhoe from 6 to 8 in the evening for vaccinations on pets in the Plainfield-Halloway district.

Thursday the clinic will be at the township hall at Ivanhoe from 1 to 4 in the afternoon and Thursday evening from 6 to 8 at the recreation hall at Sulphide.

Dr. Younghusband emphasized that dogs brought to the clinic should be in charge of an adult and be on a leash.

Fair Board Members Attend Bacon, Seed Show

Dr. J. Russell Scott, president of the Fair Board and J. E. McArthur, a director, visited Picton on Wednesday to attend the Bacon and Seed Show, sponsored by the Provincial Department of Agriculture. W. N. McMullen, Federal representative of the Agricultural department, was also present and to view the proceedings.

During the day the Fair Board representatives discussed with Mr. McMullen the building of the millions of dollars for fair grounds and valuable information was secured. Mr. McMullen promised the fair directorate that an assistant of the department would visit the city next week to iron out all the details with the Fair Board, so that an early start can be made on the building.

This evening the delegation from the Fair Board will be meeting the Parks Board to secure a site for the proposed building. During the meeting a delegation from the Recreation committee will also meet the Parks Board with reference to cutting the costs of maintenance in the two bodies.

It is expected a general meeting of the Curling Club will be called some time next week when a report will be received from the committee named to meet certain bodies. At this meeting a financial campaign will be laid out to meet the cost of the building to the curling club.

Little Girl Runs into Side Of Moving Car

Darting into the front fender of a car as she crossed the intersection on her way to school, Brenda Bowers, 6, of 116 Dundas Street East this morning suffered a cracked collar bone and a shaking up.

The little girl was running to catch up with a party of children when as she ran across the intersection of Charlotte at Highland Ave. she darted into the fender of a car driven by Bob Peacock, Wellington Crescent, as the car was moving onto Highland Ave.

The girl was taken to hospital where she was later attended by Dr. E. M. MacDonald.

Mollet Seeks Special Powers In Algeria

PARIS (Reuters)—The French government today asked the National Assembly to grant it special powers to take "all necessary measures" to restore order in Algeria.

It tabled a bill in the assembly which, if approved will enable it to act in Algeria by decree, without further consulting the assembly.

Sources close to the government said the bill would authorize the government to declare a state of emergency in areas of Algeria most hit by the rebellion.

The bill is expected to be debated next Wednesday or Thursday.

Guy Mollet's government faces anything but a smooth road for its Algerian policy. Wednesday there was a s ake up in the leadership of French forces, as ordered due to Gen. Augustin Guillaumat's opposition to the trend of events in North Africa territory. He was replaced by Gen. Paul Ely as chief of staff.

She was a member of St. Michael's Catholic Church, the Catholic Women's League, the Altar Society and the Rosemount Society and took an active interest in community and church work.

She is survived by her husband, Charles F. Funnell; a daughter, Mrs. Giles (Norah Ann) Dunn, of Montreal; a son, John Funnell of Cobourg; a sister, Mrs. Walter Allore, of Belleville, and three grandchildren.

The deceased is resting at the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien, 30 Bridge Street West. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Homemaking Girls Hold Splendid Achievement Day

South Hastings 4-H Homemaking Girls held their semi-annual Achievement Day in the Stirling Community Hall, Saturday. The unit under study this year was "Club Girl Entertains," dealing with etiquette and the proper way to entertain.

In the morning, eighty-five girls took part in the judging and activity three of whom received county honors on completing six projects. They were: Helen Burkitt, of the Uxbridge Club; Anne Gray, Wallbridge Club, and Caroline Wright of the Ryistone club. Joan Kerr of Plainfield club, was presented with provincial honors on completing 12 homemaking projects.

In the afternoon, one girl from each club commented on the club's following clubs were: Ryistone, Joan Kerr and Mrs. S. Kerr; River Valley, Mrs. George Newman and Mrs. Conley; Wallbridge, Mrs. Clarence Wooley and Mrs. Frances Tucker; Quinte, Mrs. Clifford Reid and Mrs. M. Reid; Plainfield, Mrs. O. Bertrand and Mrs. J. Salmon; Uxbridge, Mrs. Stanley Hamilton and M. Critch; Bethel-Zion, Mrs. F. Wellman and Mrs. E. Tufts, and Mrs. Huntingdon, Mrs. J. McInroy and Miss Jayne Gay.

Assisting Miss Faye Irvine, Home Economist for Hastings County were Mrs. Marion Smith, Home Economist in Prince Edward County; Miss Frances Lampman, Home Economist in Marmora borough, Durham and Victoria Counties, and Mrs. Clarence Mann of Peterborough County.

The project to be taken this year will be 4-H Homemaking Garden Club.

First Rebellion Against Brazil Govt. Ended

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The first full rebellion against the Brazilian government of President Juscelino Kubitschek has ended after 24 days of widespread activity. Shots were fired only twice during the revolt, and only one death was reported.

The rebellion leader, Air Force Maj. Haroldo Veloso, was captured Wednesday by government troops. His handful of active supporters holding a small airstrip deep in the Amazon jungle 1,500 miles northwest of Rio De Janeiro, had surrendered a short time earlier.

The revolt never said to number no more than 200 men, but the revolt apparently aroused fears among many officers of the air force.

No Legal Action

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Monte Hepburn Wednesday no legal action will be taken against the city of Montreal in connection with the "emergency" of two federal civil defence tracks and their use on city bus and streetcar routes.

Mr. Martin said he discussed the question, to which he was giving his whole attention, with Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal.

His method of dealing with the problem will prove more effective than court action, he told John B. Hamilton (PC—York West) in the Commons. Mr. Hamilton had asked whether Mr. Martin was considering conferring with Justice Minister Garson about the possibility of taking court action.

Three Taking Injections As Precautionary Measure

CAMPBELLFORD — Representatives of the department of Agriculture, health of animals division were in Campbellford on Monday to vaccinate dogs and cats in the area. Following reports of rabies infected animals in the district.

Three persons are now taking anti-rabies injections in the district, all as precautionary measure.

A Codrington youngster, Billy Gord, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gord, of Codrington, is now taking a 21-day series of injections following an episode with a muskrat in his school yard. Billy apparently caught the muskrat near the school, and put it in his lunch pail to show his parents. In the process, the child was bitten and later taken to the Brighton Medical Centre for treatment.

The muskrat was taken to a Campbellford veterinarian, and although it appeared normal, it died within a few days. Jack Trimble, the veterinarian, sent the animal to the animal disease and research institute in Hull, Quebec, but no evidence of rabies was found. Rabies is being treated as a precautionary measure anyway.

Further cases are being carried out in Hull. One method of detecting rabies — both of the ferocious and dumb type — is to feed the animal, if blue or black areas are present, the animal was infected. White patches in the meat is not foolproof.

Some animals, even though they may be infected, will not develop the darkened areas in the brain. A second test is then made, in which whereby fluid from the brain of the suspected animal is injected into the body of a rabbit. After a period ranging up to eight weeks, the second animal will develop rabies if the first was infected. This test is now being carried out in the case of the Codrington muskrat.

DEAD FOX SKINNED

Jerry Petherick and his son, Clyde, are also taking shots as precautionary measure. Apparently Mr. Petherick, who lives a few miles north-east of Campbellford found a dead fox, partly in a hole in the ground in a field near his farm home. He and his son skinned the animal.

Later, Mr. Petherick, in wondering why the fox had died, noticed the partly eaten body, taking that a check be made on his dogs. Dr. Trimble says that the fox be research institute in Hull, and received a report that the fox had died of rabies. Mr. Petherick and son are now about halfway through their 21-shot series of injections.

Campbellford Council has passed a by-law prohibiting dogs from running at large in the town. Some residents have been asked repeatedly to keep their dogs from chasing in the school grounds, but not each day a number of them run loose among the school grounds. Several children have been bitten. Several Children were bitten, although so far none has been seriously injured.

Three Houses Could Have Been Wrecked

TORONTO (CP)—A. R. Crozier, Ontario fuel board chairman, said today an explosion which demolished the home of Joseph Bebbington in suburban East York early Saturday could easily have wrecked three other houses in the area.

Mr. Crozier said test revealed a quantity of natural gas in the ground near the houses.

Although neither the fuel board nor the Ontario fire marshal's office stated definitely that natural gas caused the blast, Mr. Crozier said, "we feel that gas escaped from some point along the main prior to the explosion."

Mr. and Mrs. Bebbington, their son, and Mrs. Bebbington's parents were severely burned in the explosion.

Speed Limits On Throughways Will Be Changed

TORONTO (CP) — A highways department spokesman said today speed limits may be changed soon on certain sections of urban and provincial roads. The rate of traffic will govern the limits.

He said legislation is to be introduced in the Ontario legislature to give the cabinet authority to adjust speed limits on recommendations from the highways department.

The recommendations would be made after engineers' studies of traffic speeds on certain roads.

"Ban increases on some stretches of road the traffic engineers feel are the present speed limit. If safety conditions warrant it, we may recommend the limit be increased to the speed most of the traffic is travelling."

The first roads to have the speed limits changed would be throughways in large urban centres. No change of limits on provincial highways would be considered until further studies had been made.

Red Union Asks Ban on A-Bombs

SUDBURY (CP)—A call for a ban on the manufacture of the A-bomb and Canada recognize Red China was among resolutions passed Wednesday at the 8th annual Canadian convention of the Communist-led United Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' International union. The convention continues today.

The China resolution, submitted by Local 598 of Sudbury, urged recognition for the "people's government of China" and also stated that Canada should "take steps to seat her in the UN."

The weapons resolution called on the governments of the world to "ban indiscriminate testing and the gifts of flowers, fruit, cards and telegrams are appreciated. Thank you. manufacture of thermo-nuclear destruction."

Police Court

Convicted on a charge of assaulting his wife, Murtagh Cain, Foxboro, was given a suspended sentence for one year by Magistrate Fred Thompson, in county magistrate's court today.

Evidence in the case was heard last week with Magistrate Thompson reserving judgment until today.

Two Shannonville district youths, Gordon Allan and Ronald Marsh, pleaded guilty to theft of a radio from an Indian Reservation school and were given suspended sentences for one year and were ordered to pay $12.15 each for costs. The stolen articles were recovered.

For driving while his licence was suspended Bruce Hillcrest was given seven days in the county jail.

A total of 63 cases were listed on the morning court docket. Twenty-five of the cases were speeding charges, the majority of the remaining cases were charges for traffic offenses ranging from improper passing to inadequate brakes, improper lights and four charges of careless driving.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—The few odd-head and scattered lots of slaughter cattle sold steady at the Ontario public stockyards today. There were no good or choice grades in the receipts.

Receipts: cattle 22; calves none; hogs 192; sheep and lambs none; carryover from Wednesday 300 cattle.

Prices: medium steers 15-17; common 12-15; medium heifers 14-15; common 12-14; boner steers and heifers 12-14.

Replacement cattle: good stockers sold at $6-17; mediums 14-16.

Hog prices: grade A 24; new 16 dressed; slags 13 dressed.

One double deck of good western lambs received on Wednesday sold at $22.25.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Industrial issues were scattered on balance during first-hour stock exchange trading today, but selected leaders mustered enough strength to push the group's index to a record high. A rise of 1.71 set the index at 456.62. The previous peak of 455.90 was established Wednesday before the market tumbled on President Eisenhower's heart attack last September.

Speculative coppers were a little quieter and the 11 a. m. volume of 2,047,000 shares was the lowest in about two weeks. Western oils and golds edged forward but senior mines were mostly dull.

Steels, exceptions, refining oils and liquors advanced. Utilities and papers were weak.

Divran headed improved mines, gaining 17 cents at $2.47 after a losing run as the company reported good ore showings. Spanish American, at $2.80, was a 40-cent winner in uraniums.

Royalite added ½ in western oils.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was firm with offerings equal to a good demand.

Quotations, provided by the Dominion department of agriculture:

eggs, in fibre cases, graded: A large 42; A mediums 41; A small 35; B 35; C 32. Wholesale to retail: A large 47; A medium 46; A small 40; B 40; C 37.

Butter solids: Canada, first grade, Ontario 58½; western 58½ (nominal).

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 3-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 99 29-32. Pound sterling $5.80¾, up 1-16.

Admit Statements Two Accused Men At Scene of Crime

COCHRANE, Ont. (CP) — Voluntary statements in which two men charged with murder said they were at the scene of the crime were admitted Wednesday as evidence at their trial.

Police also testified that Florent Lapointe, 23, and Armand Hebert, 24, both of Cochrane, had pleaded guilty to robbing Joseph Rizzo, 67, at his store in nearby Hunta Dec. 12.

Rizzo was found tied to a cot in his store by Arthur Morocko and Keith St. John, both of Kirkland Lake, who took him to hospital where he later died. Lapointe and Hebert were on trial for robbery with violence when news of Rizzo's death arrived. They were charged with murder.

Paul Gauthier, 36, also of Cochrane, and similarly charged, is expected to go on trial after the present case is completed.

The crown was expected to complete its case today. The defence starts this afternoon. The case may go to the jury Friday.

A police witness testified the men were arrested the night of Dec. 13 so drunk they couldn't comprehend what they were being arrested. The next morning they were charged with robbery with violence.

Barring their robbery - with - violence trial the men had pleaded guilty to robbery.

Name Ontario Civil Defence Branch Director

SUDBURY (CP)—Ted Smyth of nearby Lockerby resigned Wednesday night as co-ordinator of the Sudbury and district civil defence control committee.

He is to become director with the civil defence branch, Ontario department of planning and development.

Mrs. Velma Donegan, secretary of the committee since 1952, will replace Mr. Smyth as co-ordinator.

Mr. Smyth said the headquarters for region 6, which he will head, probably will be located somewhere between Sudbury and North Bay. It will serve an area bounded by Parry Sound, the Quebec border and White River on the west.

It is believed Mrs. Donegan is the first woman civil defence coordinator named in Canada.

FATALITIES INCREASE

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly 3,000 persons were killed in traffic accidents in the United States in January—a five-per-cent increase over January, 1955. It was the 11th straight month of increased traffic tolls, the National Safety Council reported. Traffic deaths in the first month of 1956 totalled 2,960 compared to 2,820 in January, 1955.

BALLOON DOWN IN SEA

OPAMA, Japan (AP)—The last of 20 huge weather balloons launched here was presumed down somewhere in the Pacific today, ending the United States Navy's current experiment in gathering upper-atmosphere information. Once that information is integrated and co-ordinated, navy officials said, it will be made available to all countries.

Coal Country Congressman Asks Natural Gas Tax

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — A congressman from coal producing West Virginia has introduced in Congress a bill calling for an import tax of 10 cents-a-thousand cubic feet on all natural gas imported into the United States from Canada and Mexico.

Cleveland Bailey, Democratic member of the House of Representatives, said his object was to afford much-needed protection to American interests as they may be affected by the many proposals to import natural gas from Canada and Mexico."

Introducing the legislation Tuesday, Bailey singled out Canadian gas particularly and said the Canadians could not seriously object to his bill since Canada already levies an import excise tax on American gas entering Canada and also taxes American coal imports at a rate of 50 cents a ton. He noted that the Federal Power Commission now is hearing an application to import Canadian gas from a projected pipeline.

Paul Martin Gets Citation

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Paul Martin is one of three Canadians to be presented with citations for outstanding human relations work at a fall annual award banquet of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews March 13, it was announced today.

Capt. Joseph effrey, president of the London Life Insurance Company and the Ontario Provincial Chamber of Commerce, and O. B. Roger, vice-president of Shell Oil Company also will receive awards.

WINS DAMAGE SUIT

LONDON (Reuters) — Ex-ballerina Marita Fedro Wednesday won an £800 damage suit for injuries she received while trying to show future opera singers how to collapse effectively on the stage. She was injured in a fall at the Opera School Ltd., which, the judge ruled, had left the floor slippery from a dance the day before.

Sixth Birthday Of White Cane Club Celebrated

To celebrate their sixth anniversary the White Cane Club held a birthday party on Wednesday evening at the banquet hall of the Y.M.C.A. The tables were filled with members of the club, their escorts, representatives from several service clubs and members of the County Advisory board, as well as guests from Kingston, Trenton, Carrying Place, and the district.

Mrs. Burrows, president of the club, introduced the other officers, Mr. P. I. Timmins, Field Secretary; Mr. T. J. Pinney, chairman of the Advisory Board; Mr. Bob Padden, assistant field secretary; and Mr. A. J. Boorne of Trenton who spoke briefly.

Bill Navin was present to enliven the program with his clever musical interpretations and his impersonations of Liberace, Jimmy Durante and Jerry Colona. He also accompanied the group singing which was led by Flight-Sergeant Arthur Davis.

Greetings were brought to the club by Mr. Wm. Hutchison of the Y's men; Mrs. Jean Smith for the Kinette Club; Mrs. J.Fleicher of the Y's Secretes; Mr. VanDusen of the Moose Lodge; Mrs. Edson Logan of the Kiwanis Ladies; Mr. G. Stretton, who provided transportation each month for the Lions' Club; Mr. Diamantides for the Y.M.C.A., Mrs. VanDusen and Mrs. Ruth Minix for the women of the Moose and Mrs. Logan of the Kiwanis Club.

The new home teacher Miss Margaret Froese was introduced to the gathering.

VARIED PROGRAM GIVEN

An interesting and varied program was presented with Joan Smith and Pvt. Sgt. Davis singing a duet, "It's Almost Tomorrow". Pupils of Miss Dorothy Dickie entertained with tap dances and vocal numbers. Little Karen Post and Ricky Lough were most appealing in two numbers, "Honey" and "No, It's Making Eyes at You" which Ricky sang and they both tapped; Barbara Ann Mattis danced a number to "Rain", and Carolyn Chisholm danced to "Turkey in the Straw". Mrs. H. Sine played the accompaniment at the piano.

The Quinte Harmonizers were heard in several fine barbershop numbers with excellent blending of the four voices in a variety of songs.

Pvt. Bram Humphreys the guest speaker of the evening, was introduced by Mr. A. D. Archibald. Mr. Humphreys based his remarks on an Indian story of the early days in Canadian history of the Huron tribe near Kingston. A tree of peace planted by the greatest of Indian chiefs still stands at the Mohawk Reserve near Deseronto.

Winners of the door prizes were Mrs. Maclasac of Kingston and Mrs. Milligan. The spot prize was won by Mrs. Audrey Gallop.

Mr. Bob Padden expressed the sincere thanks of the club to all who participated in the entertainment.

The Kinettes served special and delicious refreshments with a decorated cake bearing 6 candles to highlight the evening.

Union Objects To Top Seniority Given Foremen

TILBURY, Ont. (CP)—Members of Local 192, UAW-CIO 459-strong walked off their jobs at Chatco Steel Co. plant here today to enforce a clause in their working contract pertaining to foremen returning to production lines in the plant.

Only persons allowed inside the plant are foremen, office staff and members of Comatock who are engaged in switching the company's electrical service from 25 to 60-cycle.

The union claims that under terms of the contract, foremen rehired as production workers, must start at the bottom of the seniority list. However, the company has been maintaining their top seniority.

Clinic Planned

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will set up a clinic here for psychopaths, it was learned Wednesday night.

A letter from Health Minister Phillips read at a Parents' Action League meeting said patients recommended by courts, hospitals and other sources would be examined in the spacious new quarters.

Dr. Phillips informed P. A. L. that establishment of a research projects in sexual deviation had been discussed with University of Toronto and Queen's University, Kingston.

Russian Balloons Have Flown Over U.S. Territory

WASHINGTON (AP) The United States told Russia today that Soviet balloons "have flown over United States territory." The state department said that meant they had been over Alaska.

In a new note to Moscow, the United States proposed that a "joint program" be worked out with the Soviet government and any other interested governments for the operation of weather balloons. Press officer Lincoln White said he did not know whether this would mean the flying of Russian balloons over the United States.

Officially Gets Post He Has Held For Past 18 Months

PARIS (Reuters) — Jean Marin today was formally appointed to a post he has held nearly 18 months—that of director-general of the state-subsidized news agency, Agence France-Presse, and Madame Negre was formally removed from it.

Two government decrees — one ousting Negre, the other installing Marin—were published in the official journal. They make official the situation which has existed in the agency ever since Negre's duties were taken over by Marin in September, 1954.

JET HITS HOUSE

RETAIL SALES INCREASE

Sales of Canadian retailers reached an all-time high in 1955, according to D. A. Gilbert, national president and general manager of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada.

Estimated at $12,874,099,000, the year's total topped the 1954 value of $12,065,758.00 by 6.7 per cent.

More interesting than these totals, though, is the manner in which the increases are split, between different trades and between independent and chain stores.

British Columbia had the largest proportionate increase in sales, 10.3 per cent, followed by Ontario with 7.9 per cent, with the Maritimes a surprisingly close third with 7.7 per cent. Quebec increased its sales 5.8 per cent, Alberta 5.8 per cent and Manitoba 4.6 per cent. Saskatchewan had a decline of 2.5 per cent. It is easy to suggest a reason why Saskatchewan's sales dropped—the glut of unsold wheat—but it fails to the full answer, why did not Manitoba's sales decline?

Among the trades, motor vehicle dealers led in the size of sales gain, 15.5 per cent, with furniture and home building material dealers, 8.6 per cent; department stores, 8.4 per cent; furniture, appliance and radio dealers, 7.1 per cent; new car sales, 6.9 per cent; grocery and combination stores, 6.1 per cent; fuel dealers, 6 per cent. Sales increases for other trades ranged downward from 3.7 per cent for family clothing stores to .8 per cent for "other" stores. Restaurants reported a decline of .3 per cent in sales.

Chain stores increased their sales 6.79 per cent, while independents stores showed an increase of 8.41 per cent. While the chains led the parade, percentage-wise, the increase in sales in actual dollar value was greatest for the independents. They boosted their sales $662,445,000, from $8,914,163,000 to $10,581,568,000, while the chain stores' revenue rose by $145,895,000 from $2,146,635,000 to $2,292,530,000.

STONE-AGE COWBOYS

Oh, I'm an old cow-hand from Arnhem Land .
Once a ki-yi-yippee jippee lass.
Just flip the page from the old stone age
I'm the answer to the need of today.

No, the world's most primitive people, the aborigines of Australia, are not Wild Westing to this tune, but they might well be doing so, to judge from a report in "UNESCO Features."

The aborigine, described as "an evolutionary near-neighbor of the cave-man," has been made a partner in the Australian Government's effort to develop the nation's beef cattle industry. The Government has established a huge ranch at Beswick, south-west of Darwin, and here maintains 2,000 head of cattle. The ranch, covering 1,400 square miles, extends to the borders of Arnhem Land, a semi-desert which is one of the last strongholds of the aborigine and is today a government-protected reservation.

The aborigine must learn endurance, patience and ability to dispense with city comforts, and few white Australians are willing to undertake the work," reports "UNESCO Features." But the aborigine is a born stockman. Today he is beginning to seek his share in the amenities brought by the settlers to Northern Australia and to look for an occupation which will bring him into closer contact with the white man. At Beswick station all the stockmen come from nearby Arnhem Land tribes. The station is the recruiting and training post for aboriginal gentlemen.

"The Australian native relishes the excitement of a cattle muster. He handles a horse with gentle skill. Since childhood he has learnt endurance, knowing this quality will be tested during the tribal initiation ceremonies which turn him from boy to man. His boyhood games with spear and boomerang have trained his eye and perfected his coordination; today he is a marksman of few problems for him. His bush craft is natural and instinctive; aborigines can track both man and animal with equal ease.

"Watching an aborigine muster cattle quickly and expertly, an onlooker would find it difficult to believe that he had so recently learnt the work and had only just emerged from a primitive economy. He is only in the evenings when the music of the didgeridoo—a wood wind instrument—pierces the darkness and the figures of dancers are silhouetted in the firelight that the age-old aboriginal culture asserts itself. Sometimes a native followed by his 'lubra' or wife will disappear into the bush. He may be away a week, perhaps longer. He gives no explanations. When he returns it is to say simply that this was his 'walkabout', and his white employers have grown wise enough to ask no questions.

Substitute a mouth-organ for a didgeridoo and this might be a description of the cowboys in the earlier days in the American West. They, too, had their 'walkabouts' but called them "benders." There, though, the similarity seems to end. They never took their wives with them. Their 'lubras' were dance-hall girls. You see, they had had the benefits of civilization. They were not "rudimentary, primitive people," with "a complicated system of tribal government." Their society was not "strictly ordered;" it could be said that "few disobey the social laws;" nor that "they have strong religious beliefs and are intensely moral."

JUST FOLKS

MARCH

If it enters like a lion, March will leave us like a lamb,
So my parents used to tell me,
but not sure of that I am.
It may have a spell of mildness, but before we get through March may hit us with a snowstorm just to show
what it can do.

March, the braggart month, will blustery, shake the trees and loudly roar
And pretend to be as rugged as it was in days before.
But its strength will quickly dwindle when the sun is getting high

And it won't be here to see her when Miss April's passing by.

March can rattle doors and windows and leave sleet upon the trees,
The hands and ears of children left unguarded it can freeze,
But its days are surely numbered, thirty-one that soon are passed.
It may snow on field and highway, but it isn't going to last.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 1, 1936

The following from this city are attending the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival in Kingston this weekend: Miss Nellie Ross, Miss Rose Lattie, Miss Mary Forster, Miss Mary Rose Thomson, Miss Erla Richards, Douglas Newby, Bill Rutledge, Maldlow Baird, Ross Schryver, Harold Carefoot and Jim Moon.

Miss Olive Vanwart of Redneerville spent the weekend here with Mrs. William VanWart and family in this city.

Mr. W. J. Colling, who has been spending a few days at his home on Bridge Street, has returned to Windsor, Ontario, to resume his duties with the Canadian National Railway.

Dr. Lily B. Matheson of Toronto, public health specialist, is here in the near future and will engage in the practice of medicine.

30 YEARS AGO

March 1, 1926

Mrs. Wilson McCue has returned to her home in Smith's Falls after visiting Mrs. J. R. Cummings, West Bridge Street.

Mr. Norman Mitchell has returned to Toronto after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Morgan, Cedar St.

Mr. Vincent Hudgins of the Toronto public school staff, is spending a few days with his parents at their home on Dundas Street.

Inspector of the Children's Aid Society, T. D. Ruston, is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Stanley Slater of Colborne is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Connor, Harriet Street.

Mr. Roy Webb of Detroit, Mich., is visiting relatives in this city.

Last evening in Mr. Joseph Diamond's store on Front Street, the members of the Jewish Colony in this city gathered to observe the feast of Purim. A pleasant evening was spent in a program of instrumental and vocal music, recitations and speeches. Refreshments were served during the evening.

From our file copy at this time in 1836: "Mr. H. W. Nelson, a Belleville boy, is now vice president of the Campbell Paint and Glass Company of St. Louis and Kansas City."

40 YEARS AGO

March 1, 1916

Bert Backus of this city has received a card from Johnston Johnson, who was wounded recently while serving with the armed forces overseas. His many friends here will be pleased to learn that his condition is improving.

At a recent meeting of the officials of Holloway Street Methodist Church a resolution was passed expressing the appreciation of the congregation of their pastor, the Rev. M. Cleary for the services he has rendered and invited him to remain as pastor for another year.

Mr. W. R. Billings, who has been connected with the Haines Shoe Store for the past four years, has left for Montreal where he has accepted a position. Mr. Billings made many friends here by whom he will be missed.

50 YEARS AGO

March1, 1906

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Featherstonhaugh, have left for their home in Edmonton after visiting relatives here. Mrs. Featherstonhaugh was formerly Miss Butler, sister of Mr. E. J. Butler, barrister.

The Rev. R. C. Blagrave, rector of Christ Church, will give the last of his series of talks to young men at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon.

Lieut. Col. W. N. Ponton attended a meeting of the Grand Masonic Lodge in Kingston last evening.

Mrs. Bertha Bates of Oshawa is visiting Mrs. Pegg, Albion Street.

How to Live in Oven

(By Vilhjamur Stefansson and Olive Rathbun Wilcox in National History Magazine)

Houdini' toward renowned magician performed the baker's and other fest tricks to see through are the simplest ones. Accordingly, the most baffling trick of all is the one in which a magician stands unharmed in a hot oven that is hot enough to cook meat.

Ivan Ivanitz Chabert startled European audiences in the last century by demonstrating that he was "fireproof" by incombustible phenomenon".

He performed in a large iron cabinet resembling a baker's oven and remained inside until a leg of mutton was cooked. The interior temperature he withstood in performances in Berlin was 320 degrees, 8 degrees above the boiling point of water. In 1807 he is said to have entered an oven heated to 380 degrees, sang and conversed comfortably.

It is strange that the explanation of this feat has not become a secret. Where trickery or supernatural powers are suspected people seem willing to swallow any bait; but where science has sought to get at the truth, there has yet to be a general lack of interest.

On Feb. 16, 1774, members of the Royal Society of London for Improving Natural Knowledge read a paper read by Dr. Charles Blagden dealing with "Experiments and Observatins in a Heated Room". Blagden and three colleagues began with temperatures a little above 150 degrees, gradually increasing the heat beyond 250 degrees. Only one at a time went into the room, heated by a cast iron stove.

"The most striking effect", Dr. Blagden asserted, "was our power of preserving our natural temperature. . . . When we breathed on a thermometer, the quicksilver fell

Bask several degrees . . . . Every exploding gave a very pleasant impression of coolness to our entrails, scorched just before by the hot air rushing against them when we inspired . . . .

"Upon touching my side, it felt cold, yet the actual heat of my body, tried under the tongue, was 98 degrees, about a degree higher than its ordinary temperature.

"All the phenomena were, even our watch chains, felt as hot that we could scarcely bear to touch them, while the hair from which the metal had derived its heat was only unpleasant . . . . "

They later withstood temperatures ranging between 260 degrees and reported "the air felt very dry but still by no means to such a degree as in the pipe".

Clothing protected them from heat on the same principle it would have from cold. They cooled eggs and steak in the room.

The explanation, Blagden pointed out, is perspiration. The body can produce moisture to be evaporated.

The reason audiences have trouble seeing through this trick is that it isn't a trick at all, it's simply human physiology.

Honest Guile, Anyway

(Milwaukee Journal)

If there is such a thing as honest dissimulation, Adlai Stevenson displayed it in Arizona last week.

Asked by a reporter whether he was optimistic about his chances of winning the Democratic convention, Stevenson replied:

"I am, sir. . . . And even if I wasn't, I'd say I was."

Must CNE Show Ape TV Fare?

(St. Catharines Standard)

The hypnotic effect which cowboy actors have created over the small fry of our area without end of a television station has had quite an effect on the Canadian National Exhibition.

Two years ago the main attraction at the grandstand show was a handsome fellow called Roy Rogers who, was a cowboy actor of horse and daring cowboy. He was accompanied by his wife and their horse. Last year Lassie, a canine movie star, was the guest. This year, we are told, the Saturday matinee and night, is to be Gene Autry.

From sly observation over the shoulders of younger folk, we have observed Mr. Autry to be a horseman of note, a singer of somewhat more dubious note, and a handy man with his fists except that he doesn't seem to know any other knocking his opponent down and consequently gets clobbered when said opponent gets over the shock of the blows, gets up again.

Gene Autry and Roy Rogers are fine fellows and we'd hate to have them gunning for us, but we still maintain that CNE officials would do well better if it abandoned this idea of big American stars and once more turned to its original idea of pageants. What a spectacular pageant or tableau could be made and developed from Canadian history! There is a wealth of inspiration there, and it would more truly enable the CNE to live up to its name as the Canadian National Exhibition.

Some busy scoff immediately at the suggestion of historical pageants, saying they lack the necessary appeal. In 1955 it was the arena grandstand was filled and overflowing each night with people who wanted to see Roy Rogers without Toronto to draw on. Furthermore, people were thrilled and stirred by what the saw they could have been home watching Hopalong Cassidy, Gene Autry, Roy Rogers, Lassie, Rin Tin Tin and so on television if they had liked.

It's just a thought for one of these years.

Dog Lovers Put on Spot

(Brantford Expositor)

Some people like dogs and hate cats; others like cats and hate dogs; and some like both. The reasons for these likes and dislikes are legion, often and at great length. Among the arguments on the subject is James Mason, the film star, who is a dog lover.

But all the learned treaties of psychologists and dog authors on something said the other day by the English author, Kathleen Hale, who has a cat named Orlando via the British Broadcasting Corporation about the cause of Orlando,

"We must find out," says Mrs. Hale, "whether we are born to be worshipped or to do the worshipping. If the latter, something else then we should keep a dog and cat. No matter how much we may be addled to smoking, the making of sudden and violent noises and stupid interference, the dog will idolize us; whereas no matter how much fuss among we may be, how silent or lavish, the cat going to earn a boot for our need of adulation."

Dogophiles for whatever the opposite of dogophiles is may like to see a psychologist about that.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THOSE IMPORTANT YEARS

Some time ago this column dealt with the necessity of security for children, and the readers received a letter which may reflect feeling that others have regarding this matter.

Said the correspondent: "Love and kindness always predominated in our home when I was a child. We were poor—as poor as to money went, but we had so much love and laughter. There were ten of us, and we were taught to play some musical instrument as soon as we were old enough. Religion was given a prominent place in our home. We left for school every day with a song in our hearts. I feel so very sorry for many teen-agers today. They seem so forlorn. They are really looking for something they do not have—security and a happy home life. We had plenty of good times in our home, but liquor ever required. It seems to be the main thing that many youngsters today are in a dense fog all the time."

Parents frequently seem to have very little idea of the influence that their moral habits have on children. They should ponder these things. A child's life is largely set by the time he reaches his eighteenth year. We can always change, even in the last day of life but we seldom do. As we are in those years, we feel as though through the whole of life. Formative years are important.

Must Civilization Have Its Cannibals

(The Printed Word)

The Canadian Taxpayer, if he has any imagination — and the nation is almost out of it, has a possession that he is likely to have to exhibit in National Parks in the days of Dominion-Provincial conferences as the captive of two rival tribes of cannibals.

His fate is decided as he sits by the fire, but the decision is not between cooking him and letting him go free. The Chiefs are merely debating which one is to receive the honour of being the cumbersome.

The analogy is not quite exact, for the captive of the real cannibals can be cooked and eaten only once, while it is the interest of each Dominion and Provincial Ministers of Finance to keep their victim alive as long as he has earning power. When that ceases, it is time to have him out of the way and thus saving the cost of an Old-Age Pension and giving the Succession Duties collectors a final banquet on his substance.

When Provincial and Dominion Ministers wrangle about which taxing authority is to take responsibility for certain services, incidentally, raise the money to pay for them, they seem to forget that the taxpayer is essentially indivisible. He is a Dominion taxpayer, a Provincial taxpayer and a Municipal taxpayer. Yet he is only one taxpayer and his responsibilities are limited, what can be taken from him without impairing his efficiency.

The victim can take an detached view of the struggle and hold its head because neither has been too heavy-handed. The authority on whom restraint was urged would actively reply that it would be an encouragement to be greedier one to be more rapacious.

Sincerity No Excuse

(London Free Press)

There are some troublesome ethical problems involved in the recent death of a woman in Northern Ontario who died rather than accept a blood transfusion which could have saved her life. It is against the tenets of her religious sect, the Jehovah's Witnesses, to take blood from another human being.

What are the medical and legal rights of the case? Briefly, the physician yield to such a patient's wishes, for example, if he met with inspiring one in my home. Troublesome worries, and unhappy experiences melt away at the sight of my beloved books. On two beams of this room hang the swords that retired he had these words placed:

To date no physician or health authority has identified or even defined "the common cold."

No research investigator has offered scientific evidence that cold, dampness, sudden changes, drafts, insufficient clothing, or physiologic heated apartments predisposes to the cri.

For freshmen students, let me explain that C R I (pronounced cry) is a word coined from the initial letters of the cumbersome Common Respiratory Infectious Disease which have these characteristics in common:

1. They are communicable, being spread usually via droplet infection — the virus or germ is carried in the moisture droplets in the cough, sneeze or conversation spray given off by one ill of or coming down with the disease.
2. In the early hours of the illness or indisposition the respiratory infections present common symptoms—chilliness, fever, general aches and pains, sneezing, coughing, running at the nose, sore throat.
3. If you have no control for the health or life of others you can give anyone who comes within range whatever you've got. Invasion of the system by the CRI is through the mucous membrane lining the respiratory tract. This applies to these specific diseases: Measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, mumps, whooping cough, chicken-pox, smallpox, meningitis, infantile paralysis, influenza, grip, pneumonia, streptococcic throat, rheumatic fever.
4. You never know, and neither does anyone else, if he's a hedger, which of these specific diseases he's "got" may prove to be. But people who still take seriously the notion of "catching cold" are pretty credulous about this, and so the doctor whose first guess proves wrong, even tragically wrong, can always turn and haw about somebody's carelessness allowed the "cold" to "turn" to rheumatic fever, pneumonia, infantile paralysis, or whatever.
5. In the early hours of the illness or indisposition, before you or even a doctor can tell precisely what may be developing, the victim is most likely to spread to anyone who happens to be within earshot, sneeze, or conversation spray range.
6. In view of these facts, what good excuse can anyone but a fool or criminal give for calling the cri a "cold."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A great many people would love to eat lobster if they were not a little timid of wrestling with "the shells, claws and joints in order to get at the meat. I do not mean the boiled lobster is one of the greatest of true Canadian foods. How to handle a boiled lobster can be taught in the sixth grade of all Canadian schools.

A buddy of mine who runs one of the most fashionable restaurants in Canada has the secret. All Canadians lack gusto in their approach to food.

"One of the last vestiges of colonialism in Canada," he says, "is in our prim and prissy table manners. I suppose the pioneers in Canada were a pretty rough and ready breed with table manners a little like those of King Henry VIII in the movie of that name. But about the time Canada began to settle down into some civilities, the Victorian Age was in its prime. The Victorian Age was almost notable for its spinsters. Old maids dominated the eighties and nineties of the past century. And if I remember correctly, Canadian old maids all spoke with a kind of English accent, adopted what they conceived to be the best English manners, and generally impressed upon Canadian society the idea of primness and properness to such an extent that the bluenoses, and sons and grandsons of bluenoses, have become refined. By 1900, Canadians were afraid not to tuck their table napkins in their collars. Even Canadians could go shrood and mingle with the most distinguished society. Why, by that time, we had several lords in Canada!

"The Canadianism of 1900 still lingger in us. We are afraid to get down to the food and get at it apart. And that, of course, is the proper way to attack a lobster. And yet you would like your table napkin in your collar for the lobster. I have but this I will provide you with, if you want them.

"And if you want further encouragement, I assure you that English lords are afflicted with same gusto with which they go at a cold roast chicken. You ought to see a duke eat a pheasant."

When a lobster is served, the first thing to do is to understand that this is a wrestling match.

For what is the wrestling are the claws of a lobster?

Don't let it get you down.

Easter Seals Go on Sale This Month

To more than 10,500 children and teen-agers in Ontario afflicted by accident, disease or from birth, by crippling conditions that usually mean despair and dependence on others, March is the month of hope.

Easter Seals go on sale this month, through the members of more than 211 service clubs as the means by which the people of Ontario join in the vast task of making life better for youngsters who would otherwise find it harder, if not impossible, to become self-reliant, self-dependent young citizens. This year the service clubs have set an objective of $625,000 from the sale of Easter Seals.

The purchase of Easter Seals means treatment and training, vacations in specially equipped summer camps, and all the other benefits that the 52-year-old Ontario Society for Crippled Children has developed over the history of its service to children. They mean a chance for lads to take courses at the International Ally-known Variety Village, the only school sponsored and supported by the entertainment profession, where trades are taught boys unable to work at manual tasks.

Down through the years, Easter Seals have paved the way for a program which now provides 21 specially-trained nurses who serve as liaison with the service clubs across the province, seeking out crippled children and directing them to treatment centres, providing them with home nursing skills, and teaching parents what to do to help their handicapped little ones take advantage of medically-prescribed plans of rehabilitation.

In five camps, unlike any other camps in the country, hundreds of youngsters will have a chance at summer vacations, barred to them otherwise because they can't play exactly as other children do. In these camps, counsellors with knowledge of what to do, teach the kids to enjoy life, to learn how to take care for themselves, and give many of them hope which their conditions, or even their over-protective parents, had not aroused.

BCI Marksmen Average 96.75 In Spring Shoot

Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School Cadet Rifle team fired in the spring competition sponsored by the Ontario Department of Education. BCIVS scored on eight targets with a spare-target allowed.

In a similar competition this fall BCIVS ranked 15th among 99 competitors with a score of 93.5.

The individual scores and team average for this competition were Jim Uens 98, John Hunter 98, Don Whitfield 98, Bob Owen 98, Alan Daniel 97, Don Wilson 96, Don Wallbridge 95, Gerald Wallbridge 94.

Spare—John McMahon 94.

Team average—96.75.

This competition was completed early because examinations are scheduled for March. The final competition involving 20 cadets in the Matriculation will be fired in the next few days.

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE HOLE IN THE ROOF

All around the Sea of Galilee Jesus and His first six disciples travelled, preaching and teaching. And everywhere Jesus went He turned His gentle face even on those who were sick or in pain, and laid His strong cool hands on them and made them well. People saw His face, and they said:

"Never has there been such love in any face!"

And they knew without His having to tell them that He loved every person He saw, from the fat little baby in the cradle to the filthy old beggar asleep in the shadows. To each person He met, He offered a love deeper than anyone else can give, stronger than the love of mother or father, or wife, or husband, or friend.

To Him came the blind, and the deaf, people with humbled ears and twisted legs, and He cured them all. Many thought Jesus was mad, He cured the troubles no one could see, the nasty twisting troubles we can't see, other names, hatred, and greed, and disobedience, and unhappiness.

No one could talk of anything else but the wonder of this Jesus. He was becoming famous, not only in Galilee, but all over Palestine.

Even in Jerusalem men had heard of this man from Nazareth, and in the Temple the high priests heard of Him, and they began to worry. If He cured people, make the blind to see and the deaf hear, there was nothing wrong in that. But He was not only healing the sick, so they heard, but He was also teaching and preaching, just as if He were a high priest from the Temple too. If the Man were teaching the truth, all well and good — but what was He teaching to make so many people come and listen to Him?

CALLED HIS SPIES

Annas, the chief of all the Temple priests, called his most trusted spies.

"Go down among the crowds and listen to this Carpenter. And come and tell me what He is saying, for I think He is dangerous," said Annas.

Soon the spies from the Temple were following Jesus and His disciples from town to town, hiding in the crowds to watch and listen.

"It is amazing how many come to hear Him," whispered the spy with the drooping eyes. "And yet I see nothing wrong."

"What He says sounds new and startling, and yet much of it comes straight from our own religious books. Only when He says it, and explains it, it sounds different," said the curly-haired spy.

"I think we have made this long trip for nothing," said the first. "Still, we'll wait and see."

That same afternoon, those spies began to feel that they had indeed found a dangerous Man.

Jesus had come with His disciples into the house of a friend of His in Capernaum, and He sat in an upper room with some learned men of the town, answering their questions. The Temple spies were there too. They had orders to follow Him everywhere and miss nothing.

Suddenly overhead they all heard a rumbling and a scuffling, a noise as if the roof were going to fall in. The owner of the house, very annoyed, climbed to the roof, growling:

"Who is making all this racket?"

What he found there was a family, a wife and four sons, carrying a father who was deathly ill.

The wife on the roof pleaded with the angry householder.

"We shouldn't be on your roof, but listen — please! My husband has a strange disease. He cannot move, and feels in terrible pain. He cannot even move his lips to speak or groan."

One of his sons spoke: "No doctor can cure him of this paralysis so we have carried him to Capernaum to find Jesus. But even here we could not get near Him. The people, the crowds are so thick, and no one would let us through."

"So," said the wife, "we carried him and his bed around here where there is no crowd, and up those steps to the roof. We thought with these ropes we could let him down on his bed through that wide window in the roof, and put him right in front of the Master. And then, maybe He will cure my husband."

And that was just what the family did. With ropes tied to the corners of the light straw mattress they lowered the paralyzed father down to the Master's feet.

Jesus looked down at the unmoving man, and then up to the roof where staring down at Him were the tired mother and her sons. He smiled at them, then bent beside the dying stranger. Jesus placed His hands on the man's two cheeks, and stroked his forehead. And then He spoke:

"Be of good heart, son! Your sins are forgiven you."

Everyone in the room gasped. The Temple spies sat up and their eyes were wide. Here was something to tell the high priest!

"That's a terrible thing to say!" squawked one. "Who can forgive sins but God alone? It's blasphemy to say that!"

Jesus was still bending over the sick man. He faced the Temple spies. "What is it," He asked, "that you think in your hearts? Why do you think evil? Which is easier to say: 'Your sins are forgiven you,' or arise! take up your bed and walk'?"

He patted the cheeks of the man who could not move. Then Jesus whispered slowly and deliberately.

"But that you may know that the Son of Man has power to forgive sins, get up! I say to you, arise! Take your bed and go to your house."

BREATHLESS INSTANT

Everything seemed to stand still for one breathless instant. Then in sight of all of them the man who could not move began to move. The man who could not speak spoke. The first sound was a great sob of relief, and joy that shook his whole thin wasted body. Struggling up to one elbow, he cried:

"Thanks be to God!"

Over his head his wife and four sons were crying with happiness. The man who had been sick pulled himself to his feet and stood swaying for a moment. Then he bent over and did as he had been told. He picked up his bed and walked out of the house.

And Jesus smilingly waved His hand in farewell to the wife and sons upstairs before they raced after the healed one.

The crowds were breaking up, jabbering and whispering and wondering. They too went chasing after the man with the bed to congratulate him.

Soon the only people left in the upper room were the Temple spies, and the scholars — they huddled in a corner and put their heads together.

"Whom did Jesus call Himself? The Son of Man?"

"What does that mean?"

"Ah!" One of them remembered. "Those words are in our Scriptures, in the Book of Daniel. Daniel said that the Son of Man would come to earth with the clouds of heaven."

"So—He pretends to be the Saviour? That is a terrible thing for a man to say."

BLASPHEMY

"It is worse for a man to say that he can forgive sins. Only God can forgive us for the wrong things we do!"

And this Carpenter can't be God. We must hurry back to Jerusalem and tell Annas, the high priest, and the others in the Temple about this. They must stop Him."

"For a man to pretend he is God is blasphemy. And blasphemy is a crime punished by death."

The Temple spies scurried out of the house on their way back to Jerusalem with their report.

As they left, one learned man with a beard white as a waterfall, spoke:

"Still, He did cure the man with paralysis. And only one with the power of God can do that."

So it was that day, as on many others, that the man from the Temple did not believe Jesus. But the ordinary people, watching the wonders that He worked, did believe. And they understood that this was much more than a carpenter from Nazareth. This was indeed, the Son of Man and the Son of God.

Girl Guides, Brownies Hold Skating Party

Over 400 Guides and Brownies enjoyed a skating party on Tuesday at the Belleville Arena, sponsored by the local associations. Skating was from 4 to 6 p.m. with a short pause for supper.

Mrs. G. A. Bradford, president, announced the names of the Guides and Brownies who sold the most tickets for the tea. Kathie Maund was the Brownie selling the most tickets, while Sharon Heath, Marilyn Booth and Deidre Doran were tied for second place.

The Guide selling the most tickets was Karen Flindall with Donna Matthews second. Prizes were presented from the local association.

U.N. Impressions Topic at Melrose W.I.

The Melrose W.I. held its February meeting at the home of Mrs. W. Embury with a good attendance including many visitors.

In the absence of the president, the 1st vice-president, Mrs. C. Wesse, presided and conducted the business session. The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. F. Bush, read the minutes and letters of appreciation for cards received, also one from Mrs. McPhatter, the retiring president of the F.W.I.O.

It was unanimously decided to send the secretary to the conference at Guelph early in May and a generous donation was made to the Red Cross.

Over $21 was collected in the recent "Penny Round-up" among the members with Mrs. Leslie's group declared winners.

A nominating committee was appointed to draft a slate of officers for the coming year and consisted of the following, Mrs. W. Embury, Mrs. R. McLaren and Mrs. R. Badgley.

A goodly number of quilt blocks were handed in and Mrs. Ed. Lazier kindly offered to sew them together.

Mrs. C. Hagerman substituted for Mrs. O. Stratton, convener of "Citizenship and Education", and gave an appropriate reading "Monarch Ladies' Aid", which described the many good deeds done by that group forty years ago. Mrs. M. Lazier followed with a timely poem after which Mrs. B. Sherman favored with a solo "It's Almost Tomorrow," which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. R. Badgley gave the topic "Impressions of the United Nations", and based her remarks on a recent visit there where she enjoyed the guided tour available to the public. She described briefly the purposes of the U.N. and its location on an 18 acre tract of land donated by John D. Rockefeller Jr., and New York City.

INTERESTING FEATURES

Among various interesting features mentioned were the cost of which was $68 million; description of General Assembly Auditorium; the head phones or "walkie-talkie" interpretation set at each chair where one may tune in and listen to the speaker in any of the five official languages: the meditation-room for delegates, and visitors on all faiths; the great library which is a reference centre for the delegates.

Mention was made of the appointment of Mrs. J. Houck of Brampton, as one of Canada's five official delegates to the General Assembly of United Nations, where she serves on the Third Committee.

As one leaves these beautiful and efficient U.N. headquarters, they feel that it is truly "the peoples' house", in which resides genuine hope and firm faith for enduring peace and a better world.

Mrs. Weese thanked the hostess and all who had contributed to the program.

Refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

When disaster strikes your Canadian Red Cross is there doing the things you would like to do for those who need help.

DOTS WITH DASH

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Polka dots again add dash to spring styles. A charming late day dress, good for resort wear now, right into summer later, is of polka dotted crepe with taffeta trim. A fold of pink taffeta from the high waist dips toward the back where it meets the large bow with flowing ends. A back panel, from the bow, is gathered. The dress is entirely lined to retain its graceful shape.

Women's Institute

FAKKDALE W.I.

Mrs. H. Bronson was hostess for the February meeting of the Women's Institute. The meeting opened in the usual manner by the president, Mrs. C. Keeble.

During the business, it was decided to send Mrs. R. Rolston as representative to Folk school which is being held at Foxboro.

It was reported from the sick committee that several in the community are sick. Money from the "Hobo Teas" was then given to the treasurer.

It was moved to continue the teas to the end of the month as it was profitable and most enjoyable. "Ways to improve our institute" was the roll call. There were 20 present and four visitors.

A committee was formed to make plans for a card party in March.

Mrs. D. Burley, convener for "Citizenship and Education", took charge of the program. Mrs. A. Robinson read the current events. "Ideas are funny little things, they won't work unless you do," was the motto and read by Mrs. R. Rolston.

A short sing-song followed.

Two games were played, winners being Mrs. W. Brown and Mrs. F. Rodgers.

Mrs. A. Bannon auctioned the homemade articles brought by the girls.

Refreshments were served by the co-hostesses.

Spring Dressing

By ALICE ALDEN

Navy with a touch of red and white adds up to a glorious color scheme from flag to fashion. Mollie Parnis uses it effectively for a most attractive and wearable spring costume that features the new success, the thimble jacket. The fabric is navy silk tussah, cut on slim lines, a kick pleat lending ease to the slim skirt. The jacket buttons in back over a white silk blouse and curves above a red cummerbund. This is a delightful example of the wonderful clothes created by members of New York's Couture Group, clothes interpreted for the domestic scene but at home all over the world.

Notes on Health

(Dept. of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa)

Since young children have a genius for getting into danger, even around the home, it is advisable to take periodic surveys to ensure that insect lechozers, electric household equipment such as clothes driers and other hazards are rendered unavailable to small adventurers.

At least one half pint of milk each day is advisable for adults, to supply protein, minerals and vitamins.

The tuberculosis rate among Canadian Eskimos and Indians has greatly decreased during the past ten years, probably due to the fact that intensive campaigns have been carried on to ensure that every one of these native people is given chest X-ray examination and, where necessary, prompt treatment.

In case of fire, call your fire department immediately, unless the blaze is so small that it can be properly extinguished at once. If serious, get everyone out of the building.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU CAN HELP YOURSELF IF YOU REALLY TRY

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Recently I read in your column a letter from a widow who was lonely and wondered where to meet a nice man. I, too, am in such a position and find myself spending one lonely evening after another.

I am in my middle forties, have a nice position, and am considered quite attractive, but the only men I meet are married. I just never meet a widower or a single man in business or social life.

Your suggestion about organizing a club has this problem: there are plenty of women but no eligible men for such a group.

Women like myself and the widow whose letter I saw are really in a difficult situation because we seem to be misfits. We are too old for the young, and too young for older people. I feel we should have somewhere to go to meet nice men, but I'm beginning to feel there are no men alive in my city. — Mrs. D.C.

Dear Mrs. D.C.:

I am perfectly willing to admit that it is not easy for unattached women to meet the right kind of unattached men. I will also admit that there are more of you than there are many of the latter as of the former. I think, however, it is possible this only seems to be so. Very few bachelors are without any active social life, because they are so much in demand and there's no news any hostess welcomes so much as to hear of one more eligible man. So you just don't see them around too often.

What I'm not willing to admit is that the single woman's case is as desperate as you believe, or that there's nothing for her to do but spend the lone lonely evening after another," especially in a city the size of the one you live in.

What is needed is an intelligent effort on the part of the woman herself to analyze her assets and determine what quality, skill, or interest she has which she could use as points of contacts with others; then go ahead and make the contacts.

Take your own case for example. Have you a hobby? If not, think of the hobbies other people have, and make up your mind to acquire one that would really interest you. In your city, there are organized hobby groups all over. Many of them composed of both men and women, and new members are always welcome.

Another occupation for the lonely woman is to do something for others who are lonely, w h i h means she would ally herself with some community activity where she would give a chance to be of use . To mention just one, she might offer her services to some Veterans' Hospital. Here she could help lonely men while away weary hours by playing games with them, reading to them, helping them with some handicraft, to mention a few of the many possibilities. I'm not suggesting that you look for a husband among these people, but hospitals are wonderful places for making new friends, and there are community-minded men who give time to such a project.

So use your eyes, your ears and your head and get around a bit instead of staying home with your lonely evenings. It might even be that after you have run into some other middle-aged lonely people, a group of you may be able to organize such a club as has been mentioned. You have no idea how much you can do to help yourself if you'll only try.

YOU'RE PROBABLY JUST BORED!

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I know you have had letters from many girls and boys, but I'm sure that none will sound as crazy as this one.

My girl friend and I, both 17 years of age, each have a boy friend. Whenever they come to see us, we don't seem to have much interest in them. But after they have gone, we wish that they had stayed around, and we begin to miss them a lot and think of all the nice things we might be doing together at that time, such as dancing to records, looking at albums and so forth.

My girl friend and I are puzzled. We can't understand what all this means. We have had other boy friends and have never had such feelings about them. We would appreciate it very much if you could please give us your opinion on what is troubling us. — Gerry and Penny

Dear Gerry and Penny:

Since you ask me for your opinion, here it is:

You are making a great big mountain out of the tiniest molehill—or perhaps only a very small hill; just out of nothing. If after these boys leave you, you then think of a lot of things you could have enjoyed doing together, why don't you do these things the next time they come? Your whole trouble probably is that all you do when the boys are there, is to sit around, and so you're bored with the whole thing. And the boys are probably just as bored as you are.

I suggest that you plan the evening in advance the next time they're coming—if they ever do come again—and see if the problem don't solve itself. I think it's as simple as that.

BEAUTY

TIPS FOR THE "FOOTSORE AND WEARY"

No customer's "too much trouble" for the foot-happy salesgirl.

Some jobs are just plain hard on the feet. We're thinking of the salesgirls, the waitresses, hatcheck girls, nurses and girls in dozens of other jobs where standing on the feet all day is an "occupational hazard." And, the thinking of them, we remember with a smile those who, despite it all, are hardship, are always so pleasant, so anxious to please—and, alas, some who are invariably cranky and irritable. Chances are t h e pleasant ones are those who take good care of their feet; the unpleasant ones, those who neglect them. Yet no girl whose job is so foot-tiring should ever be guilty of such neglect. For, eventually, the foot-weariness will show in the face as well as in the disposition. If you're in an occupation that requires a great deal of standing, therefore, pamper your feet, and pamper them regularly. If they're extra-battered, plan to give them a treatment tonight—that before your tubbing. Pre-soak them for ten minutes in steaming hot water with a handful of epsom salts added. Next, immerse them in warm soapy water and scrub well with a brush. This stimulates circulation and helps remove calluses and rough spots around soles and heels. It also helps drive away those little red patches that are the forerunners of that dreaded foot affliction —the corn.

Go after calluses with a well-soaped pumice stone. If they're especially bad, massage them with a little salad oil and soap mixed into a thick paste. Leave it on for a few minutes and then use the pumice stone.

Afterwards, rinse those rejuvenated feet in cool water under the tap, and you're all set to hop on to tub or shower for a sudsy scrub that'll cleanse and relax y o u r whole body. When you g?t out, be sure to dry your feet thoroughly, especially between the toes.

Now that you are foot-happy, keep yourself that way with daily foot baths and a weekly pedicure—remembering to cut the nails straight across to avoid ingrown toenails. Get into the brush habit for your toenails, too. And always be sure that your hose are clean. Sudsing after each wearing is good for stockings—and for your feet.

Follow these rules for keeping feet carefree and you'll not only improve your looks and disposition permanently, but you'll get to love your job, too!

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

HER PARENTS SHOULD SPONSOR INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My work meant that I came to live in this large city several years ago. I have an apartment here with two young women who are also my co-workers, but I spend all my vacations, Christmas holidays and week-ends with my family "back home," and I am devoted to them. Now I am to be married in about five months, and am to pay all my own wedding expenses. I want to have engraved invitations for my church wedding, and for the reception following at the woman's club to which I belong. Should I have these issued in the names of my two apartment mates, or should the groom and I issue them in our names? — K.L.

Neither form is correct in your case. Even though you will order and pay for and mail the invitations yourself, they should be issued in the names of your parents. Also, since you are so devoted to your mother and father, surely you give them the honor of sponsoring your wedding invitations.

SHOWER GIVEN BY CLOSE RELATIVE vs. SHOWER GIVEN BY FRIEND

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have read in your column that it's not proper for the bride-to-be's sister or any other member of her immediate family to give her a shower, but I've been recently told that it would be all right for the prospective groom's sister, who is to be a bridesmaid, to give the bride a shower, but I don't think it is proper. Will you please up this point? — Wondering

You're right . . . It is not considered proper procedure for a member of the bride's family or a member of the groom's family to give a bridal shower. Such a close relationship would make the guest of honor and the hostess unattractively emphasizes the idea that the shower is definitely planned "promotion" for the gifts. It's all too obvious. And on often it suggests that the bride-to-be has no friends who are willing to plan a shower for her.

KIND MINISTER GOT HIM A GOOD POSITION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

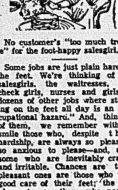
Recently, through the kind efforts of the minister of our church, I was able to obtain a very good position. My mother insists that I write to him at once and thank him, but since I will be seeing him in the store, I don't see why it wouldn't be all right to wait and thank him personally then. Besides I'm not very good at letter-writing, and it's not easy for me to write an interesting letter. How about it, Mrs. Beeckman—must I write the note? — Jim

Yes, sir, write that note you must . . . even though you may be seeing that kind minister that very day. Your mother is so right in her advice. After all, he was kind and he generously made the effort to help you, and you should follow back on making a bit of effort to be courteous to him. He won't be expecting an "interesting" letter, but he will be expecting a letter to tell him your appreciation for his great goodness to you, and your assurance that you will make every effort to justify his faith in you.

SEATED PRONLEM CREATED BY DIVORCE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's daughter is to be married soon. Her mother will be seated, of course, in the first pew on the left of the aisle. The bride-to-be thinks that her father, after giving her in marriage, should take his place in the first pew with her mother. But to me that is entirely out-of-order, and I think my husband should, after giving his daughter in marriage, be seated in the third pew. This is the procedure I've always seen when the parents of the bride are divorced. Right? — Stepmother



You are right about this procedure . . . and I'm quite sure your husband's former wife and daughter that this is the correct procedure. Or he might suggest she consult with him the minister who is to perform the ceremony.

CORRECT ATTIRE FOR MEN IN WEDDING PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are to be married in the middle of the afternoon. It is expected to be followed by a reception for all the guests invited to the church ceremony, and the reception to be held from 4 to 6 o'clock buffet dinner. My groom-to-be would like to wear a 6 o'clock suit for the wedding. — Sally B.

No. A tuxedo is evening attire . . . not correctly worn before dark in the evening, at the earliest. Rather than to wear evening clothes in the afternoon, it would be better for the men in the wedding party to continue to wear afternoon clothes in the evening. As a matter of fact, this is the correct and customary attire-procedure.

Why Not Bake That Fish?

By Mary Moore

When lightly. To this you may add 1-4 teaspoon of marjoram for extra flavoring. Moisten with a small amount of milk is desired. Then add the onions and mushrooms that have been lightly fried in the butter.

After filling the fish, skewer the toothpicks if you like) and lace with string to close the fish. Place in a buttered shallow pan, brush the surface with melted butter or salad oil. Start baking in a 450 degree oven for 5 minutes—fish should flake at the thick part when carefully tried with a fork. Carefully remove to a hot platter. Lifting of fish to platter is easier if a strip of foil or parchment paper to fit the fish is placed under it in the pan. Remove the skewers and string and garnish the top with lemon wedges and sides with parsley border.

BAKED FISH

Use 3 or 4 lbs. whole whitefish or similar fish, such as lake trout, or use fillets such as halibut or salmon steaks. Arrange in the bottom of a well-buttered baking dish. Cover it with a mixture of 1 1-4 cups soft bread crumbs, 1 finely chopped onion, 3 tablespoons crumbled bacon, 1 tablespoon finely chopped pepper (green), 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, salt, pepper, a few leaves of thyme and a shake of nutmeg. Moisten with a little fish stock or water. Top with stripe of bacon and dot with butter. Bake in 450 degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes, basting frequently with pan liquid. Serve as above.

STUFFED BAKED WHITEFISH

(Or any 3 or 4 lb. whole fish.)

Ask your fishman to clean, scale and bone the fish. Then when you have it home wipe it with a damp cloth and dry it well, salt; fill lightly with stuffing. Then when you have it home wipe it with a damp cloth and dry it well, salt and fill lightly with stuffing: Three tablespoons butter or margarine, 1-2 cup either fresh or canned mushrooms chopped, 1-4 cup finely chopped fish, 1-4 cup chopped onion, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Mix the bread, salt, pepper, parsley

52nd. YEAR IN BELLEVILLE

Ladies!

Now if you want to buy a dress,
Without the usual amount of stress,
Of worrying about the size or style,
And prices that outdo you by a mile—
Well, listen now, we've good advice,
For coats, suits, dresses, don't think twice
If you want style, quality, and low price too,
This is the shopping place for you.

We've every size to suit your need,
And even skirts and blouses, so put on speed,
The stairs are a miserable necessity, it's true,
But you'll find both style and price to suit you.
So climb those stairs, though we may be bold,
You'll find the truth in all we've told,
And you'll know we just make up this rhyme,
So that you all con save a dime—

Hats Go Places

By ALICE ALDEN

Some of the prettiest hats we have seen this season are of the casual or spectator sports type that have the new "bountiful" look and will travel. On the head they are graceful, in the suitcase they are folded flat, perfect for packing. Jeanne does one of these packable hats, a casual cloche in unsized cream-white straw braid banded with scarlet grosgrain and navy soutache.

30th Birthday Celebrated by Minerva Chapter

Last Friday evening was a gala night for Minerva Chapter No. 138, O.E.S. It was the occasion of their 30th birthday and to add to the galaxy of the evening, they had as their honored guests—Mrs. Olive Adams, Worthy Grand Matron; Mrs. S. McConnell, Grand Ruth; Mrs. A. Clow, Grand Organist; Mr. Whitfield, Grand Sentinel; Mrs. D. McKinney, memb r of the Grand Executive; Mrs. H. Cross, D.D.G.M., District No. 12; Mrs. C. Payne, D.D.G.M., District No. 13; Mrs. Childerly, P.D.D.G.M. of Hamilton.

To help Minerva Chapter celebrate this festive occasion guests were present from Hamilton, Brockville, Bancroft, Tweed, Trenton, Bloomfield, Kingston and Belleville Chapter No. 53.

The W.M. Mrs. Rhoda Gray, extended a gracious welcome to the visitors and members.

At the close of the business meeting the W.G.M. Mrs. Olive Adams, and other Grand Officers, each spoke briefly. The A.M. Mrs. L. Pethick, presented the W.G.M. Mrs. O. Adams, with a gift from the officers and members of Minerva Chapter.

The Charter members were presented with red rose corsages and each Past Matron with a red carnation corsage. The Past Patrons each received a boutonniere of white 'mums.

After the meeting closed, a ceremony was held with each Past Patron lighting a candle and each Past Matron giving the highlight of her year as Worthy Matron.

After the ceremony, the W.G.M. Mrs. O. Adams, cut the birthday cake and wished for Minerva Chapter continued success.

Bounteous refreshments were served by the special refreshment committee and the February group.

Dancing brought to a close a most enjoyable evening.

Fashion Flashes

The panel is a favorite device for lending softness and interest to the stark sheath silhouette. Pale lace is re-embroidered in ombre pink and green in a rose-bud effect for a short sheath evening dress mounted on pale lime green chiffon. The neckline is deeply oval, fore and aft. Chiffon is used for the wide, crushed cummerbund and released in a wide back panel that stops at the heelbop.

Good for wear anywhere is a daytime sheath of black linen with a perky black velvet bow on each shoulder. It buttons down the back from the high neckline to well below the waist and has puffy lantern sleeves of embroidered white organdie that are detachable.

The ensemble takes over in children's fashions too. Ready for spring and right for sub-teens, 8 to 14, is a black duster of linen-like rayon, with short, cuffed sleeves. It is lined in the same black and white cotton as is used for the sleeveless, long-torso dress that is piped in black around the square neckline which is also edged with white lace as is the cuff on the torso edge. Coat is slit at either side and has tuxedo lapels faced with the print.

Still topping many a smart head is the dome-shape hat. We see it in fluffy beaver felt, in velvet, in fur felt and lately in satin, usually white and boasting a bit of glitter, usually a rhinestone pin. A very smart touch, though, is a gilt metal ornament, since white and gold is always good.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

Pack 1—Brown Owl Eakins

Brown Owl Maund visited us on February 9 and in the evening we had a "Flying Up" ceremony as Queen Victoria School Tweeties Wilson, Donna Large, Donna Garlepy, Margaret Van Stone and Fay Courtemanche, attended by 19 Brownies of the 1st Belleville Pack.

Pack 16 (Rednerville)— Brown Owl: McMurray

On February 2nd, the Tenth Brownie Pack held a special ceremony when Nancy Doxtator and Marilyn Szolgarwski were presented with their "Golden Bars."

On February 16th, 15 of our Brownies were taken to Belleville by Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Chenier and Brown Owl to attend the Guide-Brownie "Thinking Day" service. A good number of our Brownies enjoyed the skating party held in the Belleville Arena on February 20th.

Pack 13—Brown Owl Gist

The 12th St. Michael's Pack was formed the first of the year with Aileen Collins as Tawny. We have 19 Brownies. The following were enrolled by Brown Owl Cleary and are now working for their Golden Bar: Mary Adams, Jo Agge McKanee, Michele McFadden, Kathryn Gist, Maureen Collins, Patricia Culhane, Maureen Moore, Sharon Anne Culhane and Vonnie Bruyea.

We were pleased to have present at the enrollment the Rev. Sister Mary Andrew, their teachers and mothers. The Brownies served tea and cookies. We have nine Brownies working for their Golden Hand.

One-year service stars were presented to Beverley Bruyea, Betty Bruyea, Rosemary Deryaw, Nancy Pigden and Gilaine Belair. Eleanor Burke received her 2nd year service star.

Our Brownies enjoyed the skating party held at the Belleville Arena on February 20th.

Company 2—Lieut. Faulkner

Our Guides are working hard doing test work.

Lynne Brown, Lois Conley, Jane Gray, Nancy Keene and Marilyn Vandervoort received their First Aid Badge.

Joy Butler received her four-year service star.

Linda Brown was a patient for a while in the Kingston General Hospital. When she came back she received her three-year service star. Welcome back Linda.

On behalf of the Guides and myself I would like to thank Mrs. J. Matthews who helped us this month.

Our Guides attended the "Thinking Day" service on the 26th and the skating party on the 28th.

Company 7—Capt. Sanwels

On February 14th Patsy Carter, Lynn Fuzzen, Judy Lang, Donna Matthews planned the Guide meeting and entertained guests for their "Hostess Badge."

The following badges have also been passed: First Aid, Lynn Fuzzen, Judy Lang, Joanne Whalies, Vonnetta Valyear, and Donna Matthews.

Emergency Helper: Joanne Whalies, Vonnetta Valyar and Arlene Cox. Cook: Joanne Whalies. Homemaker: Joanne Whalies and Roberta McDonald. Laundress: Patsy Carter and Lynda Bush.

Donna Matthews, who sold the most tickets for the tea in our company and Joan Colwell, who was second, were presented with prizes.

We are sorry to lose Miss Jackie Day, one of our lieutenants, who has been transferred to Willowdale. We wish her success in her new job and in future Guiding—our loss is Willowdale's gain.

Plans are under way for the Mother and Guide banquet to be held in the near future.

Youth for Christ Marks First Anniversary by Fine Messages

One year ago, a vision for Youth for Christ for Belleville, was born in the heart of Miss Doisida Day, formerly of Owen Sound, and now residing in this city. With inspiration and cooperation from many circles, today Belleville Y.F.C., is a chartered member of Y.F.C. International, with seven denominations represented on the local board of directors.

A successful weekend launched the second year, with two outstanding films being shown on Friday night in the Queen Alexandra school. From San Paulo, Brazil, came the Rev. Dick Shortz, bringing "Seventh World Congress" and "Work of Evangelism and Y.F.C. in Brazil."

Song leader for the evening was Mr. Ernie Belch, who led the congregation in singing some well-loved gospel choruses.

Mr. Jim Blackwood, area director, announced the forthcoming film "Cry of the Orient" to be shown at the Wesleyan Methodist church on March 10.

Mr. Shortz favored the audience with two solos, "It Was His Love for Me" and "Shall I Empty Handed Go," before bringing his message.

GOSPEL-STARVED BRAZIL

Basing his sermon on the feeding of the five thousand, as recorded in the 14th chapter of Matthew, Mr. Shortz likened this Scripture to feeding the gospel-starved millions of Brazil.

The need—South America is the fourth largest country of the world, with a population in Brazil alone of 53 million. What touches Brazil will affect all the other countries in S.A. since it borders on every republican country but two.

"Brazil," the speaker said, "stands for the greatest gospel opportunity in the world today. As God keeps the doors open. The largest city in Brazil has three million inhabitants who are hungry for the gospel. As a result of three street meetings, 140 people were saved, while the World Congress, as shown in the film, won thousands for Christ.

"In the largest city, there is no means to reach the people by communication, radio, TV or films. In San Paulo, the opportunity is given each week to present the gospel in the high schools for 50 minutes.

"The problem is—no one to go to Brazil. What can we do about it? In the Scripture lesson Christ used what was given to Him, to fill the need. When we bring God what we have, He will bless and multiply it, just as He did the loaves and fishes."

Saturday night saw around 225 persons seated in the community hall at Plainfield, to enjoy a sumptuous harbor dinner, served by the W.I. of that village. Grace was said by the Rev. Hope Smith.

The first anniversary cake was cut by Mr. J. Blackwood, who was also presented with the charter certificate for Belleville Y.F.C., by Mr. E. Reidelbach.

Greetings and words of commendation were given by the Rev. F. S. Spearman, president of the Ministerial Association, and Mr. Bruce Besley, who was previously associated with Y.F.C. in Shelburne, Ontario.

Mr. Russell Jenkins of Wales, sang several selections, including "He Is Real", and "I Love Jesus", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Bev. Foster.

A tie-breaking Bible quiz between Quinte and B.C.I. resulted in victory for Quinte Secondary. Team members were advised that the person answering the most questions correctly between now and July, will be awarded a free 10-day trip to Keswick in the Muskokas.

The guest speaker, Mr. Elliott Stedelbauer, prominent business man from Toronto, was introduced by Mr. Evon Hedley, vice-president of Y.F.C.I. Mr. Stedelbauer expends much time, effort and financial assistance for Y.F.C.I. and also is chairman of the board of directors.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Stedelbauer said, that "personal testimony of the saving grace of God was expected from a minister, but from a business acquaintance would carry more weight because of its unstudied nature. Because he is a business man, and not a theologian, the speaker's outline was "The Basic Requirements for any Company:" employer; employee; production; results.

He said, "the greatest employer we can work for is God. 1 Corinthians 3:9 says, "We are laborers together with God". If we are to labor with Him we must first become a member of His firm as is stated in John 3:3 "Except a man be born again He cannot see the kingdom of God." Being born again is not a reformation but a creative act of God.

"To be an effective employee, we must, as exhorted in 1 Peter 3:15 "Be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you, a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear."

"Our product is "Salvation," there is no better because it lasts forever and it is free. Why should we not extol the virtues of such a product? 'For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God,' Ephesians 2:8.

"The results are assured. Our investment in the souls of men will pay interest through all eternity. The Bible says in John 4:36 "He that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathered fruit unto life eternal, that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together." Not only in eternity, but here on earth, our lives are enriched by joining this company."

Club Activities

SUNBEAM MISSION BAND

The Sunbeam Mission Band met at Quinte View school on Friday afternoon with 33 members in attendance.

The president Billy Arthur presided over the meeting. All joined in singing "Can a Little Child Like Me".

The worship service was taken by Vicky Glydon, Marycella Mallory, Larry Bilton, Harry Richards, Duncan Goldie, Sheila Cavos and Karen Gallupe.

The leader, Mrs. L. Young, gave a quiz on Ruth and continued with the Scripture reading: Ruth second chapter.

The offering was taken by Iva Drouillard and dedicated .ith prayer by Mrs. Young. Prayer was offered for all missionaries and for all young Mission Band workers who are assisting in this work.

The minutes of January meeting were read by the secretary, Gail Goldie, and adopted by the president.

Karen Gallupe read a story about the Eskimo and Iva Drouillard and Gail Goldie read "Little Eskimo Always-on-the-Outside."

Mrs. Young had a quiz on "The Boy With the Busy Walk" then read "Tippy Finds Friends".

CIVILIANS CHARGED

SEOUL, South Korea (Reuters) Two civilians have been arrested and charged with the assassination of Lt.-Gen. Kim Chang Yong, South Korean counter intelligence chief on Jan. 30, the counter intelligence corps announced today. Also arrested were five army officers alleged to have plotted the murder because of "personal grudges."

GOOD TRAVELLER

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

An excellent coast for all casual wear, and ever so good looking and right, is this one of heavy knit, the color dark gray with a lining of yellow jersey to make for a lilting color scheme. The string tie under the neat little collar, flapped pockets and turn-back cuffs, are other details. A fine coat for travelling and a good companion since it packs and folds without creasing.

Member's Wives Meet Weekly But Political Topics Taboo

By CAROLYN WILLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — While parliamentarians are busy in debates on Parliament Hill, a group of their wives meet weekly, five floors above them, to stitch and chatter.

By unwritten agreement, political topics are taboo at meetings of the Parliamentary Wives' Association.

Instead some 75 women, representing all political parties, meet every Tuesday afternoon to knit and sew for charity, listen to guest speakers or visit interesting institutions in the capital.

The regular meeting place is the sixth-floor ladies' lounge in the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings. Majority of the wives here during parliamentary sessions live in hotel rooms or small apartments.

USEFUL PROJECTS

At meetings, members sew afghans for Canadian veterans' hospitals and make clothing to go to the Save the Children fund, says sewing chairman Mrs. William Speers, wife of the CCF member for Selkirk, Man.

This year the association donated $25 to the fund. Members pay a nominal membership fee to buy handicraft materials and the accumulated balance finances such projects.

Officers and committees to plan social, cultural and charitable projects are elected for each parliamentary session. Electors play no political favorites.

Mrs. Don Brown, this year's president and wife of the Liberal member for Essex West, Ont., said the non-partisan association is popular and "some members never miss a meeting."

The association's four vice-presidents are wives of Liberal, Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit members.

Mrs. John Diefenbaker, whose husband is the Progressive Conservative member for Prince Albert, Sask., heads the cultural committee which plans special speakers or group visits.

SPECIAL FEATURES

Diplomats' wives, association members and sometimes politicians act as non-political guest speakers. This year the cultural committee has planned a visit to the Ottawa Neighborhood Services workshop and a talk about the Stratford festival by Mrs. J. Waldo Monteith, wife of the Conservative member for Perth, Ont.

The entire association plans to entertain new Canadians at the YWCA in spring, says Mrs. R. A. Bryson, vice-chairman of the cultural committee and wife of the CCF member for Humboldt-Melfort, Sask.

Interest groups, including a band of bowling enthusiasts and a group studying French, have also sprung out of the Parliamentary Wives' Association.

Among members are three women senators: Cairine Wilson of Ottawa, Muriel Fergusson of Fredericton and Nancy Hodges of Victoria.

The organization was started about eight years ago by Mrs. Milton Gregg, wife of the labor minister, who thought parliamentary wives should become better acquainted.

IVANHOE

Beulah Jr. Choir Sponsors Evening Entertainment

IVANHOE — The junior choir of Beulah United Church, Ivanhoe, sponsored an interesting and informative entertainment on the evening of February 23rd in Beulah United Church.

Mr. S. Twiddy acted as chairman and extended a welcome to all present. The following program was given:

The Queen; choruses, "Down in My Heart," "The Bible," and "Heavenly Sunshine," led by Mrs. George Wood with accordion accompaniment; readings, "What is a Girl" Jack Wood, "What is a Boy?" Karen Bray.

The guest speaker, Mrs. George White, of Madoc, was introduced by Mrs. Keith Bray.

EUROPEAN SLIDES SHOWN

Mrs. White showed slides and told of her recent visit to England, Europe and the Near East. She proved to be a pleasing, lucid narrator and the junior choir is grateful to her for giving of her time and talents.

Mrs. Elymer Rollins on behalf of the gathering expressed grateful thanks to Mrs. White.

In reply, the guest speaker said she was glad to help in this worthy cause. She commended their leader, Mrs. Bray, and choir members for the efforts put forth in this worthwhile work of the church.

A piano solo was given by Miss Ellen Mitz.

Refreshments were served by the ladies.

MINTO

Salem W.A. Ladies Sponsor First Supper

MINTO — The ladies of Salem M.A. held their first supper in the new church hall on Thursday evening of last week.

Approximately 90 sat down to well-laden tables after which Mrs. Harold Holden, president of the W.A. called the gathering to order in the church, welcoming all, especially thanking everyone who had helped with the hall in any way, making mention of the generous assistance of the men.

Mrs. G. Teskey led in community singing, and musical selections were given by Mary, Margaret, Ray and Barbara Twiddy, Joe, Glenn and Grant Hagerman, and Shirley and Marion Broadworth.

Mr. Ernest Sarles introduced Mr. and Mrs. Harold Martin, of Stirling, who showed and explained pictures of their Alaskan trip, also a few of their European tour. These pictures were interesting and beautiful.

Mrs. Holden thanked Mr. and Mrs. Martin on behalf of the W.A. for their kindness in presenting the pictures.

STIRLING

River Valley 'Society Gals' Complete Work

STIRLING—River Valley 4-H 'Society Gals' completed their assignments on Saturday at the Achievement Day ceremonies in Stirling municipal hall.

The leaders, Mrs. George Heasman and Mrs. Phil Conley with 15 girls, were in attendance at the two sessions.

There were eight clubs and the 'Society Gals' gave a skit centred around the theme of "Introductions".

The demonstration was the proper table setting for two people. Miss Marilyn Conley was the commentator for the River Valley group and set the table as she talked.

The 'Society Gals' had 17 girls in the club for the season but two were unable to attend the Achievement Day ceremonies.

All of the girls made 'fancy sandwiches during the forenoon which Miss Faye Irvine, home economist, judged and these were served at the close of the afternoon proceedings.

Mrs. Roy Bush, president of River Valley Women's Institute; Mrs. Vernon Harry, Mrs. Don Donohoe and Mrs. Glenn Bush, were in attendance and represented the Institute as that organization has sponsored the girls and their leaders in this worthwhile work.

RED PEACE

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said Tuesday night the scheduled Bulganin-Khrushchev visit to London in April is part of a Soviet peace initiative. The English language broadcast beamed to British pictured Russia as trying to bring about a milder climate in international affairs.

Highway And Education Costs Considerably Higher

Almost One-Fourth of Total Budget Will Be Spent on Education Legislature Told

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will spend $106,000,000, almost one-fourth of its total budget, on education in the coming year, Provincial Treasurer Porter announced today.

In his budget address to the provincial legislature, Mr. Porter forecast a continuing problem in accommodating pupils in primary and secondary schools and universities.

New facilities had to be provided for nearly 70,000 new pupils every year. Enrolment now was 1,050,000. By 1960 it would be 1,300,000 and by 1965 1,800,000. This indicated a continuing program of construction.

Last year 2,500 new classrooms were provided at a cost of $59,000,000.

Recruiting of teachers was another problem. Increased salaries had helped schools to attract new staff. Of the 35,500 full-time teachers in Ontario, nearly 14,000 had entered the profession in the last dozen years. In the next five years, 30,000 would be needed to keep pace with school expansion.

ENROLMENT INCREASE

The minister, a graduate of the University of Toronto and a Rhodes Scholar, emphasized the government's assistance program to universities. They now received a building grant of $1,000 and applications for admission were likely to double in the next 10 years.

Maintenance grants to universities were also increased to total $930 000 to $6,215,000 in the coming fiscal year, with $2,500,000 coming from the current year's budget totalled $1,200,000.

Individual totals of the special grants were:

University of Toronto dental school, $1,000,000; University of Toronto, $1,915,000; University of Western Ontario, $1,000,000; Hamilton College of Medicine, University $60,000; University of Ottawa for facilities in medicine and science $600,000; Carleton College, $500,000; Assumption University for Science College, $500,000; Royal College of Art, $125,000.

Carleton College, outgrowing its present buildings in Ottawa, had acquired land on the outskirts of the city and was preparing a building program. Its capital grant would total $1,000,000, with another $600,000 coming from the new year's budget.

Maintenance grants to universities from the new budget totalled $6,215,000, an increase of $930,000 from the current year: University of Toronto, $2,920,000; Royal College of Education, $490,000; Queen's University, $715,000; University of Western Ontario, $650,000; Hamilton College, $275,000; University of Ottawa, $400,000; Carleton College, $175,000; Essex College, $100,000; Ontario College of Art, $70,000.

GRANT TO LAKEHEAD

The new Lakehead College would get a $500,000 capital grant.

New buildings for the Ontario Agricultural College and the Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph would cost $2,686,000 and the would receive $3,643,000 in maintenance grants. Buildings at the veterinary college would cost $1,450,000 and the maintenance $952,000. Kemptville Agricultural School would get $1,000,000 for buildings and $323,000 for maintenance.

"Greater opportunities for our young people to obtain a higher education," Mr. Porter said, "are the fabric of our society, for the prime bulwark of our democratic way of life is a well-educated and enlightened people. . . . Our efforts must be directed to obtaining a balanced program of university expansion."

The chief director of education for the province would be appointed to co-ordinate and advise on long-range planning. The universities could prepare to accommodate the expected flood of applicants.

The government had also been mindful of the needs of retarded children. Thirty five classes, with an enrolment of more than 900, had been established. The province paid annual grants of $250 per pupil of retarded children attended. Special training was offered teachers.

Victoria Cross Winners Will Be Assisted

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario plans to help its Victoria Cross winners join the VC centenary pilgrimage to London next June.

Provincial Treasurer Porter announced in his budget speech to the Ontario legislature today that a fund of $5,000 is being set aside to help meet expenses of VC winners who make the trip. The grant is aimed at paying personal expenses of VC holders and accompanying relatives.

NO NEW TAXES

Revenue outran estimates so far in the current year that Mr. Porter let loose a $47,800,000 windfall before reporting his surplus. He put $28,500,000 into the reserve fund for highway construction and appropriated special grants of $19,300,000 to universities, hospitals and other bodies.

LIQUOR PROFITS RISE

Profits from government sale of liquor led the revenue upsurge with $45,000,000 compared to an estimate of $38,000,000. Gasoline tax revenue was up $3,500,000, succession duties $2,000 up and the transfer tax $3,10,000 and land transfer tax $2,100,000. The tax agreement with the Dominion government yielded $2,345,000 more than expected.

The tax agreement is expected to be the biggest single revenue source in the coming fiscal year with an estimate of $151,700,000, followed by liquor profits $45,000,000, car licences $41,000,000, succession duties $21,000,000, lands and forests $19,512,000.

BIG EXPENDITURES

The biggest spending bite from ordinary account in the coming year is a total of $108,460,000, up $9,000,000 from the present year. Another $30,000,000 is earmarked for maintenance and capital outlays from the Ontario Agricultural grant and the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph.

Universities got $7,240,000 for capital outlay in the special grants of $19,300,000 in the coming year's accounts, an increase of $1,600,000 over similar grants a year ago.

GRANTS TO HOSPITALS

Hospitals got $5,350,000 at the rate of $1.50 a bed. The amounts ranged from $400 for the tiny two-bed hospital at Wilberforce to $600,000 for the Toronto General hospital, now undertaking major expansion; $275,000 for the Ontario Hospital Foundation; $100,000 to the Stratford Hospital Foundation; $75,000 to Victoria Hospital, Toronto; $1,000,000 for a new building for the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto; $100,000 each to the Royal Botanical Gardens of Hamilton and Metropolitan Toronto for zoological gardens; $10,000 to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children; Cruelty to Animals; $265,000 to buy Silk vaccine for use during the year; $1,000,000 each to the teachers superannuation fund and the civil service superannuation fund.

A start would be made this year on the $15,000,000 Ontario Water Resources Commission. It would receive $150,000 for administration and an additional $2,000,000 for initial financing of any capital works it approved.

It was estimated the project would need $2,500,000 over the next 20 years. The commission would operate like the Hydro-Electric Power Commission and its capital expenditure would be self-liquidating.

Mining bonuses in 1955, Almost 700 claims were staked and recorded, an increase of about 50 200 over the previous staking record in 1954. Mineral production was valued at $378,000,000 compared with $296,700,000 in 1954, the previous record year.

An appropriation of $1,000,000 for mining access roads was planned for 1956, the same figure as last year, and grants to mining municipalities would be increased to $2,000,000 from $1,500,000. Figures for individual municipalities were not announced.

Ontario's first specific appropriation for forest regeneration — $520,000 for work in white pine, spruce, jackpine and birch forests — was included in the budget. In the last year more than 28,000,000 trees were distributed from nursery stock, an increase of 2,000,000. More than 18,000,000 of the seedlings went to private land owners.

Farmers' cash income, which dropped in 1952 and 1953, was fairly stable in the last two years. In 1955 it was estimated at about $14,000,000, an increase of two per cent from 1954. The decline resulted from a drop in prices rather than a lack of productive capacity.

Conservation had become an important part of the government's activities since the department of planning and development was established in 1944, said Mr. Porter, who was the department's first minister.

FLOOD-CONTROL WORKS

There were 19 conservation authorities in the province, with 140 municipalities. Ten flood - control projects had been completed at a cost of $9,500,000. Projects completed, under way or planned were estimated at $18,000,000.

Motor traffic was straining highways to the limit. Motor vehicle registrations in 1955 totalled 1,617,000 and another 5,000,000 autos from the United States. Traffic experts hinces used Ontario's roads. The province had 16,000 miles of provincial highways in the coming year compared with estimated revenue of $141,000,000 from motorists' gasoline tax.

The fiscal year now ending assistance to municipalities in various forms—grants to schools, hospitals, welfare and for other purposes—totalled $183,200,000, in the Ontario Treasurer's budget address of $1,847,000,

A Dominion - provincial relations, Mr. Porter said Ontario felt there were two main defects in the federal - provincial tax proposals. The Dominion proposed to levy "progressive" rates in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia, the provinces with the highest yields, for the "equalization" payments to other provinces. Ontario felt the yardstick for equalization payments should be either the average for all provinces, or the rates in Quebec, Ontario, B.C., and Alberta.

DEATH DUTY EFFECT

Mr. Porter said the second defect was in the Dominion's failure to "recognize provincial succession duties and by their action have brought about that rapid growing population and industry have never created demands for many costly provincial services." The Dominion formula did not take this cost into account.

Ontario also was dissatisfied with Dominion government proposals for assistance to universities. It hoped that further negotiations would be held with the other provinces. The Dominion agreed to contribute to relief costs only when the provincial cost of relief exceeded .45 per cent of the population, the basis of the 1955 tax agreements.

He left the provinces and municipalities to meet all the cost of caring for unemployable persons and there was no provision whatever for able-bodied unemployed. Ontario felt that the Dominion should pay all cost of assistance for those able to work.

By the end of 1956 Ontario carried out only one direct financing operation, a refunding of $50,000,000 three-per-cent bond issue.

Changes were planned in the Gasoline Tax Act to encourage motor fuel, paint solvents and naphtha purchases. There will now be rebate but purchasers paid the tax and then claimed a refund. Under the change they would pay the tax at all. Another change would be to allow refunds for separately purchased gasoline to simplify administration.

UNEMPLOYMENT FELL

A year ago, unemployment caused some worry. But the Ontario economy showed its capacity to develop. Production increased

Province Plans to Intensify Program of Using Salk Vaccine

TORONTO (CP) —Ontario plans to intensify its program of using Salk vaccine to combat polio, Provincial Treasurer Porter said today.

He reported in his budget speech to the Ontario legislature that the government plans to buy its 1956 stock of vaccine with a special $955,000 appropriation from the province's current year's estimates.

In 1955, two doses of Salk vaccine were given in 842 municipalities to more than 1,000,000 people from the first three grades of elementary schools. This year, the government ordered 3,375,000 doses to provide a third dose to last year's group and to the first and other elementary school children in the province's municipalities.

In his health review, the minister said discussions with the Dominion on a national hospital insurance plan. He warned that it would be costly, although he said it might increase Ontario's health costs to $200,000,000 a year. Health cost in the coming year was $65,900,000.

The hospital services commission being established at this session of the legislature would be a foundation for further development.

Hospitals expanded over the last year with 1,743 beds and 513 nursery bassinets added to existing accommodation.

Accommodation at mental hospitals was increased by 1,000 beds in 1955 and about the same number would be provided by 1957 this year. A heartening development was a decrease in the death rate from tuberculosis. The Ontario Cancer Institute would be completed by the fall of 1956.

In 1958, job opportunities were opened for an additional 40,000 government employees, and personal income increased. House-building hit a record pace with 52,000 housing units completed, an increase of 11,000 from the previous high in 1954.

The government planned a new parks board to carry out a province-wide parks policy. Permit fees from water rentals for hydro power development would not only be used to support existing parks but to acquire new ones. A temporary staff of 81,000 would soon be made to the new St. Lawrence parks commission for capital purposes.

The biggest applied to the budget itself which was a thicker document than usual—143 pages including 78 pages of illustrative graphs. The speech ran to 7,940 words and about 17,000 words. The rest was made of tables and other data.

Mining Industry Showed Healthy Increase in '55

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's mining industry boomed in 1955 as never before, Provincial Treasurer Porter reported today in his budget speech to the Ontario legislature.

Prospectors, hunting mainly copper and iron, staked and registered a record 57,400 claims, an increase of about 7,200 over the previous high in 1954. Preliminary figures placed value of mineral production at $378,000,000 compared with the previous record of $296,700,000 in 1954.

Iron ore shipments started from Marmora in eastern Ontario last May and production of uranium began in the Blind River field in September.

TOWNSITE CONSIDERED

The government, already supervising construction of new model towns at Elliot lake in the Blind River area and at Manitouwadge in northwestern Ontario, was considering a third townsite available in the Bancroft uranium field in eastern Ontario.

The government paid $3,200,000 building 325 miles of mining access roads in 1955. Work planned to spend another $1,000,000 in 1956. Work would be continued on projects totalling 200 miles of access roads might be started.

Developing work last year, he mentioned roads between Skow Lookout and Whitefish on Lake Nipissing and the Hornepayne northroad.

The government also planned special grants to designated mining municipalities. Last year they received $1,500,000. This year it would be $2,000,000. He gave no details.

More Interest Will Be Taken In Park Lands

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario plans to establish a board to administer its park lands on a province-wide basis, Provincial Treasurer Porter said today.

The minister made the announcement in his budget speech to the Ontario legislature, saying the board would come from the Trent, Moira and Cataraqui rivers; grading of Highway 401 from Belleville to Trenton; paving on bypasses at Gananoque, Kingston, Belleville and Trenton; paving of 14.8 miles of the Aitkokan highway; grading of 14.5 miles to complete the highway from Shebandowan to Highway No. 17.

Work on the Trans-Canada highway, 28 miles were paved in 1955. Other work was carried out on another 21 miles and four bridges built.

Work scheduled for 1956 included bridges west of Nipigon over the Little Pic, Prairie, Steel and Mattawin rivers; grading and surfacing of the parkway from the Quebec boundary and for 6.5 miles west of Cobalt.

Work on access roads in northern Ontario would be continued and new ones were under consideration.

TAKE RED ARMS

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—An Algerian guerrilla leader said Tuesday if French reinforcements threaten his fighters with defeat "we will take arms from the Soviet Union." Mohamed Ben-Bella, who is allied with the Algerian nationalist liberation front, was commenting on French plans to send 20,000 additional troops to cope with the rebellion in Algeria.

The extension of the Aitokan highway toward Fort Frances would make Quetico provincial park more accessible to visitors. The new park policy represented a realistic approach to the problem of urban congestion.

Ontario Faces $920,000,000 Backlog of Necessary Road Construction Says Treasurer

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario faces a backlog of $920,000,000 in necessary highway construction, Provincial Treasurer Porter said today.

In his budget speech to the Ontario legislature, he estimated spending on road construction and maintenance in the coming fiscal year at $233,000,000, based on expectation that municipalities would spend $30,000,000 to match Ontario grants.

The spending compared with Estimated revenue of $141,000,000 from gasoline tax and motor vehicle licences.

The government's share of the coming year's spending represented $183,000,000 — $48,000,000 for maintenance, $85,000,000 for construction, $2,000,000 for assisted road subsidies. In the fiscal year ending March 31, the province spent $137,000,000 and municipalities another $45,000,000 for a total of $202,000,000.

In 1955, the highways department resurfaced 269 miles of roads, repaved 174 miles with hot mix, surface-treated 1,200 and graded 225 miles, built 37 new bridges.

In the coming year further progress would be made in the 401 from the four-lane highway from Windsor to Chatham to Belleville and the start of new Highway No. 401 between Windsor and Tilbury, paving 21 miles of the 401 completed by bypass and opening of the Toronto bypass.

Increasing traffic put growing pressure on the highway system. Ontario car registrations numbered 1,617,000. About 5,000,000 vehicles from the United States and other Canadian provinces also used Ontario highways each year. There was serious congestion both on highways and urban roads.

$10 PER HOUSE

Work for the coming year included:

Grading of a 26-mile road north from Highway 17 into the Blind River uranium field; building of reconstruction of the Burlington bridge on the Queen Elizabeth Way; construction of bridges over the Trent, Moira and Cataraqui rivers; grading of Highway 401 from Belleville to Trenton; paving on bypasses at Gananoque, Kingston, Belleville and Trenton; paving of 14.8 miles of the Aitkokan highway; grading of 14.5 miles to complete the highway from Shebandowan to Highway No. 17.

On the Trans-Canada highway, 28 miles were paved in 1955. Other work was carried out on another 21 miles and four bridges built.

Work scheduled for 1956 included bridges west of Nipigon over the Little Pic, Prairie, Steel and Mattawin rivers; grading and surfacing of the parkway from the Quebec boundary and for 6.5 miles west of Cobalt.

Work on access roads in northern Ontario would be continued and new ones were under consideration.

TAKE RED ARMS

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—An Algerian guerrilla leader said Tuesday if French reinforcements threaten his fighters with defeat "we will take arms from the Soviet Union." Mohamed Ben-Bella, who is allied with the Algerian nationalist liberation front, was commenting on French plans to send 20,000 additional troops to cope with the rebellion in Algeria.

The extension of the Aitokan highway toward Fort Frances would make Quetico provincial park more accessible to visitors. The new park policy represented a realistic approach to the problem of urban congestion.

Farm Cash Incomes Remained Stable During Past Two Years

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario farm cash income remained stable in 1954 and 1955 after declines in the previous two years due to a drop in farm production, Provincial Treasurer Porter said today. Tentative estimate of cash income for 1955 is $14,000,000.

He told the Ontario legislature in his budget address the basic problem of lower farm income, not due to lack of productive capacity, was aggravated by rising costs. Encouraging factors were steadier prices and increased demand which would bring a bigger market.

Ontario had three times as many marketing schemes in operation as all other provinces combined. The province planned to start marketing plans covering some 30 crops. To these he added, more than 50 commercial fairs and two new annual livestock auctions—at Gore Bay and New Liskeard in northern Ontario—that have gained international recognition.

Technology and agricultural science were of growing importance. Output per agricultural worker was 15 per cent greater than 13 years ago.

The province had spent more than $2,000,000 on community projects in rural areas and in the last year 81 were completed — halls, arenas, athletic fields, outdoor rinks and swimming pools.

The province's junior farmers' organization, aimed at getting young farmers established, had approved 1,569 loans totalling $10,300,000. The maximum amount available for such loans would be increased to $20,000,000 from $10,000,000.

The government's appropriation for agriculture was being increased in the coming year to $10,800,000 from last year's $9,710,000.

Housing Boom Hit New Peak in Past Year

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's housing boom hit a new peak in 1955 with 52,000 units completed, an increase of 11,000 from 1954, Provincial Treasurer Porter reported today in his budget address to the Ontario legislature.

Rate of construction has been particularly impressive in the Metropolitan Toronto area where there were 22,000 starts during the year, double the number before the Ontario government established the metropolitan administration.

Rental housing had made favorable progress throughout the province. Thirty-five projects, providing about 4,310 rental units, were completed, under way or planned at the end of 1955 compared with 1,124 a year earlier.

Federal - provincial - municipal partnership housing assembly projects had been undertaken in 24 areas, making land available at low cost for rental accommodation. About 14,000 lots had been made ready for a total of 30,000 to 33,000 serviced lots.

In the coming fiscal year, Ontario was appropriating $10,000,000 for various rental and land-assembly projects.

Three new housing authorities were established in the last year—Brockville, Owen Sound and Trenton—raising the number in the province to 26.

Regeneration Policy Will Be Strengthened

TORONTO (CP) — Management of Ontario's forest resources on a sustained yield basis will be strengthened by a more intensive policy of regeneration, Provincial Treasurer Porter said today in his budget address to the Ontario legislature.

He said in addition, Mr. Porter announced an appropriation of $550,000 for regeneration work in 1956 and while planting of white pine and birch forests — Ontario's first scientific appropriation for regeneration.

In artificial regeneration, more than 28,000,000 trees from nursery stock were distributed in the last year, an increase of 2,000,000. More than 16,000,000 of the seedlings went to private owners, the rest to Crown lands and Crown lands. Plans were prepared for an increase in the production of Crown lands.

Forest protection was one of the government's most costly services in the woods, he said in this service, including fire fighting, cost $8,700,-000. It was planned to allocate highway access roads as a component's $15,400,000 appropriation for this work in the coming year.

Pace of Public Building Will Be Stepped Up

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will step up the pace of its public building projects this year, Provincial Treasurer Porter told the Ontario legislature today.

Spending is expected at $43,800,-000, compared with last year's figure of $36,775,000, the province's budget estimates.

Major projects to be continued this year include a new medical college at Hamilton; 500-bed unit at the Ontario Hospital at Kingston; 500-bed unit at Ontario Hospital, Woodstock; first group of buildings for the 1,200-bed hospital at North Bay; an additional 150-bed unit for the hospital for the criminally insane at Penetanguishene.

Among new projects to be undertaken is a new hospital for mentally defective children with 1,000 beds at the outset. Mr. Porter did not name its site.

PICTON

Benefit Dance Being Held for Fire Victims

PICTON — Residents of Athol township are rallying to aid Donald Fennemore and family who lost their home last week near Cherry Valley by fire. A benefit dance is being held Friday night. A canvass for funds is being made and a shower is planned for March 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Fennemore, and four young children were visiting a neighbor when fire, from an unknown source, broke out in their home. By the time neighbors arrived it was impossible to enter the dwelling and all contents were lost. The family had only the clothes they were wearing. Exemplifying the term "good neighbors," residents of the district immediately set out to aid the stricken family.

PICTON

Tract of Land To Be Used for Summer Home

PICTON— Five hundred acres on the end of Point Traverse has been sold to Charles Hirschey, of Carthage, N.Y. Sale was made by F. L. Ward, Q.C., as trustee of the estate of the late Charles F. Thompson. Earlier this was the Lowder homestead.

The point of land is bounded by Lake Ontario and South Bay and there is a sheltered harbor at the fishery there.

Mr. Hirschey has often visited the Point in his yacht. He plans to build a log house as a summer home and make further improvements to enhance the property.

PICTON

Overhead Wires Will Be Moved To Store Rears

PICTON. — Removal of all overhead wires from the Main street of the town, was advocated by Public Utilities superintendent Ciealan Blakely at the monthly meeting. Under a long-term program hydro as well as telephone wires could be placed at the rear of stores he said, suggesting changes be made when there are new installations.

A recommendation was made, that the superintendent visit town council and discuss the matter with them.

The commission authorized the removal of all signs from hydro poles. These can be dangerous to linesmen, Mr. Blakely pointed out.

PICTON

Health Unit Report Given

PICTON — There were 431 cases of communicable diseases in Prince Edward last year, County Health Unit M.O.H. Dr. W. N. Turpel states in his annual report. Of these 144 were chickenpox, 96 influenza, 17 German measles, 61 whooping cough, 32 mumps, 4 venereal disease, 17 red measles, 4 infectious jaundice.

The immunization program saw 2248 primary courses and 2168 re-enforcing doses given. The first polio vaccine was given 1408 children.

The unit area has a population of 23,184, and there were 536 live births, giving a birthrate of 26.5. Infant mortality was 1.6 or nine. There were 291 deaths, making a general death rate of 10.0.

Sanitation Inspector Howard Seely reported a busy year.

The immunization clinics saw an attendance of 4375. Nursing services included 284 field nursing visits.

Mrs. W. Rodberg has returned to her home after her recent operation in Belleville hospital. Her friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. H. Haynes, Gilead, attended the funeral of their aunt in Castleton, on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Ross were Tuesday callers of Mr. and Mrs. F. Ashley, Foxboro.

Mrs. W. DeMille and David spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. M. Ross.

CANADA GAINS

It was signed by Mr. Howe, External Affairs Minister Pearson and Sergei Borisov, Russia's first deputy trade minister who headed the Soviet delegation in negotiations last fall. Art. 1. The formal instruments of ratification will be exchanged at Moscow where Mr. Pearson opened exploratory trade talks on his Russian visit last fall.

The two countries were committing a trade agreement before the Second World War, but it was dropped with the outbreak of war.

Russia itself is a major wheat producer, with exports to several countries. But long rail hauls are needed from its western wheat belt to supply eastern Siberian regions. Thus most of Canada's wheat sales are expected to go across the Pacific to Siberia.

SEPARATE DOCUMENT

The wheat agreement, in a separate document to the trade pact, provides that in the three years Russia will buy between 1,200,000 and 1,500,000 metric tons—44,000,000 to 55,115,000 bushels. Annual amounts would be between 400,000 and 500,000 tons—14,687,000 to 18,371,000 bushels.

At current prices the three-year total would cover between 360,000,000 and 375,000,000 worth of wheat.

Mr. Howe said the prices will be the same as those charged major customers when each sale is made. Russia's purchases would be "a fair distribution of the second milling grades."

That indicated Russia does not plan to buy the top grade, No. 1 northern. Other milling grades are No. 2, 3 and 4.

The pact will help whittle down Canada's big wheat stocks. Last Jan. 1 stocks for export and carryover totalled 740,000,000 bushels, compared with 634,000,000 a year earlier.

TRADE LAST YEAR

The amounts of wheat covered dwarf other trade with Russia. In the first 10 months of last year Canada sold $2,672,000 worth of goods to Russia, mostly wood pulp and vegetable oils, while buying $554,000 worth of Russian goods, mostly furs.

Mr. Howe said Russian wheat purchases in the second and third years, within the annual limits, "will be determined by the government of the U.S.S.R., taking into account the volume of Soviet goods sold to Canada."

Apart from wheat, the pact mentions no specific trade goods. Last fall Mr. Howe said trade prospects are limited because Canada and Russia produce much the same goods.

VANCOUVER CHIEF

Munro, Montreal-born reporter, was west coast representative for Flash magazine, a Toronto tabloid which published a series of articles charging graft-taking within the Vancouver force.

Mr. Tupper described Flash as "a scandal sheet."

In Vancouver, Munro said he is not satisfied with Mr. Tupper's attitude "toward my methods."

"I think it's unfair," said the writer, who now publishes his own tabloid.

"If I had not used whatever melodrama and sensationalism I am accused of to bring this issue before the public, then we would still have Mulligan with us."

The Flash articles, the attempted suicide of Cuthbert, and release of a Senate narcotics committee report criticizing the Vancouver police force set off the inquiry.

Mr. Tupper said it was unfortunate that Mulligan, following his dismissal from the force at his own request, had left the country without testifying.

Mulligan moved to Los Angeles last month as a landed immigrant. Cuthbert, freed from the force on charges arising from his attempted suicide, now works as a security guard for an oil company.

"... I say no more," said Mr. Tupper, "than would be said by any person sharing my opinion that two police officers have engaged in corrupt practices one, and the junior of them, stood to face and admit the allegations against him, the other did not.

"In my firm opinion ... W. H. Mulligan, while chief constable of the Vancouver police department and in particular in the year 1946 was guilty of corruption in taking money directly and indirectly from those unlawfully carrying on business as bookmakers."

MYSTERY WOMAN

Allegations which Mulligan did not stand to face included charges by Helen Douglas, veiled mystery woman who was permitted to testify under her maiden name to a four-year affair with the former chief.

Miss Douglas said Mulligan, while chief, told her he had $38,000 from gamblers.

"This would not be the first occasion when the tragic degeneration of a man's character arose from such a liaison as she recounted," the report said.

"In my opinion her account is a true one, if not a complete one."

Drinking Water Is Unfiltered At St. Catharines

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Drinking water in St. Catharines has been unfiltered for the last three weeks, water works officials said Wednesday.

Water for 85,000 residents in St. Catharines, suburban Grantham township and neighboring Port Dalhousie has come straight from Lake Erie and "will continue to do so for the next three weeks," they say. It is heavily chlorinated, however, and is said to be perfectly safe.

The filtration plant has been shut down to allow connection of a $700,000 addition, to begin operation late in April.

Bass Fishing In Que. Lakes May Never Close

QUEBEC (CP)—A proposal to lift all restrictions on the fishing of largemouth and smallmouth bass in many Quebec lakes, has been submitted to the federal government, an official of the Quebec department of game and fisheries said Wednesday.

The Quebec recommendation has to be approved by federal authorities and adopted by order in council before becoming legal.

It applies only to lakes situated north of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers. In these lakes largemouth and smallmouth bass could be fished at any time and in any quantity if the Quebec proposal is approved.

The present fishing season for them in this area is from July 1 to Oct. 15. Terrebonne and Argenteuil counties, however, are already free of restrictions concerning these fish.

The fisheries department official said the reason for the Quebec proposal, based on biological reports, is that these bass have multiplied so much they are not growing to any size."

Committee Holds Last Meeting On Fluoridation

BRANTFORD (CP)—The Brantford fluorine committee, set up a decade ago to conduct a 10-year experiment on water fluoridation, Wednesday night held its annual and final, meeting.

A report of the committee issued last year found a 56-per-cent decrease in the number of decayed, missing and filled teeth among Brantford school children.

Dr. W. L. Hutton, medical officer of health, outlined a definition of the principles of fluoridation of municipal water supplies.

"The word poison," he said, "cannot truthfully be applied to any substance unless it is stated in what concentration the substance is poisonous."

"Fluorine in a concentration of 0.001 is not poisonous. The way in which the human body absorbs the fluoride in extremely small amounts and then rids itself of all but the small fraction used to harden the enamel of the teeth is well understood."

Once that fundamental fact is understood, everyone can deal with the facts and fallacies of fluoridation, he said,

TURNS DOWN OFFER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia has turned down an American offer of food to help overcome distress caused by Europe's coldest winter of the century. It was learned Tuesday that the United States embassy in Prague has reported to the state department that the Czech foreign office said that country had no need of American help.

DEMOCRATS

The Voice of America relayed Eisenhower's broadcast around the world, using all 73 of its transmitters. The CBC carried it in Canada.

Eisenhower said that if he is nominated at the Republican convention in San Francisco in August —a foregone conclusion in the absence of any health setback between—he will "wage no political campaign in the customary pattern."

In the first place, he would have to follow "a regime of ordered work activity, interspersed with regular amounts of exercise, recreation and rest." He said he must keep down his weight, take a midday rest, retire early and pass up social engagements.

MADE UP MIND

Beyond this, he declared, he made up his mind long before his heart attack that if he ran again—adding that he hadn't decided before he was stricken—he wouldn't conduct a campaign in which he was "personally a candidate."

"On the record are the aims, the efforts, the accomplishments and the plans for the future of this administration. Those facts constitute my personal program."

He would resort to "mass communication" to appeal to the voters to let him complete in the next four years the program he said has not yet reached the state of development and fruition that I . . . hoped could be accomplished within a single term in this office."

Senator Allen Ellender, Louisiana Democrat, said Eisenhower's TV appearance, coached by actor-producer Robert Montgomery, presented the president in a "very cocky and over-confident" role.

"He wants to stay home, keep on golfing and let other people do the chores for him," Ellender said. "In my opinion, the American people will not swallow that kind of a proposition. He said he was sick and not capable of carrying on the full duties of his office."

"PART-TIME CAMPAIGN"

Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) commented: "It seems like Mr. Eisenhower is planning a part-time campaign to become a full-time president." Humphrey said Eisenhower had been "compelled" to run again by Republicans "trying to save their party rather than save his health."

But Senator Ralph Aiken, Vermont Republican, said: "I don't believe you would get much frankness as that out of any other capital in the world. . . . The president leaves no doubt that he feels fully equal to carrying on the work of the presidency. The public will share his confidence."

Paul M. Butler, Democratic national chairman, said the health issue probably will "dominate the campaign and tend to obliterate discussion and consideration of the great issues of foreign and domestic policy."

The "urgency" remark came from Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, a former Republican who remained in the Senate as an Independent before becoming a Democrat. He said the American people will "reject this White House regency" in the November elections.

VICE-PRESIDENCY EAGLE

Eisenhower's remark at his press conference that he would want to wait until after his own nomination before indicating his choice for vice-presidential candidate was taken with a grain of political salt by most Republicans.

Few party members feel he can delay that long in giving some clear-cut sign that he wishes to abandon or retain Vice-President Richard Nixon.

Eisenhower's praise of Nixon as "a loyal and dedicated associate, and a successful one" gave Nixon's friends consolation. But his refusal to say more left the field wide open for operations by those who want to jettison Nixon.

Queen Not Ill Nor Fatigued Says Official

LONDON (Reuters)—There is no reason to believe that the Queen is suffering from any form of ill-health or fatigue, court circles said Wednesday night.

They made this assertion in reply to reports about the Queen's health published in some British and overseas newspapers.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, with the Queen's cousin, 19-year-old Princess Alexandra, are to go on a one-week cruise in the Mediterranean next month.

The unexpected announcement of this cruise led to rumors that it had been arranged as a rest cure for the Queen following her return from an arduous tour of Nigeria.

COURT STATEMENT

Court circles made plain Wednesday night, however, that the cruise has been organized at fairly short notice simply to coincide with the ending of British fleet exercises in the Mediterranean in which the duke will be participating.

The duke sails from Portsmouth today aboard the 4,000-ton royal yacht Britannia to take part in exercises based on Gibraltar.

On March 19, the Queen and Princess Alexandra will fly to Corsica to join him aboard the Britannia.

They will undertake no official visits during the cruise, which will depend on the weather. If it is unduly stormy, the Queen will not make the trip at all.

Weight-Reducing Program Fails To Save Marriage

CHICAGO (AP)—A divorce decree Wednesday ended the marriage of a woman who tried to save it by slimming down from 190 pounds to her wedding day weight of 127.

Mrs. Lucille Korzen, 44, leveled off at 140 by Oct. 20, 1953, but her husband said he wouldn't take her back at 95 pounds.

The husband, Michael, 43, felt the same way Wednesday so Judge Charles S. Dougherty of Circuit Court granted the woman a divorce on ground of desertion. Korzen dropped his countersuit charging cruelty.

When the divorce suit first came up Judge Cornelius Harrington suggested a weight-reducing program as a possible marriage saver because of the couple's frequent arguments over her weight.

Govt. Grain Legislation Hits Couple of Sharp Liberal Beefs in Senate Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's grain legislation, half of which incorporated Senate opposition in the Commons while the other half sailed through with barely a protest, has hit a couple of sharp Liberal reefs in the Senate.

One bill would provide federal storage payments on wheat carryovers exceeding 178,000,000 bushels at the Aug. 1 opening of any crop year. A second is to provide government guarantee of bank loans up to $1,500 at five-per-cent interest on farm-stored grain.

"I don't like it." Senator Thomas A. Crerar (L—Manitoba) said Wednesday of the storage measure.

Senator Barbour (Lunenburg-Hants) said) said the legislation was "a kind of subsidy." It would tend to increase Canada's heavy wheat production even more.

NOT UNEXPECTED

Criticism of the loans bill was not unexpected. It was battered continually by opposition critics on its 12-day voyage through the Commons and Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, kept up the fight in the Senate.

But Senate opposition to the storage bill started sharply with the almost-unanimous approval the measure received in the Commons. Only J. L. MacDougall (L—Vancouver Burrard) was critical there.

Senator Crerar, former federal resources minister and former president of the Searle Grain Co. Ltd., said the bill is "wrong in principle."

If grain growers were given a "compassionate allowance," then other producers had a right to expect it. Where would it end? No one could say.

If grain storage bill was finally given approval in principle by the Senate on division, a device indicating opposition without a recorded count.

But the loans measure was opposed by Senator Haig. He said the other seven members of his party in the Senate "can vote as they like, but I'm going to vote against the bill."

The government forced farmers to sell their grain through the wheat board. But now the board could take no more deliveries, so the government was arranging loans to farmers so they could pay interest on their own money.

"I don't see how anyone can vote for a bill which says to farmers, 'You've got to pay interest on your own money.'"

Solicitor-General Macdonald, Senate Liberal leader, defended the government's position on both measures.

"The loans on farm-held grain are necessitated because of heavy snow plugging at the U.S. end through lack of Canadian sales. Storage space would open up with the navigation season and prairie farmers would soon be able to deliver substantial amounts of grain.

The Senate resumes debate on the bill today.

Ducharme Murder Trial Expected To End Today

SUDBURY (CP) — The 10-day murder trial of Robert Bruce Ducharme was expected to conclude today with Mr. Justice E. G. Thompson charging an Ontario Supreme Court jury before it retires to consider a verdict.

Ducharme, 34, is charged with the rifle-slaying of 31-year-old school teacher Steve Klapoushak.

Before the jury retires it will hear Mr. Justice Thompson's instructions on points of law and a review of evidence.

Ducharme had shared Klapoushak's living quarters in Dalton, a bush-country hamlet 180 miles northwest of here.

BODY FOUND

Dec. 11, 1954, the teacher's body was found beneath a burning shack in Dalton. He was believed shot through the head five times a week earlier.

Ducharme was arrested near Hamilton shortly after the body's discovery. He was convicted last May 31 and on July 28 sentenced to be hanged. The conviction was set aside, however, by the Ontario Court of Appeal and a new trial ordered.

Prosecutor Gordon W. Ford in his windup address Wednesday said his case, based on circumstantial evidence, "is complete and has been supported by eye-witness reports.

DEFENCE ARGUMENT

Defence counsel Carl Walsberg argued someone other than Ducharme could have killed Klapoushak. He suggested the slayer could have been John Naegel, a district miner, killed in a mine accident January, 1955.

The last defence witness Wednesday was nine-year-old William Collin, a former pupil of Klapoushak's.

The boy testified he stopped at the schoolhouse the morning of Dec. 8 about the time Klapoushak believed to have died. He found Naegel inside but not the teacher. He said he had seen Naegel and Klapoushak together at a schoolhouse dance a week earlier. They appeared to be arguing.

15-YEAR GOLD THEFT

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Mining circles report that the Morro Velho Mine owners are investigating the disappearance of about half a ton of gold dust from their property in the last 15 years. Mine officials were reported to have arranged for sale of the dust privately instead of including it with the gold refined and stamped for shipping. It is understood the loss of the gold dust was reported by employees who had been promised a share of the profit from its sale and were never paid.

Not All British Papers Welcome Ike's Decision

LONDON (Reuters)—Most British newspapers today welcome President Eisenhower's decision to stand for re-election but one independent Scottish paper says it will be unfortunate if we have to depend on the sick man of America." It says, "in his decision, party advantage has prevailed over consideration for the President, but Mr. Eisenhower is allowing himself to be sacrificed to expediency."

The Scotsman adds that although Eisenhower was popular, he has disappointed many of his staunchest supporters on points of law and a series of evasions.

Ducharme had shared Klapoushak's living quarters in Dalton, a bush-country hamlet 180 miles northwest of here.

Liberal Oposition Given Lecture in Sask. House

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Liberals were told Wednesday by a CCFcabinet minister that they would do a better job if they brushed s tears from their eyes.

In a legislature keyn to the 10-man Liberal Opposite, Resources Minister John Brockhman said:

"I suggest that theLiberals give up their whining, cring and sellpity, and apply themselves a little better to their jobas the Opposition, and they willget a lot more consideration from the electorate."

The 58-year-old cbinet minister referred to a Tuesday speech by Liberal leader A.H. McDonald which said that socialism and CCF government monopoly blocked industrialization of the province.

"Voters will not elect a man who goes to Toronto and makes statements designed to bleep capitol out of the province," Mr. Brockelbank suggested.

"You're nuts," replied Mr. McDonald.

New Brunswick residents learned their books and restaurant meals will cost less as the Progressive Conservative government brought down its budget. These were the only tax changes. The three-per-cent sales tax was removed from books and restaurant meals under $1 were exempted from the sales tax.

Secretary-Treasurer Donald D. Patterson predicted a surplus of $56,900 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1957.

Hamilton Opposition leader Duff Robin charged, the Liberal Progressive government was "failed dismally" to provide quality of education by not giving proper leadership in establishing enlarged school areas. He said Education Minister W. C. Miller has these alternatives: Get public agreement on present policy, change the policy, or quit.

W. J. C. Kirby, a Progressive Conservative member of the Alberta house, urges the Social Credit government to boost provincial pensions and supplementary allowances by $5 a month. He said payment of $40 a month to widows and deserted wives is "niggardly" for a wealthy province.

Nova Scotia Opposition leader Robert Stanfield said he may step off the conferences with Liberal government leaders because of a press statement by Premier Hicks.

The Progressive Conservative leader denied the premier's statement that the opposition is reluctant to agree on a pairing plan to continue the session while government delegates attend the federal-provincial conference.

Windsor Hotel In Kitchener Complete Loss

KITCHENER (CP)—Fire Wednesday razed through a downtown business block destroying the 56-room Windsor Hotel and causing heavy damage to an adjacent building.

Damage was estimated at $350,000. No one was injured.

Cause of the fire was not known. Fire departments from three cities battled the fire for 3½ hours with all available equipment before it was controlled.

Loss of the hotel, owned by Mrs. Charles Bruder, was estimated at $250,000. Damage to an adjoining building and a wine store and shoe store on the street floor of the bowling-alley building was estimated at $80,000.

Only three guests, a desk clerk and three other hotel employees were in the building when the fire started. Firemen said the blaze apparently started in the hotel coffee shop and spread into the hotel proper 30 minutes later.

Fire departments from Kitchener, Waterloo and Preston answered the alarm with all available equipment.

Inquiry Opens Into Fourth of Series of Fires

OTTAWA (CP)—A coroner's jury today opened an investigation into the fourth of a series of dwelling fires that claimed 19 Ottawa lives since Dec. 17.

The five-man jury began hearing evidence about a Jan. 12 fire that killed Mrs. Cyril Moynahan and three of her five children. Two children, Diane, 17, the oldest and 18-months-old Rickey, the youngest, escaped with the help of a neighbor when fire swept through their two-storey frame house on west-end Tweedsmuir Ave.

The father, fire department Lieut. Cyril (Curley) Moynahan, former Ottawa Rough Rider football star, was in London, Ont., at the time. Three children had been had at the pallbearer at the funeral there of his niece, five-year-old Susan Moore, who had died of exposure after being criminally assaulted by a sex deviate.

The jury's final investigation Friday will inquire into the 10-year-old boy's arrest in an uptown rooming house row last Saturday.

Wednesday, coroner Dr. William T. Kendall criticized the jury's finding into the Jan. 31 fire deaths of the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hood in a home described as sub-standard and a fire hazard.

The jury found the children died of suffocation when the dwelling was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin and urged families living in sub-standard homes to take precautions against fire.

Kendall said the jury had ignored suggestions by crown attorney Raoul Mercier that substandard homes should not be rented under any circumstances and that city building by-laws should be more rigidly enforced.

The jury said the evidence showed the family was living in a sub-standard home with no facilities to rear children. The family members should have "planned to help each other to provide the greatest possible safety for their children."

Legislature Approves Throne Speech by Vote of 75 to 12

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Porter was scheduled to present his first budget to the Ontario legislature today as the government resumed moved into its second phase.

Debate on the speech from the throne was completed Wednesday when the Assembly approved by a 72-to-12 vote the government's motion in reply to the throne speech.

Amendments moved by the Liberal and CCF parties to the government motion were defeated earlier by the same vote.

Mr. Porter took over the treasury post last summer from Premier Frost in a cabinet shuffle. Premier Frost had presented the last 12 budgets in the legislature.

CRITICIZED GOVERNMENT

The Liberal amendment, a six-point criticism, attacked the government for not:

1. Taking positive action establishing provincial hospital insurance;

2. Considering problems caused by present municipal legislation;

3. Assuring completion of the trans-Canada highway as soon as possible;

4. Putting forward a sound and constructive farm marketing policy;

5. Implementing the recommendations of a select committee on reform institutions;

6. Reaching an agreement with the federal government on unemployment insurance payments.

HITS WELFARE

The CCF motion said the government's social welfare program is inadequate.

Planning Minister Nickle, the last government speaker in the throne speech debate, said the government is planning to set up an industrial development office in New York to try to attract American industry to Ontario.

A similar office established in Chicago three years ago had proved so successful a government felt the expansion was justified. Another office in Europe was being considered.

Arthur Reaume (L — Essex North) said Labor Minister Daley has set himself up as a "superlabor mediator or peacemaker."

The minister apparently was unwilling to take advice on labor matters from anyone. The legislature's labor committee should start gathering briefs from management and labor groups to get a basis for revising the Labor Relations Act.

The government also should tackle the problem of juvenile delinquents by appointing a special cabinet minister to deal with teenage problems.

The government motion in reply to the speech from the throne was made by James A. Maloney, newly-elected Progressive Conservative member for Renfrew South, and seconded by Harry Lyons (PC—Sault Ste. Marie).

SEEK FIRE CAUSE

Burnbrae Y.P. Presents Three Act Play

IVANHOE.— A three act play "They Went Thataway" presented by the Young People of Burnbrae Presbyterian church, in Ivanhoe Town Hall on Friday evening, sponsored by St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid, West Huntingdon, was well received by a fairly large audience, in spite of constant radio warnings as to hazardous driving conditions.

This comedy was directed by Mrs. Jean Haig, who is to be commended on the casting, suitable costumes and fine performances of the players. While each member of the cast seemed to be just right for her or his role, perhaps Freddie Buck, (a cowboy who was allergic to horses), and Princess, "One Blossom", (an Indian cook who never ceased giggling), caused the most merriment and applause. A small dog wearing a red blanket, the property of movie actress Bel Castle, proved to be a seasoned trooper.

During intermission, Mrs. Doug Hagerman sang "I'll Always Be In Love With You". Accordion solos were given by Mr. Gerald Taylor.

The cast included: Charlotte Pelham, owner of dude ranch, Mrs. Harold Lynn; Lil Bower, her partner, Mrs. Doug. Hagerman; Sheriff Jacob, Charles Carter; Freddie Buck, cowboy, Gerald Taylor; Joe Chuckwagon, husband of Princess "One Blossom", Doug. Hagerman; Elmira Spring, tourist, Mrs. Don Walker; Wade, Ken Matthews, Slug, Ernest Thain, bank robbers; Bel Castle, movie actress, Mrs. Gerald Taylor.

STIRLING

Clarence Milligan Addresses Sidney F.A. Annual Banquet

STIRLING — On Friday evening 140 people enjoyed a sumptuous banquet at the Orange hall, Wallbridge, sponsored by the Sidney township Federation of Agriculture.

The ladies of Wallbridge United Church served the delicious meal and the tables were laden with salads and fruit jellies, etc., which complemented the hot food.

Mr. Ed. Heasman, president, introduced those at the head table which included Mrs. Heasman, Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Dovey, Mr. Percy Ray, county president, and Mrs. Ray; Mr. Philo Harris, Madoc township Federation president and Mrs. Harris, Mr. Karl Sager, past County president; Mr. Clarence Milligan, guest speaker; various township officials, directors of Sidney Federation, and past president Mr. John Kane.

Mr. Heasman welcomed the guests, especially when the weatherman had handed out such a disagreeable time for motor travel. He paid tribute to those who catered and gave a brief summary of the work undertaken and accomplished in Sidney township during the past year and this included calf vaccination.

ENTERTAINMENT NUMBERS

The entertainment for the evening consisted of piano duets by Mrs. Arthur Fyear and Mrs. Gerald Clancy; readings by Mrs. P. MacMillan; music by Mr. Jack Rushnell and vocal selections by the Fisher family.

Mr. Harleigh Hamilton, deputy reeve of Sidney township, spoke briefly and extended a thankyou to the ladies who catered for the banquet, to which Mrs. Sam Nicholson graciously replied and said the Wallbridge ladies felt it was an honor to be asked to cater.

GUEST SPEAKER

Hastings County president Mr. Percy Ray spoke briefly and then introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Clarence Milligan of Napanee. He said, in part: "Mr. Milligan comes as a representative of Zone 4 of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture executive. He has previously been president of Lennox and Addington county F.A.' and president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. He is first vice-president of the County Hog Producers and a member of the O.H.P. board, also a director of the Ontario Farm Radio Forum, and has served as an officer of the county Milk Producers' Association. He is a past warden of Lennox and Addington county and a member of Napanee town council.

"He owns 1600 acres of farm land and is in partnership with his oldest son. He milks 40 cows the year round, has 200 head of beef cattle, raises and markets 400 hogs yearly, has 500 hens, 40 breeding ewes and in addition owns and operates a dairy business in Napanee.

"He was honored at the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II in Westminster Abbey when he represented Canadian agriculture."

Mr. Milligan, who is a fluent speaker, paid tribute to the ladies who catered and said he had attended three banquets during the week and this meal was the best yet.

He congratulated Sidney township Federation for the splendid work they were doing. Mr. Milligan has always been keenly interested in farm organization and he is also eager that his own farm be a success.

The Zone 4, which he represents, includes the counties of Lennox and Addington, Hastings, Prince Edward, Frontenac, Peterborough, Northumberland, Durham and Victoria.

According to a recent speaker at Guelph, 18 per cent of the farms in Hastings County have been abandoned and the speaker suggested that large farms with expensive mechanical equipment was the answer, however, Mr. Milligan thought otherwise. He eulogized the contentment of a small farmer, owning his own land and producing a fair amount and felt that was far better than the man with a large unit who was spending all his time and energy in order to make a lot of money.

GREATEST DEVELOPMENT

This generation has probably seen the greatest development, and everyone has been forced to accept these changes; but it is probable that there never will be another era with so much developed in so short a time.

The speaker took his audience back to the war years when farmers, their wives and children produced record crops at prices below cost as their share of the great war effort. They worked long hours and were glad to be of service to their country. Then came the industry boom following the war, and today only 12 per cent of the population is engaged in agriculture.

In 1931 the gross income of this group was around $3800 and the other 78 per cent were in a lower income bracket. He gave a summary of the price of milk from 1951 to 1954, and in that period there was a 40 per cent drop in price.

Industry made its greatest growth in 1955 and it is still forging ahead by leaps and bounds. Industry has a huge profit due to the efficiency of its employees and then, too, labor is well organized to get a fair wage for its own people. This group is looking after its own interests and in the end the consumers are the ones who pay the bills.

He felt ways must be found of creating interest among the farmers so that their opinions would be carried through to the provincial organizations.

He took exception to articles recently published in the local press giving excerpts from addresses by ministers of parliament and said they had misrepresented the millions that farmers had earned in profits. These speakers had neglected to state that today farmers were paying high prices for mechanical labor, like tractors, and balers to take the place of the former hired man.

AGRICULTURE NEGLECTED

The felt that Canadian agriculture, "one of the main industries of this vast country," was being neglected. He told of the great responsibility which rests today on farmers' organizations and quoted statistics re the production of steel, rubber and other commodities in Ontario.

In a recent survey 50 per cent of the goods manufactured in Canada comes from the province of Ontario, therefore it is this province which should be giving the lead in agriculture and this is the responsibility of each township. The Federal government stresses wheat; yet whole milk, hogs are also important.

EXPORT MARKET

Mr. Milligan gave a graphic picture of the situation of eggs, poultry and eggs and the big question today is the export market. He felt Ontario should have some protection and quoted the imports of dairy products and vegetable oils which comes to Canada from exporting countries who can produce this food more cheaply.

Labor has plenty of money to buy good food and if the job is done properly it can be a wonderful help to market the surplus food.

Marketing boards are worthwhile and the solution yet to be found is how to handle the surplus on a national basis. He paid tribute to those farmers who are supporting the local organizations.

He gave a graphic picture of "The United Kingdom's New Deal with The Netherlands," "The Australian Butter Exports," "Trade Drop in Food Imports in India," and other excerpts of interest and all this gave a vivid conception of what is "happening in today's world."

Mr. Milligan felt if the Dominion government is prepared to help people in under lands produce more food, then that same government should be prepared to help the farmer in Canada and the home food markets. He gave a picture of what other countries are giving to their own people in the way of subsidiaries and also outlined the standard of living in those lands and said their labor costs are much lower than Ontario.

He quoted incomes for farmers in other lands, and felt prices for food in Canada should be given greater thought by those who are most interested.

He stressed that all farmers should be supporting their organization which they have built up from township, county and on to provincial levels and felt that all this spadework would some day be an asset in the stabilization of farm prices.

CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM NEEDED

He felt good constructive criticism was needed and gave a few suggestions on how to carry on this work more efficiently. His closing thought was on the theme of "Better Co-operation of all Commodity Groups." The keyword should be a fair share of profit for any farm product, and thus all farmers should stand together as a full unit in order to reap success.

Reeve Byron Harder of Sidney township, expressed thanks to Mr. Milligan for his informative address and felt his wide experience on farm policies had given the audience much food for thought.

Past County president Earl Sager gave a picture of the abundance of food in the free world and felt some folk just take it for granted, with never a thought of what it would be like if they did not have that surplus.

Philo Harris, president Madoc township Federation, spoke briefly re the work in his township.

Phil Flagler, commentator over CJBQ, said he met with the farmers once daily over the air and so was no stranger. He gave a few ideas of how the weak links in the chain could be strengthened. Today the lines of communication are better than ever and the Ontario Federation has made great strides.

President Heasman referred to "Safe Driving Week" and hoped all would arrive home safely despite the icy condition of the roads.

RYLSTONE

Community Honors Departing Neighbors

RYLSTONE — On Thursday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reid was filled to capacity when the surrounding community gathered to honor Mrs. Reid's mother and sister, Mrs. Stella Gibson, and daughter Blanche, who are taking up residence in Campbellford. Both have spent their entire lives in the Rylstone community.

There was a short program, as follows, for which Murray Metcalfe, John acted as master of ceremonies, accordion duet, "Abide With Me", by Messrs. Melville Gibson and Claire Irwin; vocal duet, "Ile," by Patsy Spencer and Agnes McKown; reading, "Neighbors," by Mrs. Harold Stapley; vocal trio, "God Sees the Little Sparrow Fall," by Marilyn Stewart, Carol Heath and Donna Stewart; accordion duet, "My Bonnie Lassie," and "Are You Missin' Me" Melville Gibson and Claire Irwin; quartet, "What a Friend He Is," by the Ninth Line Quartet, Donna and Dorothy Morton, Anne Reid and Norma Petherick; reading, by Mrs. Murray Metklejohn; vocal solo, "Whispering Hope," by Mrs. Don Stewart.

An adress was read by Mr. Robert Scarlett, and Mrs. Gibson and Blanche were presented with an extension table, magazine rack and a china cup and saucer for each.

Mrs. Gibson graciously thanked the givers and invited all her neighbors and friends to visit them in their new home.

Refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

Although Blanche has already been in Campbellford for over a year, where she is employed at the Campbellford Memorial Hospital, both will be missed in the community, and the good wishes of all the community go with them.

492 Road Projects Worth $149,800,000 to Be Started

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of highways today listed 492 road projects in a $149,800,000 program for 1956-57. It included a long stride toward closing the gap in the incompleted section of the Trans-Canada Highway in northern Ontario.

Details were given in a 23-page document issued in connection with Provincial Treasurer Porter's budget speech in the provincial legislature. It said tenders on some $25,000,000 of the work would not be called until the fall.

The biggest share—204 projects costing $67,5000,000 — was carried over from the province's 1955-56 fiscal year ending March 31. The department statement said this work was awarded to contractors last summer and fall and has top priority.

Not all the carry-over work is scheduled for completion this year since it includes such projects as the Burlington bridge on the Queen Elizabeth Way near Hamilton and the Little Pic river bridge on the Trans-Canada Highway in north-western Ontario which will take more than two years to complete.

GRADING AND PAVING

The carry-over work includes 23 grading and paving projects on the Trans-Canada Highway, at an estimated cost of $12,000,000.

New Trans-Canada work listed 48 projects costing another $17,100,000. Many of these are for grading and clearing in the area between Agawa river on Lake Superior, 94 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, and Marathon, 189 miles east of Port Arthur. Clearing projects cover 31 miles, grading 43.3 miles.

In an interview, Highways Minister Allan mentioned his recent announcement that the Trans-Canada would follow two routes through central northern Ontario. Originally, the designated route swung north from Lake Huron near Blind River to Chapleau and then west to White River. The added route follows the Lake Superior shoreline north from Sault Ste. Marie and joins the Chapleau-White River link. He said work would be carried out on both sections, aimed at completion by 1961.

Long range plans calls for spending $75,000,000 on the Trans-Canada by March, 1961, the department's outline said. The Dominion government would pay $47,500,000 of the cost, of which $25,000,000 would be devoted to closing the gap and $50,000,000 on sections outside the gap.

MANDATORY PROJECTS

The department listed 114 projects, costing $28,900,000, as mandatory to complete jobs already started, to meet critical conditions or to fix intolerable highway. One set was mandatory to relocate Highway No. 2 before it is flooded out by the St. Lawrence seaway development. Another mandatory job was paving of the highway between Hearst and Longlac in northern Ontario — otherwise the department's hot mix plant would be shut down.

No specific jobs were listed for expenditure of $6,000,000 for contingencies. The money was divided into $1,500,000 for connecting links, $1,000,000 for mining roads, $1,500,-000 for buildings, $1,500,00 for day labor and $1,000,000 for miscellaneous work.

Eighty-four jobs costing $22,800,-000 were placed in a less urgent category. Tenders would be called next fall as contractors could plan operations for the 1957 construction season.

There were 44 resurfacing or maintenance projects, estimated at $1,000,000. Some were a stopgap measure to provide a good riding surface until plans were completed for a major construction project. Tenders on some of this work would be called in the fall.

The listings, which did not include cost of certain projects, showed 53 separate jobs on Highway No. 401, designed as a super road between Windsor and Montreal. This included 38 structures such as bridges and overpasses, 27 miles of grading and 58 miles of paving.

Urge CBC Adopt Color TV Now

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC should adopt color television now the Gordon economic commission was told today.

The Radio-Electronics - Television Manufacturers Association of Canada advocated this as a step to encourage development of electronics in Canada.

The association, in a brief, said the government should direct the CBC to provide leadership in advancing electronics and accused the agency of having an "inhibitive, negative and non-competitive" policy.

"This should be changed to a positive and progressive policy giving leadership to the electronics industry," the brief said.

MINOR CHANGES

Dealing with color TV, it said minor and inexpensive modifications to transmitters would make available to Canadians in color the United States color programs which the CBC now transmits in black and white.

Frederick Curry, Former Reeve Of Madoc, Dies

MADOC (Special) — Prominent in the civic, business and church life of Madoc for many years, Frederick "Fred" Curry, died at the Belleville General Hospital early Wednesday evening after an illness of ten days. In the death of Mr. Curry a link with the past history of Madoc village has been broken as he had been a resident of the village for half a century.

The late Fred Curry was born in Frankford, 76 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Curry and he is the last of his family. After receiving his early education he became a commercial traveller but in 1919 he entered the grocery and tobacco business in Madoc and successfully conducted that business for many years. Later he opened a wholesale tobacco business but retired from active participation in 1946.

During his business life he found time to take an active part in the civic and political life of his community. He served on the school board to start his civic career and then became a councillor in the village council and graduated to reeve, which allowed him to attend the county council and in all fields his worth was recognized by his colleagues through the years. After leaving the council he was engaged as village clerk for many years and in this high office he showed the same keenness of mind and ability. Politically he was a Progressive Conservative and served for many years as treasurer of the East Hastings PC Association.

ACTIVE IN CHURCH

In St. Peter's Presbyterian Church he took an active part in all church work and for many years served as an elder of the congregation. Fraternally he was identified with Madoc Lodge No. 48 A.F. & A.M. being a life member and a short time ago was presented with his 50-year jewel as a member of the lodge. The late Mr. Curry enjoyed a wide circle of friends in every walk of life. He was well known and highly respected and his death will bring sincere regret.

Surviving are his wife, the former Nellie M. Gray and a number of nieces and nephews among them being Sam R. Curry, publisher of The Deseronto Review and Ald. Dr. John S. Stock of Belleville.

The funeral will be held in Madoc on Saturday afternoon with service in the Presbyterian Church and interment in Lakeview cemetery.

Most Countries Pleased With Decision Made

LONDON (AP) — Western Europe's non-Communist press has given warm welcome to President Eisenhower's decision to run again. Officials on both sides of the Iron Curtain were noncommittal today, but the Russians smilingly said they had expected it.

Editorial comment over the announcement ranges from sober reflection to open jubilation.

Morgenbladet of Oslo declares: "The whole free world will greet the president's decision with satisfaction." But Copenhagen's Dagens Nyheter, a Conservative paper, says it is "almost historical irony that at a time when authoritarian Russia goes in for collective leadership, one should see the Democratic United States depending on the decision of one man."

GROMYKO COMMENT

"This is news we have expected for some time," said Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, who has spent much time in the U. S. as a Soviet representative at the United Nations.

Soviet President Klement Voroshilov, who got the word with Gromyko between acts of "Romeo and Juliet" at Moscow's Bolshoi theatre, smiled but kept silent.

West European officials likewise had little or nothing to say officially, but many expressed the private view that Eisenhower's decision was good for the free world.

BRITISH VIEW

British leaders were obviously pleased, but made plain that they do not believe the move rules out the chances for a victory by the Democrats in November. However, they see little difference between the two American parties on foreign policy—the major concern to Britain.

French officials indicated their pleasure. Associates of West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer said he was "highly pleased." Italy's Premier Antonio Segni said the announcement was "happy news," and Vatican circles also expressed pleasure.

Austria's Chancellor Julius Raab and Canada's Prime Minister St. Laurent both said they were pleased at the president's decision.

the '56 Chevrolet

Beautiful models – all with bold new Motoramic Styling.
More models – including two new 4-door hardtops and two new 9-passenger Station Wagons. And all models offer a choice of 9 flashing power teams with horsepowers ranging up to 205. This is the greatest of them all.

There's flashing new excitement awaiting you, for these '56 Chevrolets give new meaning to the word "action".

Look them over! Look at that bigger, more massive grille. Let your eye slide along that longer, more rakish hood. Follow that lower, speedline chrome treatment back to these sassy, high-set taillights (the one on the left swings down to uncover the gas cap).

EVEN LIVELIER THAN IT LOOKS!

Bold new Motoramic Styling, as you see! Fine new Contemporary Interiors, to be sure! Gay new colors, indeed! But beyond that, even more of the championship road-action that made the '55 Chevrolet a winner. You know the new Pike's Peak record-holder has to have something very, very special in the way of power, ease and sureness of control, and nailed-to-the-road stability.

BLAZING POWER TEAMS – 20 EXCITING MODELS

Any kind of model anyone could want. All of 'em have all the extra advantages of Body by Fisher — the people who pioneered and perfected the 4-door hardtop. Your choice of new "Blue-Flame" 6 with 140 hp and new higher compression — the 170 hp "Turbo-Fire V8" (162 with Synchro-Mesh) — or, optional at extra cost, the "Super Turbo-Fire" with 205 hp and 9.25 to 1 compression ratio! Automatic and comfort features? If Chevrolet doesn't offer them, it's only because they haven't been invented yet. So try the hottest drive of the year soon. You haven't tried anything new until you've been behind the wheel of a '56 Chevrolet.

V8 & 6

Not only does Chevrolet offer a choice of V8 or 6 cylinder engines, but they are the most powerful and most efficient engines in the low-priced field. No other car combines such high compression ratios with valve-in-head operation, and includes so many other modern engineering discoveries. If a power feature is good, if it's practical, you can be sure that Chevrolet engines have it!

Herb Score 'Praying' for Good Season

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Herb Score isn't predicting he'll win a single game for the Cleveland Indians this year, just praying he'll do as well as last.

In compiling a 16-10 record in 1955 the big left-handed pitcher set a major league rookie mark of 245 strikeouts and was named American League rookie of the year.

Everyone in the Indians' camp except Score is confident he will win 20 games or more this season.

"I'm glad they have confidence in me, but I may not win a game," Score said Wednesday.

"No matter how hard you try, you're not your best. I hate to lose. It worries me. I sleep fine the night before a game, I don't sleep well the night after I lose."

Score, a devout Roman Catholic, says this is what he believes:

"God gave me a good arm. It's up to me to work hard, and learn all I can. That's what I'm trying to do. I pray when I'm pitching. I know that the hitter in front of me is probably praying too, but it helps."

Ottawa Leads Basketball Series

OTTAWA (CP) — Playing coach Glen Pettinger scored 25 points as Ottawa Shaffers eked out a 93-91 victory over Montreal DeLaSalles Wednesday night in the third game of their eastern Canada senior basketball championships playdowns.

The Ottawa club leads the best-of-five series two games to one and can clinch it there with a win here tonight.

The teams traded baskets for most of the first half before Shaffers put on a rally and grabbed a 53-49 halftime lead.

Shaffers continued to set a hot pace in the second half, counting up eight and 10 point margins before the Montrealers got back into the game.

Phil Fleurquin paced the DeLaSalles team with 26 points, highest on both teams. He was followed by Phil Weisleberg with 20 and Al Mikalachki and Gerry Lafferty with eight points apiece.

Montreal won the first game 76-72 while Shaffers took the second game 68-63.

WON'T MEET YET

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Swaps and Nashua may eventually run in the same horse race again, but it won't be at the coming meeting at Gulfstream Park in Florida, it was reported Wednesday.

Rex C. Ellsworth, owner of the California four-year-old, ruled out the Gulfstream possibility when he said:

"We are shipping our horses to Florida about March 8 but the only possible meeting between the two horses would have to be March 17 and Swaps won't be ready in that short a time."

Don't irritate child's intestines with "too-strong laxatives"

Children of last few generations' delicate intestines can be easily irritated by strong, griping, purgative, or weak, unmedicinable laxatives. Large, harsh, salt laxatives are often too strong for children. They work, but they may irritate the intestines. Instead, be thoughtful of your child's delicate stomach and intestines. Give Children's Own Tablets — scientifically-created for children's needs — just strong enough ... not harsh ... in tablet form, chewable-tasting, easy to take. Refreshingly tempting, too. Try Children's Own Tablets the next time your child needs a laxative. See if they are not the baby's Own Tablets. See if they are not the answer to your child's laxative problems.

Newsboys Defeat Meads 9-2 Enter Finals

Cutting loose with its highest goal total of the season, Ontario Intelligencer whipped Meads 9-2 last night, earning the right to meet Point Anne for the Industrial League hockey championship.

The victory gave the Intelligencer their two-of-three semi-final series with Meads in two straight games. The first game of the finals is scheduled for the "weekend" at 12.15 p.m. Point Anne are last year's title holders.

Meads opened the scoring 'ast night but the winners quickly tied the score 1-1 and went ahead to stay on St. Denis' goal. Referees Chuck Rowbotham and Bill Hurst handed out a good number of penalties while both teams countering once while the opposition was shorthanded.

Frank Crik, Leo St. Denis and Gord St. Louis each fired two goals for the victors. Defenceman Howard Skelly and forwards Ab Wright and Jack McKenna added singletons. Leroy McBrien, Spencer Lloyd and Russ Soule tallied for Meads.

Votes Grant To Olympics

SUDBURY (CP)—Board of control Wednesday voted a $470.57 grant to the National Olympic Association to help finance Canada's team to the 1956 Olympics in Melbourne.

The grant, suggested by controller W. S. Benton, represents a penny for each of the city's 47,057 residents.

Controllers suggested all large Canadian municipalities be advised of the grant and recommended to follow suit. Said Mr. Beaton:

"Canada hasn't been doing very much to improve our chances in world competitions compared with what other countries are doing. I think if we start this off with a cent per capita and other municipalities do the same thing, we may give some encouragement to the Olympic Association."

WILL MEET DANIELS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — World light heavyweight champion Archie Moore Wednesday agreed to meet Frankie Daniels of Los Angeles in a long delayed fight at the Hollywood Legion Stadium March 17.

It will be a 10-round, non-title affair and another step for Archie in a program to get into shape for a title defence.

Guardian Wins At Hialeah

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Guardian 2nd shouldered a feather 107 pounds Wednesday, whipped 10 other grass runners in the $64,500 Hialeah Turf Handicap at Hialeah Park and paid a whopping $178.80 for $2.

It was the second shock of the afternoon for the 22,610 fans who saw Maine Chance Farms' Jet Action in another fast set a track record for six furlongs at 1:09, two-fifths of a second off the record set by Blessbull last year.

Guardian 2nd, under jockey Ray Milkoomi, led all the way and ran the mile and one half feature on the grass in 2:29 1-5. El Chama, the Venezuelan importation who won the Laurel International last fall, got up to finish second and Blue Choir was third.

Guardian 2nd, owned by Mrs. Anson A. Bigelow of Palm Beach, was first out of the gate and never slowed up.

Mustangs Whip Marauders 101-75

HAMILTON (CP)—University of Western Ontario Mustangs defeated McMaster University Marauders 101-75 Wednesday night in an intercollegiate bakethall game interrupted by 78 personal fouls, 41 of them against the Marauders.

Playing their last league game of the season the undefeated Mustangs finished the college campaign with a 10-0 record while the Marauders with one game left to play are 3-6.

High scorer for the night was Mac's Bert Raphael who scored 22 points to bring his total for the season to 301, a near Marauder record.

Indians Take Game Lead Over Maroons

STRATFORD (CP)—Three goals each by Bobby Mercer and George Aitken gave Stratford Indians an 8-6 victory over Chatham Maroons Wednesday night and a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven senior A Ontario Hockey Association semi-finals.

Chatham iced only 12 players. Defenceman Dick Kotanen was absent. Reports were that salary differences were the reason.

Outplayed and outshot for two periods, Chatham rallied strongly in the third period, outplaying Stratford and outshooting them 16-12.

Stratford's single goals were scored by Lou Bendo and Dinny Flanagan.

Eric Unger counted twice for Chatham, the other goals going to Jim Connelly, Ernie Dick, Chick Chalmers and Alec Viskelis.

UNABLE TO COME

MONTREAL (CP)—Chris Chataway, brilliant British runner, is unable to come here for his indoor track meet as earlier planned, it was announced Wednesday.

Bob McIntosh, president of the Quebec Track and Field Association, said a bout of 'flu forced Chataway to cancel his entry, and his place will be taken by Ken Wood, another top British miler, and running mate John Disley in the meet March 23. Wood has been clocked at 4:01.8 in the mile.

WHAT'S ON TV TONIGHT

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Night watchmen in Stockholm will soon be covering their beats by television. Tiny cameras mounted at doors and other points will pick up pictures and relay them to television screens placed in front of the watchmen.

Vimys Ground Flyers 17-7

Kingston Vimy Signals ran the Trenton RCAF Flyers into the ground in their first game of the best-of-seven intermediate "C" playoffs, defeating the boys in blue by a 17-7 score.

Larry McKeigan, Vimy star, had a field night scoring eight goals and assisting on five others. Bob Joyce had two and three and Jack McKeown three and six.

The second game is slated for the Nipanee Arena tonight.

Joe Pelletier and John Rhude each scored twice for the Flyers.

ASK ASSISTANCE

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gordon economic commission was asked Friday if something can be done to help students financially. A brief urging assistance was submitted by the National Federation of Canadian University Students scholarship committee of Sir George Williams College of Montreal.

Anyway, you must of excaped, Puds said, and Mr. Pevvy said, Yes, I got out of it by showing them how to blow rings with pipe tobacco. I taught them to blow square rings and oblong rings as well as round ones. It was wonderful for their education, because it added new parts of speetch to their smoke language, he said.

Blow some for us, I said, and Mr. Pevvy said, Some other time, I'm blezy now.

And he kept on going, smoking his short pipe with ordinery puffs without rings.

REDS OVER ANTARCTIC

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Antarctic expedition Wednesday reported the first Russians flew over the south magnetic pole Feb. 24. Dr. Mikhail Somov, head of the expedition, was on the flight.

Little Benny's Notebook

The steem shovel is still working in the bottom of the big hole on the Avenue, and I was watching it with Glasses Magee and Puds Simkins, standing right next to the rope where the big sine says Danger, Keep Away, and Shorty Judge's grandfather Mr. Peevy came up in his sather hat and his blue coat with brass buttons, saying, You boys better not stand so close, you ought to be glad you understand the languges good enough to reed that sine. It was different with me, the time I was in the wild Andes mountains and made a mistake in the languags of Indian smoke signals, he said.

What did you guess the signals said? I said, and Mr. Peevy said, I guessed they said, Big Picknick, Public Cordially Invited.

Did you guess wrong? Glasses said, and Mr. Peevy said, Well, partly wrong. I followed the signals up the mountain, because nuthing beats a good picknick. Well sir, the Big Picknick part proved to be correct, but instead of Publick Cordially Invited, the other part meant Death to Strangers. And the moment I got to the picknick grounds, 30 wild Indians pounced on me with horrid yells and uprisand tommy hawks.

Anyway, you must of excaped, Puds said, and Mr. Peevy said, Yes, I got out of it by showing them how to blow rings with pipe

MINOR PLAYOFF DATES

With the strong possibility of the ice being taken out of Memorial Arena next week, the Belleville Minor Hockey Association has wrapped up its semi-finals and championship games in two packages.

Tonight starting at six o'clock the squirts hold forth with the Canadiens meeting the Maple Leafs in the second game of the semi-finals. Canadiens hold a two-goal lead. The winners take on the Black Hawks for the title in a sudden death game on Saturday morning starting 10 o'clock.

In the peewee division the Black Hawks and Canadiens play a doubleheader on Saturday morning at 7 and 8.15 to decide the championship.

The bantams see action tonight at 6.15 with the Bruins and Black Hawks playing a sudden-death semi-finals game. The teams are tied in their two-game series. The winners meet the Red Wings Saturday morning (sudden-death) starting at nine o'clock for the crown.

The midgets' Team No. 1 takes on Team No. 2 in the second game of their semi-finals series tonight at 7.30. Team 1 holds a good-margin over Team 2. The winners meet Team No. 5 on Monday, March 5 at 4.30 p.m. in a sudden-death game for the championship.

DAY-LIGHT ON SMITH!

There are hockey players—and hockey players. Some can score goals strictly on their own hook—how and ability. Others get nearly 100 per cent on having a certain teammate within elbow length. Some of the alleged big stars are that way.

Take Sid Smith of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Last season he led the Leafs with 33 goals, was named the NHL all-star left winger and won the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy. He succeeded Ted Kennedy as team captain when the Teeder retired.

Loyal Toronto fans have been asking this season: "What's wrong with Smith?"

According to Manager Hap Day in a story in the current "Blueline" magazine, Kennedy took the most of Smith's scoring ability with him when he shed his gear for keeps.

"Smitty used to score the most of his goals from in front of the net," Day is quoted as saying. "He was always in position to bat or tip in a pass. How many times do you see him in front of the goal any more?"

Day adds: "In past seasons he always had Ted Kennedy to do the digging for him and get the puck out. Now Kennedy has retired and Smith has to do a lot of the digging himself."

Kennedy was Smith's centre for six seasons and Sid never failed to score less than 20 goals in each of them.

Day says, with a touch of something or other: "As Kennedy goes so goes Smith." He noted that Kennedy assisted on 41 goals last season and scored ten himself. He added up Kennedy's ten and Smitty's 33 and said: "It looks more and more as if Kennedy scored 43 goals."

If memory is correct Gordie Drillon, former Leaf star, was in the Smithian category.

PICTON ENTERTAINS

Top badminton racqueteers of Eastern Ontario including Ottawa, Cornwall and points east of Toronto, not forgetting representation from Massena, New York, will converge on the Picton Armouries on March 9. Garnishing this galaxy of court stars will be some of Canada's topflight exponents of the game who will be seen in exhibition tilts.

The Picton Badminton Club is holding the first Eastern Ontario Invitation Badminton Tournament on March 9 and 10 in the town's armouries, and this event should be the season's classic. Entries should be filed with Miss Betty Browne, Picton, right away.

Play will include ladies' and men's singles, ladies' and men's doubles and mixed doubles, also consolations. Presentation of trophies and prizes will take place Saturday night when the Picton club will entertain at a party and dance.

Prince Edward County in general and the "little Spanish Town" in particular are ready for their hosting, and the badminton "invaders" can be assured of not only excellent play but a topflight reception and entertainment.

Gotham's Mark-Mauling Crew Uses Bruins as Step-Stone; Toronto Extends Point Margin

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Watson's collection of record-wreckers will be in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs this year for the first time in six seasons.

New York Rangers, 13 of whom have never been in big-league playoff competition, assured themselves of a berth in the four-team NHL semi-finals by defeating Boston Bruins 4-2 Wednesday night at New York.

At Toronto in the other NHL game, the Maple Leafs brightened their playoff hopes by whipping Montreal Canadiens 4-1. Montreal clinched first place last weekend.

29TH OF SEASON

The win—before 9,288 fans—was Rangers' 29th of the season, equalling the all-time club record. With eight games to go in the regular schedule, the second-place Blueshirts could set victory to beat that mark and also the record of most points in a season—68.

The New Yorkers already have set team records in scoring points and assists and tied the club mark for most goals in one term.

Rookie Bronco Horvath paced Rangers with a goal and two assists. Danny Lewicki, Wally Hergesheimer and Andy Hebenton scored the other New York goals. Fleming Mackell and Cal Gardner tallied for Bruins.

The game was tied 1-1, when Horvath scored after taking passes from Lewicki and Hergesheimer at 17:48 of the second period. Hebenton made it 3-1 by slapping an angle shot into the Boston net at 19:37.

Gardner cut the lead while Rangers' Dean Prentice was in the penalty box at 2:15 of the third period. Hergesheimer finished the scoring at 8:12.

SELL-OUT CROWD

A sell-out crowd of 14,343 fans watched as Leafs moved four points up on fifth-place Boston. The peppier Leafs Canadiens managed only 19 shots on goaltender Harry Lumley, Canadiens' Jacques Plante handled 36 drives.

Leafs opened the scoring with the only goal of the second period. They made it 2-0 before Montreal scored with five minutes to go in the game.

Rudy Migay, recognized more as a defensive specialist, scored two goals. Ted Sloan got his 36th goal for Toronto and Billy Harris scored the other. Dickie Moore was the Montreal marksman.

Both teams were a man short when Migay scored the first goal of the game at 8:06 of the middle frame. Sloan made it 2-0 and Migay added his second tally at 8:34 by slapping in his own rebound.

Harris, battling two Montrealers for the puck behind the Montreal goal, gained possession and hooked a shot behind Plante at 11:14. Defenceman Hugh Bolton of Leafs was serving a penalty at 14:58 when Moore finally put Canadiens on the score sheet.

Military College, West Point Cadets Renew Hockey Rivalry in Kingston

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Cadets of the United States Military Academy and the Royal Military College meet here March 10 in the 25th renewal of a hockey rivalry that began in 1904.

The game, highlight of an annual exchange visit between the two military schools, is one of the oldest international sports events between representatives of two friendly neighboring countries.

USMA, which lost 3-2 to the Gordian cadets in last year's game at West Point, N.Y., will invade Kingston's Frontenac arena looking for its seventh win in the series.

RMC has won 17 times and the schools tied once—a 4-4 split in 1934.

The grey-clad West Pointers will have with them the challenge cup they have kept since last year's defeat. When the two schools first met on the ice in 1923 RMC won 3-0. The winning team captain accepted the challenge cup and then, with aplomb, turned it over to the losers. The tradition has persisted.

The game, remembered by most RMC graduates as one of the final extra-curricular events of the college year, has grown with time into a weekend of friendly rivalry and social exchange.

Almost equally important today are annual meetings between debating teams and pistol squads representing the two schools. This year the cadets will meet the afternoon before the game to argue Whether or not "the engineer has made a more significant contribution to modern society than the artisan."

The hockey series was inaugurated in 1923 through the joint efforts of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, then USMA superintendent, and late Lt.-Gen. Sir Archibald Macdonell, who was commandant of RMC.

The more experienced Canadians were unbeatable until 1939 when the West Pointers won 3-2. Since then customs officials have seen the challenge cup across the Canadian-United States border repeatedly. Competition has so stiffened that in 1954 the referees set aside a tradition of not awarding penalties, handing out the first ever imposed in the series. The penalty system remains.

Good sportsmanship continues to exist, however, and the academy playing host always provides from among its cadets an enthusiastic cheering squad to support the visitors.

Tradition at one time held that members of the home team furnished their own girl friends as company for the visitors. Some cadets insist the custom still exists. An annual formal ball following the game provides them with an opportunity to prove it.

Curling Getting More and More Spectator Sport

CALGARY (CP) — Walt Gully, who handles all the major bonspiels in Alberta and British Columbia, thinks curling is getting to be more and more a spectator sport.

"So much so that they will have to change the design of all curling rinks in order to make room for the people who just come to watch" Gully said in an interview.

Gully, a former baseball and basketball player from Winnipeg, said another reason for curling's growth in popularity is the interest young stars have shown in recent years.

RIVAL FOR HOCKEY

"It's a wonderful sport for the kids," said Gully who played in the late '40s for Calgary in the now-defunct Big Four baseball league.

"The cost is negligible and it's easier to get curling in the winter than hockey."

Gully sees the time coming when rinks will be formed in high school and remain intact after graduation.

"I would say the average age of top curlers will drop to where your best rinks will be found under 30, and I'm willing to bet the average of rinks in the Dominion championship this year is between 40 and 45 years of age."

Gully is the secretary at all the major 'spiels in Alberta and British Columbia. His chief duty is to keep the Bonspiel rolling, tell the teams where they are curling and work it so that all events—most bonspiels have 11 to 15 competitions—are completed as close together as possible.

His experience began in 1941 when Gully became a member of the draw committee for the famous Winnipeg bonspiel. After serving an apprenticeship for two years, Gully became head man at the Winnipeg event and since then his reputation as draw secretary has grown.

Gully handled both the Calgary and Winnipeg 'spiels until 1953 when demand for his services in Alberta prevented him from going back to Manitoba.

Ratify Sale Of Indians For Four Million

CLEVELAND (AP)—Stockholders of the Cleveland Indians American League baseball club voted Wednesday night to liquidate the present corporation and sell the assets of nearly $4,000,000 to a new company headed by two financiers and baseball Hall-of-Famer Hank Greenberg.

The action formally ratified the recommendation of the board of directors Feb. 14.

Assets transferred to the new corporation—the Cleveland Indians Baseball Company — include the baseball franchise, a 19-year lease on Municipal Stadium, players' contracts and stock of the Reading, Pa., ball club.

Profit to the present owners of the transaction will be more than $3,000,000—one of the most profitable deals in baseball history.

The new company is controlled by William R. Daley and Ignatius O'Shaughnessy, two men more familiar in the stock market than in the baseball trading field, and Greenberg, former Detroit Tiger great and present general manager of the Tribe. Daly, 62, will be chairman of the board while officers of the old company will continue to hold similar positions in the new organization.

HAS GOOD CHANCE

VIENNA (AP)—Czechoslovakia's track ace Emil Zatopek says he believes he stands a "good chance" for a gold medal in the marathon of the 1956 Olympic Games at Melbourne, Australia, Radio Prague announced Wednesday.

Zatopek added that he also hopes to run in the 10,000-metre race, but has little hope of winning it. In the 1952 Olympics in Helsinki, Zatopek won gold medals in the 5,000-metre, 10,000-metre and marathon races.

But Don't Bet On It!

Back-Roomers Think Toronto 1956 Site of Grey Cup Final

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO (CP)—"Don't bet the homestead on it, but Toronto is the likely site for the 1956 Grey Cup final.

The only other bidder for the Nov. 24 sports spectacle is Vancouver and, from gossip heard in football circles, the west coast city isn't too enthusiastic about staging the East-West sudden-death game this year. The westerners will make their big pitch in 1958 when British Columbia celebrates its centenary.

That was the hotel-room gossip as officials prepared to sit down today and thrash out the various problems confronting the Canadian game. Before the week is out, the agenda of the newly-organized Canadian Football Council and the Canadian Rugby Union calls for a review from the lowest categories to the professional ranks, or so I'm told.

On a dollar-and-cents basis, Vancouver has the inside track on the 56 game. But the Toronto site is the best for the good of football. In other words, the nine professional clubs in Canada are willing to sacrifice a difference of about $100,000 in gate receipts to keep eastern fans happy.

Here's how the experts figure the situation: Toronto will be host this year, Montreal will stage it in 1957 at its proposed 40,000-seat new stadium and Vancouver will climax British Columbia's May-to-November centennial celebration with the cup final in 1958.

Toronto and Vancouver have briefs prepared to present to the Canadian Rugby Union, the governing body of football in Canada. The agenda calls for their presentation at a closed executive session of the CRU Friday, at which time a final decision is expected. However, nothing will be made public officially until Saturday when the CRU holds its annual meeting.

Sessions get under way today when the newly-organized Canadian Football Council, representative of the Western Intergrovincial Football Union and the Big Four, meet behind closed doors at 10 a.m. EST.

High up on the agenda is a report from Ralph Cooper of Hamilton on his Feb. 15 peace meeting at Philadelphia with Bert Bell, commissioner of the National Football League. A rumor—and it is strictly that—has Cooper, former president of the Big Four, may be appointed commissioner of professional football in Canada.

Following the CFC meeting is scheduled a 2 p.m. CRU executive meeting in camera and another CRU session at 10 a.m. Friday, also behind closed doors.

Junior Football's Financial State To Be Studied by Grid Legislators

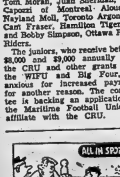
By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Football legislators are scheduled to give serious consideration this week to the sad financial state of the country's junior leagues, the grass roots of Canadian football. The picture is grim.

Western Canada unions are broke. In the East, the situation is almost as tough. All sections 1955 playoff games showed a deficit, topped by a loss of $2,896 in the Canadian final at Winnipeg between Winnipeg CKO and Hamilton Rods. Total deficit of all playoff games was $4,265.

The junior committee of the Canadian Rugby Union will take a big pitch for increased financial aid from the CRU, the Western Intergrovincial Football Union and the Big Four at a closed session of the CRU executive Friday, March 2 at 10 a.m. EST.

They have completed a survey showing that 150 graduates of junior ranks were the rosters of the nine WIFU and Big Four clubs in 1955. Some were freshmen in professional company but many joined the senior clubs in recent years and were good enough to stay in the big time.



WEST IS BEST

The survey shows also that the West is the choice spawning ground of junior talent. Seventy-five of the 150 players were products of the junior branch of the WIFU. Big Four rosters had 20 graduates from leagues affiliated with the union.

Included in the list are Edmonton Eskimos' Normie Kwong, voted the country's outstanding native Canadian player in 1955 and teammates Don Barry and Oscar Kruger. Others are:

Gordon Sturtridge of Saskatchewan Roughriders, a standout in the East-West all-star game in 1955; Norm Fieldgate and Wishy Young with British Columbia Lions; Gord Rowland of Winnipeg Blue Bombers; Jerry Pal, Johnny Blatcher, Tom Moran, Juan Sheridan, Herb Carpenter of Montreal Alouettes; Nayland Moll, Toronto Argonauts; Cam Fraser, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Bobby Simpson, Ottawa Rough Riders.

The juniors, who receive between $8,000 and $9,000 annually from the CRU and other grants from the WIFU and Big Four, are anxious for increased payments for another reason. The committee is backing an application by the Maritime Football Union to affiliate with the CRU.

There are few more versatile actors than Brooklyn's Pee Wee Reese. He was one of the key men last season as the Dodgers made off with their first World's Championship.

Here's a situation with the dangerous Reese at bat against

PEE WEE REESE

Pittsburgh in a tight game. Manager Walter Alston got an "A" for success on this one. The question is: What would you do?

(It) stands for a right-handed batter or pitcher and (L) for a lefthanded batter or pitcher.

The Dodgers and Pirates are knotted 0-0 in the top of the seventh as Pittsburgh Bob Purkey (R) is the Pirates' pitcher. Junior Gilliam opens with a single. Reese (R) is the next batter with Duke Snider (L) and Gil Hodges (R) to follow.

Would you:
a. Let Reese swing away?
b. Try a hit-and-run (hitting behind runner)?
c. Have Reese sacrifice?
d. Have Gilliam try to steal second?

Result: C—Reese Sacrificed. Snider followed with a single and the Dodgers racked up five more runs to win 6-0 (April 16).

Santee Not Golden Goose For Union

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Amateur Athletic Union, in ordering a lifetime ban against miler Wes Santee, did not — as has been suggested—get rid of a goose which laid it some golden eggs.

Santee, for all his drawing power at the gate, represented exactly 30 cents a year to the AAU, no more. The 30 cents is the price of a registration card.

This was the reply today of secretary-treasurer Dan Ferris to suggestions the AAU had used Santee miler to fatten its coffers and then suspended him on the matter of a couple of thousand dollars' extra expense money.

"We don't receive a penny from these various invitation track meets," Ferris said. "They are promoted from the AAU only connection with them is to see that the competition rules and amateur regulations. In fact, in most of the meets the directors aren't even AAU men. They are outside promoters."

The AAU, Ferris added, had no fingers in the tills at the California events in which Santee was charged with receiving more than allowable expenses for both himself and his wife.

"The lone exception is the AAU championship meet itself, such as we had a couple of weeks ago at Madison Square Garden," Ferris said, "that's our project. If we are able to do so, we make some money on it. But outdoor championships usually just break even."

The AAU is the watchdog of U.S. amateur athletics. It includes 47 district associations, which govern themselves, and covers 35 sports, horseshoe pitching. The big sports, besides track and boxing, basketball, swimming, gymnastics, wrestling and weight-lifting.

'Bullets' Take Y Youth Basketball Title

Bill Dickey led his team the "Bullets" to the YMCA Youth championship last night as they defeated the Buggs 61 to 55. Dickey led the scoring by basketing 25 points. Jack Calnan the captain of the Buggs played a brilliant game both on defensive and offensive collecting 24 points. The Buggs were leading 23 to 27 at half time but the third quarter proved fatal as Lawrence Parkhurst was effective in keeping the Buggs with three players for the rest of the game. The "Bullets" won the round 133 to 96.

All players in the Youth League will be entertained next Tuesday at a banquet sponsored by the Y's Men's club.

TEAMS

"Bullets" 61— Bill Dickey (Capt.) 37, D. Valcamp 14, Don Masters, 8, Graham Fox, R. Evans two.

"Buggs" 55 — Jack Calnan (Capt.) 24, Lawrence Parkhurst 12, R. Parkhurst 12, R. McBride, R. Poste.

TAKES DECISION

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Big John Holman of Chicago, with a tremendous advantage in weight and punching power, beat out a unanimous decision over game Joe Rowan of Philadelphia Wednesday night in a bruising 10-round fight at Bayfront Auditorium.

The Ontario Society for Crippled Children in association with 211 Eastern Star Service Clubs are "in the corner" of 10,500 crippled children in the province as today marks the opening of the Annual Sale of Seals to help crippled children. They know that you will want to be "in there, punching" for these kids too by donating to this fine cause. The campaign which runs until Easter Sunday, April 1st, has a provincial objective of $625,000.

Napanee Wins Int. 'C' Group Title, Marmora Trims Madoc in Overtime

MADOC, (Special.)—A daring piece of strategy partially clicked here last night when the Marmora Millionaires won a 5-3 overtime battle over the Madoc Blues.

The win gave the Millionaires a three-game lead in the OHA intermediate "C" northern group finals. The first game was tied. The fifth is slated for Marmora Friday night.

Behind two goals with two minutes to go in the last period, Madoc pulled the goalie and this part of the strategy paid off. Semmilhack and Brown scored two quick goals to knot the count and the game went into overtime.

The Millionaires, however rose to the occasion and scored the winning and insurance goals.

Ernie Trumble opened the scoring in the first period for the winners but Semmilhack got that one back midway through the period.

Mantle gave the Millionaires a goal-lead in the second heat with the only marker of the period.

Brooks put the Millionaires two goals up in the final period and it looked like a victory for the visitors.

Then Madoc pulled the strategy. They yanked the goalie and Semmilhack pulled them within striking distance. With 800 fans yelling their encouragement, Madoc tied the count with Brown hitting the hemp with seconds to go.

Brooks took over the hero role for the Millionaires in the overtime session scoring twice to tuck the victory away.

Brooks had a hat trick for Marmora with Trumble and Mantle getting singles. Semmilhack with a pair and Brown were the Madoc sharpshooters.

NAPANEE — Napanee swept to the OHA intermediate "C" southern group championship here last night defeating Frankford 10-2 to take the best-of-seven series four games to one. Napanee meets the winners of the Marmora - Madoc northern group finals in the first round playdowns.

Scoring four unanswered goals in the first period, Walt Gerow's crew coasted through to victory. They added two more in the second session and outscored the village pucksters 4-1 in the final frame, 800 saw the game.

Ted Brady paced the Napanee offensive with three goals and as many assists with Walt Gerow and Bob Green adding two and two. Johnny Green, Billy Strachan, Tim Williams, Fish and McAllister scored singles. "Shaker" Baker and Foster got the Frankford goals.

Referees "Red" Carson and F. Harrison handed out six penalties in a clean wide-open tray with four going to Napanee.

The victory was the seventh in eight playoff starts for Napanee. They swept the semi-finals series from Wellington in three straight and dropped one game of the finals series with Frankford.

The winners of the northern and southern group playdowns meet the winners of the Kingston Vimys-Trenton RCAF series in the OHA intermediate "C" second round for the Eastern Ontario championship.

State Commission Action Stayed By Judge

NEW YORK (CAP)—Pending a Supreme Court hearing March 12, Supreme Court Justice James B.M. McNally Wednesday stayed the action of the New York state athletic commission in revoking the licenses of the London Sporting Club and its president and matchmaker, Tex Sullivan.

This development gave Sullivan an opportunity to ask approval for one more boxing show at St. Nicholas Arena, where the London club has staged weekly televised fights for more than two years. It also delayed the efforts of Dumont Television Corporation to arrange different promotion for the Monday night fights.

Dumont is seeking to carry on the weekly shows from St. Nick's or some other site without interruption.

Justice McNally granted the stay of enforcement of the commission ruling Wednesday. Assistant Attorney-General Samuel Hirshowitz, representing the commission, opposed the stay and requested a hearing at once instead of on March 12.

GIVES RULING

Justice McNally ruled:

"I do not feel that any harm can come to the public by postponement of this stay, nor does it jeopardize the rights of the commission in any way whatsoever."

In effect, the delay makes it difficult, if not impossible, for Dumont to contract with other promoters for a televised fight on Monday, March 5, for Sullivan to stage one. The commission has the power to reject any proposed match and probably would exercise that power.

Commission chairman Julius Helfand already had approved a bout between Gene Fullmer and Danny Jo Perez at St. Nick's next Monday. The ban on London club promotions was to become effective the next day.

CURLERS' SPECIAL

WINNIPEG (CP) — The CNR "Curlers' Special" left Winnipeg Wednesday night carrying four curling teams from western Canada to the Dominion curling championships opening in Moncton, N.B. next Monday.

Optimism Rampant in Baseball Camps As Spring Training Season Opens

It's "batter up" today as baseball's spring training season officially gets underway in 16 major league camps.

And from the looks of things the season is going to be any thing but different from the others.

Optimism? It's rampant.

The rookies are sure to make the grade. The vets are certain to come back with a good year and, if you take some predictions at face value, they're liable to have eight first division clubs in each league.

Let's start with the veterans.

Willie Jones, a nine-year-man with the Philadelphia Phillis, reports he's in the best shape of his career.

"Just six pounds overweight," he gloated. "I'll be a streamlined gazelle when the season opens. Best shape you'll ever see. I'm the Phillies third baseman, Don't forget that."

HOPES FOR PLACE

Dale Mitchell, who's been around even longer than Jones, showed up in Cleveland's camp Wednesday and worked out first base.

"Just so I stay in shape. They maybe they'll use me somewhere," he said.

And in the Chicago Cubs' quarters in Mesa, Ariz., pitcher Russ Meyer, obtained from Brooklyn during the winter, indicated he was ready to work in one of the intrasquad games this weekend. This despite some arm trouble he developed earlier this week.

Jim Hearn, Johnny Antonelli and Hoyt Wilhelm, three veteran pitchers, were named to pitch in the New York Giants' first camp game on Sunday.

Now for the rookies.

Boone pitcher Jim Brady pitched three more hitless innings in Lakeland, Fla., and Detroit manager Bucky Harris called hi "impressive." Brady now has hurled six hitless in camp contests.

Glen Cox, a big rightfielder the Kansas City A's bought from Brooklyn, figures his knuckle ball will help him make the grade in the majors. He was 11-5 for Montreal in 1953 and spent the winter dropping 20 excess pounds and polishing his knuckler.

In Vero Beach, Fla., Bob Wilson, 20-year-old outfielder who hit .321 at Montreal, was touted as the newcomer most likely to make the Dodgers.

"From what they tell me," said manager Walt Alston, "Wilson could be the righthanded batter we need to replace Frank Kellert as a pinch - hitter." Kellert was dealth to the Cubs shortly after the last world series.

ROYALTY WILL WATCH

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret will join half a million other horse racing fans at Aintree March 24 for the Grand National steeplechase.

They will be cheering for Devon Loch and M'As-Tu-Vu, owned by the Queen Mother. Only previous royal victory in the 4½-mile-event National was in 1900 when Ambush, II shot, owned by then Prince of Wales, won the gruelling four miles, 856 yards chase over 30 jumps.

PLATT WINS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— Don Platt of Jacksonville won his opening match in the Masters tennis tournament Wednesday when he defeated George Longshore, Miami 6-1, 6-2.

In other first-round games, U.S. indoor champion Ulf Schmidt of Sweden brushed past Mal Schultz of Florida State University 6-0, 6-1, and defending Masters champion Budge Patty of Miami 6-2, 6-2 victory over Vic Antonetti of Miami.

Free-Lancer Could Write Book On 'Mistakes I Have Made'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dale Robertson, newly embarked on a free - lance acting career, could write a book called "Mistakes I Have Made."

He is getting his career off the ground after a sensational beginning and then a dull period. Despite a generous fan following, Robertson failed to fulfil his promise. Now he can look back on the experience and profit from what went wrong.

He admits that he was too frank and too trusting.

"I got some of the press mad at me," he remarked. "In October two years ago I counted up 183 layouts that had been done on me that year. That was entirely too much. Even if you're very fond of chicken, you're going to get tired of it if I feed it to you every day.

FREEZE FOX SHOTS

"So I said I wasn't going to do any more publicity for the last two months of that year. But people didn't like that. The press started pot-shotting at me, and some of them haven't let up since."

Concerning his acting career, he said that he erred in signing with 20th Century-Fox.

"I had a good role in 'Fighting Man of the Plains.' The studio started courting me, and my agents urged me to sign with Fox. I thought it would be better to play the independent field; I had offers for four pictures. But my agents argued that I needed a big studio behind me.

"So I signed. And I never did get a role as good as the one I had in 'Fighting Man of the Plains.'"

LOAN-OUT KING

He did some films on the lot, then became the loan-out king. He figures the studio made around $300,000 profit on his services to other producers.

The start of Robertson's rebellion came when the studio planned to lend him for "White Feather"—playing fourth lead to Robert Wagner." That's when he drew the line—and his first suspension.

Thereafter he underwent a period of siege with the studio, finally getting his release last December. Since then he has made "Dakota Incident" for Republic, and plans to go to London next month for another film.

Flyers Edge Canucks 3-2

BARRIE (CP) — Barrie Flyers evened their best-of-five quarter-finals at 1-1 Wednesday night in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' League by defeating Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks 3-2.

Both teams scored a goal in the first period and Flyers tallied the lone second-period marker. Barrie made it 3-0 early in the third before Canucks pulled their goaltender in favor of a sixth attacker in the final minute and scored once.

Arnold Smith, Bob Beckett and Billy Forhan scored the winners' goals, Willie O'Ree and Bob Duncan were the Canucks' marksmen.

Methodist Church Launches Dramatic Television Program

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — The Methodist Church has launched a series of dramatic television programs which should have a wider appeal than any TV dramas yet produced under the leadership of any church.

In both concept and execution the series 12 films entitled "The Way" represents a significant step in organized religion's growing consciousness of the TV medium. The series shuns preaching, is non-denominational in its appeal, and is solely concerned with dramatizing various aspects of Christian principles of living.

The series is offered free to any TV station anywhere with only these provisions: They will be shown in specific sequence at any desired regular weekly time except an hour that might interfere with church attendance. There shall be no commercial in connection with them—not even a "go to church."

The first drama, "An Eye for an Eye," was shown here last Saturday afternoon on the ABC network's local station. Distinguished by superior acting, it told this story:

FEELING OF REALITY

A gang of boys wreck a church recreation room. The minister, a calm, strong man, loses an eye when the boys gang up on him as he tries to restore order. The police regard the boys as "wild animals" who cannot be tamed; to fail to prosecute them, the police maintain, is to turn their viciousness loose on society. But the minister opposes prosecution. At his request the boys are released in probation in his custody. The failures and the success are delineated in down-to-earth fashion.

A viewer is left with the conviction that the answer to delinquency is no simple matter. One sees the power of the gang over its members. But the strong influence of people who care is shown in a most convincing manner.

It's not a subtle story, but it gives a feeling of reality—in sharp contrast to many TV "religious" dramas which leave one with a reaction of unreality and sentimentality, in no formal sense is it preaching. But it is the best kind of preaching in the sense that what one is and does speaks more clearly than any words. Through the excellent characterizations of the minister and his wife there flowed a strong practical idealism.

The Methodist Church, which has 9,000,000 members in the United States, hopes that more than 200 TV stations will carry the series. At this writing 40 stations in various parts of the country have pledged.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Just leaving an inauspicious aspect, and going to an excellent one, your planet Mercury suggests caution. Be logical and explore.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Now the Moon's aspect is heading toward a position that advises against clumsiness and contradictory tendencies. Be an overenthusiastic nor overcritical.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Disorder, overconfidence and pride can be today's nemesis. Keep a controlling hand over the emotions and desires. Give out cheer and Leo's true dignity that can succeed.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Little worries, trifles that irk, will be your temptations now. You can resist them if you will. Be prudent, guard speech, shun friction with those near you.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Opportunity to advance your interests in hobbies and pastimes you like, as well as in work, charity and other activities. Make needed adjustments, cultivate worthy friendships.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Your planetary configurations now urge responsibility for public welfare matters and open new outlets for abilities. Be reasonably eager.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — An adverse aspect of Jupiter reminds that overdoing and overenthusiasm can harm, not help matters. It hints that misplaced confidences and misjudgment can upset.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Under the nil influences, your Saturn stresses self-reliance, organizing and constructive study.) Protect credit.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Uranus' excellent position boosts your naturally keen intuition, imagination and reasoning. You will be quick to see flaws, but don't be too quick to act.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Here Neptune, in competition with other propitious planets, sponsors your devotion to worthwhile causes and romance. Inspiration may be the success key.

You born today have unusual powers of concentration, scientific, educational and inspirational talents. Your practical mind appreciates the artistic. This birthdate has noted artists in many fields. Be not supersensitive, obstinate, nor think others deliberately oppose you. Aim high!

Birthdate of: His Holiness, Pope Leo XIII; Sir Thos. Bodley (Bodleian library, Oxford); Sam Houston; Desi Arnaz.

74 McDOUGALL CRES. — You should see this! Only one owner has lived here and we have refused it. It is immaculate, with finished basement. It is five years old. Has two unusually large bedrooms with closets, and a 4-piece bath with ceramic tiles and vanity. Has oil heating, and is wired for T.V. — or dining room. The kitchen is large, with lots of cupboards and counter. The living room has extra large window, giving a beautiful view. Termite shield installed, all around. Has a nice lot, with fruit trees. Full price $12,500. Terms, $1,000 down. Phone 106 and a courteous representative will be glad to show you this home. Why not start paying rent for a change that this is only $65 per month, P.I.T. Let us help you with everything from your mortgage to your insurance. Why not start building home equity for yourself? Phone 106 for appointment. Terms. A large down payment is required. If you feel you have it, phone us.

King City Edges Wellington 4-3 In Juvenile C Semi-Finals Opener

WELLINGTON (Special) — Scoring the winning goal with a minute to go, King City edged the Wellington Dukes 4-3 in an OMHA juvenile "C" semi-final thriller here last night. The second game of the goals-to-count round will be played in King City on Friday.

Doug Hollingshead was the hero of the game for King City. The Dukes had come from behind twice to tie the score and the teams were battling on three-all even terms with the clock ticking off the seconds.

Then Hollingshead made his successful bid for victory. Sparebeading a two-man drive with winger Samson, the tall centre drove the puck past Tommy O'Halloran for the winning goal at 18.55.

The starry visitors took advantage of the Dukes inability to get organized in the first period and scored two unanswered goals with Hill and Cober doing the tricks.

The Dukes found themselves in the second period and duplicated the scoring feat, slamming home a pair from McKenzie and A. Bourque to even the count.

Samson again put King City in the lead scoring unassisted at 3.47. Eight minutes later Clare Platt brought seven hundred fans to their feet when he took Guernsey's close-in pass to again knot the count.

The teams battled hard and evenly in an effort to grab the winning goal. Then Hollingshead snared the puck, rammed it home and the game was won.

Tommy O'Halloran in the Dukes net, was one of the stars in one of the best games seen here this season.

Eight penalties were handed out by Referees Mulholland and Bell, three going to the homesters.

THE SUMMARY

First Period

King City—Hill 1.43
King City—Cober (Samson) 10.07
Penalties—Platt, Bray.

Second Period

Wellington—McKenzie 11.42
Wellington—A. Guernsey (Mordon) 12.34
Penalties—Platt, Davis, Broad, Archibald.

Third Period

King City—Samson 3.47
Wellington—Platt (Guernsey) 11.30
King City—Hollingshead (Samson) 18.55
Penalties—McKenzie, Bonham.

College Expels Negro Co-Ed Despite Court

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Autherine Lucy, Negro co-ed, today was expelled from the University of Alabama for unproved charges that school authorities conspired in mob action against her.

There was no official announcement from the board of trustees, but members confirmed that the action was agreed upon at meeting Wednesday night.

The action came within hours after Judge H. Hobart Grooms ordered the board to vacate an order excluding the 26-year-old 4eacher from the campus for safety reasons: He gave the university until Monday to take the action read-ertising for.

There was no immediate comment from the National Association for Advancement of Colored Peoples, which has sponsored the 26-year legal battle to get admittance to the all-white school.

At the start of the hearing Wednesday, Thurgood Marshall, NAACP legal counsel who represented Miss Lucy, was allowed to drop allegations that the trustees and university officials named as defendants had conspired with outsiders in mob rioting that drove Miss Lucy from the campus at Tuscaloosa Feb. 6.

Marshall told the court that "after careful investigation we are unable to produce any evidence to support these allegations. This amendment takes out every single allegation of conspiracy."

Defence counsel Andrew Thomas called the conspiracy charges scurrilous."

Miss Lucy had said she was "naturally pleased" when the judge ruled in her favor.

EXTEND MARTIAL LAW

ANKARA (AP) — The Turkish parliament voted Wednesday to extend martial law in Istanbul to June 7. The restrictions were imposed for six months immediately after the anti-Greek riots last September. The government said extension was necessary because observe 17 persons now being tried by military courts in connection with the riots would have to be turned over to civilian tribunal.

"If You Want To Feel More Active, Energetic, Take Syntona" He Says

Tells of Experience In Relieving Run-down Condition, Weak, Upset Stomach and Headaches.

To people suffering from tired, rundown condition, indigestion, nervous irritability, backache or rheumatic aches and pains Syntona Herbal Compound offers surprisingly fast and effective relief. Nearly always the results are the same and you, too, may find this medicine to be just what you need to put you on the road to better health again.

Fine Experience of St. Thomas

"I've taken Syntona off and on for a long time and from my own experience I know how much it can help you," said Mr. Sam Kimble, Rt. 1, St. Thomas, Ont. in a recent statement.

"To my opinion there is nothing like it if you are rundown, nervous, tired and want to feel more active and energetic," Syntona is the word wherever you go; many a time I've recommended it to friends.

Syntona is also highly recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

From Round World Children Gather To Honor Pope

Dance and Sing at Party As Pontiff Marks Birthday

By FRANK BRUTTO

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Children from all parts of the world sang and danced around Pope Pius today to wish him a happy 80th birthday.

The papal audience for the children was the first of many events celebrating the pontiff's birthday and the 19th anniversary of his election as spiritual head of the world's 450,000,000 Roman Catholics.

The major observance will be a pontifical mass in St. Peter's basilica on Sunday, March 11, the day before the anniversary of his coronation.

The meeting with the children was held in the Vatican palace's ceremonial hall. Vatican officials said it was the first time a head of the church had held such an audience.

The frail, white-clad Pope smiled and at times laughed as he sat gently to the rousing "happy birthday to you"—sung in Italian as "Tanti auguri a te." He seemed to be not sure when an Italian boy and girl began dancing the tarantella, topped with 80 gleaming candles and decorated with eight tiny pink-eyed candy doves.

FROM MANY COUNTRIES

Meanwhile, 200 Italian school children, the boys in dark blue and the girls in white smocks, were the branches of white lilacs and sang the birthday song. With them sang children from a score of other countries.

The singing was followed by individual greetings, with a little Italian girl the first to speak, followed by children of other lands, speaking in their native tongues. Among them was Marie Ange Courchesne, nine-year-old Canadian girl from Dorval Lake, Que. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Courchesne of the Canadian embassy in Rome.

She knelt before the Pope to kiss his ring, and said to him in French: "All my wishes for a happy anniversary to you and I pray to Jesus that you will remain among us for a long time."

Others who spoke included an English boy and his tiny sister, an American nine-year-old named Irish twin girls, a Russian girl who reportedly handed a letter to the pontiff, and a Hungarian boy whose parents are said to be in a Communist concentration camp.

IN GOOD HEALTH

Outside the hall 17 cardinals of the church and leading men of the papal court called to offer their birthday greetings. But the pontiff barred all but the children as though he could not leave them. Twice he got up from his chair in their midst—he did not use the papal throne—and each time began to talk, but failed to go beyond a few words to individual ones.

The pontiff appeared to be in good health. His doctor said earlier that he had a slight hoarseness on Wednesday, but this had disappeared.

Two Elderly Nuns Perish in Blaze In Quebec City

QUEBEC (CP) — Two elderly nuns were killed early this morning in a fire in the convent house of the Sisters of Charity in the heart of upptrown Quebec. More than 200 other nuns escaped uninjured.

The fire apparently broke out in the ground floor of the seven-storey stone building. An estimate of the damage was not immediately available.

The victims were identified as Sister St. Perrel, 75, and Sister St. Claire d'Assise, 72.

Sister St. Ferrnol, who was deaf, apparently did not hear the alarm and died in her smoke-choked room near a downstairs kitchen. Sister St. d'Assise, an invalid, was taken from the building by firemen, but she died shortly after her arrival at hospital.

100 INVALIDS

The building houses 333 nuns, of whom 20 are over 80 years old, and there are unable to walk. About 100 nuns are invalids to some degree.

The fire broke out about 2 a. m., and the 11 fire companies which answered the call reported it under control shortly after 3 a. m.

The switchboard operator, Sister St. Godefroy, who remained at her post throughout the fire, said she did not believe anyone else was trapped in the building, or that there were any serious injuries.

Those who were evacuated were taken to nearby buildings and convents and Sister St. Godefroy said this scattering made it difficult to determine whether the mother house was emptied.

Four Canadian Jet Planes Crash In North France

RENFIELD, France (Reuters)—A formation of four Canadian jet planes crashed near here today following a mid-air collision.

An eyewitness said none of the pilots survived.

The planes crashed on the edge of a forest near this town in northeast France.

The wife of a forest worker saw the crash.

"I saw the four planes flying very low," she said. "Then they collided and within seconds there was nothing but fragments and burning wreckage."

She said it was unlikely any of the four pilots lived.

"I saw one body hanging from the trees," she said.

The woman said French police arrived soon after the crash "but there was nothing to do."

She said there were pieces of smouldering wreckage scattered all along the road bordering the forest. Wreckage was scattered over a wide area, some of it in the fields.

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The low which reached Thursday in southern Ontario will end tonight with below normal temperatures expected throughout the province. On Saturday the mercury will climb only a little above freezing in the lower lakes area.

Occasional snowflurries occurring in northern Ontario will continue today and Saturday. In the south Saturday will probably see a few showers or periods of drizzle and skies will be mostly cloudy.

COMMONS TALKS ALL DAY ABOUT ONE COMMITTEE

Establishment of Canada Council Is Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — A government proposal to create a Commons committee led to an all-day debate Thursday.

The committee would study various aspects of non-military federal research, with emphasis on atomic energy. Howard Green (PC—Vancouver Quadra) moved an amendment to a government motion to establish the committee.

He said the Commons got almost no information about atomic developments. He said he hoped the committee empowered to call for witnesses and documents led to an argument that continued until the end of the session.

SITUATION 'UNSOUND'

"Essentially, the only member of the Parliament of Canada today who has any detailed knowledge of the atomic energy field is the minister of trade and commerce (Mr. Howe)," said Green in an unsound situation."

Mr. Howe said it is "just impossible" to give a Commons committee free run at officials in Canada's atomic energy program.

If the committee were empowered to call atomic authorities in the hands of the crown-owned Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., and from other countries would be "utterly impossible" later than tomorrow."

After that, Mr. Green inserted 'unclassified documents" in his proposal.

Bruce Ducsharm Once Again Found Guilty of Murder

SUDBURY (CP)—Robert Bruce Ducsharm, 24-year-old convicted murderer of Constable Joseph Klapoushak, is to be hanged May 15.

Ducsharm was convicted Thursday of the crime for a second time by a Supreme Court of Ontario jury this deliberated four hours. An earlier conviction was quashed.

Ducsharm did not testify in his defence. Ducsharm cleared his throat and admitted dispassionately:

"Not guilty."

Defence counsel Carl Walsh said today he will file notice of an appeal within a few days. He argued that the 37-day second trial that another man could have killed Klapoushak.

Ducsharm, who shared living quarters with the victim at Dalton, Ont., a mining town, was first arrested near his native Hamilton after the shooting death of Klapoushak's body under a woodpile Dec. 11, 1953.

The 21-year-old teacher, a native of Timmins, had been shot several times in the head with a rifle a week earlier.

A jury convicted Ducsharm last May 31 and he was sentenced to die, The Ontario Court of Appeal, however, quashed the conviction Sept. 21 and ordered a new trial.

Negro Co-Ed in State of Confusion As College Expels Her Permanently

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—The case of Authorine Lucy, Negro student who wants to continue her studies at the all-white university of Alabama, today was in a state of confusion and disagreement.

Miss Lucy, 26, was "permanently expelled" by the board of trustees of the 125-year-old University of Tuscaloosa at a closed meeting Wednesday night.

The trustees' action came within hours of an order from federal Judge Hobart H. Grooms dropping the restriction by the university. She had been suspended Feb. 7 after students and others described as "outsiders" had rioted for three days to protest her admission.

Miss Lucy's counsel, Arthur Shores, said he had no idea what legal course he now will pursue in an additional effort to have the 26-year-old former school teacher readmitted to the university.

Miss Lucy herself was in New York today seeking medical attention and "rest, peace and quiet."

In expelling Miss Lucy from the university, the trustees accused her of making "false, defamatory, impertinent and scandalous charges" against university officials.

Meanwhile, the Alabama House of Representatives in Montgomery pushed through a resolution to establish a committee to determine if the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is a subversive group. The resolution, the terms of the resolution, which now goes to the state senate, Miss Lucy would be called as a witness.

The Senate also approved a resolution by unanimous consent asking for federal funds to settle claims of the NAACP in the southern states.

In another segregration situation in neighboring Louisiana, that state's sudden legal move to outlaw the NAACP under an anti-"Ku Klan" law brings promise of a hot court battle.

Attorney-General Fred Leblanc asked the court to dissolve the NAACP in Louisiana, charging the NAACP meetings. He acted under terms of a 1924 law enacted originally to drive out the anti-Negro ku klux klan.

Record Budget Presented

Premier Frost (left) and Provincial treasurer Dana Porter discuss Ontario's record $437,000,000 budget before it was brought down in the Legislature. It was Mr. Porter's first budget. He took over as provincial treasurer last August 17 from the premier who had held the portfolio since 1943. Only one tax change was announced — a reduction in the levy on pari-mutuel betting. (C.P. Canada May Soon Produce Own Uranium Metal Says Howe

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada may soon be producing its own uranium metal, used as fuel in atomic reactors and power plants.

Canada now produces no uranium metal. The nation's sole refiner of uranium ores, Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., sells a product to the United States Atomic Energy Commission. Atomic Energy of Canada, Eldorado's parent company, then buys uranium metal from the U.S. commission.

Trade Minister Howe said in the Commons Thursday "I think in another 12 months Canada will be making its own metal and shedding its own rods."

Sheathing is an aluminum coating which covers uranium fuel rods.)

Mr. Howe spoke during debate on a government motion to set up a special House committee to study the government's role in non-military research. The committee would examine activities of the National Research Council and of Atomic Energy of Canada, operator of the Chalk River, Ont., atomic project.

Mr. Howe said Canada was in no hurry to produce the metal because it could be bought from the U.S. more cheaply than this country could produce it. "But that situation is changing," he said. However, he did not explain how it is changing.

A division of the Eldorado Company has for some time been studying metal production techniques and economics. If the metal plant were built, Canada's program in metals would be self-contained. The government estimates a place gross dollar value of uranium ore production at about $250,000,000 annually by the end of 1956—far more than even the most optimistic atomic forecasts of future needs by nuclear power in Canada.

William J. Bennett, president of Atomic Energy of Canada, said recently this means the uranium industry needs other export markets besides the U.S. to remain healthy.

A complication in uranium export is that the metal can be used to produce plutonium for the manufacture of bombs. For this reason Canada has been discussing in Washington on the establishment of an international agency on atomic energy.

J. W. Murphy (PC — Lambton West), who in the past has introduced resolutions seeking parliamentary study of research in Canada, said Thursday this country is the first, same point the U.S. was 20 years ago in the research field.

Crown companies should give the field to private industry. Industry itself should be more researchconscious and win some of that work themselves instead of waiting for knowledge from other countries.

Dulles to Visit Asia, Far East Major Front in Cold War

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles was scheduled to leave today for a visit to Asia and the Far East, major front in the cold war.

He hopes on his return later this month to have information which will help him decide whether United States foreign policy should be revised to meet the Russian drive for new political and economic influence in the area's underdeveloped countries.

The imprecisely purpose is Dulles' schedule discussed March 6-8 at a meeting of foreign ministers' council of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Karachi, Pakistan.

Dulles also will visit nine other capitals from New Delhi to Tokyo and confer with a wide range of leaders.

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany announced Thursday that it is sending a steel mill and equipment to Red China valued at signed at the end of the current Leipzig Industrial Fair.

JORDAN'S GOVT. DISMISSES BRITON 'GLUBB PASHA'

Famed General Built Army from Scratch

AMMAN, Jordan (CP)—Youthful King Hussein of Jordan today bowed to nationalist demands and fired two high British officers from the storied Arab Legion. One was Gen. John Glubb, a lattter-day Lawrence of Arabia who as "Glubb Pasha" had led the desert fighting force for 25 years.

British influence in the Legion has been declining for years and since recent riots over proposals to bring Jordan into the westernbacked Middle East defence pact. She is still outside the pact.

The British-financed Legion, which Glubb had welded into a hard-hitting desert force, was used to quell the disturbances. Anti-British spokesmen reviled the Legion's commanders for using bullets against peaceful demonstrators."

Hussein's decision was cheered by demonstrators here today. But the British public was shocked by Glubb, who left by air immediately for London. Hussein's uncle by marriage, Col. Patrick Coghill, head of the Legion's intelligence office. Three high - ranking Jordanian officers were pensioned off.

BRITAIN CONCERNED

In London, Prime Minister Eden called an emergency meeting of British ministers this morning to discuss the situation created by the dismissal. Diplomatic sources said British ministers will "study it very lightly" the implications of Glubb's dismissal.

Glubb is succeeded by the man who was his assistant—Brig. Radi Inab, a Jordanian.

Glubb's dismissal came as a complete surprise both here and in London. Thursday night he was summoned to a cabinet meeting which had been in session for seven hours. All day there had been high-level comings and goings behind the scenes.

Hussein paid a visit by the 39-year-old English - educated King Hussein with Premier Samir Rifai, and later by British Ambassador C. B. Duke on the king.

Many officer cadets of the Legion have trained at Sandhurst, the British Army officers' school of Britain, and have been trained in friendship treaty which insures close cooperation between their military forces.

The opposition leaders made clear that Glubb and his pro-British alliance with Britain, was their target. And they were willing for Jordan to retain her 1948 alliance with Britain which provides for the financing of the Legion. It also permits Britain to maintain two air bases in the country and provides for the return of British troops to the country in emergencies.

The 1948 Palestine war expansion of Jordan, which he played such a large part, actually started Glubb on the road to fame. He led the unswerving loyalty of Bedouin tribesmen in eastern Jordan, but the undisciplined Bedouin soon became the majority of the population—the refugees from Palestine for the Arab defeat in the war. They also saw him as an instrument for the dictatorship he helped to kept the Arabs subdued.

The immediate cause of the dismissal Hussein made a radio speech in which he told the people that "to serve our country certain alterations were found necessary."

5 Mattawa Children Chased by Fox, Collie Kills It, May Die of Rabies

MATTAWA, Ont. (CP)—A collie which killed a possibly-rabid fox Wednesday chased five children by the fox.

Provincial officials say the dog may have been infected in the fight. If so, it faces death.

The children, returned from a pine grove near this town 40 miles east of North Bay, were playing in a yard at the children of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Blake as they returned from school. Among the children, aged six to 13, ran when the fox appeared.

The collie, who regularly joins the children on trips to and from school, lunged for the fox's throat. The two animals locked, biting and clawing. The collie snapped the fox's neck. The children carried the dead fox to their farm home. Its head was sent to Toronto for laboratory analysis.

Meanwhile, officials placed the dog in quarantine and said it will be kept under observation. He was still.

Take $175,000 After Kidnapping Woman Teller

Drive-In Bank in N.Y. State Looted by Two Men

PORT CHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Two men early today robbed a drive-in bank of an estimated $175,000 after kidnapping and holding captive all night a woman bank teller.

The teller, Mrs. Mary F. Kostolos, was reported unharmed.

The holdup began at 10 o'clock Thursday night, as Mrs. Kostolos drove her car into the driveway at her home. Two men got into the car and forced her to drive them around for five hours.

At 3 a. m. they drove her veiled, to the drive-in branch of the County Trust Co.

While Mrs. Kostolos' key, the men entered the bank and took $175,000 from the safe. Holding her captive in the building in preparation for the 8 a. m. opening for business.

SEIZE JANITOR

Shortly before opening time a janitor made an unsuccessful attempt to unlock the bank door with his key. He went away for a few minutes, and when he returned for a second try to get in, one of the robbers opened the door, seized the man and dragged him into the building.

A few minutes before 8 a. m., J. Purdy Ungemack, a bank official, arrived. The robbers forced him to open the vault, and made him carry all of the money to Mrs. Kostolos' car at the curb. Then they sped away, leaving Ungemack standing on the curb.

As the car left, a police car with two patrolmen pulled up and Ungemack told them what had happened. They sent in an alarm, called for the robbers had disappeared.

A school teacher passing by became suspicious, and also called police.

Mrs. Kostolos was not immediately available to describe her ordeal to reporters.

A bank official, asked if she were upset, said: "That's putting it mildly." But police chief Fred C. Ponty said the robbers did not molest her after they drove to the night-long captivity.

Ponty described the robbers' loot at $175,000 although Dominick Pastorelle, vice-president of the corporation, said he believed the amount taken was $150,000.

Ponty said he did not know it was requested by the branch bank officials after the robbery so that business could be conducted as usual.

The County Trust Co., is wealthy Westchester county's largest bank with 15 branch at Mount Kisco. Its iron was held up and robbed of $97,564 Sept. 24, 1954.

Royal York Hotel Waiter Missing, Fear Foul Play

TORONTO (CP)—Detectives today scoured the waterfront for the Royal York Hotel's 53-year-old waiter, who disappeared Wednesday night after receiving two mysterious phone calls.

Police checked rumors that John Elison King had uncovered an underworld racket and was going to expose it.

The racket is believed to concern hotel-operations in general and not necessarily confined to the Royal York. It is not known whether it involved liquor, labor or gambling.

Detectives said reluctance of some hotel employees to talk, apparently in fear they might be under suspicion should something have happened to Mr. King, is slowing the investigation.

Police already have made thorough searches of railroad, bus and airline terminals in case the headwaiter, a Royal York employee for 25 years, may have left town.

TWO PHONE CALLS

Mr. King was last seen sitting in his car at the hotel's rear entrance late Monday night.

His wife said he was watching television on his day off when he received a phone call from a man named "Al." The conversation was friendly and Mr. King said he would look after something "first thing in the morning."

A second call, two minutes later, was less friendly and Mrs. King heard her husband arguing with a man called "Joe."

The headwaiter hung up saying: "Okay, okay, I'll be down in half an hour." In case he wasn't back he would have to come down on my day off."

He left home in his car and said he would return shortly. He wife expected him missing the next morning.

Giving up Smoking Reduces Cancer Risk

LONDON (Reuters)—The British Medical Journal says, after reviewing the latest statistics in the United States and Britain, that persons who give up smoking can reasonably hope for a "substantial reduction in the risk of developing lung cancer."

The journal, official organ of the British Medical Association, made its assertion in an editorial which outlines the evidence of lung cancer among smokers and those who had given up the habit.

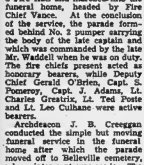
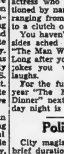
Final Tribute Paid Fire Capt. Stan Waddell



Representatives of fire departments in Eastern Ontario headed by their chiefs, city and Provincial police officers from the district, along with a large number of intimate friends attended the funeral held at the Belleville Rural Company Funeral Home Thursday afternoon for the late Captain Stanley Joseph Waddell.

Fire Chief W. Storrie of Peterborough; V. C. Brightman, of Kingston; R. Hubbs of Oshawa; K. Baird of Cobourg; C. Orser of Trenton; Gerald Vance of Belleville and ex-Chief Wm. J. Lynch also of this city, were in attendance. Inspector W. McDougall of the Provincial Police headquarters; Police Chief Walter Probert of Belleville; Inspector Claire Hayes of the Belleville police department and Sgt. W. Gilmour of Trenton police, were in the parade along with seven firemen from Brockville, nine from Kingston, three from Oshawa, 8 from Peterborough, four from Trenton and 36 from the local department, along with six Provincial police officers and six city policemen.

The parade moved from Abe No. 2 Fire Hall and marched into the funeral home, headed by Fire Chief Vance. At the conclusion of the service, the funeral moved behind No. 2 pumper carrying the body and 36 floral pieces and which was commanded by the late Mr. Waddell when he was on duty. The fire chief's pumper carried an honorary bearers, while Deputy Chief Gerald O'Brien, Fire Chief Pomeroy, Capt. J. Adams, Lt. Charles Greatrix, Lt. Ted Foote and Lt. Jack Hall were active bearers.



Archdeacon J. B. Creegan conducted the simple but moving funeral service in the funeral home and then the parade moved off to Belleville cemetery, where interment took place. The cortege was headed by the uniformed men to the bottom of West Bridge Street hill, where cars took the marchers to the cemetery.

Comedy Laugh Riot of Theatre

One of the best breaks theatre audience ever got was the fractured hip that turned "The Man Who Came to Dinner" into a laugh riot of all-time record proportions.

The Belleville Theatre Guild Inc. brings "The Man Who Came to Dinner" to the BCI auditorium next Monday and Tuesday at 8.30 p.m. Tickets for the merriest comedy hit since the war have since TMWCTD was last here, are now available and entertain a galaxy of friends including Harpo Marx, Noel Coward and a well-known actress who might not if mentioned by name, and, accepts gifts ranging from a mink coat of pearls to a clutch of cockroaches.

You haven't laughed until your sides ached until you've seen "The Man Who Came to Dinner". Long after you have forgotten the jokes you will remember the laughs.

For the funniest frolic of the year "The Man Who Came to Dinner" next Monday and Tuesday night is a must.

Police Court

City magistrate's court was of brief duration this morning with proceedings lasting only a few minutes while Magistrate Fred Thompson dealt with two drunks and a remanded an accused on a breaking and entering charge.

Teddy Dunn, Belleville, appeared on a charge of entering Crawford Meats and stealing $230 from the safe there. The break-in was reported on Tuesday. Dunn was remanded until next week.

Co-operative House Members Ready to Take Over Homes

After eight months of hard slugging during which time house-hungry family heads have labored an average of 29.5 hours per week in addition to their regular daily tasks, members of Woodland Acres Co-operative are beginning to realize the fruits of their labors.

Roughly one-third of the 30 houses being constructed by the house building co-operative east of the city have now been completed and it is expected that all will be finished by the end of April.

Already nine families have moved into their homes—another has expected to move in today and another two will move in next week.

Aimed at paring house building costs for its members Woodland Acres Co-operative was formed about two years ago by a group of home-seeking family heads.

Following was an instructional course on how each homeowner could learned the rudiments of house construction and last summer the project got underway.

Co-operative members did not attempt to do all construction themselves. They contracted basement excavations, foundation building, roofing and most of the trades such as plumbing and heating, bricklaying, plastering and wiring.

But members set to work with a will at framing, panelling, flooring, insulating, lathing and painting and consider they have saved themselves a considerable chunk of money in construction costs. The Co-operative requirement was that each member put in 15 hours a week at the housing project. At an average of 29.5 hours, the 30 members have just about doubled the required amount.

RIGHT ON SCHEDULE

"We are right on schedule," Co-operative manager Stuart Marion stated today. "Every man has maintained his interest and we feel our costs will be exactly as we anticipated."

All construction was done under the direction of supervising contractor R. L. Sexsmith of Deseronto.

Thurlow township in which the housing development is built, has co-operated fully with the builders.

City water lines have been installed, roads are now being put in and a sewage disposal system has been developed to take care of 30 co-operative houses and others in the area.

There are three general types of houses in Woodland Acres. They are single storey bungalows, one and a half storey dwellings and full two storey houses.

Similarity of design has been avoided as much as possible with contrasting colors of brick and shingles and a distinctive approach to the development, which is lacking in many new housing subdivisions.

30 Belleville Students at Queen's Hosts to Open House Guests

Thirty Belleville students attending Queen's University will be among the 2,500 students acting as hosts to visitors during the Open House being held at Queen's on Saturday afternoon.

Women students from Belleville in the group include Margaret Anderson, Elizabeth Campbell, Mary Harris, Eva Hrachovec, Mario Lampros, Harriet Mc Cullough, Maureen Wait and Beatrice Yeotes.

Belleville men in the Faculty of Arts who are expected to take part include John Hagerman, Carmon H. Kelly, Robert Marsh, Doug. Mc Ilraith, Stewart Robertson, Fred Wells, Herbert M. Whitfield and Kip Summers, president of the Alma Mater Society which directly supports the project.

Belleville engineering students who are taking part include Percy L. Campbell, John E. Coe, James E. Coe, Ronald C. Donaldson, Robert L. Flindall, Robt. E. Galjdlaer, Robt. Gay, Kenneth Kent, C. Mc Lean, David S. Scott, Peter W. Smith, Roger R. Sprague, Herbert M. Whitfield and R. H. Williams.

Belleville medical students in the group include John Cole, Dr. Cromyle, Ed. J. Hinchey and Arthur D. Sutton.

Twenty buildings on Queen's campus will be open from 2 p.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday, Keith Howard, general chairman of the Open House committee.

"Among the attractions to the public will be free coffee to all comers Saturday afternoon at the science clubrooms on the second floor of Clark Hall," he added.

Faculty, visitors and friends from all over Eastern Ontario are expected to attend the program which is sponsored by students themselves every two years.

SERVICE PROVIDED

Nursery sitting service for the small children of visitors is being provided by final year nursing students in Baker House, one of the women's residences.

Hundreds of displays and exhibits in the arts, medicine and engineering will be demonstrated during the program.

Headquarters for the program will be at Miller Hall, located at the intersection of Union and Division streets, where guide books and maps of the entire campus will be given visitors. Guides will be located in each of the buildings.

Grant Hall will be headquarters for the high school students attending, including some from the Belleville area. More than 300 students will visit the Open House from district points.

Two medical buildings will be open, the new Medical and the Cruise buildings. Special displays will be displays in physiology, bacteriology, histology and anatomy, while there will be pharmacological (drug) displays and research experiments in chemistry.

Engineering experiments will include many that are spectacular, such as a miniature river in flood, a model oil-refining plant, an electrical storm in miniature, demonstration of nuclear and atomic instruments, a model power plant in use, and many other experiments. Arts exhibits will include demonstration of the modern language laboratory, rare manuscripts and first editions of Canadian book masterpieces, microfilm and microprint readers in use, and many rare books on display. The students' memorial union and the gymnasium and the swimming pool also will be open.

Delegation Will Visit Toronto To Seek Grant

A delegation from the Moira River Conservation Authority will wait on the Ontario Department of Planning and Development in the near future to seek a further 15% per cent subsidy in addition to the 30 per cent announced earlier for flood control work.

The 63½ per cent government subsidy is required before the proposed College Street flood control dam could be considered by the Authority or the city of Belleville which would be the benefitting municipality.

Executive members of the Authority met over a week ago to express appreciation to the Minister of Planning and Development for the increased subsidy to 50 per cent for flood control dams, but impress upon provincial members that the burden of the remaining 50 per cent of the construction cost of the College Street dam would be too high for the municipalities to capitalize to bear. Estimated cost of the dam is $450,000.

Members attending the meeting were local M.L.A.'s W. E. Sandercock, Bonne Bay and Norris Whitney, with Her Worship Jane Forrester, Aldermen A. Keegan and Chas. Mills, city engineer.

Provincial members were requested to back up a deputation to wait on the Minister of Planning and Development to request the further 15½ per cent.

The deputation to go to Toronto will be composed of: Authority chairman, Harold Ketcheson; Walden E. Wood, Mayor Jane Forrester and Alderman Al. Keegan.

Chairman Bruce Smith stated the date for the deputation to meet in Toronto had not yet been arranged and no word was expected until the weekend.

Temperature Average Higher Than Last Year

Despite two or three periods of severe weather which saw the thermometer drop to a low of 13 below, Old Man Weather did treat Belleville and district residents too unkindly during February.

Yesterday's statistics for the month show the mean temperature was 19.2 degrees—exactly one degree higher than a year ago and almost one degree higher than the average for the past 10 years. High temperature for the month was 49 degrees.

Rainfall during the month was .54 inch with a snowfall of 8.5 inches, for a total precipitation of 2.13 inches. Rain in February 1955, was exactly one-half inch with snowfall of 11.9 inches for a total precipitation of 1.69 inches.

High temperature a year ago was 46 degrees with a low of 18.7 recorded.

The ten year average for rainfall during February is 1.65 inches with 19.1 inches being the average snowfall for an overall precipitation average of 2.85 inches.

Manning Wants Ottawa to Quit Welfare Field

Alberta Premier Manning says the federal government should get out of federal government skirted the social welfare field.

He said Thursday the subject of federal aid for social services is causing concern in federal-provincial financial talks. It would be better if Ottawa gave provinces a more equitable share of Canada's potential revenue and allowed them to shoulder their own responsibilities.

First Unit of Eastminster United Church to Be Built

The official board of Eastminster United Church has announced that construction of the first unit of their church will commence this spring. The congregation, due to their devoted efforts, are at last seeing their goal materialising.

The beginning of Eastminster United Church is due to the foresight of the members of Belleville Presbytery. In 1949, when development of the eastern area of the city began, they realized the necessity that a church would soon be needed. A committee was formed and a report presented on Bridge Street East, near MacDonald Avenue. Such an importation was considered suitable and careful planning and it was until 1954 a religious census was taken of the area between MacDonald and Herchimer Avenue. The results of this survey showed there were 288 adults interested in forming a new United church. The need was emphasized when it was also learned 320 children of these adults would be attending Sunday school.

As an extension committee of the Reverends Platt, Robertson, Lane and the late Mr. Throop was authorized to begin building a congregation.

At a general meeting in May 1955, the above mentioned extension committee was enlarged to include interested members of the community. Because of the rapid growth eastward since 1949, the original lots were no longer suitable in size or location. The extension committee was instructed to find a more suitable site. One Sunday afternoon, three members of the extension committee observed a suitable tract of land on the southeast corner of Bridge and Herchimer Avenue. A neighbor resident confirmed the information that the particular site in question was being reserved by the owner for the future growth of Canada, whereas the surrounding property had been subdivided for a building development. The owner confirmed that the tract had been reserved for future building of a church, and could be purchased for that purpose. At a general meeting in June 1955, the extension committee was authorized to purchase the lot on the corner of Bridge Street and Herchimer Avenue, in accordance with the sale of the lots on Bridge Street, East, subject to the approval of the Presbytery of Belleville Presbytery. By October, the purchase had been completed and thereafter the original lots were sold. It seemed that God had indeed been guiding the destiny of Eastminster United church. The extension committee was also authorized to obtain suitable place of worship, and arrange for services to begin September 1955.

MASONIC TEMPLE USED

The Masonic Temple was found the most suitable place available. The first worship service and Sunday school was held September 11th, 1955. The response of the people was so encouraging that a second service was started December 4th, to have the congregation officially organized as Eastminster United church. Seventy-seven families signed the charter roll.

The church owes a debt of gratitude to former members of John Street United church. A memorial fund was set up by them when their church was moved down. Money from this fund was used to purchase the present lot. The balance of this fund, $10,000 has been given by the Presbytery to be used towards the cost of the church building.

The congregation by this fall hopes to call a full time minister. Ministers of various denominations from Belleville and vicinity have generously given their services also here in September.

BUILD ONE SECTION

In January of this year it was decided that a church would have to be built within the year to meet the growing needs of the congregation. The architectural firm of Watson and Wiegand was engaged and instructed to prepare plans. The plans called for the erection of the church in two stages. The first unit accommodating 200 people is to be built this year. A second unit with a seating capacity of 400 people will be built as soon as the size of the congregation warrants it. When the second unit is built, the first unit will be used as a Christian Education Centre for the community.

The building will be of laminated arch construction. The first unit will consist of auditorium and minister's vestry, with Sunday school rooms and kitchen in the basement. The estimated cost of the first unit with its necessary furnishings will be approximately $53,000.

It is encouraging to note that the spiritual growth of our city is keeping pace with the material growth of an ever expanding Belleville.

Urgent Need Of Parity Prices Told to O.F.U.

The monthly meeting of Read Local 192, O.F.U. held in Read hall on the afternoon of February 22nd, was well attended by the members also well represented by neighboring locals, Marysville, Selby and Rosslin.

Following the call of order by president Joe Hanley, the secretary, Ray Hunt, read the minutes of the January meeting, and gave reports on the various activities in the local since the January meeting.

The chairman, Mr. Harold Murphy introduced the guest speaker, Mr. J. Gordon Chatman Interprovincial Farm Union Council, who capably explained the urgent need of parity prices for farmers.

Following his address, he answered several questions during his discussion period which were asked by members and non-members.

Vice-president Harold Power moved a vote of thanks to Mr. J. Sheelt.

IN MEMORIAM

LAYTA. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrt. Marian Layta, who died March 2nd, 1954.
When we are sad and lonely,
And sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing
To see your face at home.
Memories are treasures no one can steal.
Death is a heartache no one can heal;
Some may forget you now that you're gone,
But we shall remember, no matter how long.
Sadly remembered, by her son and daughter.

FERGUSSON. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Fergusson, who passed away at the Cobourg General Hospital, March 2nd, 1954.
We cannot forget your smiling face,
Your gentle ways,
The smile that won so many friends,
That grew so dear to us.
You left behind a memory
Of cheerfulness and love,
A cherished smile, your heart of gold.
Always so good, unselfish and kind,
What a wonderful memory you left behind.
Gratefully remembered by brother Bob, sister-in-law Ketha and nieces Ann and Bethe.

FERGUSSON. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Fergusson, who passed away at the Cobourg General Hospital, March 2nd, 1954.
In tears we now your memory,
For tears are all we have always.
Your children, Ethel, Jack and Jack.
To suffer that again.
Sadly remembered by Doreen, George and Lynn and grandchildren.

WELLMAN. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, John Wellman, who passed away March 2nd, 1953.
Sadly we miss him more, it was His will, But in our hearts he lives still; His memory is as dear today,
As in the time he was with us.
We often sit and think of him,
When our work is done,
For memory is the only thing,
That grows dear to us.
Sadly remembered by his loving wife Myrtle, son Arthur, daughter-in-law Jean, daughter Faye, son-in-law Keith.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials edged up to another record high during first-hour trading on the stock exchange today.

Selective buying moved utilities, financial institutions, steels and refining oils ahead fractionally. Papers were mixed. BA was the lone soft spot in oils as profit-taking turned an early gain into a 25-cent loss. Imperial, up ⅝, continued active.

Federal grain, up $1.62 at $33, scored top gain. Ogilvie dipped ¾.

International Nickel gained ⅝ and Campbell Chibougamau ⅛ among higher-priced mines. Rio Algom notched a sharp 40-cent gain at $4.90 and the warrants added 30 at $2.75.

Blue Rock climbed 20 cents to a high of $3.95 and Lake Nordic 18 to $2.70 in a little-changed uranium section.

Merrill Pete advanced $1 to $17, touching a high of $17.50, to lead western oils forward.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices unchanged here today.

The egg market was firm with offerings equal to a steady demand.

Quotations, provided by the Dominion department of agriculture: eggs, in fibre cases, graded: large 42; A medium 41; A small 35; B 35; C 28. Wholesale to retail: A large 47; A medium 46; A small 40; B 40; C 32.

Butter solids: Canada, first grade, Ontario 58½; western 58½ (nominal).

Heavy Damage Slight Injury In Collision

A fifteen-year-old high school girl suffered a bruised arm and heavy property damage to two vehicles resulted this morning in a collision between a car and truck at the corner of Victoria Ave. and John Street.

Slightly injured was Linda Pritchard, who was riding with her mother, Mrs. Farmer Pritchard, 13 Forin Street, who was driving the girl to school.

Mrs. Pritchard was westbound on Victoria Ave. and was making a left turn onto John St. when her car was in collision with an east-bound half-ton truck driven by Mario Fabbri, Rosewood Ave.

Last of Ottawa's 5 Fire Inquests Gets Under Way

OTTAWA (CP) — A coroner's jury today opened the last of five inquests this week into fire fatalities in the capital.

It began hearing evidence about a Feb. 25 rooming house blaze that took two lives. It was the fifth fatal fire here since Dec. 17 and raised total loss of life to 19.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were fully steady to 50 cents a hundredweight higher this week at the Ontario public stockyards. Calves, hogs, sheep and lambs were generally unchanged from last week.

Receipts of cattle were 400 head more than last week and 800 head more than the same week in 1955. Western receipts continued light at 115 head. This is comparable to last week. The westerns were mostly replacement cattle.

Shipments to eastern Canadian slaughterers were slightly less than last week at 12 carloads. There were no exports to the United States.

Cows were in broad demand and sold actively at prices fully 50 cents a hundredweight higher. The greatest gain in trade was reported as only fair. It was estimated that all slaughter cattle would be sold at the close leaving about 190 head of replacements.

Prices

Choice Steers $18-18.50, sales to $18.65; good steers $17-18; mediums $15-17; commons $12-15; good heifers $15-16; mediums $14-15; commons $12-14; boner steers and heifers $8-12, choice fed yearlings $19-20; good fed yearlings $18-19; mediums $17; good cows $11.50-12; good light heifery cows to $13; canners and cutters down to $7; good heavy bulls $13-14, common and medium light bulls down to $10.

Replacement Cattle: This class was slow at steady prices; good stockers were $16 with some feeders selling up to $17; some good feeding steers sold at $16.50; medium stockers were $14-16 with commons $12-14.

Veal Calves sold actively at steady prices on a medium-quality offering; good vealers were $27-29 with choice selling up to $30.75. Mediums were $18-26 with commons $12-18; grass calves sold for slaughter were $9-12.

Hogs: Hogs closed at prices fully steady to 50 cents higher to sell at $21 flat; bulk of the sales through the week, however, were at $23.50 with several loads out at $24; sows were $16 dressed and stags $13.

Sheep and Lamb receipts included a double deck of Alberta feeding lambs. The western sold at $22.25. Good native lambs were $21.50-22; mediums ranged from $19-20; the few sheep offered sold at $3-10, according to quality.

Consumer Price Index Declines During January

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index dipped to 116.4 at Feb. 1 from 116.8 a month earlier, reflecting lower January food prices, the bureau of statistics said today.

The four-tenths of a point decline brought the index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, close to the 116.3 at which it stood a year earlier.

The bureau said food price declines during January were responsible for the change in the index. The food sub-index, under the impact of lower prices for eggs, pork and beef cuts, oranges, margarine, coffee, grapefruit and lettuce, shidded 1.4 per cent to the lowest point since January, 1951.

At Feb. 1 the food sub-index stood at 109.3, down from 111.5 at Jan.3.

The shelter index, indicating costs of rents, mortgages and similar charges, continued its steady upward trend, moving to 131.5 from 131.3 a month earlier.

Heavy Rainfall Causes Flood In Toronto Area

TORONTO (CP) — Heavy rainfall early today resulted in the Toronto areas first major flood of the year.

Highland creek in suburban Scarborough township rose eight feet in less than three hours, stranding dozens of families.

Children from the area were unable to attend school and few workers arrived at work as the water rose three feet above Highland creek bridge.

The heavy rain flooded cellars and undermined roads in several suburban townships. Scarborough and North York reported many families without heat after the water flooded their furnaces.

SERVICES DISRUPTED

The storm is believed responsible for breaking a large water main on Wingfold avenue in west-central Toronto.

Seven factories were without water because the main burst, and 60 feet of road was undermined and had to be blocked off. A water-works truck, searching for the break, found it when the pavement gave way and dropped the truck into a hole four feet deep.

In Hamilton, city workmen examined 1,500 mountain hydrants in search of a leak which robbed the water system of 30,000 gallons an hour.

More than 1,000 telephones on the mountain were out of order for six hours during the storm when rain seeped into a cracked cable.

Mollet, Pineau To Visit Moscow

PARIS (AP) — French Premier Guy Mollet and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau will go to Moscow May 14 to visit the leaders of the Soviet government, it was announced today.

Soviet Ambassador Sergei Vinogradov called on Mollet Thursday night and presented the Russian invitation. The foreign office announced this morning that it had been accepted.

Former president Vincent Auriol now is visiting Moscow, and was guest tonight at a lavish Soviet government reception. Reports from Moscow said Foreign Minister Molotov conferred at length with Auriol, and said the Soviet Union would like to improve relations with France.

The invitation to Mollet—and his acceptance—took on new significance because of the campaign the French Communist party has been carrying on to draw the premier's Socialist party into a "popular front." Mollet so far has rejected the Red overtures, but did not refuse the Communist support when they voted to confirm him in office.

Refuse to Bargain Is Charge Laid

TORONTO (CP) — The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario today was charged with refusing to bargain with a union representating 11,000 of its employees.

Charles Dubin, counsel, and Stan Little, Canadian director, of the National Union of Public Service Employees (CCL — CIO), told the Ontario labor relations board that contract revisions, which included a seven-per-cent wage increase, were sent to the commission but were returned unopened.

A commission spokesman said the commission was in doubt about the organization's legality as bargaining agent for the employees.

Order New Trial To Assess Amount Lamport Will Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today ordered a new trial to assess libel damages former Toronto mayor Allan Lamport was ordered to pay taxi operator Thomas Ross.

Mr. Lamport, commissioner of the Toronto Transit Commission, originally was ordered to pay Mr. Ross $60,000 but the Ontario Court of Appeals ordered a retrial.

Mr. Ross, who claimed Mr. Lamport libelled him in newspaper interviews, took the case to the Supreme Court. He claimed Mr. Lamport accused him of trafficking in taxi licences.

The Supreme Court said in its judgment:

"The appeal is allowed and a new trial directed but only as to the amount of damages. The appellant (Mr. Ross) shall have his costs of the action down to and including the trial and the costs of the appeal to this court, but the respondent shall have his costs in the court of appeal. The costs of the new assessment shall be in the discretion of the presiding judge."

Fishing Fleet Opens Season At Port Dover

PORT DOVER, Ont. (CP)—Seven tugs from the Port Dover fishing fleet crashed out of the mouth of the River Lynn Thursday to officially open the 1956 fishing season in eastern Lake Erie. They beat last year's starting by one day.

Led by the H.H. Misner and its skipper, Elmer Misner, the little fleet managed to penetrate 18 miles through stubborn freeze and drift ice to lay the first gill nets of the year in the lower lake.

The Misner, with the Ferrecleat and the H.A. Smith, were scheduled to return to the fertile pickerel grounds off Long point Friday to pick up their nets and load the catch.

Ice floes two miles square impeded progress of the tugs and forced four of the boats to turn back.

UN CHILDREN'S FUND

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The United Nations children's fund today said 29 governments have pledged $13,828,155 for its work in 1956. Last year two governments gave $15,606,000 for 1955. The fund provides medical supplies, extra food and milk for children and mothers around the world.

General Strike Grips Finland

HELSINKI (Reuters)—A general strike gripped Finland Thursday and plunged the little Scandinavian nation into its worst political and economic turmoil since it became independent after the First World War.

The walkout, to protest the abolition of price controls, hit industry, transportation, shipping and mail services. It was called by the Finnish Trade Union Federation after both government and employers had turned down its demands.

Farmers, opposed to the union demand for renewed price controls on milk and butter, added to the confusion by calling a countrystrike.

The economic crisis found Finland without a government and left premier-designate Karl Fagerholm faced with overwhelming difficulties in forming one.

EISENHOWER'S DECISION

The world's greatest free show, the U.S. presidential election campaign, was officially launched on its eight-months' run Wednesday with the announcement that President Eisenhower would seek a second term. As spectators with front row seats, Canadians will be able to enjoy the campaign almost as much as U.S. electors.

It is true that three Democratic party hopefuls have been wooing their party's favor since last autumn and attempting to win public support for the party as well. It was not until President Eisenhower's announcement of intention to let his name stand for the nomination, however, that the quadrennial campaign battle between parties became crystallized through identification with individual candidates.

Should the president's health prove to be as sound as he believes it to be, it is a foregone conclusion that he will be renominated by the Republican Party. California's Senator Knowland, one of a cluster of Republican presidential candidate aspirants, stated in the wings waiting for the president to open them their one regret was that he believed Eisenhower would be renominated by acclamation.

Several interesting speculations arise from the president's announcement. They will all be resolved by the first Tuesday of November of this year but in the next eight months will undoubtedly provoke as much comment in the hustings as the proceedings of our own government.

First of all—was the president's decision wise, both from a personal standpoint and from a tactical standpoint? Secondly, will the choice of a vice presidential running mate assume more importance than ever before? Thirdly, where does Eisenhower's decision leave the Democratic hopefuls?

It seems apparent, from this distance, that President Eisenhower decided to seek a second term despite his heart attack because of a genuine sense of duty. The habit of the professional soldier to serve where he is directed and when he feels it is necessary, despite personal misgivings, has likely influenced Eisenhower's decision this time as it obviously did when he accepted the Republican nomination in 1952. His political and military experience, after having spurned offers from both parties in 1948.

Eisenhower has stated that he firmly believes he can withstand the physical punishment of another four years in the White House. He could say nothing else and, to be fair with the electorate, he must believe this is true. But it will be interesting to see whether the voting public's warm regard for the president will overpower certain natural doubts about his ability to carry the full burdens of the man-killing job that is the presidency.

Budd Wilson's brush bring into question the political wisdom of staking the party's fortunes on a man so recently stricken by a heart attack. The public may not appreciate being placed in a position of passing a possible "death watch" on a sincerely regarded friend. Their doubts as to his ability to carry on have a pointed example in the president's conduct since his heart attack five months ago. He has worked five days a week for periods less than six weeks to his work in Washington. Convalescence in Denver, then at his farm in Gettysburg, then in Florida and more recently in Georgia emphasize that while he may work hard he has not yet fully regained the strength in office. His announcement Wednesday hinted that he intended to campaign less by personal appearance and more by radio and television, a practice open to criticism—but possibly something less than reassuring politically.

While the president admitting that he intends to make concessions to his health, the choice of the vice presidential candidate assumes new importance. Vice presidents are usually seen and not heard and in years past the vice presidential nomination was made on the basis of political compromise. In 1956 there is a very real possibility that the Republican vice presidential candidate will be selected after a study of his leading contenders for the mantle of the burdens of the presidency.

And where does Eisenhower's decision leave the Democratic hopefuls? The leading contenders are the moment, Adlai Stevenson, is possibly worse off today than he was Wednesday. Defeated presidential candidates usually have a difficult time capturing their party's nomination for a second try. Mr. Stevenson's re-nomination would put the lists against the same man who defeated him in political liability that possibly the Democratic party will not wish to assume. Mr. Stevenson's pre-election approach to campaigning may not offer sufficient contrast to the Eisenhower approach to convince voters that he deserves a job for which he was reluctantly drafted four years ago.

Senator Estes Kefauver, trying for his party's endorsation for the third time, does not seem to have the strength necessary to capture the nomination. New York's governor Averill Harriman, the third announced Democratic candidate, has, possibly, a better chance than ever to win party favor, especially as he seems to enjoy a greater degree of support from ex-president Truman than the other candidates. Truman still commands a substantial following among stalwart Democrats and may have an important influence on the party's final selection at the national convention in Chicago in August.

At all events, one of the great political phenomenons of modern times is beginning to unfold before the world as U.S. parties commence campaigning for-the presidency.

Donnybrook Fair

(By Roderick Fogg, in the Glasgow, Scotland, Evening Times)

Americans visiting Ireland still ask what time of year Donnybrook fair is held. For 101 years it's too late. It was last held in 1855.

Yet it's still the world's most famous fair, a synonym for riotous jollity.

It started in the year 1204, when King John granted a charter authorising a charter to hold an annual trading fair, in aid of the building and upkeep of their city walls.

For the next 641 years it was held on a flat, green beside the village of Donnybrook, a mile outside the city, where Donnybrook church stands today.

Over the centuries the trading side declined. Drink was Donnybrook's ruin. From the 1700's onward, there was a campaign against Donnybrook's drunkenness.

Finally, when a committee of citizens bought out the £3,000 fair penalty which had acquired the chief Donnybrook fair rights, it had to be.

Despite the fair's rowdiness, there were people with a good word for it.

Among German Prince Puckler-Muskau wrote in 1828: "The wild humour of the Irish gives a gaiety and merriment with which the cheapest shows were enjoyed.

"Even the ferocity of English brutality was to be percei: t. They were more like French people with more humour and more genuine good nature, which are national traits of the Irish."

Love making was a feature of the fair. Sir Jonah Barrington, writing in the 1830's, knew the Donnybrook of 40 years earlier, said: "Father Kearney, of Liffey St., told me over marriages always celebrated in Dublin the week after Donnybrook than in any other two months of the year."

Some heavy trading survived to the last, but otherwise nothing was sold except children's toys and trinkets, fruit and drink. Shows were brought at tents and booths made of waterlines dropped with patchwork quilts, sacks and old petticoats.

Some tents sold salt beef and cabbage, potatoes and bubble boy herrings, cooked on peat fires; with pewter dishes and knives at double prices "for the quality."

Barrington wrote of the fighting and drinking: "By 2 at the fair women-tamers ended.

"Love making was no malice in it. A fray which commenced with the knocking down, ended with shaking hands."

He thought shillelagh fighting had been overdone by novelists and bare fist prize fighting of his time, being "like sword exercises. ...No-one disliked, and few meters and never saw a bone broken."

Sir Arthur Hurst when he discussed treatment of cellitis at the Royal Society of Medicine:

"There is no such thing as 'neurasthenia,' as I once named open a discussion on its treatment."

Mind you, these are Sir Arthur Hurst's words. I'm just quoting them for the heck of it. If any reader who watches his colon too closely thinks he knows better than an ordinary doctor does, let him take it up with Sir Arthur. I decline to argue with such characters.

Which means simply impairment of function. To derange, says Webster, is to put out of order.

These are the usual causes:

1. Overrefined food — shortfood.
2. Impaired mastication.
3. Vitamin B deficiency.
4. Use of laxatives.
5. Recharging with enemas and so-called colonic irrigations or bowel washes.
6. The autointoxication obsession.
7. Ignorance of physiology.
8. Introspection.

Try it, say, I'll discuss these factors severally Mondays and Thursdays in the course of the next three weeks.

Miss Mary Fitzgerald of Toronto is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, Bleecker Avenue.

Mr. P. L. Goudy of Galt spent the weekend here with his brother-in-law, Mr. Fulford Goudy, Foster Avenue.

Mrs. Mary Sills has returned home from Oshawa and Toronto where she visited friends.

Young People Put Play In Kingston. The Albert Players were in Kingston on Saturday to present their play, "The Great Barrier" in the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival. The play received very favorable and encouraging comment from the adjudicator, Mr. Alan Wade. The following composed the cast: Muriel Vervilliyea, Lurene Smith, Helen Sulman, Catherine Smith, Mildred Lloyd and Nellie Marsakas. Miss Jessie Wilde directed the play. The following from this city were present at the presentation of the play: Mrs. J. Lloyd, Miss Clara Ostrom, Orlin Lloyd, Taylor Franklin and Alfred Bishop.

Recreation Centre Advocated. At a meeting of the city council a largely signed petition was presented suggesting that the old circus grounds in the north east part of the city be purchased by the city for the sum of $1800.00 and converted into a public park and recreation centre. The petition was referred to the executive committee for consideration. A request from the Belleville Poultry Association for a grant of $100.00 was also referred to the executive committee. Heretofore the association has been granted $150.00.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cooley have returned to the city after visiting their son, Prof. R. B. Cooley, Queen's University, La Fayette, Indiana.

Alberta Coal Here. Several cars of Alberta coal have arrived last evening and this morning and are being unloaded from the liveries. The selling price is $14. per ton. If the coal takes well with the public the dealers will order large quantities.

Mr. Herbert A. Fish is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Mark H. Irish, editor of the editorial staff of the Guelph Mercury is renewing acquaintances here. This is his home town.

Aura Lee Team Here. Last evening at the arena the Aura Lee hockey team of Toronto defeated the local boys in a fast and exciting match; the final score was 11 to 8. A return match will be played in Toronto soon and here is hoping the Belleville boys "bring home the bacon." The following composed the Belleville team: Nunn, Lynn, G. Arnott, Whalen, L. Arnott, Armstrong and Green.

Mr. Ed. H. Tickell went to Toronto this morning.

Miss Victoria Slaves of Hamilton is the guest of Mrs. R. M. Watson, Turnbull Street.

Wild ducks in large flocks are flying north; this is said to be a sure sign of an early spring.

The vital statistics in the city for the month of February are: marriages 8; births 32 and deaths 28.

Mr. W. E. Schuyler left for Ottawa where he has received a commission in the Forestry Battalion.

Many of the older residents will remember Phil. Hart and his fine kennel of dogs. We quote the following from our file copy of the issue in 1896: "Phil Hart has had the misfortune to lose his fine and young St. Bernard dog by death from pneumonia. This exceptional dog was imported recently from York, England, and Mr. Hart states that it was the largest St. Bernard dog of its age ever seen on this continent.

Lectured On For Snow Bailing. From our file copy at this time in 1896: "A number of boys appeared in police court this morning charged with snow bailing. The magistrate gave them a lecture and allowed them to go."

Mr. Robert Wilson is home from Picton to spend Sunday and returned home in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Cryderman of Warkworth are the guests of Mrs. J. D. Monaghan, Cedar St.

Mr. William McIntosh and Mr. John McIntosh have returned home after a business trip to New York City.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The best butcher I know picks up his butcher knife, reaches for the large steel that hangs on one end of the counter, and, with the greatest skill, draws the knife twice over the steel, and then proceeds to cut up the meat.

The best barber I have ever observed picks up his razor, reaches for the strap, gives the razor not two, not four, but eight or three quiet sweeps up and down the leather, and then goes to work with a razor as silky smooth as a butterfly's wing.

Having seen many a butcher whetting away with his knife on the steel for what seemed to be a quarter of a minute, I asked my best butcher how it came about that he gave his knife only two skilled whisks on the steel, and no more.

"Well," he explained, "the knife is sharp to begin with. It has been ground sharp. I do not take off the edge on the steel. I merely clean it, straighten it, as you say, with a couple or precise strokes."

Having watched many a barber stand, for half a minute at a time, with a far-away expression in his eyes as he stroked the razor on the strop, I enquired of my best barber why he never gave more than three strokes on his strop; never two, never four, only three.

He gave the same answer.

"The razor is sharp," he replied. "It has been honed sharp. I do not wish to wear out the razor edge. All I do is level it off, 150 it up, with just enough pressure on the leather to effect that."

In the bush last week, I was in a pulpwood camp watching the pulpwood cutters taking down spruces with their Swede saws and then trimming the branches off with axes as deftly used as any tennis champion's racquet. In the course of the morning's walk through the bush, I happened to notice no fewer than three axemen take a small round stone from their pockets and give their axes a quick, light touch-up.

"Do the best of these I said:

"How often do you give your axe that little touch - up?"

"Oh, two or three times a day, maybe," said the Plan. "You cut branches close, see. Like knock. So I like my axe quick."

A man who uses a cutting tool like a razor, be he barber or axeman, I suppose, that a map who uses a pencil likes one with a fine keen point instead of a dull stub.

Letter To The Editor

Wants Free Parking Retained on Market

Editor, Ontario-Intelligencer:

I notice the City Fathers allow free parking on the river bank, on Bridge Street and on the Flats, which serves very well the high-repaid, retail part of the city. They also permit free parking space for their employees, in fact a private parking space, on the inside of the Arena, with their names stencilled thereon, in box car letters. The Arena is not a city asset. They self a private spot — 24 hours per day — while discarding our parking space.

It may be, as one Alderman remarked, that the meters of Front St. help the merchant there, I notice also a space for meters for merchants on other streets, to provide their own free parking space and lots of it. And I don't believe the Sheriff spending much time on Bridge Street, but the free spot for us lower town people, behind the Arena, but this year's village was withdrawn. What free space remains on Market Square is ridiculous, and should be used and augmented.

The use for more and more meters is probably caused by the ever increasing demand for more and more parking space. Should we gins after one leaves school? Is this a good idea? I don't think so. Why not make it possible for men like Andrew Carnegie, and many others who had jobs of brains, ambition and energy, but very little schooling, to get started in life at an early age, instead of being compelled to wait until they are 21 or 22?

However go ahead and put a further crimp in the City's finances about all the other things. Naturally you don't want to bother about planning, sewage disposal, flood control, the Salaman treasures now in storage, traffic, new pavements,

Can Scoff Now At Sgt.-Major

(Hamilton Spectator)

Having writhed uneasily and often under those pedagen, barrack room terms of "Wrack, wabag," from the lusty lungs of heavily jowled sergeant-majors, it is a real pleasure for us to disagree with them now that the hot war has turned cold.

This is quite easy to do when we learn that a group of sergeant-majors from across Canada gathered at Camp Borden recently and proceeded to the burning of their battle dress as working clothes by civilians.

"Why", demanded one of the disciplinarians, "should it be required to spend hundreds of dollars to keep my uniform looking smart by going to the cleaners and pressing the same uniform?"

Refreshing suggestion of mob-blasm in our democratic conception of army service, we agree that sergeant-majors have earned the fruits of their comparatively lofty rank. But what is it a letter, for as was stated at Camp Borden, "that they are truly the backbone" of the army.

But while it may cost them hundreds of dollars to keep their uniforms looking smart, we doubt if the street cleaner or the greasy-covered fitter, the skilled mechanic who was also referred to as a sweating, dirty, grease-covered comparable salaries or have the same pride. Always honorable battle dress is worn by generals and monkeys and sweepers — even sergeant-majors. But the latter, the sergeants-major, to discipline them when their time is up.

So until the next time, let us say you've kissed us good night, Sergeant-Major.

Personal Application

Wants Cupid Regimented

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

The blogths by which the bureaucratically-minded would like to regiment their fellow men is illustrated by the proposal of an Oakville magistrate concerning marriage.

This paternalistic gentleman thinks, in first place, that the government should pay subsidies of from $3,000 to $5,000 to young people who are contemplating marriage but can't afford it.

Having thus extended the hand of the welfare state to the debtridden couple, he would then take evidence and self-respect which our "way of life" is supposed to encourage, especially in our young people, the government would further underwrite the marriage to the extent of a $100-a-month bonus when the baby came — provided means-test requirements could be satisfied.

Just what further proof the government could ask of the "needy" of the propositioned people, now in debt to it for the original amount of the subsidy, the magistrate did not say.

But this is not all. All young couples applying marriage licences will be force to take an "orientation test" which would indicate whether they were fitted for the responsibilities of married life.

If, in the opinion of the civil servant delegated to judge the result of the test, the couple showed that they were not ready for marriage, a licence would be refused them, by the time baby arrived.

Wallpaper Heats House

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

In the not distant future one may have to be as electrician in order to paper a room.

A British firm has been experimenting with wallpaper containing electrical heating elements. However, good and practical development work yet remains to be done.

The new wallpaper-heating method is based on the techniques of printed circuits which have wires replaced by flat coil conductors bonded to a backing of insulating material.

The printed circuits are etched or stamped out of flat foil sheets and laid on the wall, leaving a void space thus obtained, do not require soldered connections.

WHAT ABOUT HEAVEN?

We have remarked in this column before about the sneer of President Andrew Jackson who when asked whether he thought Jackson would get to heaven, replied that he would if he behaved himself.

This is not only true of Jackson but it is true of everyone of us. Believe it or not, the world is full of people who know nothing about heaven and apparently care nothing about it. A thorough reading of the Bible clearly indicates that nobody is ever saved unless he wants to be saved, and never gets thru salvation on anyway.

Some people have no interest in heaven because they are quite well satisfied with things as they are in the world. Others have got so set in their habit of thinking materialistically that it is utter impossible for them to think in terms of spiritual realities. If anyone speaks to them about spiritual matters, they are either embarrassed or amazed or both.

Inasmuch as everyone eventually has to go to heaven it seems to be in order for one to ask "What next?" Our forebears spent most of their time in thinking about the next world and getting ready for it. Many perhaps thought too little about this world. We have gone to the opposite extreme and our present state of mind is not wholesome. The truly wise man orients himself with reference not only to this world but to the universe; not only to the present but to eternity.

THE WICKED QUEEN

John the Baptist was in serious trouble.

John, the giant in animal skins, for months had been preaching to great crowds down by the Jordan. He would wade out by the river, begging people to turn from sin.

"Do penance!" he would shout. "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand."

And John would name the evil things that people were doing, and beg them to stop. No more fighting, or gossiping, or cheating. No more laziness, or selfishness. No more children disobeying their parents. No more lies. All these things were insults to God.

But John was not only scolding poor people for their sins. He wanted the whole world shining and good, to be ready for the Saviour. And so John even dared to speak about the evils in the palace, and the sins of King Herod Antipes. King Herod had taken his brother's wife, Herodias, to live with him when he was, of course, a sin. He even called her his Queen.

John the Baptist thundered: "It is not lawful for him to have his brother's wife."

Now everyone knows it is dangerous to say aloud that a king has done wrong, because often the most important people like to pretend that the wicked things they do are right.

King Herod, who thought himself important, grew angry when he heard the things John the Baptist was saying. But Queen Herodias, who thought she was even more important, grew angrier still.

"Arrest that fool called John," said the Queen. "Put him to death! He cannot say such things about me."

King Herod shook his head. "I will not put him to death," he said, "because he has done nothing wrong."

But Herod knew he must do something to please Herodias. So he sent his soldiers to seize John, and had him thrown into a dungeon in the darkest, slimiest cellars of the palace.

HEROD FASCINATED

And then, in the secrecy of night Herod would creep down to talk with John the Baptist. He was fascinated by this man of the desert who was so good. John, who had nothing, seemed so happy, and the King, who had everything, was always unhappy.

"Maybe," thought the King, "I can learn the secret of this happiness."

But happiness is not an easy secret to learn. Each night John the Baptist tried to explain to him that to do wrong was to offend God, and that unless a man obeys God's laws he can never be happy. Happiness comes from goodness, said John.

"There must be an easier way," said the King, who was a very weak man.

Meanwhile, even in his dungeon, John heard reports of all his cousin Jesus was doing. He heard how Jesus healed the rich man's son, and the man with paralysis. He heard how Jesus had driven devils out of an insane man in the synagogue.

He even heard the story of the time that Jesus made a dead man live again. He had been walking with His disciples when a funeral procession came toward them. The only son of a widow had died, and they were carrying him to the cemetery. But Jesus stopped them, and spoke to the dead young man, and took his hand — and the man had risen up, as alive as you or I!

While John was thinking about these strange and wonderful things King Herod came again to see him.

"John," said the King, "Do what I ask and I will set you free. Promise me to talk no more about sin, and I'll let you go today. But if you refuse — if you insist on saying my Queen and I are sinners — I shall have to have you beheaded. Herodias hates you so that she will make me kill you, John."

REFUSED TO BE SILENT

"Whether I live or whether I die, does not matter. But I cannot stop speaking about sin, because sin hurts God. And God is more important than any king."

John put his huge head close to the bars and spoke straight to the King who stood outside.

"And Herod — a great change is shaking the world even now. You should be ready. Now is the time to repent from sin. For the Messiah has come, the Saviour. And I am sent to announce Him," said John.

Herod laughed, and his double chins shook.

"For a fairy-tale like that you would die?" asked the King. "Do not be a fool, John. All you need do to go free is to take back your nasty words about the Queen. But this Jesus — He is not God. You called Him that. But did He ever call Himself God? Did you ever hear Him say so? Couldn't you be wrong, John?"

John the Baptist thought for a moment. "I am sure that He is God. But — will you let me send my friends to ask Him? Then I will know what to do."

With the King's permission, John sent two men to Jesus in Galilee, to ask the most important question in the world.

They said to Jesus: "Are you He that is coming? Must we look for another?"

Jesus said to them: "Go tell John what you have heard and seen. The blind see. The lame walk. Those who are dead come back to life. And the gospel is preached to the poor!"

Two nights later Herod came again to the dungeon. "Well, Baptist," he said, "have your friends returned?"

"Yes, Majesty."

"Then you must have decided, John. Will you take back all those things you said and go free? Or will you insist on talking about sin — and die?"

"I must serve God, and do battle against sin. For Jesus — He is God come to earth."

SAW OWN WICKEDNESS

Herod hurried angrily away. He could not look into those good clear eyes a moment longer, for all he saw in them was his own wickedness.

That same night, as it happened, a dinner party was being held in the palace. The tall banquet hall was lit with torches and long tapers. Flutists and drummers and minstrels filled the night with music, and Herod's guests, a hundred or more, ate and drank their fill.

Near the end of the evening as a special entertainment, Salome, daughter of Queen Herodias, danced for the guests. She was young and beautiful, and when she danced before them she wove a spell over all who watched her pale bare feet, her drifting veils and robes.

When she finished, King Herod called her to him.

"Whatever you ask, Salome, I will give it to you," he said, loud enough for the whole table to hear, "though it be half my kingdom."

Salome ran to her mother, the Queen, who smiled in her room.

"Mother, — what shall I ask for?"

Hatred burned in Herodias' eyes. "If you can have anything," she said, "ask for the head of John the Baptist! That man must die now."

Salome ran back to the King.

"Well, Salome?" asked Herod.

"I will wish immediately you give me in a dish the head of John the Baptist."

Herod stared at Salome in horror. He had thought she would ask for gold jewels, white horses and castles — never for such a thing as that! And yet, he had promised, in front of all his guests. Herod was not only wicked, he was a coward. He was afraid to say no.

In a quiet miserable voice, Herod called the executioner.

"Fetch the executioner," he said. "Have him bring us here now the head of John called the Baptist."

The executioner hurried to the prison, and woke John.

"Kneel — and lay your head on that block of wood!"

John knelt, and with one swing of an axe, the executioner cut off his head. He carried the head on a golden dish to Herod.

John's friends rode night and day, till they reached Capernaum, and told the sad news to Jesus.

Alone through the night, Jesus went into the mountains, high over the Sea of Galilee in pray. John had been sent to God to prepare the way for Jesus. Now John's time was over. And Jesus must start His own work, the work of saving a sinful world.

Grocers Want To Sell Beer In Stores

TORONTO (CP)—An organization to promote the sales of beer in Ontario grocery stores has been set up in Toronto.

J. S. L. Daly, said at the inaugural meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association Wednesday night that every grocer in the province would be asked to join the group and sign a petition asking the Ontario government to amend liquor laws to allow beer sales in their stores.

He said midele- and lower-income families are forced to drink in beverage rooms and taverns under present laws. Many preferred to drink at home but did not because brewer's retail stores were often inaccessible and sold only in large quantities.

A government spokesman said Thursday there is not much likelihood legislation changing liquor laws will be submitted.

H. R. McMahon, president of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association, said a survey taken two years ago showed most grocers do not approve of the sale of beer in their stores.

Cubs, Scouts Sponsor Father, Son Banquet

College Hill Sunday school rooms were the scene of a festive occasion on Tuesday evening, when 5th Prince of Wales Cubs and Scouts held their annual father and son banquet, in honor of Lord Baden-Powell founder of the Scout movement.

The tables were decorated in the group colors of brown and yellow with camp scenes and evergreens giving the rooms a scouting atmosphere.

Following the break, the Rev. W. R. Merrick gave the invocation and dads and sons sat down to a most delicious meal prepared by the mothers' auxiliary.

A huge chocolate cake, decorated with yellow and holding 40 yellow candles was the highlight of the head table.

While Skerra Bob Townsend, Eugene Flunder, Rodney Begbie, Bill Burley, Howard Thompson, and Gerald Fraser lit the candles, ADC Phil Allcorn explained that this year is the 40th anniversary of Cubbing and asked the boys to keep their light shining as brightly as the candles on the cake.

Presiding at the head table were, Brown Owl Ruby Vandervoort, ACM Thelma Williams (Bagheera); Scoutmaster Stan McDonald; group committee chairman, Howard Burley; ADC Don Allan; the Rev. W. R. Merrick, ADC Phil Allcorn; S. M. Willis Jackson; D. C. Oliver Owen; ACM Mildred Townsend (Baloo); Cubmaster John Townsend (Akela) and Captain Beverley Faulkner.

The head table guests were introduced by Mr. Burley followed by the boys introducing themselves and their dads.

ADC Allcorn led a rousing singsong, the first song being "A Welcome to Dad" sung by the sons.

S. M. Jackson gave an inspiring message on Scouting and Cubbing, urging the boys to make use of their scouting and to be proud of their uniform.

ADC Allan and ADC Allcorn spoke respectively on Scouting and Cubbing, both stressing the point of duty to God.

D. C. Owen spoke briefly to the boys.

GOING-UP CEREMONY

An impressive 'going-up' ceremony took place with Bob Townsend, Eugene Flunder, Bill Burley, Gerald Fraser, Richard Wilson, Rodney Begbie and Howard Thompson going up to the troop.

Two guests from a sister movement, Brown Owl Vandervoort, Brownie leader, and Captain Faulkner, Guide leader, were present and heartily welcomed.

Mr. Lewis McMullen thanked the ladies for a delicious dinner well prepared and well served.

Mrs. Durrant, president of the Mothers' Auxiliary, responded by saying "the happy faces on both fathers and sons were thanks enough."

Mr. Merrick brought a successful evening to a close.

Women's Study Guild Discusses 'Indian Affairs'

"Indian Affairs" was the subject discussed at the February meeting of the Women's Study Guild, held Monday evening, at the home of Mrs. H. Seldon, Bleecker Avenue.

At the conclusion of the business session, conducted by the president, Mrs. Seldon, the secretary was instructed to write to the Minister of Finance, endorsing the proposed revisions of the Dominion Succession Duty Act.

The devotional service, led by Mrs. Williamson, dealt with the subject of 'Brotherhood' and included the story of the Good Samaritan from the Gospel of St. Luke.

INDIAN AFFAIRS

The topic "Indian Affairs" was presented by Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Orr. Mrs. Hunter described the history of the Indian since the settlement of the white man in Canada, and explained the legislation enacted from 1850 until the present time, with the protection of the Indian.

The 140,000 Indians in Canada fall came to North America from Asia in successive migrations. They are divided into three ethnic groups (comprised of many tribes and bands) the Algonquin, the Iroquois, the Athabascan, and the Sioux. The Iroquois, who are very agricultural, are considered to have had the highest form of culture of all the Indian groups at the time of the coming of the white man.

INDIAN RIGHTS

Today Indian affairs are under the jurisdiction of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration. The Indians who still live on the reservations are not wards of the state, as is commonly believed, and are free to seek employment of their own. While on the reservations, they are exempt from property and income tax, but are subject to federal, provincial and municipal taxes. They retain their ancient hunting and fishing rights and receive treaty money annually, but may not vote. Self-government in band affairs is encouraged and women have equal suffrage in tribal elections. The ultimate goal of the national policy is the integration of the Indian into the Canadian culture and economy.

MODERN PROBLEMS

Mrs. Orr described the problems of the modern Indians. She explained that money realized from the sale of treaty land and the profits of commercial enterprises are placed in a central fund. This money is used for educational projects and welfare work. If he becomes a citizen, the individual Indian receives a per capita share from this fund. The Indians receive family allowances, Old Age Pensions, and the pension for the blind.

The Department of Health and Welfare is responsible for medical care, but the Indian death rate is still extremely high.

Mrs. Orr pointed out that while the average Indian birth-rate is double that of the average of the whole community, the infantile mortality rate is three times that of the national average.

While most tribes enjoy a standard of living comparable to that of the white community, there are many Indians still living in their original primitive state.

Approximately 1,000 Indians a year apply for enfranchisement. Each person has a Christian responsibility toward these people. Their efforts to become participating citizens can only succeed if they are fully accepted by their white neighbors.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Beresford and Mrs. Meades.

Large Audience Thrilled By Distinguished Baritone

(By EUGENE LANG)

A large audience was present in Bridge College auditorium, Monday evening to hear the distinguished baritone, Lawrence Winters, in his initial performance here as the third offering of this season of the Belleville Community Concert Association. Seven as one of today's great baritone voices, Mr. Winters earlier this season made extremely successful appearances at the Royal Opera in Stockholm and at the Stadt Opera in Hamburg. He is the leading baritone of the New York City Opera Company and has an imposing number of major roles to his credit, including such renowned figures as "Rigoletto", Baron Scarpia in "Tosca," Amonasro in "Aida," Dr. Miracles in "Tales of Hoffman" and Tschelis in "Love for Three Oranges." Each name is given an extensive tour of South American countries, where he is recognized as a prime favorite.

Three lovely items from the pen of Handel were chosen for the opening group. The sustained stateliness of "Where'er You Walk" and "Thanks be to Thee" at once brought forth the richness and clarity of Mr. Winters' deep toned voice. The other two Handel arias were used as vehicles to display the flexibility and diversified qualities of the Winters' vocal talents and each was given a generous and appealing warmth and insight.

TWO SCHUBERT SONGS

Two Schubert songs, from some what unfamiliar to the audience, were as adroitly and emotionally sung, as was the three sectioned "Don Quichotte a Dulcinee" of Maurice Ravel. Perhaps it was because all of these compositions are so rarely sung before Belleville audiences that they made such an impact on the listeners. There was a definite unmistakable feeling that sweeps through an audience when the lyrical vein of Schubert is tapped, and it was the tapping by these two unhackneyed numbers that added laurels to Mr. Winters' name a singer.

Two very familiar baritone arias from the standard operatic repertoire were sung with gusto and pathos as Mr. Winters delved into the well known phrases of the "Toreador Song" from Bizets Carmen and the Prologue from "Pagliacci." Although the "Toreador Song" never fails to please and the listeners reacted with enthusiasm after Mr. Winters' artistic singing of it, the Prologue that followed seemed to be more in accord with the singer and his over all presentation of it carried more conviction and understanding than in the earlier aria.

FOUR MODERN NUMBERS

Ample opportunity was available for Mr. Winters to realize the various facets of his voice in the group of songs by modern writers and in the four numbers that he sang he demonstrated his fluency and dramatic outpourings as each number was sung. Regardless of the style of song be it the "Lord Randall" of Cyrill Scott or the "Boatmen's Dance" of Aaron Copland, Mr. Winters infused the right regional hearing in his projection of the selection. Naturally, the song from "Porgy and Bess" (It Ain't Necessarily So) was of such appeal to the listeners that an encore of "I Got Plenty of Nuttin" was given, resulting in outbursts of applause.

In the final group, Mr. Winters relied into the realm of the stage spiritual and here showed such intensity in his singing that even the usual coughing was foregone by the listeners. In the unaccompanied "Steal Away" he ascended into the realm of the vocally and emotionally, and his final whisperings wafted into the upward spaces of the auditorium as though being transported on gossamer wings. Enthralled audiences are hesitant to applaud—hence the silence after this reverential spiritual.

To the renewed applause of those present, Mr. Winters gloriously sang three encores, all of endearing appeal, and again showing positive testimony to the warmth, tonal color, and vibrant range of this great baritone. "Ol' Man River" was delivered with decided fervor and compassion and the children's dreaming of "Sailor Men" was envisaged with little-boy simplicity.

Notes on Health

(Dept. of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa)

For those who need increased quantities of iron in their diet, there should be more emphasis on such iron-rich foods as beef, liver, heart, kidney and brains. Dried fruits including raisins, apricots and prunes should be added to the menu.

There should not be too great a delay in discarding rubbers and overshoes in the spring, since wet or cold feet may lead to chills and colds.

An excessively shy child may lack self confidence or may be suffering from the effects of too strict discipline or too much supervision. His self confidence may be built up by giving him more assurances of his family's approval and affection.

A bowl of hot whole grain cereal makes a welcome addition to the breakfast menu, especially on chilly days. The addition of maple or corn syrup or brown sugar gives variety to the flavor.

English Dialects' History Given at B.P.W. Club

On Monday evening, the monthly dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club of Belleville was held at the YMCA. There was a good attendance despite the fact that many club members are on the sick list.

President Dorothy Rowbotham in charge of the meeting which in the month of February celebrates International Night in the club's federation.

During dinner a club draw was won by Joy Nicholls.

The guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Bunty Hitchon, was introduced to the club by Harriet Stevens. Mrs. Hitchon is a native of Lancashire, and was a teacher of home economics in her home country. She came to Canada after her marriage to Mr. Joseph Hitchon of Belleville. Mrs. Hitchon, an accomplished speaker, and elocutionist, gave a background history for the different dialects and accents to be found in the various counties of England. The speaker then delighted her audience with a number of sketches drawn from life, showing the character and speech of the Cockney, the natives of Lancashire and the people of Cumberland and Northumberland.

Mrs. Helen Aselline thanked Mrs. Hitchon for her entertaining and informative address.

Anna Good spoke on the International Congress of Business and Professional clubs of the world being held in Canada for the first time in Montreal, in July. One of the purposes of the congress is to cultivate international relations. A list of the outstanding women in the International Federation was given along with their attainments and contributions. The speaker stressed the importance of the contributions of all members of clubs everywhere.

A short business meeting was conducted to discuss delegates to the above-mentioned International Congress. Also discussed were plans for a coffee party to be held later in the spring.

Harmony Studio Club Enjoys "Boys Night"

The Harmony Studio club was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. E. Veley, R.M.T., 11 Holloway Street. Mrs. Veley opened the meeting with a cordial welcome to a large number of pupils and parents with the theory being well represented, after which the meeting was turned over to Jim Jones, who was chairman for the evening.

The program took the form of "Boys' Night" with the entire class of boys participating in a fine selection of musical numbers.

NUMBERS RENDERED

The following selections were played by the boys: Terry Willis, "Toy Soldiers" by Thompson; Gary Smith "Bisemboat" by Thompson, "Long Trail" by Thompson; David McDonald, "Bourree" by Bach; Robert Rose, "Dickens and Lennon", by B. Berlin; Stephen Ling, "Air" by Handel; Teddy Romsky, "Sonatina" by M. Clementi; Ross Hunter, "Chorale" by Bach, "Merry-Go-Round" by B. Berlin; Stephen Flindall, "Bourree" by Bach, "Caprice" by Haydn; Laurie Bowbotham, "Clowns" by D. Kabalevsky; John Oliver, "Sonatina" by Beethoven; Grant Hancock, "Entree" by Mozart; Wayne Flindall, "Waltz" by Grieg; Roger Ling, "Peasant Dance" by Beethoven; Richard Rowbotham, "Moonlight Sonata" (1st movement), by Beethoven.

During the evening, the following boys played studies: John Oliver, "Study No. 6" by Czerny; Laurie Bowbotham, "Study No. 4" by Streabog; Roger Ling, "Study No. 8" by Czerny.

Marilyn Jones, who is preparing grade eight examination work, played the following selections "Gavotte and Musette" by Bach "Sonatina" by Kuhlau.

A duet was also played by Mrs. E. Veley and Miss Grace Veley, "Peer Gynt Peasant Dance" by Von Sippe.

Mrs. Veley spoke briefly to the fathers on the importance of their boys studying music.

Richard Rowbotham, who attended the World Boy Scout Jamboree of 1955 at Niagara-on-the-Lake, gave a most interesting talk about his trip. He showed a large number of badges and souvenirs which he had brought back from the jamboree.

Refreshments brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

St. Joseph's C.W.L. Plans Spring Tea

The regular monthly meeting of St. Joseph's CWL was held Monday evening in the school hall with 23 members in attendance and the president, Mrs. H. Carr, presiding.

Father Buckley opened the meeting with prayer by the "Question Box" series.

The business meeting followed with the reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report. The corresponding secretary reported on correspondence of the last month, while the 1st vice stated 6 subscriptions of 66 members and distributed to all present a membership list in preparation for nominations at the March meeting.

The second vice told of the progress of the Brownie Pack and read a thank-you note received from the Madonna House at Combermere for the dolls which the Brownies had dressed at Christmas time. It was decided that a donation be sent to Our Lady's missionaries.

A letter of thanks was read by the third vice from Madonna House at Combermere, for the clothing sent to their clothing bale, which is always appreciated. The spiritual convener thanked all for the success of the recent communion breakfast and reminded members of a retreat to be held in Kingston the weekend of June 29th.

The hospital visitor, Mrs. K. Hopkins and Mrs. M. Pauling, reported 118 visits made during February.

The marathon brought convened by Mrs. T. Kelly is progressing well.

Mrs. T. Black who is in charge of the apron project, stated that to date the returns have been most gratifying.

A review of the regional meeting held last Sunday in Holy Rosary hall was given by Mrs. R. Chipman. Plans for the "Spring Tea and Bazaar" in April, were discussed and Mrs. Black offered to assist anyone who is making articles for the home sewing table.

After the meeting adjourned and was served by Mrs. G. Williams and committee.

Look for the College of General Practice of Canada certificate on your family doctor's wall. It signifies that he is still as devoted to medical knowledge as when he was a medical student. Ask him. It certifies that he is still keeping up with his studies.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU CAN DO THIS IF YOU WANT TO ENOUGH

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 19, have been married one year and couldn't be more unhappy.

Like most girls of 18, I thought the only thing I wanted was to get married. Dick coaxed me to wait until he could afford to marry, but I was sure everything would be fine, just so we were together. I intended to keep on working after we were married, but I got pregnant right away and was, and still am, unable to work.

The worst part of the whole thing is that Dick is dissatisfied with everything and blames me for keeping him from his plans for college and a bright future. Sadly enough, he is right, and I have to admit I was wrong to insist on marrying when we did. It is too late, though, to be sorry now. Sometimes I feel as though Dick hates me, though he doesn't mistreat me.

Oh, how I wish I were single and carefree again! Though I love my baby very much, he is never-the-less a detriment, because I can't very well keep my husband and otherwise I could. I can't ask my family to take the baby, even though they would be willing.

If this letter from a young girl from making the mistake I did, it will not have been written in vain. I hope you will come up with some advice that will help other girls who may be of the notion that marriage is the answer to everything. Here is one foolish girl who knows it is not. — Betty J.

Dear Betty J.:

Sad as your situation is right now, and however great a mistake it was to marry so young, and before your husband had a chance to carry out his college plans and prepare for married life, I still don't think you should give up in despair and feel about having your husband. The way to handle a mistake, however bad, is not to run away and leave it, but to use all of the intelligence and determination you have to "work" your out a way to put things right. Do you want to rush out of marriage as impulsively as you rushed into it? Haven't you learned anything?

Have you ever considered the possibility that perhaps Dick might still have a college education?

If you know anything about college campuses today, you must be aware that many a married couple—even, sometimes, with a child or children—is getting a delayed education. I realize that G.I.'s have financial help from the government, which I assume your husband doesn't have, but even so, the whole idea should not be ruled out just because of that. Obviously, I have no way of knowing what the financial circumstances may be with either your family or his. But I venture to say that if the two of you put your heads together, you could start all over again and see that he got through college even now.

His family might be able and willing to contribute something toward this and so might yours. He might be able to get a scholarship, also take a part-time job to earn some money. You say you are physically unable to work at this time, but somehow I have a feeling that a good deal of your disability may be due to your emotional state, and that if you had a vital project in view which might bring your whole life back to happiness, you might find your health miraculously improved.

Moreover, if you were to get the practical aspects of the prospect somewhat worked out before you presented the idea to your husband, so that he would see how much you want him to have the education on which his heart was set, it might really be possible that new happiness would begin sooner than you think. It isn't as though nothing like this had ever been done before. You won't be blazing any trails if you decide to meet this challenging opportunity with courage and a definite program. All you'll be doing is to follow in the footsteps of many young couples who have done this before you—yes, some of them even with a child.

For goodness sakes, Betty, don't admit you are licked! Take this "mistake" of yours and turn it to the finest thing any girl could have in life — a successful marriage. You can do it if you want to enough.

BEAUTY

MARCH WINDS BLOW—PRETTY SLIPS SHOW

March winds hold no terror for the girl whose undies are a symphony of up-to-date loveliness.

Roaring like a lion or gentle as a lamb? As of this writing, we can't say just how this first day of March is going to be in. But one thing's certain: The proverbial March winds will be with us on many a day before the month is over. And, confidentially, most beauty-conscious damsels are glad for how else could they show off the dainty frills which contribute to their undercover loveliness.

Actually, lingerie colors much so pretty to hide are responsible for the look of secret vanity on the face of the girl in this spring's dress or suit. Color-matched lingerie was once limited to white, pink, misty blue or black. Now there is a kaleidoscopic difference: a bouquet of hues to choose from, each available in every garment—even garter belt or girdle.

Newest colors are in the beige family—everything from p a l e beige (called blonde) through the buttery tones of brown. Lingerie garments are nylon, although one fabric combination may be silk—perhaps a toast-colored and lace-encrusted sheath petticoat. All are as washable as your sturdy white nylons, of course.

A tip for the lucky girl with the tawny lingerie ensemble: when the warm color is dull, revitalize it by dipping in an appropriately strong or weak tea solution.

An old favorite made new again is blue, now clearer and more vibrant but still pastel. Use as echo of incredible Caribbean. Those who love color, and care not for its neutrality, may choose yellow (from rich cream to daffodil) or red (ply under a navy suit). Plaid is present, too, from pale, clear baby pink to apricot to salmon.

Whatever your spring lingerie color, remember the maxim for keeping nylon colors intact: wash each only with its own—and never, wash white with even the palest pastels. And do follow the old rule with your newest colors: wash everything after each wearing.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SHE SHOULD GROW UP SOCIALLY

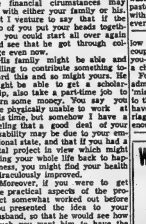
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine gave a cocktail party last Saturday, and, although I don't drink alcoholic beverages, I accepted her invitation to come, because I thought it would be pleasant to see and chat with some of the people I knew would be at the party. However, I was a bit nonplussed when the trays were passed with a choice of three kinds of alcoholic drinks, two kinds of cocktails and a highball. Of course I had to refuse these. I felt very awkward not having even a glass of orange juice or tomato juice to hold, and after a while everyone seemed to gather in groups that didn't include me. I suppose it is not sensible of me to make an effort to go to cocktail parties, since I am a non-drinker. What do you think? — R.B.

What do I think? I think you're being very immature. And I think you should grow up socially and develop a pleasant savoir faire and poise. There is no reason for your not going to a cocktail party and having a good time . . . today many people, for any number of reasons, don't drink alcoholic beverages, but they don't let this keep them from having a good time. I certainly grant that your hostess was definitely at fault in not offering a non-alcoholic beverage to you and any other guests who might have preferred it . . . today this omission is inexcusable procedure for a hostess. However, your stern-sounding "Of course I had to refuse these" gives me the impression that you may have "refused with a set" righteous manner of disapproval, rather than in an attractively gracious: "No, thank you."

DOES TABLE-SHARING MEAN CONVERSATION - SHARING?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:



In a crowded restaurant (particularly at lunch time) when the head-waitress or hostess seats you at a table with a stranger, should you make an effort to talk? I feel awkward sitting with strangers and not talking, but sometimes one doesn't know whether or not they want to carry on conversation. What is the proper thing to do? — Wondering

Experience and sensitiveness-to-other-people are your b e s t guides here. As an always-safe rule it is best not to try to start a conversation with the other person . . . she may wish to relax while lunching, or she may be too hurried to wish to make any effort to talk, or she may just not be a le-

Split Nails A Problem?

A weekly manicure protects brittle nails. Another aid in strengthening them is a special cream that contains iodine.

By JEANNE D'ARCY

"How can I get my fingernails to grow?" is a request a reader, "Mine stay short because they're continually splitting."

It's a common problem, but it can be solved.

A SPECIAL CREAM

One thing this reader might do is to use a special cream designed just for such nails. It contains (cholesterol) lanolin, white iodine and natural oils. Massage it into the nail tips and sides. It absorbs quickly and can be applied while polish is on. For best results, use it daily.

It's also a wise idea to get down to the cause of the condition.

Split nails can result from abuses to the nail plate which cause it to layers to split apart. With this in mind, don't use fingernails as tools to open containers, and don't hit your nail edge against hard surface. It's wiser to use your fingertips rather than your nails for grasping or opening objects.

A DIET DEFICIENCY

Sometimes nail brittleness is the result of diet deficiency. If you think this might be your trouble, check with your doctor. It can also be caused by constant use of water and harsh cleaning agents in housework.

In addition to using the special nail cream, remember that polish protects your nails. Give yourself a manicure once a week, using a base coat, two applications of polish and a top coat. Put them all together and they add up to four layers of protective coloring and covering.

Could you give me a few recipes for tarts that do not have cocanut in. . . also recipe for an uncooked cookie containing cocanut and chocolate chips . . . white chip fon cake for 9-inch pan.—Mrs. Pem. S.

ANSWER:

Did you see Elva's Butter Tarts in this column last Monday?

GRACE'S BUTTER TARTS

Pastry: 2 cups all-purpose flour, 1 cup shortening, 1-4 tea spoon salt, 3 or 4 tablespoons water. Cut shortening into flour and salt with pastry blender until crumbs are size of rice. Mix water in with fork. Turn dough out on board and knead until mixed and soft. Roll out on floured board until very thin. Cover tartins well. Cut pastry out to fit them.

Filling—1-3 cup butter (or margarine), 1 cup brown sugar (packed), 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 cup raisins, 1 beaten egg. 1-2 cup chopped walnut meats, 1-2 cup fine cocoanut (in your case use 1 cup walnuts and omit cocoanut), 1 teaspoon vanilla, raspberry or strawberry jam. Put 1-4 teaspoon jam in bottom of each tart shell. Beat egg with beater, add sugar and milk and continue beating. Add softened but not melted shortening, then raisins which should have been soaked in hot water 2 minutes and drained and dried, walnuts, cocoanut and vanilla. Mix well. Spoon over jam, half filling shells. Bake at 400 deg. F.ahr. in top part of hot oven or reduce heat (20 min. in all).

The following may be the recipe you want for unbaked cookies

VANILLA CHIP QUICKIES

Two cups white sugar, 1-2 cup butter or margarine, 1-2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Bring those ingredients slowly to boil in heavy saucepan and let boil 1-3 minute. Remove from heat and add quickly, 1 1-4 cups fine cocoanut, 1-3 cup chopped walnuts, 1-4 cup chocolate chips, 2 3-4 cups slightly crushed cornflakes. Mix well, drop by teaspoons on waxed paper to set.

CHIFFON CAKE (9-inch pan)

Sift cake flour and measure 1 1-8 cups into sifter over mixing bowl and add 3-4 cup sugar, 1 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt and then sift these dry ingredients through sifter into bowl. Make a well in them and add in this order 1-4 cup salad oil, 2 large egg yolks, 3-8 cup cold water, 1 teaspoon each vanilla and grated lemon rind. Beat with spoon until smooth. Measure into another large mixing bowl 1-2 cup (4) egg whites and 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar and beat until they form very stiff peaks. This beating is very important. Then slowly pour egg yolk mixture over whipped white eggs, gently folding with rubber scraper until just blended. Pour into ungreased 9-inch tube pan and bake at 325 deg. F.ahr. for 50 or 55 minutes. When cake tests done, invert and let hang until cold.

MADOC-ELDORADO I.M.C.

ELDORADO — The Madoc and Eldorado Ladies' Home Mission held its first sewing class at the home of Mrs. Wager, Madoc, on Friday afternoon with nine ladies present.

The president, Mrs. Howard, opened the class with a few verses taken from the 58th chapter of Isaiah and prayer by Mrs. Fox.

Sewing for a needy family was the order of the afternoon, with a nice lot accomplished.

Anyone wishing to donate to this worthy cause in any way kindly contact any of the committee, Mrs. Roy Wanamaker and Mrs. Wager of Madoc, or Mrs. Stobbart or Mrs. C. D. McCann, of Eldorado.

Next meeting to be held the third Friday afternoon in March, at the home of Mrs. C. D. McCann, Eldorado.

COMMONS TALKS

"No one in the House had any intention to read for classified information," he said.

COUNCIL MENTION

At the Commons opening, before the committee debate arose, Prime Minister St. Laurent said the government now is giving consideration to establishment of a Canada Council.

He was replying to Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) who asked whether Mr. St. Laurent had reconsidered his Jan. 12 statement to the House that the government planned no legislation to establish the council this session "unless the situation changes very materially."

Mr. St. Laurent said last session the government has accepted the principle of the council, recommended in the 1951 Massey royal commission report on Canadian culture.

INTRODUCED RESOLUTION

Mr. Howe's parliamentary assistant, John Dickey, introduced the resolution to set up the Commons research committee. Federal expenditures of $70,000,000 a year put Canada's non-military research in favorable comparison with that of any other country's, he said.

As for industrial research it could really develop only as industry itself realized its importance.

If atomic radiation in the atmosphere reached a dangerous level it would be too late to worry about the problem.

Mr. Howe said the government might consider the Conservative amendment if it were changed to provide that only persons not in government service and papers not in the government's possession were summoned.

The opposition did not take up the suggestion.

JORDAN'S GOVT.

There was no immediate word how Glubb's dismissal would affect the nearly £8,000,000 which Britain pays Jordan annually for support of the legion. The subsidy constitutes more than half of the Amman government's budget.

AFTER 30 YEARS

The dismissal ended 30 years of Middle East service for the tough, wiry little soldier who learned the ways of the Arabs on camelback and around desert campfires.

The announcement said Glubb will be succeeded by Maj.-Gen. Radi Dunabi. To meet further the opposition demands that the army be "Arabized," Hussein also dismissed two senior British officers who had been serving with Glubb.

Explaining his action, the king said in a radio speech that "to serve our country certain alterations were found necessary."

JUDGMENT RESERVED

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Appeal Court Tuesday reserved judgment on a new trial plea for Joseph Levionnois, 38, convicted of murder and scheduled to be hanged April 12. Levionnois was sentenced last month for the 1954 stabbing of Pearl Hoy.

Mrs. Alex. McCurdy and Kenneth spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Holland, of Stirling.

Mr. H. R. Burke was a dinner guest on Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson of Anson.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hollinger of Madoc Junction, were Thursday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fitchett.

District No. 3 of I.O.L., Central Hastings, held a special meeting on Monday evening in the lodge room of L.O.L. No. 300, West Huntingdon. Deputy District Master Earl Wallace presided. Special guests for the evening were: Past Grand Master of Ontario East, Fred Bateman and County Master Don Rodgers.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They burn and ache—blame it on "nerves"—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system, disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well and feel tired, Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better. 136

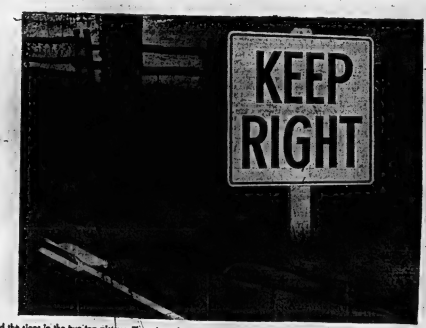
SHELL BETTER DRIVING QUIZ NO. 4



Can you read these signs at arm's length?

...and these signs at 20 feet?*

*First, hold this page out at arm's length and see if you can read the signs in the two top pictures. Then place the page in an upright position and see if you can read the signs in the two lower pictures from 20 feet away. If you can pass none—or just one—of these tests, see your vision specialist immediately.

If not, HAVE YOUR EYES EXAMINED BEFORE YOU DRIVE

Like every good neighbor in the community, the Shell Oil Company is interested in your driving safety. That's why we're glad to see new roads, and to see automobile manufacturers building extra safety into today's new cars. But the spot where there's greatest room for improvement is in the driver's seat. Better driver attitudes will make our roads and highways safer for you . . . for everybody. If this test helps you think a little more about safe-and-sane driving, it will have done what the Shell people set out to do. Tear out this page and try it on your teen-agers, too. Shell—your sign of a better future on the road—suggests that you and all motorists drive safely now . . . and in the future.

Sunday School Lesson

Economics of Palm Sunday

BY ROY L. SMITH

Our modern observance of Palm Sunday would seem very strange to those first celebrants who marched in upon the city of Jerusalem waving their palm branches, and hailing Jesus as the son of David and their deliverer.

RESTORED COMMONWEALTH

In the year 538 B.C. Cyrus, king of Persia, authorized the return of the Jews to their homeland after their Babylonian exile, and appointed Zerubbabel (the last descendant of David) to head the civil government and Joshua (grandson of the last high priest in Jerusalem) to head the religious affairs. Within the space of a very short time the priest had eclipsed the king in popular favor, and was in complete control.

The Uniform Sunday school lesson for March 4: "Jesus Faces the City," Luke 19:28 -20:47.

As a consequence, the tax laws were so arranged that the priests and Levites were relieved of all tax responsibility, which meant that the burden fell upon the farmers, shopkeepers and working classes. Because the Galileans of Jesus' day lived far from the Temple, and had no representation in the Temple system, they became the chief sufferers.

RADICALISM OF GALILEE

Inside Galilee there was a passionate devotion to the past, insofar in large part by the belief that the old Davidic line could be restored the tax burden would be lightened. A variety of causes contributed to the inflammation of sentiment against Rome and resentment under the exploitation of the Temple hierarchy. The result was that Galilee seethed with revolt throughout all of Jesus' lifetime.

When Jesus was a lad about ten years of age, a great uprising occurred, inspired by the resentment of high taxes, and many thousands of Galilean farmers and shepherds seized their arms in an effort to throw off all foreign domination. It ended in a fiasco with hundreds being crucified, but inasmuch as the battle was fought no more than a few miles north of Nazareth it could not have failed to make a deep impression on the mind of an impressionable boy.

HOPES OF GALILEANS

Jesus was known throughout Galilee as one who had been born of the House of David, and the moment He began to come into the limelight it was inevitable that the nationalistic hopes of the farmers and shepherds should have been attracted to Him. It was easy to see that, as a Leader of Men, He might have made an extremely effective Leader of a new revolt. The miracles He was reputed to perform would have added greatly to His prestige as a revolutionist.

When the Galileans, on their way to the feast, discovered Jesus in their midst, they immediately leaped to the conclusion He was on His way to Jerusalem, there to raise the standard of revolt with the hope of displacing the Romans and setting up the new government, at the same time delivering the people from their tax burden.

The Gospels presents accompanied Jesus into the city as though they were escorting a King, as they believed they were. There was wild excitement when He drove the grafters out of the Temple, but when He did not raise the standard of revolt their interest waned, and they decided that He was either an impostor or a coward, and therefore deserted Him.

There is no explanation of the Palm Sunday experience which leaves out of consideration the question of taxes.

Women Worry too Much About Having Picture Taken

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

TORONTO (CP) — Montreal's Gabriel Desmarais, who has photographed such notables as Eleanor Roosevelt and actress Michelle Morgan, says he averages women worries too much about having her picture taken.

Men usually step into a studio, get it over with and step out.

"But women worry about their hair, worry about their dress and worry about their make-up," said young Mr. Desmarais. Here to photograph CBC personalities, the slight-built photographer, who said he is better known as "Gaby" took time out to pass a few words of advice to women.

SHOULD BE CASUAL

"If they would approach the idea casually instead of making it a life-and-death matter, their pictures would turn out better," Gaby said. "After all, the worst that can happen if the picture isn't good is to have it taken over again."

A former bank teller, Gaby turned to photography when sales of pictures he took in his spare time topped his regular salary. Having twice travelled through Europe, where he also photographed Anthony Eden, Gaby said if women must worry they should do so before they set foot in a photographer's studio.

They should have their hair done several days before their picture appointment. Done on the same day it looked too artificial.

Clothing in solid, dark shades is most complimentary. Light shades detract from a woman's skin tone, and since each shade produces a different tone, too many colors could destroy a picture's unity. Styles should be simple.

"A picture stops everything dead in its tracks," said Gaby. "In real life you may be able to overshadow a flashy outfit with your lively charm but reduced to black-and-white, a flashy ensemble may give you more competition than you can take."

SMALL JEWELRY BEST

Without the saving grace of motion chunky jewelry looked vulgar. For a photograph, jewelry should be kept small. But, said Gaby, jewelry need not be expensive.

"In a photograph a dime-store stone looks as good as one that's expensive."

Make-up should be kept to a minimum: In fact, the only beauty aid Gaby said he likes a model to wear is lipstick.

"And please ladies, don't try to be the photographer adviser," Gaby urged. "When a woman says 'I think this is my most photogenic side,' or 'my mouth is my best feature,' it can infuriate a photographer.

"If he's worth his title a photographer will have his own ideas about what the best features are and what should be done with them."

"IT'S TOO LATE TO PLACE INSURANCE AFTER THE FIRE"
22 HEAD OF CATTLE, HOGS, HENS BURNED In Sidney Twp. Blaze
Loss estimated at over $13,000 was caused early today when the large frame barn owned by a Sidney township farmer, was completely destroyed by fire along with stock, hay grain and implements.
Twenty-two head of cattle including ten milch cows, 38 hogs, five brood sows and 122 hens were lost in the blaze.
Also destroyed were farm implements including seed drill, hay loader, cultivator, mower and binder.
The farm tractor, which was in another building, was about the only implement not burned.
The fire is believed to have started shortly after 4 o'clock when it was discovered by a motorist who was passing at the time. The motorist awakened the farmer, but it was too late to save any of the trapped animals.
The Belleville fire department was called out but nothing could be done to save the building. No other buildings were endangered.
This loss was partly covered by insurance.

Rare, Medium, Well-Done

CORNWALL TONIGHT

Cornwall Colts will assist the TPT's in the gravesidе rites at Memorial Arena tonight in the final game of the schedule as far as the locomen are concerned. The Colts retire this to their road schedule in what might be a finals preview against the Whitby Dunlops in Blairville on Saturday evening. They wind the thing up Sunday at home against Kingston.

And so comes the end of a somewhat thorny trail for the TPT's. They did not have what it takes either offensively or defensively, but in all fairness to them they were jinxed practically ninety per cent of the season by injury and sickness.

They had a good potential, as good as the most of the clubs but inconsistency was another of their trails. They came up with some brilliant efforts on occasions, especially in the game when they handed the topflight Whitby Dunlops one of their rare defeats.

Maybe they were too trustling. Their representatives sat in on pre-season meetings and heard those of other clubs, their halos scintillating, swear by all the gods they were going to minimize operational costs this year, especially player salaries—play home-brews, etc.

Some of the flying saucers allegedly seen around Kingston early in the year, could have been none other than those discarded halos which wept by the board as soon as the meetings were over, their owners apparently rushing to scour the countryside for topflight players and to hell with the cost. Some of them regretted this move later.

However, it is all water under the hockey bridge now. The playoffs are in the offing, seven-game affairs, perhaps, which will prove beyond a doubt which clubs are the "chips-down" aggregations.

It is a new league from here in. The amazing records of the league-winning Whitby Dunlops can be forgotten for the moment. They don't mean a thing, outside of honor and glory, the statistician and backroom prognosticators. Whitby, Kingston, Cornwall and Brockville start from scratch and the dirtl take the hindmost.

The Whitby "Nashua" is rated the heavy favorite in some quarters to carry off the championship stakes. Some observers state there are no "5-year" or "Social Outcasts" in the various stables of the group. Nashua never won a race until he flashed under the wire ahead of the pack. Hockey games are not won by crystal balls, or statistical records. Whoever is ahead when that final whistle shrills is usually adjudged the winner.

Meanwhile the "limb-trawling" championship rests between those two swaying of the crystal globes: Michael J. Rodden, Kingston and Dave Stevenson, Belleville. Michael J. has aligned himself solidly behind the Blairville shock troops and unhesitatingly calls them to take quivering in strict. Devid, unabashed by the imposing record of the Whitby Goliaths shows his verbal sword in favor of the Cornwall Colts to gobble the group gravy.

Assuming the Dunlops take the Brockville Magedomas in their stride as is predicted in some quarters, although Cap'n Blair might well look out for sudden squalls in this storm, the dilly-dally of the semi-finals should be the series between the Colts and the Goodyears.

The Colts have shown themselves to be a consistent club in both victory and defeat. The Goodyears, if they live up to previous season records are a "money" team. Kingston has won six of their last seven starts, Cornwall won five, and tied one in seven. Cornwall tied Whitby 5-5. The Dunnies edged Kingston 6-5.

Both teams have plenty of scoring potential. And neither club can afford to slacken effort because both have playoff opportunists. From here it looks like the cream of the semi-finals crop, with, as is the case in most playoffs, the club winning the first game on foreign ice having a big advantage.

Brockville and Whitby start their bracket in Whitby, March 7, with the second game at Brockville March 9. Cornwall and Kingston open their duel at Kingston March 9 with the second tilt at Cornwall, March 11. The teams will play two Sunday games in Cornwall, March 11—and 18 if necessary. And something tells us this clash will go the full route.

The winners? Not having agreed with Michael J. Rodden all season, we can see no reason to start now, even if the hockey hatchet is buried for the year. - Cornwall by a nose.

Faltering Beantowners Miss Chance to Overhaul Toronto; Hall Chalks Up 11th Shutout

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

What a time for Boston Bruins to falter! A few days ago they were in a nice spot in their drive to grab a Stanley Cup playoff berth. Now they're in trouble.

The Bruins were shut out 3-0 by Detroit Red Wings in Thursday night's lone National Hockey League engagement. They lost temporarily anyway—a big chance to overhaul Toronto Maple Leafs for the fourth and last playoff spot.

The setback, third straight for Boston, left Bruins four points behind Leafs. Each team has seven games to play in the regular 70-game schedule.

The victory boosted Detroit back into second place with 64 points, one ahead of New York Rangers and 18 fewer than the leading Montreal Canadiens. It also moved Wings into the playoffs for the 14th straight season, tied for consecutive playoff series in the league record.

SCORED THE TWO

Delaneenan Red Kelly and Marty Pavelich scored the two goals in the third period. Glenn Hall, Detroit's No. 1 candidate for rookie-of-the-year honors, was sensational as he registered his 11th shutout, one off the club record set by Terry Sawchuk, who was traded to Boston at the start of this season. Sawchuk made 26 saves.

A crowd of 8,099 fans at Boston Garden applauded Hall several times as he held the Bruins at bay.

A 30-foot screened shot by Kelly at 13:31 of the third period beat Sawchuk after he had made successive saves on Pavelich, Johnny Bucyk and Leo Labine. Pavelich fired the second goal at 15:52 as he went in alone on Sawchuk.

Court Injunction Paves Way For Santee Return to Track

NEW YORK (AP)—Wes Santee, America's controversial miler, returns to competition Saturday night at Madison Square Garden with the blessing of a state Supreme Court justice and the approval of the Knights of Columbus track officials.

A court injunction signed Thursday by Justice James McNally and followed several hours later by a statement from K. of C. meet director Tom Fitzgerald paved the way for the return of the 24-year-old marine lieutenant.

Santee, America's fastest miler at 4:00.5 and this country's chief Olympic hope in the Melbourne Olympics, was handed a life time suspension Feb. 19 by the Amateur Athletic Union's executive committee.

The AAU action came after a special investigating committee reported the former University of Kansas runner had taken monies above allowable expenses for a number of meets in 1955, including three in California.

At Easton, Pa., where he is on duty with the marine corps, Santee said "I've been training for it (the mile)." Santee said he had been working out, despite the AAU ban.

Charles P. Grimes, Santee's attorney who sought the temporary injunction, said Wes would arrive in New York today. Justice McNally set March 9 as the date for the hearing on the injunction. Upon that decision likely will determine whether Santee will be permitted to run in meets at Cleveland, Chicago and Milwaukee later this month.

Thursday's action set the stage for a return engagement between Santee and Ron Delany, an Irishman from Villanova who has ruled the mile roost this season. In their only previous meeting, at Boston Jan. 28, Delany won in 4:06.3 as Santee faded to fourth after following a blazing early pace. Wes was clocked in 4:08.8.

The AAU had no immediate comment on the K. of C. decision to abide by an invitation, which its statement said was extended to Santee on Jan. 19 and later accepted by the runner.

But after the injunction was signed, secretary - treasurer Dan Ferris said:

"Now that the injunction has been granted, maybe he people involved will have enough sense to do the right thing."

The day following Santee's suspension and after Grimes had warned of his plans for an injunction, Ferris warned meet promoters that Santee's entry in a meet—even with an injunction—would not be accepted. At the same time Ferris advised meet directors they would face loss of AAU sanction "forever" if they permitted the Kansan to compete and that any athlete participating in a meet with Santee would jeopardize his amateur standing. The AAU rules forbid an amateur to compete against professionals.

War Drums Rumble

Canadian Grid Moguls Reject National League Peace Offer

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO (CP)—A state of undeclared war between Canadian and American professional football clubs still exists. And there's not much hope held out for an early settlement of the player-raiding feud.

A peace offering tossed out Feb. 15 by Bert Bell, commissioner of the National Football League in the U.S. and interpreted by Canadian officials to favor American clubs, was rejected Thursday by the Canadian Football Council, the NFL's counterpart this side of the border.

The CFC simply said no to the key item of the American plan for peace and signing of a formal no-raiding contract—self-discipline involving about a dozen players, six from each side, who flouted contracts or options and jumped from one country to the other.

The council, representative of the nine pro clubs in the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union, came up with a one-point counter-proposal that in effect said Canadian teams would respect contracts and options of NFL teams and "the option recognized will be one only for the calendar year following the season the player played under contract."

The CFC was willing to let bygones be bygones in cases of contract jumpers from both the NFL and Canadian teams and start from scratch.

Chairman Ralph Cooper of Hamilton, who acted as spokesman following the day-long closed meeting, said "it might take a couple of years but we'll sweat everything straightened out" with the NFL.

Dealing with subjects closer to home, Cooper said the CFC discussed certain phases of the Grey Cup semi-final and final, an interlocking schedule between the Big Four and Western Conference, player rosters and uniform player contracts.

The council favored rotating the Grey Cup classic between East and West. It also suggested that the Canadian Rugby Union should review the eup final ticket distribution and consider the possibility of an increase in Grey Cup ticket prices. Last year, in Vancouver, the top price was $7.50, the highest in the 1-year history of the game.

Cooper said also that a four-man committee headed by Leo Dandenault of Montreal, would study the question of resuming the Grey Cup semi-final with the Ontario Rugby Football Union champion taking part.

Last year the ORFU dropped out of cup competition after union officials declared it would be for 1955 only. But it may be tough for ORFU clubs to get back in playing for the prized trophy.

It was learned Thursday that western delegates would press for an amendment to the CRU constitution which would eliminate the 15-year-old union from playing in the semi-finals until its teams become comparable in strength to the powerful Big Four and WIFU clubs.

Tentative interlocking schedules between the Big Four and WIFU for 1957 have been given to a five-man committee for study.

The committee set up to investigate the possibility of intersectional games in 1957 is headed by Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton.

Cooper said the council would recommend to the CRU that the Big Four and WIFU extend player rosters to 50 from 45 and that uniform player contracts would be in effect in 1957.

"Peahead" Refuses to Sign "Ike" Not Tough Enough for Canada

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Reporter Dick Bayer of the Charlotte News, a newcomer to the South, ventured out Saturday afternoon through Wednesday to get a man-in-the street reaction to President Eisenhower's decision to run again.

He happened upon a bulky, florid-faced man named Dewitte Clyde (Peahead) Walker, a big man in Montreal football today, a former coach at Wake Forest and Elon colleges, and an assistant coach at Yale.

But reporter Bayer knew nothing of Walker's background, and at that moment the coach of Montreal Alouettes knew nothing about Ike's decision.

"What do you think of Ike's statement?" Bayer asked.

Walker, thinking the young man had information about a husky named blinked, decided to place the youngster in his memory. He supposed that he surmised it must be some scheme of the sports department.

"How much does he weigh?" asked Walker.

It was Bayer's turn to blink.

"He weighs about 128," said the reporter. "But are you glad he can run?"

"Is he a couldn't run," responded Walker, "I wouldn't have him. What would I do with a guy who couldn't run and weighed 128? Anyway if he's got to be plenty fast to even get out."

"He's been the people's choice for four years," Bayer observed.

"What I want to know," urged Walker, "is can he take it? I like 'em rough and tough."

Replied Bayer: "He's good as an earlier the heart attack."

"Heart attack!" exploded Walker. "Boy, you sure this guy is a prospect? I kill 'em off about complaining about a broken neck. Up in Canada they grow 'em tough. What does he make?"

"I'd say he makes about $75,000 per year," replied Bayer, beginning to wonder about this man-in-the-street veteer.

"Seventy-five a year," snorted Peahead. "Boy, I can get an entire team of big, strong waterboys for that kind of money. You go tell this Ike to keep his job."

They Play it Rough Out Kamloop Way

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—Kevin Conway, coach of Kamloops Elks of the Okanagan Senior Hockey League, said Thursday night he will not lea a team for the OHA semi-final in Vernon Friday night if referee Bill Nellson is officiating. Vernon Canadians and Elks are tied 1-1 in the best-of-seven series.

Two women were injured in a brawl which broke out near the end of the Wednesday night game. One fan described it as "a general riot." Kamloops, who finished last in the league, beat the champion Canadians 6-4 before 1,400 fans.

HITS OFFICIATING

Conway, criticizing the referee-ing, said he was "ashamed" of the game for attempting to injure a player. As he left the ice, a fan—one of the spectators began to fight with some of the Vernon players.

"Until the last two games against Vernon, I thought that no player would deliberately hit another with a stick after the latter had dropped-his. I saw it Monday night when Vernon defenceman Orvall Lavell hit Buddy Evans across the face with his stick after Buddy had dropped his.

"And I saw it last night when Art Hart clubbed Don Busch. No sport is worth losing an eye or getting injured for life and I'm not sending my boys out to take that chance. . . ."

Hart, 20-year-old Vernon left winger, was expelled from the game for attempting to injure a player. As he left the ice, a fan—one of the spectators began to fight with some of the Vernon players.

Junior Series Extended to Best-of-Seven

TORONTO (CP) — Junior A quarter-finals between Barrie Flyers and Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks has been extended from a best-of-five to a best-of-seven series, the Ontario Hockey Association announced Thursday.

Secretary-manager Bill Hanley said the change would allow Flyers and Canucks to finish at the same time Guelph Biltmores and Toronto St. Michael's Majors wind up their quarter-finals.

While Flyers and Canucks have played two of their games, the best-of-five series would not be finished until a week from next Wednesday because of difficulty in getting the line at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Extension of the Kitchener-Barrie series was preferable to leaving the teams idle while waiting for Guelph and St. Mike's.

The best-of-seven semi-final series between St. Catharines Teepees and Toronto Marlboros was unchanged.

Redmen Rally To Nip Laval

QUEBEC (CP)—McGill Redmen spoiled Laval two goals and came from behind for a 6-4 intercollegiate hockey victory Saturday night.

The victory kept McGill's hopes alive of winding up in second place in final standings. The two teams meet again in Montreal Saturday.

Leo Konyk led the McGill attack with two goals but scoring honors for the game went to Pierre Raymond of Laval, who scored three of his team's goals.

Calvert helps build a living Canadian theatre

CASTING. . . for the director, this is a time of decision. For the players, a time of tension as they wait to learn in which role each is cast.

This is Canadian Theatre . . . a living theatre, a cultural force growing in strength as groups such as this give their time and talent to the production of plays.

Their work is rewarded, not in dollars and cents, but rather by a sense of creative accomplishment, by the appreciation of their audience, and perhaps—if their production is of outstanding excellence—by the award of one of the famous Calvert Trophies. Calvert Distillers Limited is proud to sponsor the Dominion Drama Festival — the world's only national movement of its kind—and through it, to play a part in encouraging this truly Canadian cultural achievement.

Each year, all across Canada, theatre groups compete for Calvert Regional Trophies and cash awards in thirteen Regional Drama Festivals. From all these groups, chosen by adjudication, eight are then selected to compete in the Dominion Drama Festival Finals for the main Calvert Trophy and the Calvert $1,000 Cash Award. The Dominion Drama Festival, founded in 1932, has been hailed by the Massey Commission Report as "an important national movement and a unifying force in our cultural life."

The bantam Bruins, squirt Canadiens and Team 1 midgets qualified for their league finals last night at Memorial Arena by capturing their semi-final series.

The Canadiens downed the Maple Leafs 4-1 to win their series six goals to one. They meet the Black Hawks in a sudden death battle for the squirt championship at 10.00 Saturday morning.

Peter Carver starred for the winners, scoring a three-goal hattrick. It was his fourth goal of the six his team scored in the series. Dean Williamson tallied their other goal with David Anderson getting the Maple Leaf marker.

The bantam Bruins and Black Hawks met in the third game of a two-game, goals-to-count series. The first two games ended in ties but the Bruins won last night 4-1. The round score was 5-5. They battle the Red Wings in a sudden death championship game Saturday morning at 9.00.

Jim Sheridan, all-star defenceman of the Black Hawks, suffered a broken wrist on the final play of the game. He was checked as the bell sounded the end of the game, falling on his arm and breaking the wrist.

Pug Kellar and McKenzie each tallied twice for the Bruins with assists for Clegg, Jack Boulter and Hallam. Sheridan was the lone Hawk scorer.

Team One midgets trounced Team Two 9-1 to take their goals-to-count series 11-2. They meet Team Five for the title in a sudden death game Monday afternoon at 4.30.

Gord Fuller was the big gun for the victors, scoring three times and assisting on two more for five points. Garry Rowbotham and Terry Belanger each added a brace of goals while Jim Potts had one and one. Joe Meldrum also scored while Jerry Mann assisted on two. Green and Cook each earned one helper. Ivo Kvarda scored for Team Two in the last minute of play.

In a pair of exhibition squirt games, Bruins and Red Wings fought to a 1-1 tie while Hawks shaded Rangers 2-1. Richard Eves scored both Bruins goals, Allen Mott tallied for Rangers. Ron Armstrong for the Bruins and Billy Graydon for the Wings.

Spectators Stage Wild Demonstration As Owen Sound Edges Dutchmen 3-1

KITCHENER (CP)—Owen Sound Mercurys mowed into a lead in the Ontario Hockey Association senior A semi-finals Thursday night by defeating Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen 3-1 to take a 2-1 edge in the series.

There was a 15-minute delay late in the game when the crowd of 3,094 paid staged a wild demonstration against referee Larry Lewin of Galt after John Lumley had fired the winning goal.

On the play immediately preceding Lumley's breakaway dash the Owen Sound winger had speared and injured Jack McKenzie, captain of the Dutchmen who collapsed in a heap in the Owen Sound corner.

No penalty was called and Lumley broke clean away to register at 19:27 and cut a 1-1 tie that had persisted for six minutes.

The series of incidents provoked a terrific uproar as the crowd littered the ice with rubbers and programs. It was finally announced that if they did not stop the contest would be forfeited.

At that point Don Rope, the best KW player on the ice, banged home a pass from McKenzie to equalize a second period Owen Sound tally.

The Mercer had opened the scoring when Roy Leckie whipped in a long rebound at 11:28 of the first period. Leckie scored again in the last seven seconds with Brodeur removed for an extra forward.

Montreal May Make Bid For Grey Cup

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal is expected to make a bid today at the Canadian Rugby Union meeting in Toronto to have the 1957 Grey Cup game played here. A representative of the city is expected to attend the meeting and place its bid before the union, it was learned. The application will hinge on the city's completion of a proposed new 40,000-seat stadium by 1957, it was learned.

AT THE CAPITOL — Jack Palance as Attila the Hun in the CinemaScope production, "Sign of the Pagan," with Jeff Chandler, Londoners provided a terrific uproar as the crowd littered the ice with rubbers and programs. It was finally announced that if they did not stop the contest would be forfeited.

Billy Martin Sulky Yankee Holdout Other Clubs Near Roster Completion

NEW YORK (AP) — Pugilistic Billy Martin, hero of New York Yankees' 1953 world series victory over Brooklyn, sulked in his New York hotel room Wednesday, the most stubborn of a handful of major-league baseball holdouts.

"I'm going to sit right here until I hear from the Yankees," said the 27-year-old second baseman. "I flew all the way here from California to talk to Bill Dewitt (Yankee general manager).

"He saw me for a little while and then shot off to Florida. The Yankees know what I want. The next move is up to them."

SIGN OTHERS

While Martin fumed, the Yankees signed Whitey Ford and Jry Noren, leaving only Martin and relief pitcher Jim Konstanty outside looking in.

"I'm through making appointments," said Konstanty. "When they need a reliever, they know where to reach me."

Baseball players officially become holdouts on March 1.

A roll call today showed eight clubs with no holdouts—Boston, Kansas City and Chicago in the American League; Pittsburgh, New York, St. Louis, Philadelphia and Cincinnati in the National.

Only three National Leaguers are still balking. Milwaukee, Brooklyn and Chicago each has one unsigned player.

In the American League, Washington, New York and Detroit had two each on the unsigned list. Cleveland's outfielder Minnie Woodling is the fold, had only second baseman Bobby Avila to sign. Baltimore had only outfielder Dave Philley unsigned, but he reportedly has come to terms.

Milwaukee Braves had a kingsized headache with first baseman George Crowe an unyielding holdout. Jack Dittmer, a second baseman, and rookie outfielder Wes Covington agreed to terms Thursday.

Shawinigan Falls Cataracts are just about home first for the second year running in the Quebec Hockey League. The Trois-Rivieres Lions are virtually out and Chicoutimi Saguenees are losing yards in efforts to catch Montreal Royals.

The Cataracts whipped the Lions 6-2 Thursday night at Shawinigan Falls and need only two more victories in their home-and-home series to clinch the championship. The Saguenees dropped a 4-3 decision in Montreal when Denis Boucher put the second-place Royals out in front in the third period.

The Saguenees dropped seven points behind the Royals, who are 10 points behind Shawinigan Falls.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and read what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, March 3, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A day for self-restraint yet in your sector Mars is strong for gain; unusual acquisition. Military interests encouraged.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Day's doings may be irritating, tend to cause anxiety, but "now" that are warned, turn these hampering influences aside and concentrate on your plans. Determination favored.

May take strong will power to keep from going too all-out for what you wish today. Influences energizing and favor most projects, duties, business and personal affairs.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Should be unusually good for matters needing quickness, determination and stick-to-itiveness. You working with military projects, new and scientific discoveries sponsored.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Healthy influences generally, though purely personal desires and ambitions may have to step aside for matters of gov't., state and essential general interests. Pay heed to urgent affairs.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — In free hours tend to matters for which you cannot spare time during week. Some pleasant diversion from usual creativeness where you will assist with your able talents. Private interests should improve.

You born today are intuitive, responsive to intelligent company and activities; a genial, whole-some companion. You like to gather knowledge. Press forward with will to be you; live true to your finest, put doubt, fear of failure and unworthy associates far from you. Could achieve in art, teaching, chemistry, mathematics, music particularly. Birthdate of: His Holiness, Pope Pius XII; Wm. Green, labor leader; Geo. M. Pullman, of railroad car fame.

ing. Fresh gains for home duties.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Unless imperative, don't take on a heavy work schedule but tackle necessary tasks and improve a talent or hobby. Day especially favors stimulating activities.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Need not be heavy day, should not be depressing or straining. Work at tasks promptly and without misgivings, make some period for diverting social and extra affairs.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Important to heed health matters so that mind occasionally from work, business, the daily routine. It refreshes and relieves tension.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Difficult propositions, State and Gov't. interests, have invigorating Mars rays, but be warned against hasty conclusions. Shun extremes!

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Have no part in excesses; stay mentally temperate. This means in diet, too. Urgent matters, your very personal affairs and recreation can go along smoothly.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Splendid Neptune and

Cleaning Firm Hired to Clean Two Classrooms

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The trustees of Woodview school in nearby Otonabee township hired a cleaning firm Thursday to clean the two classrooms.

Thirty-seven pupils were taken from school Monday by their parents who were disturbed because a 15-year-old pupil was taken to a sanatorium with tuberculosis Feb. 12.

A TB skin test was given to the other pupils but the parents said it wasn't done properly. They said the check for the tests was made after 24 hours instead of 48.

A second test was given Tuesday and pupils assembled at the school Thursday to be checked. Dr. Wilson Ford of Keene, who conducted the test, refused to disclose the results.

The school trustees agreed to have the classrooms cleaned out to satisfy demands of the parents. A letter from the Ontario department of health said there was no reason to close the school now to clean the classrooms.

A spokesman for the trustees said the school would be cleaned out today and pupils are expected to return Monday.

RCAF Has Never Refused to Make Mercy Flight

OTTAWA (CP)—A defence department spokesman said Thursday night the RCAF has never said no to a mercy flight request where it involved a matter of life and death, and where it could not be handled by other existing agencies including commercial agencies.

The spokesman said Thursday's flight of five-year-old Glenn Nolan from Smiths Falls to Montreal was directly arranged by RCAF headquarters here. However, such flights usually are co-ordinated through one of the RCAF's six search-and-rescue centres at Torbay, Nfld., Halifax, Trenton, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Primary job of the search-and-rescue organization was to maintain facilities to help aircraft in distress as well as marine vessels in distress in coastal waters.

"We rarely are asked to in such cases, the RCAF frequently had been called upon to carry out mercy missions.

A five-year old Regina boy received 211 free blood and plasma transfusions in 1955 through the Canadian Red Cross your blood and your money is sustaining his life.

Plan to Assist Western Farmers Passes Senate

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The double-barrelled emergency legislative program of the government to help prairie grain growers has been cleared through Parliament five weeks after it began its disputed passage.

Two bills, on bank loans against farm-stored grain and on treasury payment of abnormal wheat storage charges, received final reading in the Senate Thursday, two days after they reached the Chamber. They are expected to get royal assent Wednesday and thus become law.

Opposition members in the Senate took some final whacks at the bank loans bill, which passed the Commons earlier in the week and only after 12 days of sometimes bitter debate.

It would ratify the government plan begun Nov. 15 of guaranteeing bank loans of a maximum $1,300 each at five-per-cent interest—on the west's big stocks of farm-held grain. Main opposition argument in both Houses was for cash advances to help money-short farmers.

There was no Senate criticism Thursday of the second measure to provide treasury payment of Canadian wheat board storage charges on its wheat carryovers in excess of 178,000,000 bushels at the Aug. 1 start of each crop year. Normally such costs are borne by wheat producers through the board.

The federal storage payment for the current crop year will be an estimated $32,000,000. Half will be paid when the bill becomes law and the remainder added in monthly instalments to the end of the crop year July 31. The act will continue in force until Aug. 1 carryovers of the board fall below 178,000,000 bushels. They totalled 395,000,000 bushels last Aug. 1.

Trade Minister Howe has said the bill had to be passed before consideration could be given to a final wheat board payment on wheat delivered in the 1954-55 crop year. Payment so far has been the initial delivery one, based on $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 northern, and an interim distribution of 10 cents a bushel on the four top grades announced a month ago.

The storage-payment measure has had only three critics in Parliament—Commons member J. L. MacDougall (L—Vancouver Burrard) and two senators on Wednesday. Senator Thomas A. Crerar (L—Manitoba) said it is "wrong in principle" and Senator George Barbour (L—Prince Edward Island) termed it a subsidy which would increase the already large wheat production.

The controversial grain loans bill, however, received a running fire of criticism, especially in the Commons where Trade Minister Howe repeatedly declined the prolonged opposition attack as a filibuster. There were seven Commons votes on the issue—including four on opposition motions to kill or delay the bill.

The bill received a final criticism and defence in the Senate Thursday.

Senator Walter Aseltine (PC—Saskatchewan) said farmers wanted interest-free government advances through the wheat board.

Senator Arthur Beaubien (L—Manitoba) said that kind of talk was just political propaganda. Putting the wheat board into the loan business would destroy it.

Driver Fined $35 for Punching Small Boy

NEWMARKET (CP) — Motorist Charles Minaker was fined $35 and costs Thursday for punching a 15-year-old boy who had pelted his car with snowballs.

Gerald Burrows said Minaker, 36, knocked him unconscious and knocked out two teeth, One of the snowballs hit Minaker's 63-year-old mother as she stepped from the car.

Defence counsel told Magistrate O. S. Hollirake Burrows was "acting like a young hellion" and that Minaker was justified in striking him. Minaker was charged with common assault.

Minaker said he punched the boy in this town 20 miles north of Toronto when he denied having hit Mrs. Minaker and accused her of being a liar.

Ontario Budget Is Seen as Near Economic Limits

TORONTO (CP) — A record budget was presented to the Ontario legislature Thursday, but with it the provincial treasurer warned Ontario may soon be in serious danger of having reached its economic limits.

Presenting his first budget, Dana Porter said the record estimated gross ordinary income of $438,322,000 is in keeping with a currently strong economy.

But at the end of his 80-minute speech he said:

"The time is rapidly approaching when further increases in expenditures cannot be accommodated within the dimensions of our present revenue."

Increased spending would have to be stopped, or new revenue sources found.

Mr. Porter was applauded frequently from government benches during his presentation. Leading the applause often was Premier Frost, who turned the province's finances over to Mr. Porter last August after bringing in 12 consecutive budgets.

LONG-RANGE PROSPECTS

Speaking of Ontario's long-range economic prospects, Mr. Porter said there is little hope immediately from the federal government's tax rental proposals.

Ottawa had failed to recognize adequately the compelling needs and heavy burdens that rapidly growing population and industry impose. Educational facilities, hospitals, waterworks and many other services had to be financed by the province and municipalities.

"We would, therefore, urge that there be a realistic appreciation of our fiscal requirements and that a share of the total tax revenue be allocated to this province sufficient to enable it to provide the services that its expanding industry and population require."

When the last budget was presented in 1954, fear of a business recession. But a strong upsurge in demand for natural products, followed by lift in industry, carried Ontario's economy far beyond original estimates.

Helicopter Flies Boy to Montreal After Accident

MONTREAL (CP) — Five-year-old Glenn Nolan of Frankford, Ont., who was flown here by helicopter Thursday after suffering serious injuries in a car accident, is "resting comfortably," a spokesman at the Montreal Neurological Institute said this morning.

The boy was flown from Smiths Falls, nine miles from his hometown, after having his skull fractured and a leg broken when he was hit by a car driven by S. D. McClure.

Following an operation Thursday night, an institute official said the lad's condition is "slightly improved."

The RCAF helicopter from Rockcliffe, near Ottawa, set down on the McGill University football field, right beside the institute. Waiting doctors rushed the boy into the hospital and prepared him for the operation.

The youngster's condition was described as critical but nurses said it improved slightly after he was treated for shock.

APPEAL ANSWERED

The boy was first taken to St. Francis General Hospital in Smiths Falls. Dr. J. A. McCue, after examining him, appealed to the RCAF to fly the boy to Montreal, about 130 miles away.

Dr. McCue accompanied the boy aboard the helicopter to Montreal. The RCAF also sent along Nursing Sister Ann Harmon and WO2 L. E. Fuller, both of the Rockcliffe base, to treat the boy on the trip.

Floodlights were turned on at the stadium before Flt. Lt. McLachlan of Toronto, the pilot, set the helicopter down. A crowd of some 200 had gathered to watch the descent.

Dr. McCue, with another emergency operation scheduled in Smiths Falls, returned with the helicopter.

BRITISH PAPERS SEE MIDDLE EAST BALANCE UPSET

Ouster of Glubb Pasha Could Touch off War

LONDON (AP) — British newspapers say Jordan's ouster of Lt.-Gen. John Bagot Glubb could swing the whole Middle East power balance against the West, and touch off another Arab-Israeli war.

The press expressed grave concern over the turn of events as the famed commander of the Arab Legion headed for London after his abrupt dismissal Friday by Jordan's young King Hussein.

The influential Times of London has lashed the ouster a "studied affront" by Hussein, and declares it "The most sinister event which has occurred in the Middle East since the Egyptian purchase of arms from the Communists. . .".

"Whatever the immediate motive for the Jordanian governmental sudden removal of Glubb Pasha, the net effect must be increased uncertainty in the Middle East."

UNDER PRESSURE

Informed sources in Amman said Hussein acted under strong anti-Western nationalist pressure. His government installed a London man as the dismissal was not designed to affect Jordan's friendly relations with Britain, but caused apprehension both in London and Washington.

The Times says Glubb's dismissal raises the question whether Britain should continue paying £19,000,000 a year to subsidize the Arab Legion.

"It would be quite illogical to go on supporting a force that is denied for use in local Middle Eastern adventures or to humour a mercurial young king in Britain's arming Arab against Jew."

Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Syria recently offered to pay Jordan as a counter grant to support its army, if it would pass up the British subsidy. A top-level conference to discuss the proposed grant is expected to take place soon.

Prime Minister Eden conferred at a lengthy emergency session Friday with cabinet ministers and other government leaders. Other meetings are scheduled during the weekend after a first-hand report of the Amman happenings is received from Glubb.

2,800 Employers Seeking Services Of 1,000 Students

WINNIPEG (CP) — A record 2,800 employers are competing for the services of approximately 1,000 students in the fall graduate from the University of Manitoba this year, an official of the National Employment Service said Friday.

"The demand is far more than we can ever hope to meet," he said. "Several hundred employers are seeking the services of approximately 100 engineering graduates. An engineering graduate with anything on the ball can pretty well write his own ticket."

Starting salary offers to engineering graduates have reached $400 a month, he said.

"We've never seen anything like it," said professor W. J. Waines, dean of arts and science. "I believe most of our top graduates-to-be all have obtained jobs—and good ones."

Stevenson Says Racial Problem Affects All U.S.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Adlai Stevenson Friday called the racial problem "the nightmare of the southern dilemma" that cannot be solved until there is a change in the attitudes of all Americans.

Stevenson told 2,200 University of Minnesota students and faculty members civil rights are "a matter of grave national concern" when a girl in Alabama is denied her constitutional rights by mob action, when Negroes are denied decent housing, or when a murder goes unpunished in Mississippi, or when American citizens are denied peaceful occupancy of their homes is my own state of affairs."

His first two references clearly were to the Autherine Lucy and Emmett Till cases in Alabama and Mississippi. At Cicero, Ill., several years ago, violence erupted when Negro couple moving into a white neighborhood.

"Before we cast a stone at Alabama," Stevenson said, "it might be well for all of us who live in some of the great northern states to ask ourselves in candor how the Negro minority is faring in our own communities."

MIDDLE EAST TOUR

LONDON (Reuters)—War Minister Antony Head flied in Saturday this weekend for a two-week tour of Middle East capitals to discuss relations in Cyprus, the Suez canal zone and Libya, a war office spokesman announced today.

FISHING INDUSTRY IN GOOD SHAPE HOUSE IS TOLD

Minister Says There Are No Surpluses

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's $150,000,000-a-year fishing industry is in good shape for a marketing point of view.

This assurance was given in the Commons Friday by Fisheries Minister Sinclair. He told the House Canada has no fish surpluses. In British Columbia, operators of the $25,000,000-a-year salmon industry actually were allocating canned salmon to customers.

Herring fishermen on the west coast had already taken 300,000 tons in their nets and probably would wind up the season with a record catch.

In the Maritimes the lobster fishery was enjoying "very high prices." There was continued transition of the cod industry away from the salt product toward fresh and frozen products, a healthy development. All cod products would be disposed of by the end of the market year.

EFFECTS HOLIDAY

The minister, looking fit and well following a Caribbean holiday by plane, spoke from the effects of serious injuries he suffered in a fall in Ottawa last fall. He said the more optimistic outline as the 1956-57 spending estimates of his department came before members. They total $12,930,000, down slightly from the current year.

During the day members from the Atlantic provinces and Quebec offered a miscellany of suggestions to improve the fishing industry. Several urged Canadian authorities to get international agreement on a 12-mile limit for Canadian territorial waters instead of the present three miles.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH

Elsewhere in his speech, Mr. Sinclair said that every non-salmon stream in B.C. should be developed for power before power dams on the Fraser River, particularly the Nechaco river, which also has a big hydro-electric potential. Streams connected with the salmon trade were alarmed that the Fraser was being saved for power. Dams would block fish going upstream to spawn and the fish would die in the warm tings coming downstream on their way to the sea.

The only known way of getting salmon around the dams has been proved, he said. Power dams in the U.S. had ruined the Columbia river as a salmon stream.

Big Globemaster Crashes In Ocean Close To Iceland

Engines Fail Second Time, Believe 17 Aboard Lost

LONDON (AP)—A United States Air Force Globemaster with 17 persons aboard crashed in the north Atlantic off Iceland Friday night in the area where the same plane narrowly escaped disaster a week ago.

An air force spokesman here said radio messages from a weather ship reported finding this morning the first bit of wreckage from the four-engined plane.

"We know now the Globemaster crashed into the sea," the spokesman said.

The plane had left the Keflavik, Iceland, airport Friday, bound for New York. Those aboard were all believed to be American airmen.

ENGINES FAILED

An oxygen bottle, part of the plane's equipment, was recovered and showed extensive traces of fire, the spokesman said. The bottle was picked up by the weather ship Alpha, about 250 miles west of the Icelandic coast.

That was near the position where the plane sent "May Day" messages—extreme distress signals a shortly before midnight. The first message said two of the plane's four engines had failed, and it was losing altitude rapidly.

One week ago the same transport developed engine trouble in the same position off Iceland and was "shepherded" in the rescue planes.

It was not immediately made known whether the same pilot was flying the aircraft Friday night.

APPEAL FOR AID

GENEVA (CP)—The League of Red Cross Societies today launched an appeal to help 14,000 Yugoslav victims of recent avalanches, floods and storms. The Yugoslav Red Cross Friday appealed to Geneva for urgently needed warm clothing, bedding and medical supplies for the thousands of homeless. Two tons of Canadian Red Cross supplies have already been sent by the league.

Bushworkers Found Guilty Of Manslaughter

COCHRANE, Ont. (CP) — Two young bushworkers Friday were sentenced to 15 years in jail when convicted of manslaughter in the slaying of an elderly storekeeper.

Armand Hebert, 24, and Florent Lapointe, 23, both of Cochrane, were charged with the murder of 57-year-old Joseph Victor Ernest Husta. The jury, however, found them guilty of the lesser charge after deliberating one hour and seven minutes.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer said he agreed with the verdict and told the two men:

"I can't help but feel that both of you were brought into this crime by the over-indulgence of liquor."

Paul Chouinard, 26, also is charged with Rizzo's murder. He is expected to be tried soon.

Rizzo was found bound in a cot in his store Dec. 13. Hebert and Lapointe originally were charged with robbery with violence but a trial on that charge was interrupted by news of Rizzo's death in hospital. The men were then charged with murder.

Toronto Will Get Grey Cup Final

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto today was awarded the 1956 Grey Cup football final.

The decision to stage the Nov. 24 classic at Toronto's 27,600-capacity stadium was made at the annual meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union.

Ontario May Have to Fight Rabies for Years As Outbreak Is Different from Any in Past

TORONTO (CP)—A government official says the scope of Ontario's record rabies epidemic may force residents to accept the deadly disease as a long-term killer on the provincial scene.

A total 144 cases of rabies has been diagnosed among Ontario animals in the last 15 months. Experts fear many hundreds of infected wild animals may be loose in the bush.

Dr. G. H. Collacutt, federal veterinarian for Ontario, said the province may have to combat the disease for years.

"We have only found a small fraction of the animals affected with the disease. This doesn't tell us the hundreds that have died in the bush and haven't been found."

An Ontario government spokesman said the outbreak is different from any seen in the province.

"Its known presence in wild-life means we may have to learn to live with it as in some other countries," he said.

SIX PERSONS WATCHED

No human infections have been reported but at least six persons are under observation for precautionary treatment.

Meanwhile, more pet vaccination clinics were opened in the province. The federal agricultural department reported about 25,000 dogs have been inoculated in northern Ontario and between 8,000 and 10,000 in southern districts. Officials said there is no accurate estimate of the provincial dog population but some guesses range as high as 500,000.

Vaccine providing federally-supplied vaccine opened today in the western centres of Hespeler, Galt and Preston.

Others have operated in Cochrane, Sudbury, Timiskaming and Algoma districts and in Victoria and Hastings counties. More are scheduled for Kenora, Rainy River and parts of Wentworth, Brant and Wellington counties.

STARTED IN N. W. T.

Officials say the infection apparently started in the Northwest Territories last year and broke out in the Cochrane district last November.

A western epidemic between 1953 and 1954 resulted in the death of 180,000 animals. Officials estimated 35,000 coyotes were destroyed by trappers, game wardens and forest rangers and another 80,000 were killed by farmers and pest control officers.

The toll also included 50,000 foxes, 4,200 dogs, 7,500 lynx, 1,850 bears and skunks, cougars and badgers.

Will Alter Plan To Ban Graded Assessments

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Goodfellow said Friday a proposed Ontario government amendment to the assessment Act will be changed at the request of the city of Toronto.

The amendment, he told the Legislature during second reading, would have ruled the city's right to continue graded assessments on low-cost homes. The city had indicated it did not wish to lose its graded assessments.

Goodfellow said graded assessments are costing Toronto almost $2,000,000 a year in lost taxes.

"The city is talking about slum clearance, but they want to continue these expenditures. Far be it from this government to stop them."

VOLCANO ERUPTS

KAGOSHIMA, Japan (AP)—Sakurajima, volcanic island off the southern tip of Japan, erupted Friday in a shower of lava and volcanic ash. Smoke rolled more than a mile into the sky, but there were no injuries or major damage.

Demand Stricter Supervision of Union Activities

TORONTO (CP)—Demands for stricter supervision of Ontario trade union activities were presented Friday by three members of a provincial legislative committee reviewing the work of the Ontario labor relations board.

C. E. James (PC — Lambton East, William Murdoch (PC—Essex South) and Ross Whitney (PC—Bruce) all called for increased government supervision of unions, particularly of strike votes.

The Liberal member said no good union would object to supervised strike votes.

Mr. Murdock said some ordinary members are afraid to speak out at union meetings. He said:

"There's a little intimidation. We should give a little thought to the taking of strike votes. It has created a fear in these disastrous strikes if it has been a true vote of the employees."

New Anti-Rabies Drive Planned

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—A new anti rabies inoculation drive will get under way in Flin Flon next week following new reports of rabies among dogs, it was learned today.

Dr. Edgar Bissett, director of the public health branch here, said the drive will be concentrated on animals that were not inoculated during the last drive a few months ago.

U.S. and France Playing Tricky Game Passing Buck Over Jets for Israel

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and France appear to be engaged in a tricky buck passing operation over the proposed sale by France of 18 Mystere jet fighter planes to Israel.

The issue of the fighters was scheduled for discussion today at the state department by State Undersecretary Herbert Hoover Jr., French Ambassador Maurice Couve de Murville and British Ambassador Sir Roger Makins.

The situation has been slowly building toward a climax for several weeks.

State department officials are quiet because they believe that the French government is trying to persuade the United States into the position of approving or advocating the sale of planes.

French officials have appeared to be upset because they say privately that the U. S. wants France to sell the planes, but does not want to take any responsibility for the sale.

The problem is a difficult one for France. There are strong pro-Israeli influences bearing on the French government, as on Washington. At the same time, France has been trying to obtain Egyptian co-operation in cutting down rubles with the Arabs in French sections of North Africa.

The U. S. also is courting Arab goodwill at the present time, with the thought that Israel's security in the long run can best be assured by making peace in Palestine.

Four Named as Mob Members Sue Negroes for Million Each

By BEM PRICE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Three construction workers and a truck driver have sued for millions of dollars, claiming they were falsely accused of being mobmembers at Montgomery, Alabama.

Four identical suits, each for $1,000,000, were filed Friday against the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, three NAACP lawyers, Mrs. Rosa Parks Nelson and Miss Autherine J. Lucy.

All stemmed from charges contained in a grand jury report preceding filed in Federal Court by Miss Lucy last month.

That court action, Miss Lucy named Earl and Ed Watts and Kenneth C. Thompson, construction workers in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and H. E. Gamble of Birmingham, a truck driver, as members of the mob.

IDENT CHARGES

Each now asserts in the civil damage suit that the charges were "false and known to be false," and were the result of a conspiracy by the NAACP and the others named.

Miss Lucy, the first Negro ever enrolled at the University of Alabama was "in a mentally and physical condition" when the university's trustees at a meeting Wednesday night.

The 26-year-old former school teacher originally had been suspended by the trustees on Feb. 7 after police and officials had rioted for three days protesting the admission of a Negro to the southern university.

After the suspension, Miss Lucy asked the Federal Court here to cite 13 university officials and trustees, together with the four who filed the suits Friday, for contempt. She charged that they had conspired to bar her from the campus by using the mob action as a "cunning stratagem."

Coldwell Claims Canada Paying Too Much for Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF leader Coldwell said Friday night he had been reliably informed Alberta gas prices for the proposed trans-Canada pipeline is being offered in Chicago "at almost double" the price for Alberta gas in Chicago.

He said the federal government would commit "one of the most serious blunders" if it went on "continuing its present policy on the line."

Mr. Coldwell, speaking on the CBC's free-time political broadcast from Ottawa, Hansard Burns, the present plan would starve Eastern Canada of needed power and feed it to United States industry. The $350,000,000 loan from the public to the east should be built under public ownership.

Calgary Lawyer Is Named to Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP)—Henry G. Nolan, Calgary lawyer who was associate prosecutor for an international military tribunal trying Japanese war criminals in the Far East, Friday became the first Albertan ever to be named to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Nolan, 60, succeeds the late Mr. Justice J. W. Estey, who died Jan. 22. Mr. Justice Estey was from Saskatchewan.

Stone-Tossing Mobs Block Departure Of Selwyn Lloyd from Arabian Isle

BAHREIN, Persian Gulf (Reuters) — Angry stone - throwing crowds early today blocked the departure of Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd for four hours, defying the tear gas and bayonets of police.

Two buses were wrecked, and some police and demonstrators were slightly injured in the angry outbreak in this British-protected Arab island.

The demonstrations began when Lloyd arrived here Friday on his way to New Delhi after talks with Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser on the tense Middle East situation.

Crowds stoned, kicked and punched cars in the procession escorting Lloyd from the airport, and shouted "Go home" at the foreign secretary.

The trouble started to leave late Friday night, 1,000 demonstrators courts blocked the only road to the airport and held up the foreign secretary for four hours while police battled to clear a way for his departure.

Two windows in a car carrying foreign office girl secretaries were smashed, and other cars scratched and dented during the demonstrations. There were no casualties in the British party.

Officials here said the demonstration was directed against Britain, who had been imprisoned for a traffic offence. He whipped up feeling against alleged injustices in the penal system, they said.

A local reform committee is seeking reform of the penal system. Bahrein, site of big American oil operations, is ruled by Sheikh Sulman bin Hamad al Khalifah, whose brother administers the

Hamilton Woman Seized by Pair, Beaten, Raped

HAMILTON (CP)—A Hamilton woman, mother of a small child, reported to police today that she was dragged into a car by two men Friday night, taken into the country and raped.

In hysterics, she told of being beaten and raped and then left by the side of the road the western outskirts of the city.

Early this morning was she able to walk back to the city to report the attack.

Police said police she left her house Friday night to buy a package of milk for her baby. As she was walking along the street two men drove up in a car and forced her into it, she said.

Coroner's Jury Blames Rabies Disease Of Nervous System Attacked by Virus

TORONTO (CP)—With authorities preparing to start today on a large-scale rabies control campaign in Ontario, pet-owners received tests on the subject to find what to look for.

The encyclopedia says rabies, or hydrophobia, is a disease of the nervous system which has been attacked by a virus. It is usually transmitted by the bite and can be communicated by them to other animals and to man.

The disease in a dog lasts about six days. It usually has a change in its habit: It becomes dull and uneasy and seeks to isolate itself in a dark place. It may snarl, growl and other animals and gather up straw, thread or rags.

Sexual excitement is frequently an early symptom. As symptoms progress, for example, the dog begins to snap and can be easily excited. Its bark becomes hoarse.

Dogs are inoffensive in most cases to those with whom they are familiar. But a certain stage the animal attacks with its natural weapons; a dog with rabies will bite its beak, or herbivorous animals with their hooves.

In later stages paralytic symptoms are seen in the intervals of exhaustion between paroxysms.

Finally the exhausted animal shelters itself in an obscure place, lies down on its belly immobilized, and lies there until paralysis and coma end in death.

Once the disease is communicated by saliva of the affected animal entering a wound, or abrasion of the skin or a mucous membrane, it is 90 per cent or more certain it will be bite of a rabid dog. The period of incubation appears to vary according to the location of the bite.

Symptoms usually begin with irritation at the inflammation of the point of infection. Knowing he has been bitten, the person's symptoms during the first stage are great mental depression, and indefinite pains. Then the paralysis proceeds to talk and speech is rapid and abrupt.

After there is difficulty in breathing.

One of the most striking features of the disease is the patients' inability to drink water, even the sight of water or the sound of running tap causes the paroxysm.

In some cases there are fits of maniacal excitement followed by calm periods.

Although there may be snapping and snarling, the jaw is of ten tempting to bite, they are caused by spasmodic action which affects the muscles. After two or three days of suffering violent paroxysms, death occurs either in a choking spell or from exhaustion.

Apart from the Pasteur treatment of inoculation, the treatment most used is excision or cauterization of the wound.

Leonard Losey Of Deseronto Killed in Car

One man was instantly killed and a second taken to Belleville General Hospital early this morning following an automobile accident on highway No. 3 one mile west of Deseronto.

Instantly killed when he was thrown from the car was Leonard Losey, about 46, of Deseronto. He suffered multiple head injuries.

Taken to Belleville General Hospital with head and internal injuries was Harry DeRusbie, about 35, of Deseronto.

The driver of the car, Max Harrow, also of Deseronto, was not injured in the accident which took place about 12.50 a.m. today.

It is reported that the eastbound car failed to take the curve, jumped a ditch, crossed the York Road and came to rest upright in a field about 350 feet off the highway.

Dr. D. C. McVicker attended the injured at the scene of the accident.

OPP Constable Ray Kowal investigated the accident.

Coroner Dr. D. C. McVicker conducted a preliminary inquiry into Losey's death in the Belleville General Hospital this morning. An inquest will be held Wednesday, March 7th.

Losey is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. C. Wannamaker, of Deseronto; Mary, 15, and Leonard, 13, both at home.

LEGEND OF BRAVERY

VIENNA (Reuters) — Czechoslovak Red Army soldiers have proved their bravery" in the last few weeks by shooting down United States balloons, says Czech newspapers reaching Austria. The Czech army newspaper Obrana Lidu published the "heroic story" of Lieut. Jaroslav Nowak. He, it said, shot down five balloons to remove danger to air traffic.

Kampus Kapers Revue Staged By BCI Students Enjoyed

Like all good habits "Kampus Kapers," the annual revue staged by BCIVS students, are just as intriguing as the worst of bad habits. Inevitably, they are returned to again and again.

Obviously those who make up Belleville audiences and the pupils of BCIVS find themselves mutually prone to this situation at this particular time of the year. If qualification of this statement is needed just come around to the collegiate auditorium tonight before 8.15 p.m. and enjoy some mental refreshment and relaxation.

You will find once more the students engaged in presenting their perennial stage fling under the above title and a packed house sharing your enjoyment.

Presented as usual by the Boys' Athletic Society of the collegiate, the show opened last night to a traditional custom — a custom that filled the house.

From near-burlesque comedy to more sophisticated humor with musical renditions moving while the name wide scope, did the show range.

Thanks for the wide variety of the program can be laid at the doorstep, or rather, doorsteps, of the resourceful students who added educational system and the broad outlet of student activities it allows. There were presentations by the Collegiate's glee club, the collegiate's drama club, the collegiate's athletic society, the collegiate's band, while even the collegiate's library club looked after the cloakroom. All of it, assembled in one single presentation added up, as in past years, to a production pleasing to both eye and ear.

One of the biggest hits of the evening was again the skit presented by the teachers of the collegiate. This time the staff turned back the hands of time to let the audience watch what might have ensued in a kindergarten classroom in 1956 B.C. However, the similarities between such a class and a Never-Never Land and Utopia are none too subtle for the audience to appreciate as they did.

POKE FUN AT FASHION SHOW

Among the most original of the presentations was a take-off by the Dramatic Society of the putting-on of a fashion show. The skit combined broad burlesque in the costumes of the models with the modeling accessories to poke fun at commercial fashion parades in general.

One of the surprises of the evening was a full-fledged Can-Can by the girls' students, who helped build up toward a lively first-half intermission.

On the second period side was the singing of the BCIVS Glee Club under C. E. Templer which drew much applause early in the show. Several sophomoric solos by young Lorne Dixon also helped maintain a balance during the show.

There were several acrobatic presentations. Among the most thrilling were some high-bar acrobatics by Bob Ireland, Glen Marcelo, Russell Grant and Hilbert Istead.

A touch of military precision also was injected into the production by a specially trained group of boy students. Clad in military battle-dress and bearing rifles, the company gave a smart exhibition of precision drill.

More hectic moments were injected into the program by a specially selected number of pupils, who, under city dance teacher, Harry Morrison, produced a lively presentation on the latest and hottest in ballroom instechore—Rock 'n' Roll.

Among the comedy numbers which also registered a hit with the audience was a clever piece of mimicry from a group of young Doug Aselstine and also a presentation by Ronald Smith and Jerry Putman, appearing under the name of The Bumfore Brothers.

From the rousing start made on the show by the collegiate band conducted by Mr. A. Cooper, the show moved to the well-rounded end feature with a presentation of hit-parade numbers of the last quarter century.

QUARTET ENJOYED

Among the more pleasing solos in this last production number were those by Suzanne Cherry and June Bowerman, while a harmonica quartet, consisting of A. Daniels, R. Evans, K. Kapusy and G. Orr, also made a hit with the audience. Responsible for this particular feature were Geoffrey Reid, Bert Reid and Bill Philp.

Another high point in the program included: a gymnastic display on the parallel bars by W. Chalk, J. Orr, R. Marsden, R. Pollard, T. Potter, R. Smith, G. Stephenson, T. Walters and D. Whitfield under the, direction of Ken Ward.

Those in Can-Can scene, touched off with a solo by Mary Lou Sennett, were: Judy Anderson, Jean Barber, Judy Daniels, Mary Dixon, Pat Hendricks, Linda Reed, Heather Lewis, Marilyn Mathews, Jean Muirhead, Sharon Sutton.

Another highpot was a presentation by the collegiate's Pyrrhotel club, the following were included: D. Anderson, R. Anderson, B. Beddell, G. Bexley, T. Bell, F. Bertrand, F. Blaker, J. Boyd, C. Buskard, D. Dalrymple, M. Grandamy, J. Hamilton, R. Hurst, G. Irwin, J. Jones, J. Lindsay, D. Langford, K. Langdon, L. Langrick, J. Lewis, T. McAvoy, R. Morris, C. Mowers, D. Patterson, K. Pieper, A. Quickert, S. Quickert, D. Rollins, G. Rollins, G. Rowbotham, M. Wagar, B. Watts, D. Whitfield, A. Williams.

Songs in a western vein presented by Marg Braan and the "Kountry Kids", helped keep the show rolling.

Grand finale was a production of "Thanks for the Memory" by the entire cast under the direction of Linton Read.

Warm Weather Brings Life to Local Market

Business on the local market this morning showed signs of the first intimation of spring in the air.

The warm, bright weather brought renewed life into wheeling trading, after many weeks in the doldrums; large offerings were on hand to meet the increase in custom.

Eggs were up at 55 cents for extra large grade, with large selling at 47 cents, medium at 42 cents and pullets at 43 cents. Poultry prices showed little change, steady at 50 cents for fowl and 53 cents for spring chickens. Poultry sold a little more briskly.

Potatoes continued at 75 cents a six-quart basket for Ontarios, with 75-lb. bags bringing $3.50. Spanish onions were 10 cents a basket, or a nickel apiece. A fairly large offering of cabbage brought 15-20 cents a head while parsnips, beets and carrots continued at 50 cents a basket. A few Hubbard squash sold for 15 cents each and turnips brought 10 cents each. Celeriknut was unchanged at 23 Wilde a quart.

Apples were a bulky offering with Spies at 25 cents a basket, fancy Spies $3 a bushel; McIntosh sold from 50 cents a basket, fancy $2.50 a bushel; Snows also were 50 cents and $1-$1.35 a bushel; Sweets brought 50 cents and 2.25.

Wellington Loses To King City

WELLINGTON (Special) — Wellington's juvenile "C" team bowed out of the OHSA playdowns last night, losing to King City in Nobleton by a 5-1 score. The Little Dukes lost in the semifinals round 10-0.

Reports from the game state that the crowd, irate at the officials, swarmed on the ice. The referees had to be escorted from the arena by police.

Civil Servant Pension Plan Explained at Annual Banquet

Ontario civil servants have the best pension plan in the province but at the same time their pension fund is in a bad state financially.

This was the apparent contradiction and condition explained to approximately 250 Ontario government employees and their wives at the first annual banquet of the Belleville Branch of the Civil Service Association of Ontario held Friday evening at Tobe's County Gardens, Roseneath.

Guest speaker for the banquet which saw guests present from the Ottawa Valley to the Niagara Peninsula, was David P. Holmes, head of the association superannuation board.

Mr. Holmes reviewed the setup of the superannuation branch, noting there were now 17,500 Ontario government employees with 3,100 former workers drawing pensions. He said that the number of pensioners was increasing proportionately with the number of employees in the various government services.

Despite superannuation contributions ranging up to six per cent for some employees, the pension fund was in debt to the extent of $46 million and was adding a $4 million deficit each year. And, according to the speaker, the deficit would increase in- future years.

CONTRIBUTION RATE VARIES

The rate of contribution to the pension fund now varied from 4 to 6 per cent, depending largely on the length of service. Prior to 1948 the rate was 4 per cent and employees had the permanent status since then pay up to 6 per cent.

The government backs the fund dollar for dollar with employee contributions and also guarantees the fund deficit.

Mr. Holmes said the civil service pension fund was a "fringe benefit" enjoyed by government employees for the somewhat lower salary than could be obtained in many other occupations.

Employee pensions were set at 2 per cent for every year of service, based on his or her highest three-year period, with the maximum pension was $600 per year. There is now no maximum pension.

To take care of employees not eligible for regular pension, there are disability pensions and compensation pensions or allowances which are effective before being normally eligible for a pension.

The association was working toward equal pay for equal service and the same pay for men and women doing the same jobs. Also it was asking for a change in the rate of pension contributions for all employees.

Mr. R. Whitfield, biologist with the Department of Lands and Forests, introduced the guest speaker with appreciation being expressed by Mr. Harold Mace, district director.

MEMBERS WELCOMED

Miss Dorothy M. Dowdell, president of the Belleville Branch, in her capacity as chairman for the banquet program, graciously welcomed members to the banquet and the Provincial Civil Service Association.

Mayor Jane Forrester extended greetings from the City of Belleville and extended congratulations to members of the Belleville Branch of the Civil Service Association on their first annual banquet.

The toast to the Province of Ontario was given by Mr. Harold Hastings Deputy Minister of the CSAC, with response by Mr. Nolan Whitney, MLA, for Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Whitney paid tribute to the service rendered by government employees and said their courtesy in the administration of government business, together with good judgment was promoting the province's growth.

Roscoe Robson, MLA for Hastings East, also spoke briefly, assuring members that the government fully appreciated civil service employees in high regard.

The government, depended on civil servants to "Conway, Prince of Wales, SS 5, Tofino, B.C.

W. E. Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West, was unable to be present due to conflicting duties as a member of the government mining committee.

Education Week To Be Observed In This City

March 5th to March 10th is Education Week in Ontario.

Next week the Ontario Intelligencer will publish a special series of Education Week feature articles written by Belleville teachers and students on interesting aspects of education's big story.

The six-part series commences Monday, page 5. During the week there will be articles ranging from the effect of TV on the modern student to how to use the mushrooming growth of the educational system and the need for more classrooms, more teachers and more and more money.

There will be articles on the teaching of reading in the elementary schools, school projects —good or bad, the effect of extracurricular jobs on a student's attitude toward learning, the lack of a course in Canadian history.

Most of the features will be illustrated with a photograph.

Watch for this special Education Week publication commencing Monday, March 5th, in the Ontario Intelligencer.

Middleton Park Boy Is Crowned Spelling 'Champ'

C-H-A-M-P-I-O-N spells out the title deservingly won by young Lawrence Saunders, Meadow ECAF public school, Middleton Park, here last night.

Lawrence came out on top over 11 other contestants from public schools in South Hastings in the district spelling-bee finals held at Queen Alexandra School.

Second and third were Peter Horcics, Bataws, and Carol Ann Rawlinson, Canifton, a student at S.S. 6, Thurlow.

Last night's title bout between the dozen young contestants was the culmination of some three weeks of preliminary contests held in the 45 schools throughout the district. Similar Bees are being held simultaneously throughout the province.

Lawrence now will go to the zone finals on March 21 at Pretrial School, Trenton, and the world finals in Toronto in May. The other contestants were: Jean Luxton, SS 9, Thurlow; Peter Lipa, SS 1, Thurlow; Alice Sleeper, Glen Miller; Phyllis Williamson, SS 4, Sidney; Joanne Dunstan, Frankford; Adele Graham, Broadmer RCAF School; Jean Whit, Dufferin Ave., Trenton; Richard Wannamaker, College St. School, Trenton, and Lois Conway, Prince of Wales, SS 5, Tofino, B.C.

Corby Library Circulation Up

Total circulation for January and February of books, magazines and pamphlets from the Corby Public Library was 20,529, an increase of 532 books over the same period last year, it was reported at a meeting of the Belleville Public Library Board Friday evening.

Adult circulation for January was 6,727 of which 4,509 books were fiction. Juvenile circulation was 3,820.

One hundred and fifty-six adult members joined the library since the beginning of the year from the city. In addition there have been 26 non-resident members and 21 children enrolled.

The library board received 111 films to local organizations during January and February and invitators were booked for 59 showings.

Saturday morning story hour in the children's library has enjoyed an average attendance of 35. Book talks were given some classes in the King George and Sir Winston Churchill schools.

Monthly meetings of the Film Council have attracted such a large attendance that accommodation has been taxed.

During January and February the Camera Club held two meetings at the library. The Great Books Discussion Group has been meeting every second week and the French Club has been meeting every Tuesday night.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

HARK, TEN THOUSAND HARPS AND VOICES

Hark, ten thousand harps and voices
Sound the notes of praise above;
Jesus reigns, and heav'n's rejoices;
Jesus reigns, the God of love.
See, He sits on yonder throne;
Jesus rules the world alone.

Jesus hail! whose glory brightens
All above, and gilds it with;
Lord of life, Thy smile enlightens,
Cheers and charms Thy saints on earth:

When we think of love like Thine,
Lord, we own it love divine.

King of glory, reign forever;
Thine an everlasting crown;
Nothing from Thy love shall sever,
Those whom Thou hast made Thine own:
Happy objects of Thy grace,
Destined to behold Thy face.

Savior, hasten Thine appearing;
Bring, O bring Thy glorious day,
When, the awful summons hearing,
Heaven and earth shall pass away:
Then, with golden harps we'll sing,
"Glory, glory to our King!"

The author of this glorious hymn—Thomas Kelly—was born nearly two centuries ago in Ireland and, if his family had had its way, he might have become a lawyer instead of a minister and a writer of religious poetry.

Thomas' father was a judge and the son was sent to Trinity College in Dublin and enrolled in courses intended to prepare him for a legal career. But one of the courses was Hebrew and through its study Thomas became interested in the ministry. That was the turning point in his career.

One day, after long, hard preparation for his spiritual ministry, he was ordained and started off as a minister of the Church of England. Later, he became an independent preacher and founded several churches of his own. He lived a long, happy, useful life and was 85 when death called him home.

Just before he slipped away, one of a group of friends at his bedside recited the first line of the Twenty-third Psalm: "The Lord is my Shepherd", and Kelly replied in a flash: "The Lord is my everything".

They wish. But this desire for power which possessions seem at first to satisfy is a demonic appetite that drives men to further and further excesses. As Emerson said, "Want is a growing giant whom the coat of Have was never large enough to cover."

CHECK DESIRE

Emerson's neighbor Henry Thoreau sought to check in his own life this driving desire for material possessions by going out to live the simple life in the country. Thoreau tells us in one of his writings that after he had cut down and sawed up so many trees to keep him warm, he put to himself this question, "What, did I do when I was warm?"

Thoreau was here pointing in the same direction as was Jesus when He answered the man who wanted aid-in getting a larger share of his inheritance. The Master of Life tried to lead men below the desire for things to the deeper question of what they would do with life after they got what belonged to them.

The way to keep dollars from deceiving us is to keep them from mastering us. When money becomes our master, it plays us false. But it can be a faithful servant. We say about money, "You can't take it with you." But Jesus said that you can so use money to enrich character that they will "receive you into the eternal habitations."

WHO WAS THIS?

By A.A.M.

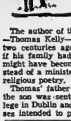
What was the name of the young Hebrew youth who was unjustly thrown into prison, but the Lord was with him and gave him favor in the keeper's eyes? Some time later he was joined in his cell by the Chief Butler and the Chief Baker who had also offended the King.

One morning this Hebrew noticed that his two companions in jail were downcast. When he inquired about their depression, they explained, "We have dreamed and there is no one to interpret our dreams." The youth replied: "Tell them to me, I pray you—for the interpretation belongs to God."

The Chief Butler then related his dream in which he had seen a vine with three branches. It budded, blossomed, and the clusters of grapes ripened. He took Pharaoh's cup and pressed the juice into it and then placed the cup in Pharaoh's hand.

The Chief Baker's dream was that he carried three cake baskets on his head. In the uppermost were a variety of baked foods for the King, but the birds were feasting from his basket.

The true interpretations of these dreams was given. The young Hebrew's request to the Chief Butler was: "Remember me when it is well with you. Do me this kindness. Mention my name to Pharaoh. I have done nothing to deserve prison."



Find this young Hebrew's name and read this story in Chapter 40 of Genesis.

A Lift for Living

Our Deceitful Dollars

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

"I want what belongs to me," How often we hear that remark. And is it not a quite legitimate demand? Each of us has a right to what belongs to him. And our Lord Jesus Christ was the champion of human justice.

On one occasion a man accosted Jesus saying, 'Speak to my brother that he divide the inheritance with me.' Jesus replied, 'Who made me a judge or divider over you?' Take heed and beware of covetousness for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesses."

The Master desired that every man should get what belongs to him; but He was ever telling men to beware of covetousness and warning them against the deceitfulness of riches.

For instance, the possession of property promises security. And man's desire for security is a basic concern. We desire to have enough savings laid by to free us from anxiety over immediate necessities and future rainy days. As we say, we want enough money so that we do not have to worry. But the point where worry ceases seems to be an elusive goal, for we go on worrying about whether we have gotten enough so that we don't need to worry.

FEAR—HAUNTED

Herbert Agar in his 'Time for Greatness' declared that we are a fear-haunted people, and that strangely enough those who have the most so-called "securities" seem to feel the most insecure. If we are concerned about getting what belongs to us because we think that the more we get the more secure we shall feel, then beware of covetousness, for riches are very deceitful.

Another promise which wealth makes is that of recognition. A normal person desires to be respected as competent by his fellows. Whiting Williams, an authority on social attitudes, declared some years ago that the mainspring motive which turns the wheels of human nature is this: the desire to be a person among other persons. A man wants to be somebody, to have his children able to look other children in the face and feel no inferiority. And money does indeed help to secure such recognition.

MEASURE OF WORTH

But when our sense of personal worth depends on our social standing, we are started on a course of comparisons which is headed for unhappiness. When we feel that we must keep up with the Joneses we may catch up with John Jones on our street, but then we discover Sylvester Llewellyn Jones who lives in the bigger house farther up the hill. He is "the" Jones. And when our happiness depends on keeping up with "the" people at any place, we are bound to be disillusioned. Thus covetousness leads to the deceitfulness of riches by promising a social recognition which it cannot sustain.

Still another satisfaction which possessions promise to give is that of power. Most persons are human enough to like the power which money gives—the power to buy what they want and to go where they will. But this desire for power which possessions seem at first to satisfy is a demonic appetite that drives men to further and further excesses. As Emerson said, "Want is a growing giant whom the coat of Have was never large enough to cover."

Emerson's neighbor Henry Thoreau sought to check in his own life this driving desire for material possessions by going out to live the simple life in the country. Thoreau tells us in one of his writings that after he had cut down and sawed up so many trees to keep him warm, he put to himself this question, "What, did I do when I was warm?"

Thoreau was here pointing in the same direction as was Jesus when He answered the man who wanted aid-in getting a larger share of his inheritance. The Master of Life tried to lead men below the desire for things to the deeper question of what they would do with life after they got what belonged to them.

The way to keep dollars from deceiving us is to keep them from mastering us. When money becomes our master, it plays us false. But it can be a faithful servant. We say about money, "You can't take it with you." But Jesus said that you can so use money to enrich character that they will "receive you into the eternal habitations."

EARLY ROBBED

LONDON (Reuters)—A car belonging to the Earl of Westmorland was found abandoned in a southeast London street today 24 hours after it had been stolen from outside a London club, but jewelry and clothing worth almost £3,000 were missing from the car. The earl had parked the car after returning from the country where he and the countess had spent the weekend in a house party which included Queen Elizabeth.

A DUBIOUS QUALIFICATION

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce Wednesday presented a brief to the Gordon economic commission.

It is not surprising that the Chamber, representing businessmen of all types, merchants, industrialists, mining men and many others, should have some important things to say. Many of its suggestions were specific. It would be foolhardy to question their wisdom without careful study of the subject. But one sentence, a generality, appears to us to contain the germs of a highly dangerous assumption.

"Freedom of thought, freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom of action, all within the limits of public welfare, are essential concomitants to future progress," it asserts.

Firstly, we dislike the implication that these four freedoms are desirable primarily because they are essential to progress.

This may be true, but even if it were not true this would remain a thing of low rota the importance of preserving them.

Secondly, we dislike the qualification, "all within the limits of public welfare."

These four freedoms are related, one to another, but they are not four identical twins.

Certainly the individual's freedom of action must be limited by provision for the public welfare. It is desirable that this limitation should be as loose as is possible, but some limitation is imperative.

Freedom of religion is not really a separate freedom at all; it involves all three of the other freedoms, the right to think, the right to speak and the right to act. Actions which are carried out under religious pressure are subject to the same types of limitations as any other actions — for instance the state cannot permit human sacrifice just because somebody believes such sacrifices will please his god.

What limitations should be placed on freedom of speech is a moot point. Some nations, the British for example, go very far indeed before which other nations regard as absurd. Whatever limitations are imposed, though, they should be clearly and precisely outlined and the enforcement of them should be consistent for all people and for all circumstances.

When we come to freedom of thought we enter a realm where it is imperative that no limits be imposed. The Canadian Chamber of Commerce clearly and specifically includes it among the freedoms which should be kept "within the limits of public welfare." The fact is that any attempt by the state to keep this freedom within such limits would of itself do irreparable damage to public welfare. Where thought is translated into speech, and even more so where thought is converted into action, the state can, and in some cases should, act. But as long as a man merely thinks, no matter what he thinks, it is impossible to equate limitation with liberty.

The inherent danger in any attempt to limit thought, (and this applies also to measures to limit freedom of speech), is that too many governments have such rigid ideologies of what is right for the public that, in their opinion, any thought or word except a "Ja" vote is inconsistent with the public welfare.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE

If the bachelors of Fejoe Island get cold feet the spinsters of Copenhagen are assured, at least, of warm hands.

In Fejoe, the right to turn down a proposal of marriage from one, or more, of the fair sex is accompanied by a tariff of 12 pairs of gloves for the wounded damsel. Copenhagen spinsters specialize in the quadrennial handout on February 24th of each leap year.

There is a Danish custom that spinsters can invade the presidency of many Danish cities. Island 70 miles south of Copenhagen during leap year and propose marriage to members in good standing of the island's Bachelors' Association. If the bachelors refuse they must give the girl 12 pairs of gloves. If the bachelor is hurting out finished grade of iron from Ma-doc and Che Hill area."

Trying to solve dilemmas as complicated as this is like one of the reasons why Hamlet, Prince of Denmark, could never make up his mind.

EDITORIAL HAZARDS

Write an editorial complaining about the shortcomings of the modern generation of school graduates with regard to composition, grammar or spelling, and almost for certain up will crop an editorial sample of awkward composition, an error in grammar, and, more than likely, a mistake in spelling. As the latitude will know, none of these will be discovered until well after the paper has come off the press. (Brantford Expositor.)

TAKE CARE

Take care of yourself," I hear them say,
And that I have said I'd do,
But sitting still in a chair all day
Is dullness through and through.

Leaves something to be desired.
And even reading the latest book
The eyes will soon grow tired.

Contentment comes from whatever is done
For need or pleasure or pell,
And this is a fact: there isn't much fun
In taking care of yourself.

Belleville Defeats Midland.

The Belleville Intermediates did themselves credit last night in an unequalled performance when they defeated Midland hockey team by a score of 13 to 1. When the local boy played in Midland the score was 10 to 4 in favor of Midland. The standing on the round is now Belleville 17, Midland 11. How Midland managed to defeat our boys in Midland by a score of 10 to 4 will always be a dark mystery. One should have seen the game last night to realize the thrills and excitement and happiness that was enjoyed by the large crowd of local fans. Our boys were stars from the net out. More finished hockey was not witnessed the game for Belleville. The following composed the Belleville team: Conley, Whitty, Symons, Pinkle, Whalen, Mitchell, and Symonds. Bobby Kerr manager of Toronto was the referee and we sure do like Bobby's decision now. Conley, our diminutive net custodian, deserves special comment; Pinkle and Whalen had it all over the Midland forwards and Symonds and Mitchell were never troubled by their checks; Ben Whitty did some grand rushing and broke away fast; the brilliant work of Bill Symons is past our power to describe, he was the king performer. Bonnie Shorey is a proud man today.

The Cheese Company team defeated the Ritchie Store team in a hockey match last evening by a score of 4 to 1. The following composed the teams: Chown Company, Moore, Sanders, Page, Drumm, R. Page, Symons and Hall; Ritchie Store, Gibson, Bull, McCreary, McIlrath, Simonds, Mathews, Chown and Ritchie.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Without fail, The Packsack always calls its readers' attention to any books bearing the name of Roger Tory Peterson. It was he produced in 1934 the first field guide to the wild birds which today has by far the largest sale in the little pocket manual carried by outdoorsmen and nature lovers all over America from the Florida keys to Alaska or Chimo. So remarkable was it, in fact, that British outdoorsmen got Peterson to go over and produce a pocket manual for the birds of the British Isles and Europe. Then his publishers got him to supervise the work of scientists in other fields, and we got pocket manuals on the mammals, on butterflies, on animal tracks, on ferns, on seashells and on rocks and minerals. Competent experts prepare the material for these books, but Peterson edits them, and applies to them the simple principles of easy and sure identification which made his bird guides the success they have been. A pocket manual on wildflowers is now in preparation and likely to be off the press next summer.

But the latest of the Peterson series is a new edition of the manual on rocks and minerals. When the first edition came out, in 1933, the interest in uranium had not reached the sensational proportions it has since. Despite that, the first edition sold 60,000 copies. The new edition has a special section added by the author, Dr. Paul F. Kerr and H. Pough, eminent American geologist, devoted to uranium, with a map of the uranium producing areas, and with eight more photographs of minerals, five of them in color.

The uranium map reveals what immense possibilities Canada holds for the future discovery of the mineral, and bears out the recent prophecies of our Canadian producers that this country will in short order be the greatest producer perhaps in the world. As regards the fever of uranium prospecting which swept the continent in the past year, Dr. Pough writes:

"The moral is: if you must prospect for uranium, or for anything else, go where it is likely to be, and worth finding if it is there. Don't follow the drunk who drops his key in the middle of the block and looks for it under the corner lamppost because the light is better there."

The most exciting phrase in the section on Uranium is that the author frankly says that any guess "as much as is known" about the mineral and its location. Prospectors into all like that.

Man Looks at the Moon

(New York Times)

For the last few hundred thousand years, and, in fact, in this system, less enchantment of the moon.

In the long millenia of pre-history, as he looked up, he lived fearfully around the smoldering campfires, he gazed upon cold, inimical orb with awe and apprehension. His incantations and offerings were made to propitiate it in the unpredictable comings and goings.

Much later, when it was thinking and communication had become more systematized, he measured out time by it. Still later, he based his calendars on it, and this proved to be a sad mistake.

Of the hundreds of lunar calendars invented by mankind, not one was devised which would come into some accurately. Twenty-five years ago, perhaps — and the planting season was hopelessly out of joint with observers of the fertility priests — proof that the gods were angry.

Not in many hundreds of centuries did man learn to place his faith in the steadfast sun, leaving the moon to lie own vagaries. Even when he did so, it lost nothing of its fascination for him.

Today it is the same. We, gazing overhead at the strange, glistening satellite, feel the compelling power of joint with observers of the fertility priests — proof that the gods were angry.

Not in many hundreds of centuries did man learn to place his faith in the steadfast sun, leaving the moon to lie own vagaries. Even when he did so, it lost nothing of its fascination for him.

Today it is the same. We, gazing overhead at the strange, glistening satellite, feel the compelling power of its invisible attraction, which sets the lunatic-case at wailing on the shores of the world, works also on the human heart, linking that warm and pulsating thing to the realm of the silent and sublime.

Never could moon seem more magic more powerfully or subtly than on a cold winter night, with the sheeted snow of earth and its ghostly radiance. While most of the world sleeps, the moon, like even the mole and the mouse budding in their nests beneath the snow, the moon casts its eerie, mystic light on city and countryside, on field and forest.

He who ventures abroad in the night, when the moon is at the zenith, light will be reminded of certain things.

As he catches the elusive glint of the moon's rays on branch and bush, he will remember that at that same moment Shakespeare once referred to it as "the pale fire," and gratefully to "the glimpses of the moon".

As he strolls contemplatively along path and through field the snow crunching crisply under foot, he will also remember that the ancients attributed strange powers to the moon — the lunes body.

Indeed, our word lunatic derives directly from lunar, and the wild cry of the loon—from which the bird gets its name—always seems to drawn — was once deemed the result of moon madness.

As our wanderer pauses and looks about him he has a full inkling of what moon madness means. The snowy field stretches away in an almost glittering whiteness of daylight. It is subdued, softened—bewitched.

The nearest trees are limned in the same kind of phosphorescent glow. So are the bushes near at hand. Across the field the house and buildings of the farm stand in the same angles revealed in a detached, ghostly way. Only in such a wanderer suddenly that this is not able to read print.

This is a place as remote, cold and timeless as the mountains of the moon. Even the footprints he leaves behind him, as he makes his way back to the farmhouse, are quickly obliterated by the drifting snow that turns toward home, and warmth and love.

Leave this strange, pale realm to the fox and the lonely owl shiver. For the time being, at least, they're serious enchantment spend itself. The home made feel good and the medicine eases coughing but does not suppress cough.

From both experimental observation and carefully controlled tests of human volunteers harm.

Most Mobile Detective

Readers Digest)

An attempt to steal $900,000 in gold and diamonds from London Airport's gem-laden cargo warehouse was foiled by a trap as daring as the robbery itself. Police say it was as he has sprung others before and since, was Donald Fish, Chief Securities Officer of the Overseas Airways Corp.

Fish likes to see that precious cargoes get safely to their destinations.

Keeping constantly around the world to track down clues, Fish's "beat" covers 76,931 miles of air travel a year. His personality is detective in history and is appropriately named for the Great Fish.

The airline carries annually much of it in diamonds, gold bullion, platinum, and atomic materials. Since a safe weighs too much to be transported only in small precious — cargo locker. Cargoes pass through the hands of loaders and unloaders, checkers and guards. If a cargo disappears, the search must extend to Australia. Fish must search a 12,000-mile beat in the air and also he has built a highly effective security system.

Tact, memory and patience are both phenomenal, and have helped Fish overcome many a man who he thief and smuggler. A magazine article tells of an attempt to smuggle 4,000 carats of diamonds that was stopped because Fish heard a clerk mention that a London stamp dealer who was moving to New York. Fish recalled that there was the fact that the man had been involved in a stamp-forgery case a few years before.

The article recounts the details by which Fish uncovered in suspected from Hong Kong to Tokyo; and the daring exploits that led to the arrest of a large diamond-smuggling ring.

The greatest need for the future an international association of airline security officers and a world headquarters that can pool information and act on it instantly.

Judges Trade White Gloves

(London Free Press)

I have often wondered what the judges used the white gloves for which are presented to them when there is an assize with no criminal cases. Did they accumulate them over the years or what become of them?

Sheriff Russell Beattie in speaking to the London Kiwanis Club cleared up this tricky legal point. He said the judges usually took the gloves back to the sheriff's dasher and changed them for a couple of ties. The sheriff has settled this mystery.

Union Head Hits Loafers

(Wall Street Journal)

Our candidate for the man to watch in the labor movement is Mr. Andrew Harvey of Kansas City, Missouri, president of local 124, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The United Press reports that Mr. Harvey thinks there is too much loafing in the U.S. and that labor unions. "Some projects are more like a convalescent home than a construction job." Mr. Harvey says. "Workers can't expect to maintain the high wage scale without giving good work for it.

In order to teach the members what the United Press calls Harvey reasons, they must first be taught what it is to be out of work.

By paying the tuition for his members he enrolled in the University of Kansas City in an unusual course. The course teaches just what loafing is like. It is held in the evenings.

The will include strict admonitions not to leave tools and helpers at home and never to say "I don't know" to any request without making it quite plain which you mean.

All of this means less stretch-out and more speed-up and if it works Mr. Harvey may be a labor leader to come out with those provisions that's hard to imagine. Mr. Harvey is a man to watch. It's our opinion that any leader who does tell his members to go home wiring and less chiseling on the job, is definitely a leader to watch.

But we wouldn't care to predict exactly where. If his loafing proves successful, his approach to labor relations, Mr. Harvey might go far indeed. Or, failing that, he might end up with plenty of time for loafing himself.

Mae West's Slow Curves

("Tracks" Magazine)

The "Mae West" is one of the few narrow gauge lines still operating in South Africa. Built over fifty years the train, which gets her popular name from the numerous curves on her route, has also made her leisurely way between Port Shepstone and Harding in the Southern part of Natal. On her two-foot gauge, she climbs nearly 3,000 feet over a distance of only forty-six miles from the coast, taking ten hours to do it. Some of her trucks are only waist high with standard locos, but she has plenty of bargow's. Her day coach is just over twelve feet long. In 1921, well-known long-distance runner Arthur Newton beat the train by running the distance in eight hours, a nice little to the "Mae West," it must be said that Newton had no stops to make.

The Persistence of Popular Delusions

Perhaps the tin soldier posture assumed by the West Point plebe at command of the upperclassman is overcorrection of the hereditary slouchy posture of unsophisticated youth. Certainly it is not the bearing the officer acquires at West Point.

Neither physical efficiency nor athletic capability requires one to push out the chest and pull in the belly. Such antics have as much to do with manly strength or womanly beauty as applying hormones to the body surface, varnishing the nails or painting the map.

I'm pretty sure no one has shown that addition of an antiseptic or germ-killing agent to soap makes the soap a better remedy for or preventative against disease or infection. Soap itself is the best and safest disinfectant for personal use.

A great many misguided people think the purpose of cough medicine is to stop or suppress coughing. This is not only wrong but dangerous. Only in certain unusual circumstances is it advisable to suppress coughing. The proper function of cough medicine is to aid or facilitate coughing and expectoration. Coughing is nature's way to remove from breathing tubes something which irritates breathing and causes sores or lungs or obstructs them. The home made fowl pyrol cough medicine eases coughing but does not suppress cough.

The story of Cain and Abel is known to every Bible reader. Cain slays his brother and when God asks Cain the whereabouts of his brother, Cain's reply is, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

The Old Testament affirms that every man is his brother's keeper; the New Testament declares that every man is his brother's brother. This principle is emphasized in thousands of years of moral improvement in human outlook.

For Christianity is a brotherhood religion. It says that all men are brothers and that they are brothers for the simple reason that they are men. They have a common Creator, a common Father, and a common purpose for which the Creator has put them on earth. If you are your brother's brother,

BOOKS I LIKE

I like most books that have been written for a purpose, not merely to sell. And these are the kind that endure. The "best sellers," mind you, but the best read ones. And the best beloved ones. Books to which one can go again and again for pleasure, inspiration and genuine joy.

In this column I have noted thousands of books over the years, but I have never named many books that wasn't worth while. I received a letter from a reader within the past few days in which he asked me what books I thought every leader to come out with those provisions that's hard to imagine. Mr. Harvey is a man to watch. It's our opinion that any leader who does tell his members to go home wiring and less chiseling on the job, is definitely a leader to watch.

But we wouldn't care to predict exactly where. If his loafing proves successful, his approach to labor relations, Mr. Harvey might go far indeed. Or, failing that, he might end up with plenty of time for loafing himself.

Up book, by Marcus Aurelius, in which he comments upon life and tells of his own philosophy; the essays of Alexander Smith, which I called "Dreamthorp"; "Life of a Roadmender," by Michael Fairless; "Life," by Bishop Oaler; "Stickeen," by John Muir—just to name a few at random.

I have travelled the earth with these books and many more during my library! Lew Wallace wrote a great book, "Ben Hur," about the days of Christ and the Roman races—but he was never there. Stanley Weyman wrote a famous book about the expelling of Acadians from Nova Scotia, which he called "Lovingdale" but he never heard of his feet to Nova Scotia!

I like all good books, and there are those for every mood and occasion. Henry Van Dyke, author, once gave me a little book, called "The Complete Sayings of Jesus," which can be read each day for long as one lives. Great books do not die!

'Pile of Bones' Grew to City

By LEONARD L. KNOTT
Illustrated by Jack Turnbull

Most Canadian cities began as trading posts or forts. Some were lumber towns and some grew up around gold or copper mines.

On the Canadian prairies is a city with the strangest beginning of all. When it began everyone laughed at it and thought that the people who started it were crazy to build it where it is. It was not near any settled area, had no mines or forests or local industries. It was built because a railway and a government wanted it there and the very little early history that it had was that of Indians and buffalo.

The western plains at this particular point had no river, no trees and no hills or mountains. Even the Indians had little use for it and came there only on their way to and from their buffalo hunting grounds. Yet it was these same Indians that gave the district its first fame.

Hunting buffalo was a dangerous game when they were on horseback galloped across the dry prairie, so Indians devised a better and safer way of killing the animals. They built huge pounds or corrals which they used as traps, building them on the edges of steep banks so that the buffalo could be driven inside and then forced to plunge over the banks in their death behind.

One of these corrals was on the bank of Wascana Creek. There, the Indian medicine men would gather with the hunters and then a skilled hunter called Who-Brings-Them-In would ride out along to coax the buffalo nearer. The animals would be drawn into the wide opening of the corral and then suddenly the Indians hiding in the brush would run out shouting and yelling, frightening the buffalo so that they would rush head-long over the bank of the creek.

THOUSANDS KILLED

As over the years thousands of buffalo were killed in the Wascana Creek corrals the bed of the creek filled up with white buffalo bones. The first white men passing there saw the remains of the slaughtered buffalo and called the creek Pile of Bones. The creek itself had been called Wascana taken from the Cree Indian word oskana which means bones.

Many hunters and traders in the west knew about Pile of Bones but no one in eastern Canada had ever heard of it. Then in the eighteen eighties the Canadian Pacific Railway was being built across the Prairies. In the eastern section of this great empty land there was need for a city for railway workers, for land surveys and government offices. There was no really logical location, no one point was better than any other so the railway when a decision had to be made, it was decided to build the new city at Pile of Bones.

All across Canada there was laughter at this new western "city". But settlers moved in; shops and stores and public buildings were built. The town grew and became a city. It became a provincial capital in the heart of one of the great wheat countries of the world.

In spite of the laughter which greeted its founding, it was given the regal name Regina and soon became known as the Queen City of the Prairies. Capital of the Province of Saskatchewan, "Pile of Bones" is today one of Canada's important cities thankful for years ago the Indians chose that area as a site for their buffalo traps and thus gave it a name to help the future town planners select their site.

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE CHOSEN TWELVE

When Jesus chose His seventh disciple, He shocked everyone who knew Him. The first six were fishermen, poor men and uneducated, perhaps, but the kind of men all the people liked.

The seventh was a publican.

A publican was a special kind of tax-collector. His job was to sit at a booth on the highway, and stop every traveller and merchant, and collect money from them. The money went to the Roman conquerors, whom every one in Palestine hated. And because they hated the Romans, they despised anyone who worked for them.

The most unpopular man in Capernaum was the publican whose name was Levi. There was no personal reason for them to hate him. He was a good-natured fellow. He had taken this job only because he was desperately poor, and needed work. He might as well sit in his booth on the highway, lonely and cast, while the villagers spat hatred tricks on him and no one scolded them.

"Disobey!" Levi would yell at him as he walked down the street. "Thief!"

And Levi who was not a thief but an honest man, would bear his head and say nothing at all.

He worked hard and carefully, guarding the money he had to collect for the Romans, keeping track of every mile and penny. And he was the most lonely man in town, for no one would be his friend.

One afternoon Levi sat at his booth, with a helper at his side, when Jesus came walking down the road. Jesus stopped and looked into the eyes of the publican.

"Follow Me!" Jesus said suddenly.

QUICK TO FOLLOW

Instantly the publican stood up. Not a moment's question. Levi, the despised, the friendless, rushed from his booth. He called his assistant to take over the collection of the taxes, and without waiting for anything he walked off briskly with his Master.

He was asked to follow—and he did it at once.

How proud he was to be with Peter and Andrew, James and John, Philip and Nathanael that afternoon. Prouder still to be bought the best, for he was presently a feast for the Master and His other disciples.

And when the feast was ready, Matthew hurried out to find guests to help him celebrate, and with Jesus. But the good men of Capernaum still would not come to Matthew's house. The only guests he could find were others like himself, people no one wanted. Tramps. Beggars. The men who drank too much. Gamblers and the good-for-nothings of the town. These were the people Matthew brought to sit at table with Jesus, because the others were too proud to come. And the good people of the town came secretly in the moonlight, to peek through the windows and see for themselves that Jesus was eating with such a rag, tag and bobtail crowd.

"Imagine! Eating with a publican—and with those awful people! That's no place for Jesus to be!" they said to themselves.

When some of the disciples had finished supper, they walked out into Matthew's garden for a breath of air. One of the spies who had peered through the window grabbed Peter's arm.

"Look here!" he blustered. "Why does your Master eat and drink with publicans and sinners, instead of with good people, like us?"

JESUS ANSWERED

The answer came at once, not from Peter, but from Jesus. Suddenly in the lighted doorway stood the tall lean figure of the Teacher from Nazareth, calling to them:

"Those who are well need no doctor—but those who are sick need him. Go, you, and learn this: I am not come to call the just, but sinners to repentance."

And the spies drifted off into the darkness. There was nothing for them to say. Jesus had said it all. He had come to save sinners, who needed Him far more than the people who are already good! And if the good are too proud to look for the Lord among the friendless and the poor and the sinners, they will find Him in hell.

It was only a few days later when the news of the death of John the Baptist came that Jesus made the final choice of the men who were to be His disciples.

Some were already with Him, friends of every day. Others Jesus had chosen silently from the crowds that had followed Him for months. Now he named those others, and sent Peter and James and John to fetch them assembled all on the pebbly shore of the Sea of Galilee, far from the crowds.

Bald and bearded Peter with his freckled nose; sturdy, energetic James, the tall brother Andrew. Near them stood the pale Nathanael. They came brighteyed John, and his brother James, the fisherman son of Zebedee. And beside them Matthew, the publican. Philip, muscular and athletic, and with an arm around Matthew's shoulder.

Then there were two newcomers, strangers to the group.

First there was another, young, er James, and his two brothers, Jude Thaddeus and Simon Zelotes. Strange as it seems, these two were cousins of the Lord. Their mother was a grown-up sister of Mary, Jesus' mother. Not until this day did they come to work with Jesus, but for a long time He had been watching them, and He knew the goodness of their hearts.

There was also one named Thomas, the bull-headed stubborn man, we know today as doubting Thomas. And last of all stood a thin-faced, silent fellow, a man named Judas Iscariot.

When the search they stood, twelve men and God.

CHOSEN AS MESSENGERS

Jesus told them He had chosen them as His messengers. He used the word "apostle," which in the language of that day meant "one who is sent."

"Go you and preach," He said, saying: the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand. . . . Heal the sick, raise the dead . . . and be that receives you, receives Me."

Carefully and in detail Jesus explained to these twelve men how difficult their job as apostles would be. He told them that they would be arrested, and beaten, and thrown into jail, and that men would hate them because they preached of Him. He told them of all the dangers and sorrows that waited for them.

But He told them too that they should have no fear, for God would watch over them, protect them, and bring them one day to heaven.

The twelve apostles listened in silence.

Their lives had changed so completely, so quickly. Only a few days before they had been busy with the things of everyday—with earning a living, and buying and selling, and worrying about the weather. Suddenly Jesus had chosen them. And now they were to be messengers of God — teaching and preaching, and healing the sick as Jesus did. Now they were to face even death for the sake of their Master. God had chosen them as His own.

Your Car

Warm Engine Thoroughly In Winter

By EUGENE MILMOE

There was a time when a car dealer had little difficulty selling the low mileage, used model "one merly owned by a teacher who drove it only on short daily trips to and from her school."

Today, however, opinions are changed. It is now generally agreed that low-speed, short-run driving and or constant stop-and-go is the worst type as far as the promotion of engine deposits and rapid wear is concerned.

Too often, especially in winter of course, the engine never gets an opportunity to function warm up properly. Lubrication is poor because of the low temperatures and gasoline by products, instead of being burned off in the heat way up the crankcase where they contaminate the oil and encourage formation of sludge deposits.

H.F. writes: "Whenever I slow down and make a turn, I get a kind of squeaking noise which seems to come from the right front wheel section. It is definitely not a tire noise, but it sounds more like need greasing or rubbing."

(A) This may be shock absorber noise. Check for linkage wear, looseness or lack of lubrication.

SLOW START

From C.A.: "When the engine of my 1953 model, is cold, it's a little hesitant when starting, and during the warm-up it is very rough, even stalling at times. Choke, carburetor and ignition were all re-checked. Recalling a similar trouble described in one of your columns, I had the mechanics inspect for air leaks at the carburetor and manifold, but they found nothing. Gasoline additives were also tried on the chance that frost was clogging the carburetor temporarily. Can you suggest now?"

(A) Check on the manifold heat riser. It may be sticking or the thermostatic spring might be faulty.

S.K. asks: "My tires have begun to squeal on turns. What causes this?"

(A) Underinflation is the usual reason, although excessive caster angle alignment could be to blame.

Mrs. M.D. writes: "I just had a cracked engine block, on my 1951 car, welded. The man who did the job told me to use only plain alcohol, not the permanent type of anti-freeze. What is his reason for this caution?"

(A) Evidently, he feels permanent type anti-freeze may invite leakage at the weld, or for that matter, a weak spot in the cooling system. These solutions can seep through hairline cracks and porous areas which would not be penetrated by water or plain alcohol.

Other people would think that years of Nazarite had produced strange friends.

"A bunch of dumb fishermen, most of them. And a publican. What kind of apostles are those?" they asked.

But God often chooses the people others would leave behind, and with His help and grace the dullest and the ugliest and the dumbest of all can become apostles, serving Him today. Anyone — freckle-nosed fisherman from Galilee, or a pug-nosed child from a modern city—can become truly great just by giving his heart to the Lord completely.

For that was the secret of the twelve apostles. They had given their hearts to Jesus of Nazareth, completely.

Bulletins From Birdland

WHITE BABIES

For camouflage, eggs and nestlings are colored to match surroundings. Those of the killdeer plover are less frequently preyed upon because they usually are blotched to resemble the ground. Those of the bittern are practically invisible on a pebbled roof on account of their markings. The marsh hawk builds a nest in holes, this foresight on the part of Mother Nature is unnecessary, and so both eggs and babies are white.

One species, the great horned owl, occasionally nesting in hollow trees or caves, generally takes over one of another of the large bird, such as a red-tailed hawk, a bald eagle, or a heron, in which nest in the open. How is it that their white eggs and white nestlings are not concealed?

It seems incredible that nesting birds should be going on in Canada at this season—but it really is. In fact several of our birds are at least thinking seriously of it if they have not actually begun. The great horned owl, with its snow-white eggs and later snow-white babies, is perhaps the most surprising of all, but by the thought that these will be seen, Because they are in white surroundings. Its home grounds being snow covered.

Canada Jays lay eggs in February even temperatures are sometimes below zero. For warmth, their nests are built back and thickly lined with fur or feathers. Their four greyish eggs are marked with dots and spots of olive brown.

Horned larks are accustomed to take over household duties in early March. Although they choose cosy spots in beds of moss for their homes, these are frequently discovered by owls. Often more snow falls after the eggs have been laid. The nest is lined with hair and feathers to keep the greenish, speckled eggs warm. But great horned owls, Canada jays, and horned larks must all sit pretty tight in cold weather.

Why can peregrine falcons have white eggs and white babies at the end of March when more snow is unlikely? Probably, because they are high above the ground, they can protect their property against almost any predator, and their ordinary nesting sites are on high buildings or cliffs, away from danger.

But the home of the marsh hawk is on the ground. Its difficulties with whitish eggs and downy, white offspring amidst summer growth? Perhaps few predators enjoy entering cattail swamps, or encountering wicked looking eyes and hooked beaks.

GREATEST PAINTER OF MADONNAS

(Article 21)

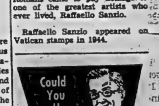
In the Dresden Gallery of Art hangs one picture worth more than one and a half million dollars.

It is one of the most famous paintings in the world — "The Sistine Madonna." People travel thousands of miles to see this masterpiece. Some of them spend a whole day, fascinated by the beauty of the colors, the tender features and the graceful pose of mother and child. This painting is reprinted a million times every year.

The man who painted this Madonna was one of the most beloved artists in the world.

He started to paint when he was barely ten. From that day on he devoted his life to his art with passion and love greater than any man before or after him.

While he was creating immortal beauty on his canvas, his had a striking appearance himself. His long, chestnut hair fell almost down to his shoulders; his features were pure and innocent like those of a child and he had a smile that won even the hearts of his envious fellow-painters.



It is told that, once, as he walked through the streets, he was captivated by the sight of a lovely young girl sitting on the doorstep of her house with a child in her arms. Afraid of losing the vision of this charming scene, he grasped a barrel that stood nearby and sketched on the lid the picture which was to become the famous "Madonna of the Chair."

He never struggled in life as many other artists. Fame and wealth came to him as easily as a dream. He was a favorite of Pope Julius II who was so enchanted by his art that he listed him as one of the twelve in the table of a Cardinal. He was called upon to decorate the Vatican and there you find today his most magnificent paintings.

LIFE-LIKE PAINTING

The story goes that, when he had completed a portrait of Pope Leo X, a secretary who entered the room spoke to the painting because it was so real and when he took it for the Pope himself.

While his reputation spread all over his native Italy, the painter himself remained humble and modest. In his friendly and gentle way he often let his pupils share his success and glory. He painted many portraits as well as Biblical and historical scenes, but his most precious masterpieces are his Madonnas. Over fifty times he painted feminine beauty as a Madonna and you' will find these paintings in the art galleries of the world.

a violent fever. Neglecting his illness he began to paint his picture "Transfiguration," but he never finished his work. His condition suddenly grew worse until he could no longer hold the brush. A few days later he died. The still-wet painting was placed beside his casket and thousands of Romans came to pay homage to one of the greatest artists who ever lived, Raffaello Sanzio.

Raffaello Sanzio appeared on Vatican stamps in 1944.

This and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

You may recall that T. & T. drew attention before last Christmas to the efforts of the women of Canada's war groups in Belleville and, in a subsequent column, mentioned the influence of expansion in this area. We thought then that we were beginning to get the significance of women's organizations in this area. We have since realized we really had not realized the extent of the work and the contribution made and we are very happy to make this confession.

We remember asking a London "hobby" once who the statue of Queen Victoria in front of the city hall did not know, though he had been on the Piccadilly beat for a long time. He said he was really tired and consequently being curious, had never bothered to find out. We have been affected through the contributions of the pennies of working people to the services of the Red Cross Society for all he had done for them.

Similarly, the many communities, newcomers often discover facts of which long-time residents are unaware.

Two ladies who have come to Belleville in the past few years have observed that in Belleville there is a fairly great number of organized groups of women, working in one way or another towards the betterment of the city's welfare. This number includes the many church groups which are active.

Maybe Belleville is unique or holds a record of some kind, but it is a matter of record that the first organized group of women in Canada is established, build and finance a hospital was a group of ladies. We are fortunate enough to have in our midst an active member of the original group of women in Belleville which started the hospital. Mrs. R. Mikel was then, and still is, a source of great inspirational strength to women. The Women's Christian Association was begun in the last century and the Belleville General Hospital is the living monument to the virtue of their endeavors. Virtue has its own reward."

Since the day when women's groups were a rarity, we have seen their activities spread into every phase of community endeavour, for & T believes to the benefit of all. So far the record is impressive and interesting, but it does not stop here within the city limits of Belleville.

It was our good fortune to hear Mrs. John Buchan, president of the Ontario Hospital Auxiliaries, say that as she travelled through, out the length and breadth of the province she has not found such co-operative effort as she has seen in this Bay of Quinte community. The Americans had a boast that what was good for the United States was good for the world. Adlai Stevenson says it should be what that is good for the world is good for the United States. We can take both these sayings and apply them to the Bay of Quinte, then claim that this is indeed a fine example of unity of purpose and endeavor for Ontario and Canada.

So-Ed Club Plans Spring Activities

The final meeting of the So-Ed executive committee which is responsible for organizing the spring "56 So-Ed, was held at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday night.

Plans for the coming spring "56 So-Ed are now complete and the session promises to provide interest items for a wide variety of tastes.

So-Ed, meaning Social-Education, is a program of informal education for adults. It is dedicated to meet the interest needs of individuals and to use that time to present an opportunity for group education and experience. So-Ed served to enable people to gain a better understanding of themselves, society and the world about them. While doing it a service to the city it gives the individual a good time and the companionship of others in his or her age group. The So-Ed movement has become national in scope and is sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. and sometimes jointly with the Y.W.C.A. In some organizations such as churches have also sponsored So-Ed groups.

The first registration evening of the spring "56 So-Ed will be held at the Y on Tuesday, March 6th, at 7.30 p.m. till 9 p.m. and on Thursday, March 15th, at 7.30 p.m. until 9 p.m. From 9 p.m. until midnight on Wednesday, March 21st, at the Y, social activities, the main purpose of which is to get the new people acquainted as possible by means of group games and mixed parties.

So-Ed meetings will be held every Tuesday evening for seven eight weeks starting on March 13th, this spring of "56. At a social evening of So-Ed in Belleville Old members recall lots of past fun and enjoyment and are looking forward to many more So-Ed meetings and to meeting many more new So-Ed members.

Letters from Mexico

By Arnold Meyers

January 24, 1956
Campeche, Camp., Me'xico.

Well, here I am in Campeche, provided with Canadian Club. The more I see of it the more I like it. I left Merida on January 23rd after spending a letter in it. Let, who is the head of a syndicate of American dentists. I have seven pera. At present he is situated in Mexico City, Mexico.

Bill Enders, who is the representative of a British periodical here in Campeche, has written his address and strongly advised me to write him, when I get there, an outline of my expedition into the Cave of Lolton. Bill has written a letter of introduction to his representative in Guatemala City instructing him to look after me. He says it is even possible that, if I play my cards right and write a few paying pictures, do drawings that would be useful to the Guatemalan Journals, the Guatemalan Tourist Bureau might take me around the country for a few weeks free when he said it. "Well, it's quite possible," he added, "that I could get gotten yourself in with something like that, it could develop into something better for you. I have travel agent for all Central America." Bill's last suggestion, however, since the late revolution cut down the tourist traffic. Now it has to be worked back again. Costa Rica wants tourists; so does Nicaragua, Honduras, Panama, president of Nicaragua, is a very easy person to see."

NOTHING!

Bill thinks my articles are quite good. He remarked that the Toronto Star printed a few articles about the Island Cenumel was a drunk one time. At that time it was really a mess. This was for 'Holiday' the leading travel magazine in Canada. It is a good stuff that was not even true, and the island of Cenumel was only a few dozens asking to see the wonderful dream island, but when the tourists arrived, "Holiday" was nothing at all—no good food; no entertainment, and no hotels. Were those tourists ever mad! and what letters 'Holiday' received!

I took the boat from Merida to Philip Excalante, the head of the Socialist Party in Yucatan, Mexico. He thought it good although he had difficulty to buy it. I hardly expected that since the population is Mexican. They would hire their own writers. He is cheaper and has deepatched a letter to Mr. Hurtado Hernandez, a compadre story outline, together with mention of artistic accomplishments in connection with the story. I hope that too bad I hadn't had a larger selection of more powerful light.

TROPICAL FISH

I regretted leaving Merida in a way because I had made so many friends. So many there want me to write to them. An artist wants me to write to him in Spanish as he will reply in Spanish. The family of Mr. Let spent their Christmas Day wants to hear from me also, and of course, there are the Hernandez's. Mr. Joy left about January 12 for Mazatlan, Mexico. He is going to meet a fellow from New Orleans, who is interested in capturing samples of tropical fish. He regretted that he had not met me a little earlier, because we could have discussed so many things of mutual interest. He is, however, returning to Guatemala next year and is supposed to look me up. He wants to go down to the Rio Champoton looking for these fish. It would be something quite unique and different to go along with him. He is a big, fat man, and a great talker, and remarkably ambitious for his size, and of great ability to boot.

He wants to see Palenque and to go to Guatemala where he intends to go to Lake Peten Itza on which is situated the small city of Flores (see your map.) He seems to have a most remarkable intellect. Says he has all the innovation that is needed in most of the outdoors type; detests formality and likes to be at ease. I think I shall suggest to him that we go together to Palenque since he has experience in that vicinity. Gutierrez and on down through Chiapas and across the bridge over the Grijalva (Greenbelly) collapsed, and the big truck was crossing and this will take months to repair. So, at the moment Comitan will be Tenejapa, Costaalcoalco (Puerto Arista), Tapachula, Tapachula, Guatemalan border.

AMAZING MANSIONS

Now about things about Merida left to tell: One Sunday I walked up the Avenida Nachi Cocom distributing the Bibles and the wonderful mansions along the way. This is Merida's grand boulevards. There are some of these mansions near the beginning of the street which is about simply boarding houses. How did they get that way? Quite an article could be written on the subject. Somebody gambled his money away, lost his home. The new owner fell upon evil days, and was never able to pay the taxes, so from one thing to another, the house is now a boarding weather-beaten old relic serving as a boarding house. But inside it is like a palace—utterly amazing! What wonderful decorating by old Spanish families did they do, modern Yucatecos are keeping up the old work, many of whom have statuettes in their gardens. Often I would barge my way in and take photographs of one place where the children were playing. There was a cute statue of a little boy in a fountain. The children seeing me, were all smiles and beckoned me to the entrance of a big cement door (even from the) led cement steps. The large room down below was for the purpose of preserving a dead body of a member of the family.

LARGEST MEXICAN STATUE

Strolling along, I noticed a little girl riding a roan pony, guided by a boy. She made good movie material. Evidently wealthy, the children usually went to school. A few rich young boys cantering along. In the park I saw the largest statue of what I was looking for, an enormous statue group. In honor of Mexico's Indian past and depicting symbolic representations of historical events. It is the largest and the grandest statue of its type in all Mexico. The work is almost half finished, but it is having been spent on the carving so far. The foundation is built around the central figure which has the features of an Indian. Leading up to the figure of the figure is a flight of steps and on either side at the bottom of the steps are two rock pillars, each bearing carvings of ancient Mayan activities. I hope that you may walk around both sides of these pillars, as the story of each which adjoins it. Upon this wall is a continuous panorama of historical events. Then the figure from the pre-conquest period, Montejo.

Now the first wall, there is a second upon which are carvings of every state in the Mexican Republic, and on the other side of all the way around this semi-circular monument. The lines side of the monument is the huge fountain; while along the inside of the long wall is a continuation of the allegory can be seen the present day. The very last portion of the outside wall are shown all Mexico's presidents from Hernandez, the first president, to Cortines, the present one.

MERIDA CEMETERIES

In much the same vein is the character of a Mexican cemetery. In company with Mr. Let I made an excursion to the Merida cemetery. When we got off the bus we were amazed at the large number of tombstones. It was like a street of tombs, all of all shapes and sizes. The first place we came to, the type of statue of Youth at the alcove. I was searching for the unusual. Then I saw a little girl about 4 a little boy holding a duck under his right arm—most unusual for a tombstone. No doubt this is a representation of the child as he played in the street or in the garden just as he would have had when outdoors playing.

In the vast sea of tombstones devoted to adults most had angels on top. All the angels were about so close together that you could scarcely step between. Apparently no one is buried beneath the ground here; but the cremated remains are put in the compartment beneath the monument. Along the walls are several enormous family vaults of the wealthy Merida aristocratic designs. One which I recall had a beautiful statue surrounded by a delicately wrought silver-like grill. Everything was simply glittered in the strong sunlight. Talk about ornateness! These Mexicans certainly have something beaten that I have ever seen.

Nearby is the native cemetery, or rather, the cemetery of the poorer class. Here the tombs are well-wrought stones; though very simple in design, and usually white and usually black in color, but highly polished. More use is made here of flowers, and there are a great many beautiful ones. I photographed one whose rose that was as red as blood, (an entire vase of them). There are hybiscus, bougainvillea and various others whose names I do not know.

There were but two stones in this cemetery worthy of note; one of a young child, a little girl, and one of old man. The latter was the more powerful, the more symbolic. Like Father Time with his scythe and bearing the weight of years on his shoulders.

MERIDA'S MARKET STREET

I want also to talk about the market of Merida and the Corner post office one has to go along Market Street, which is one of the older streets of the city. It is not surface being entirely cobbled. Often the cobbles are worn away with all manner of debris, juices and what-not. It is necessary to take your time to avoid landing in the mess. Stalls and booths line the street on both sides and to the post office, where all types of vendors display their goods. Everything from snakeskin shoes to walnuts is available here. In selling fruit it is the custom to lay out the fruit in little heaps of various sizes. There is a definite technique in buying this fruit. The vendor asks one peso for a certain size bunch; two peso for a larger and so on. In the case of oranges one commonly gets eight of them for one peso, which is one cent a piece. Imagine getting 24 oranges for less than a quarter! Usually one gets 12 bananas for one peso, but they are very small. Recently I purchased enormous Chicosapotes for 60 centavos which make a nice dessert for the end of the day's meal.

"Market Street" is always crowded, day and night; it, too, is a place that I've been such a crowded populated place in Merida. To attempt to hurry anywhere is utterly impossible. One has to leave the side walk and walk in the street a good deal of the time. All sidewalks are quite narrow, and in many places it is not possible for two to walk comfortably abreast.

Everybody rides in the middle of Market Street even though the odd car grinds its way in low gear through. The reason for this is that there are the bicycles to be considered, which, by the motorcycles are many in number. To the pedestrian, they are a nuisance, but to the cyclist, a joy.

MERIDA'S POST OFFICE

The post office is a large, yellow building with a tile roof. You turn into the stone walk which leads to the entrance, passing between two vendors' stands, and advance up the walk which is flanked by a row of tall palms. All the windows are open and this place is well ventilated. The wind blows through, thus you have to be most careful when getting your change that the wind doesn't blow them away. If you have a package to be registered the clerk places the appropriate number of stamps on top of each letter, piles them in a row, carefully passes them 'out to you. Then you, in turn, carefully affirmly take hold of the pile of letters, and then transfer them over to the nearest table upon which is a pot of paste and begin the process of licking and generously moistening your right forefinger, or left, into the messy pastepot.

There are two important reasons for this: (1) that the stamps do not stick very well anyway, and (2) the unsanitary nature of Mexican mucilage; and two, there is danger of picking up particles of dirt. After affixing a stamp in Latin America or anywhere else for that matter, especially if the stamp has been placed upon the slit of the wicket, gummed side down.

Anyway, you cannot be sure that the clerk will not lick them for then, too, is the thought of all the unwashed hands that have touched that slit. After moistening around with the paste and pressing the stamp carefully down on which to wipe your fingers, (on the bottom of the table or table top), you tamp down the stamps, walk over to the hole marked "Correo" and deposit the letter in hoping fervently that it will arrive at its destination.

The doctor to whom I went said that he has sent many letters to me which have never reached the engineer in Belize, British Honduras. Perhaps they have, but only half the letters his son sends back ever reach their destination.

Well, that cleans up Merida and brings me up to the present time's adventure in the wilds. Imagine a ride in a motor launch which manoeuvres up a jungle river! That is what you are going to have when I see you next summer.

I have mentioned Mr. Dick before in this letter. He really is a character. In spite of all his cussing and carrying on, I find him fully appreciative of me. He is ridiculous or anything of that nature. He is, in fact, a very explosive, surprised way in which he expresses his profanity when-ever he has anything outstanding.

TOO MUCH COMPANY

I met Mr. Dick in Merida only two days before I left. Prior to that I had asked him if he would look me up in Campeche to which he assented. He had planned to go to Isla Mujeres before leaving Merida. So I took a room there at a mere 9 pesos (71 cents per day) and went on before he left

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

KEEP UP YOUR COURAGE; THIS MAY NOT BE HOPELESS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a married man and have worked hard to provide a good home for my wife and three children. I have helped my wife more with the children and housework than the average man, but somehow she isn't satisfied.

Twice she left me for another man and each time I took her back. Now she says she is too young to be tied down and that she wants to go out with other men. When I get home from work she is all dressed up and just says: "I am going out tonight." She never says where she is going or with whom. I stay home and take care of the children while she is out. She doesn't cook for me, and I seldom see her any more. She comes in at three or four in the morning.

I have done all I can to try and make her happy, but nothing I do pleases her and I am more willing to take her anywhere she wants to go, but she doesn't want to go with me. She likes to go to bars without me along and sit with a bunch of boys talking and drinking.

She now says she is going to board our two girls out and put the boy in military school so she will not have to be bothered with them. She doesn't send the children to school anyway if she is out late and doesn't feel like getting them up in the morning. She lets them stay home and sends a note to the teacher saying that they are sick.

I have been told that if I divorced her she would get both our home and the children, as I am told the laws of our state always give the home and children to the wife, regardless of the cause of the divorce. She has told me I guess she would not take care of the children and I know that she would not be raised right. When we have talked about divorce I told her I wanted the children, but she said the court would give them to her and I would have to pay enough to board them out. I want to support them, and if she doesn't want them herself, why couldn't the court let me have them instead of her handing them out? She says if I start anything she will take the children and I never will see them at all. That would break my heart, for I love them very much. I have built my whole life around my home, my wife, and my children and I hate to see everything torn to pieces. — R.F.

Dear R.F.:

I gather that you would like to try everything possible before going to the extreme of divorce, so I suggest that you consult either a marriage counselor, if you can afford the fee, or, if you cannot, then the family service agency in your city. Your family physician should be able to direct you to either. I suggest also that you tell your doctor exactly what your problem is. Since he presumably knows your family fairly well, he might be able to make an opportunity to see and talk with your wife—perhaps on the grounds of giving her a physical check-up—and try to find out if there is any physical or mental cause for her behavior. If she hasn't always acted as she is doing now, it may be that some factor has taken place in her which would call for treatment from a doctor or psychiatrist.

With the help of either the marriage counsellor or the family service agency, plus your physician, it is possible that you may eventually solve the problem in such a way as to save your marriage.

I would also suggest that you have a confidential talk with the principal of the school your children attend and ask him what can be done about this part of the problem. The law is that children must attend school regularly, and they don't. It is the business of the school to find out what is wrong and how to correct it.

These are the steps I would advise you to take immediately.

If, as time goes on, your circumstances do not improve, then you may have to do something more drastic, in which case a talk with a lawyer would be next. I rather think you have been misinformed about the custody of the children in divorce cases, for where a mother has shown herself unfit to have them, I do not believe any province would automatically turn them over to her. However, put the matter of divorce aside until you have tried these other things, and try not to feel hopeless. Things may yet turn out better than now seems possible.

TODAY'S HOMEMAKERS CAN BE "UNIFORMLY" PRETTY

A uniform with that "professional touch" keeps the homemaker looking fresh as a daisy.

The homemaker who wants to look her prettiest even when she's dusting, sweeping, cooking, mending or ironing often finds that the very frocks in which she does her chores add to her tasks—of which she already has more than sufficient. Sure, she looks crisp and trim in her gaily printed cotton and ruffled pinafores. She doesn't mind in the least when the doorbell rings unexpectedly, for she's ready to meet anyone. But—and it's a big but—those cottons need a lot of ironing and, if she's already doing more than her share of ironing for hubby and the kids, well . . . how about a uniform?

If you're the type who looks her best in the sheath silhouette, you'll find some of your best home fashion pickings among the professional uniforms! Many a homemaker has wondered how nurses and other professional women always manage to have that fresh-as-a-daisy look. After all, they work hard, too!

A lot it depends on those crisp, immaculate uniforms that someone took brand new every day. They look that way because they're meticulously made—and they're invariably washable. Even the old-time uniforms were flattering. But the new ones this season —well, any homemaker will find it worth her while to look them over for their sheer fashion rightness!

New uniforms made of nylon or Dacron taffeta go in for smart details—sleeves, three-quarter length; for interesting yokes that extend over the shoulder line; for the slimmest of slim skirts— with back pleats or side slits, to permit easy movement—and often for fashionable peg pockets.

They're designed and made to be laundered after each wearing, of course—which is the way to achieve that daisy - fresh look you've always longed for. Just wash them with soap or detergent suds, rinse 'let them dry, and put them on again, with no ironing involved. Or maybe just a touch of a warm iron here and there if you feel like it. Since uniforms are long-wearing and very moderately priced, homemakers might as well make the most of their budgets!

82-Year-Old Ottawa Woman Grows Flowers for Hobby

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The last four letters are 82-year-old. Ottawa woman has been giving away lovely blossoms to friends and strangers alike.

Mrs. Irene Byers says she has no idea how many bulbs have grown and bloomed in her home nursery. But she does know "I've never sold a plant in all my life."

Mrs. Byers, who claims both English and Irish ancestry but leaves no one guessing about the Irish, chuckled and admitted she always gives her plants away.

LOVES GROWING PLANTS

"It's not the good of them as they grow along," she explained during an interview in her small home living room.

She keeps a bit of ivy in this room; also catnip grown for her two cats, a Maltese called "Mrs. Pooper" and a chap of doubtful pedigree named "Smokey."

The room's only other vegetation was double-daffodil bulbs planted in stones and water in a dish, and these were a mistake.

"Should have been paper-white bulbs; the stone got the tags mixed," said Mrs. Byers cautiously.

Down in her basement were 25 more bulbs in the chilly stage of growing.

She grows several varieties—hyacinths, delicate paper - whites, double yellow daffodils, double tulips, sometimes single rose-purple tulips, and crocuses.

NO LUCK WITH VIOLETS

But, she admitted with a shake of her snow-white head, "I just can't grow African violets." There seemed to be no explanation. Violets "just die on me."

Otherwise, she said, growing plants inside is no labor; it just takes time.

It takes snow-bow, too. Flower pots must be clean so plants can breathe and grow. Bits of dolpi, stone or grass clippings help for drainage, and watering plants is a regular job.

Planted in autumn, the potted plants are put in a cool place. Then they are introduced gently to warmth and light.

Her "green thumb," she said, was inherited from her grandmother and her mother. She was born, and spent part of her married life, near Bowmanville, about 10 miles northeast of Oshawa on Lake Ontario.

MOVED TO OTTAWA

After her husband died, Mrs. Byers and her four daughters moved to Ottawa in 1917. Two daughters still live with her. She also has three grandchildren.

GIVES AWAY PLANTS

Mrs. Irene Byers, 82, has 25 varieties of bulbs growing in her Ottawa basement. She doesn't know how many she has raised in the last four winters since she started, but she does know she gives all of them away to her friends and to strangers. In this photo by Malak of Ottawa, she examines some hyacinths she has raised. (CP Photo).

An "outside" gardener too, Mrs. Byers said her summer flower garden has a peony bush "as big as all outdoors," and a pale pink blossom almond tree that is the envy of the neighbors.

Until last fall, when she was injured in a car accident, Mrs. Byers had another keen interest—singing in a church and in a city choir. She sang in the Ottawa Choral Union's annual presentation of Handel's Messiah for 12 years.

Pointing to an antique rocking chair, Mrs. Byers said she's been thinking of "just sitting back and being an old woman."

"But I just never get time," she added.

Notes on Health

(Dept. of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa)

Many home fires are caused by faulty electrical wiring or equipment installation. Overloaded circuits are another cause and these should be taken to ensure that the wiring is not called upon to carry more than the safe load of current.

The first few days of warm weather often cause the ice on river or lake edges to thaw quickly. Children should be kept away from these and other water hazards during the season of unsafe ice.

Rheumatic fever symptoms are similar to those of less serious diseases and may not receive the diagnosis and treatment so urgently needed in the early stages of rheumatic fever. Loss of appetite and weight, pallor, fatigue and pain may all be symptoms of this dangerous disease.

In order to ensure that electrical equipment and wiring is safe for the home, only articles bearing the mark of approval of the Canadian Standards Association should be used. The CSA mark on any household appliance means that it has passed the fire and shock tests for safety.

Parkdale Area Enjoys Season's First Dance

Residents and friends of Parkdale community were invited to the first dance of the season recently in the A.N.A.F. hall.

Throughout the evening square dances, barn and Paul Jones were enjoyed. Mrs. McGuigan and Mr. Bill Prentice were spot dance winners.

Congratulations were received by Alex Ross, who was celebrating his birthday.

An out-of-town guest was Mrs. Hopwood-Jones of Montreal.

President, Stanley Rochefort extended a warm welcome to the new residents of Parkdale, Maand Mrs. Cecil Holloway and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Devolin.

At the general meeting in Parkdale last fall, a zoning by-law committee was appointed. Members are: Doug Burley, Nelson McGibbon, Sam Kelley and Ed. McGuigan.

Reg Morry, the community hall superintendent, stated that work parties were to be called out on Thursday.

The following members were appointed for the 24th of May fireworks programme: Bob Michaels, Web Willson, Ivan May, Bill Prentice and Art Bannon. They will also prepare for a gigantic social evening for the 1st of June.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD

The women of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church guild met on Tuesday evening, in church parlors with Mrs. H. Shaw presiding.

Mrs. Kinnear read for the Scripture Psalm 130.

Mrs. Shaw announced that a new group had been formed in the section called the "Sunshine Group" with Mrs. Brown as the president. This group meets the first Wednesday of each month.

Correspondence was read.

It was announced that the invitation to the Young People's Synod, had been accepted, and will come to Belleville Thanksgiving weekend for the convention. At which the members of St. Andrew's church will billet many of them. The Women's Guild will have a banquet for them in the church.

Mrs. Argue introduced Miss Jessie Tulle, who gave several delightful readings.

Mrs. Ponton thanked Miss Tulle on behalf of the guild.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Williamson's group.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

SHE SHOULD FIND OUT IF HE WISHES TO WEAR A RING!

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I have just become engaged, and will soon have my engagement ring. Will my fiance give me my engagement ring I'd like to give him a ring that would have the same meaning as my engagement ring. However, I have never heard of this being done. Would it be correct for me to do this? Or should I wait and give him a wedding ring? — A.

It's correct for you to give your fiance a ring when he gives you your engagement ring, or for you to give him a wedding ring . . . but you must find out if he wants to wear a ring. It definitely shouldn't be a "surprise"! So many, many men abhor the idea of wearing a ring of any kind . . . and for those it is indeed a serious problem when they are presented with a "surprise" ring! Also, even if you find out from him (and he'll be forthright about it, I'm fairly sure!) that he does want to have you give him a ring, you should find out from him what kind he prefers and also the finger on which he wishes to wear it.

THE FOLLOW-UP THANK-YOU NOTE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Our group of bridesmaids have a difference of opinion about thankyou's. Is the bride-to-be for the lovely gifts she gave us. Our question is: Must the bride-to-be give her bridesmaid the "attendant's gift," and the bridesmaid thanks her enthusiastically at the time, is it really necessary for her to write a note of thanks also? — Anne D.

Not "really necessary" . . . but most charmingly polite and gracious! Such a thank-you note, written after the spoken thank-you, and received, will bring a special happiness to the bride-to-be. "Your kind thanks for having so much to me, dear Nancy, and always will be a precious symbol of our friendship. Thank you for your most thoughtful and generous gift. We all happy, thank you for the handsome and radiant bracelet. And such a dear memento it will be of "Your Wedding Day!"

FRIENDLY GESTURE TO FRIEND'S MOTHER IN HOSPITAL

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

The mother of my boy friend is in the hospital, and I would so much like to make some gesture of friendliness to her. I've met her only once, and then very briefly. What do you suggest I do to be courteous and friendly? — Kitty B.

First I think you should ask your friend if he thinks it a good suggestion. If he does, you might send her some spring flowers, enclosing a card with a short, friendly message. Or simply write her a note of best wishes for her recovery. Or carefully shop for a particularly appropriate and delightful "get well" card and write a message on this card.

WOULD THIS SHOWER BE PROPER?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I would like to have you tell me if it would be socially permissible to give a shower for a girl who has been married, divorced, and is now getting married for the second time. Her closest friend is the one who wishes to give a shower for her, and the guests would be close friends of the bride-to-be. — E.

PERFECT MERINGUES

Measure 2 cups granulated sugar onto heavy kraft paper and warm it in the oven. The temperature of it is judged by running your fingers through—it should not be heated too hot for that. Meanwhile beat 3-4 cup egg whites until they will peak, then slowly add warmed sugar to them in fine stream, beating until they are perfectly stiff—about 30 minutes in all. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. An important step is to mix 1 teaspoon bread (hard) flour with 2 teaspoons shortening and grease your pie plates heart with this. (They will come off slick as a whistle.) Spoon in any desired shape on prepared pan. Bake at 250 deg. 1 to 1 1-3 hours. (Be sure you have a room thermometer is registering accurately.)

QUESTION:

I enclose sample of Christmas cake from ——— Bakery. . . . I have been ordering the cake for several years . . . they are quite expensive. . . . would you have a receipe that would taste something like this.—Mrs. Teresa S.

ANSWER:

I am familiar with the cake—thanks for the tasty snack! As you know the recipe is a well-guarded secret. . . . I have always felt it was extra sweet so suggest if you use the receipe for cake batter, and the combination of fruits I think is right.

SPECIAL WHITE FRUIT CAKE

Six cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 lb. butter, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups 1-4 cup light corn syrup, 1 cup sherry (or 1-3 cup each sherry and brandy); 1 1-2 lbs. candied pineapple cut in 1 1-2 and 2-inch chunks, 1 lb. each of raisins, 1 lb. each best quality walnuts whole, 1 lb. whole pecans, 1 lb. candied cherries, 1 lb. candied fruits with 2 cups of the flour. Cream butter until light, cream sugar and butter until fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time. Add fruits and nuts mixed in remaining flour, then fold in fruits and nuts last. Line pans with brown paper at 250 deg. Fahr, at 3 1-3 to 4 hours.

There may be vanilla and almond flavoring in it but try the above and do let me know how it turns out.

QUESTION:

I don't love cooking and always am trying something new. There is only one thing I cannot get right—meringues. The egg whites are lovely and firm when I start to beat them and I do them at 250. Sometimes in the oven, close to 2 hours, and still the egg whites are sugary. Can you tell me why they don't get hard and brittle? It's difficult to get them off the trays, the paper stick to them. The kids are always so good while.—I. L.

ANSWER:

I'm glad you asked. Follow these directions closely, they come from an expert professional baker.

by the closest friend of the bride. If the shower is omitted—to the close friends, this would be entirely proper.

CUSTOMARY GRACE SHOULD BE SAID

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

To settle an extremely important discussion we have asked you please answer this question for us: When it is the custom at a family to say Grace at their table before a meal, and guests of another family are invited, is it courteous for the family to follow their custom of saying Grace or should it be omitted? — E.

Definitely the family should follow their custom of saying Grace. Guests would not, certainly be expected to say family Grace; and the guests bow their heads while the Grace is being said.

I.O.D.E. Holds Annual Meet, Elects Officers

MARMORA — The annual and regular meeting of the Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E., was held in the Masonic hall with the regent, Mrs. M. H. Borland, presiding.

The minutes of the January meeting were read by Mrs. D. P. Marett. Treasurer's report was presented by Mrs. C. McKay.

Miss M. Savage, Services at Home and Abroad, secretary, requested pocket editions of novels to be sent to Canadian soldiers overseas.

Mrs. J. R. Reynolds, sewing convener, advised that she had shirts on hand to be given out for sewing.

The regent advised that Canada Packers Cooking School would be held on Monday, April 30th, and Tuesday, May 1st.

Mrs. Borland advised that she had written to Dr. John Pratten, psychiatrist of Belleville, asking for guest speaker at an open meeting in the near future.

Mrs. Charles Brady read an article on "Founder's Day," which is being observed by the I.O.D.E. across the Dominion, being the 58th anniversary of the I.O.D.E. organized by Mrs. Clark Murray of Montreal.

Mrs. Aileen Demorest was presented to the regent by membership convener, Mrs. Gordon Jarvis, and welcomed by the regent members and was enrolled.

The annual report was then opened by the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting by the secretary, Mrs. D. P. Marett. The following annual reports were read and adopted: Secretary's report, Mrs. D. P. Marett; treasurer's report, Mrs. C. McKay; services at home and abroad, Miss M. Savage; educational secretary, Mrs. Charles Brady; publicity, Mrs. A. M. Jones.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

The following slate of officers was presented for the year 1956: Regent, Mrs. Borland; first vice-regent, Mrs. Roy Frost; second vice-regent, Mrs. Gordon Brownlee; secretary, Mrs. A. M. Jones; treasurer, Mrs. K. C. McKay; services at home and abroad, Miss M. Savage; educational secretary, Mrs. C. Brady; Echoes secretary, Mrs. E. Brady; standard bearer, Mrs. F. R. Wells; councillors, Mrs. C. Meikleham, Mrs. O. Whittemore, Mrs. Thomas Pearce, Mrs. Gordon Jarvis and Mrs. G. H. Rennie.

The regent thanked the 1955 officers, committees and members for their work throughout the past year.

The country's flag was brought forward and the meeting closed. Refreshments were served.

MARSH HILL

Harmony Club Holds Most Interesting Meet

MARSH HILL — Marsh Hill Harmony club met for its February meeting in the Marsh Hill school with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Detlor as host and hostess. There was a good attendance.

Mr. Ivan Cleaver, president, opened the meeting with the hymn "He Leadeth Me" followed by prayer.

During the business, Ivan Cleaver was appointed representative of the Harmony club on the citizens' board.

The beatitudes were read responsively; Mrs. Coulter read a few quotes on "Work": "Work is the law cheerful men will be. Work and see how independent you will be" by Judge Halliburton. "Work is healthful—will be like a bird without wings; who works not, will be unhappy." Two companions here on earth and yet, if she live till the world ends, she will never fly to heaven."—Owen Feltham; the hymn, "Work for the Night is Coming" was sung.

Mrs. Coulter gave a paper, "Secret to a Good Life":

"In all you do, strive for good workmanship. Do not expect anything worth doing is worth doing unless it takes time, even for centuries. If you do your best, great happiness results from the doing. Do not be afraid to work.

"Gardening is work for those who do not like gardening, but it is fun for one who finds satisfaction in the clean outdoor smells and the beauty of the soil.

"Sense is one enjoy life as God has ordained it that we by our daily work get you down. Enjoy it! The only jobs which are drudgery are those which people are forced upon us by unwelcome circumstances. Life is fun so long as we are our own masters, and have chosen it because we will it.

"The heavy part of our labors will be laid down when our strength fails, but from the war against evil and the work for the good of mankind we shall not rest.

"There is nothing sadder than the unemployment of old age.

On the other hand where love is, there is no task too heavy; and if we work for love of God, we are indeed so because of our love of God."

Mr. Fred Campbell sang a solo "Help Somebody Today."

Mrs. Cleaver conducted the program with the reading of a poem "Harmony" by Darlene Young.

Mrs. Berson Mills conducted a geography contest and Ivan Cleaver had a scrambled word contest of "Things for which to be Thankful."

Refreshments were served by the lunch committee.

PICTON

Hog Producers Losing Money By Low Grades

PICTON — Hog producers are losing many thousands of dollars annually due to low grades, W. S. McMullen, Production Services, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, stressed Prince Edward Bacon Show and seed fair held in the Collegiate, Picton.

Prince Edward ranked 36 out of county in percentage of grade A hogs last year, though there was a four percent improvement over the previous year he revealed. He pointed out that County producers last $10,520, last year as a result of producing 1626 grade "C" hogs.

Judging the show were hog carcases which had been graded. Championship for single sided went to Gordon Walker of Milford with carcase by Lacombe Experimental. The Amelisburg entry won the township honors.

FLEMING'S MARKETS

"You need have no fear of overproduction of bacon," said Mr. McMullen. Most consumers use 110 pounds per person in 1955-56; last year 120 pounds. Increased population and higher wages assure a market for pork. But the quality must be kept up, he stressed.

Lloyd Nagey of Preston spoke on "Feeding for Profit."

"The market today does not want fat hogs—yet we have to feed enough to get the right finish," he stressed the importance of breeding, better stock and balanced feeding.

Exhibitors and awards were: —Amelisburg entry, 1st and a third; 2nd, B. Wallbridge, a first; N. Vanclief, second; South Marysburgh, third; Gordon Walker, Milford, a first, B. Keogh, a second; Ernest Bird, Milford, a third; Harvey Ostrander, Clarence Brummell and Keith Brummell, second; Milford, 1st, J. Wallbridge, L. Lloyd, second; R. Pierson, N. Counneyrs, third; Milford, Gordon Walker, first; Mrs. B. Thissell, seconds; N. Storms, 3rd; Ross, 4th; Mrs. Gordon B. Crouch and R. Fringer, thirds.

Around three hundred attended. Lt. Col. S. Young presided.

WINNIPEG'S BOOM

Although Winnipeg grew up on wheat, Canada's fourth largest city is enjoying a rich industrial boom. Welder Eugene Boyko in the Motor Coach Industries plant exemplifies Winnipeg's industrial trend. Building contracts since the end of the war total $430,000,000. Rows of factories stretch along streets carved out of what once was rich farm land. (CP from National Film Board.)

Winnipeg Grew up on Wheat, Now Enjoys Industrial Boom

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg grew up on wheat. But today Canada's fourth largest city is enjoying a rich industrial boom.

Grain and money talk still drifts with the cigar smoke in the oak-panelled offices of the financial houses at Portage avenue and Main street.

The river of goods flowing in and out of the sprawling warehouse and wholesale district nearby still runs swift enough to maintain Winnipeg's position as the wholesaling and distributing centre of western Canada.

But away from the heart of the city the picture has changed.

NEW FACTORIES, HOMES

Glistening towers of oil refineries and smokestacks of new factories have given Winnipeg a new skyline. Rows of manufacturing plants march along avenues carved out of what was once rich farm land. And filling in the background are the thousands of new homes that house the families of workers riding the boom in this community of 400,000.

Since 1945, a total of 62 new manufacturing plants, producing everything from facial tissues to double-deck passenger buses, have gone into business here. The development of secondary industry has reached such a stage that the industrial development board of Greater Winnipeg now is faced with the problem of trying to find room for other new industries that are clamoring for space.

George R. Fanset, the industrial board's fast-moving commissioner, said in an interview that at the end of 1955 the city proper had only 10 acres of serviceable land left and another 650 acres which still needed servicing.

Construction firms send crews out in the broiling heat of summer and winter's freezing cold to fulfil building contracts which slowed the end of the Second World War totalled $430,000,000.

BUILDING BOOM

The total value of building permits issued in greater Winnipeg in 1955—more than $90,000,000—was the highest of any city on the Prairies. Of this $37,278,694 was for housing.

Mr. Fanset described the boom as "dazzled action."

There was a long period of no building in Winnipeg . . . the depression and then the war," he said.

Following the war Canadian industry had money to spend and the booming West had new retail markets ripe for the picking. Winnipeg, still the headquarters for the grain trade and the home of such well-established industries as meat packing, railway rolling stock and flour milling, had room for secondary industry.

The city, with two transcontinental railways running through it, is one of Canada's great railway centres. It is a major air terminal. Trucking companies handling interprovincial and international traffic make it their operational headquarters.

Industrial electricity is among the cheapest available in Canada—1.3 cents gross for the first 50 kilowatt hours per kw of connected load, scaled down to .8 cents for any excess over 250 kw hours, plus wholesale discounts on gross bills over $100 a month.

Industrial and commercial water rates are 35 cents per 1,000 gallons subject to discounts.

Rates for large consumers of gas in industry are subject to negotiation between the company concerned and the Winnipeg and General Gas Company.

Industrial property sells at a maximum of 10 cents a square foot.

Mr. Fanset said one of the main advantages is the large labor force available.

Salaries of industrial workers average $10 a week less than those in Toronto.

Winnipeg, one of Canada's biggest milling pots, has citizens eager to work at any price.

"And farm boys moving into the city don't care too much about how much they make," said Mr. Fanset. "They work hard. . . They were born with a pair of pilers in their pocket."

Chihawks Flounder In Playoffs Backwash; Lose To Uninspired Habs 3-1

Sport Slices

Rare, Medium, Well-Done

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BRILLIANT EFFORT

A lot of the "wise" hockey experts predicted the tall, gangling youth would have an abbreviated stay in the Junior "A" training camp at Guelph.

Perhaps their opinion was more or less based on the fact that a scout for a National Hockey League club had "passed him up" with the opinion he would never make the grade. He didn't have what it takes to make a Junior "A" player, let alone the big time.

They were all so wrong.

In his freshman year in junior "A" ranks Gerry Goyer, who recently reached his 19th birthday, not only upset the applecarts of the predictors, but reduced them to smithereens. His performance with the Guelph Biltmores has been little short of sensational.

Gerry finished fourth in the top scorers of the Blits, with a record of 37 goals and 36 assists for 63 points. This mark earned him twelfth position in the scoring list of the Junior "A" league. Not bad for a youngster who wasn't given a chance to make good in junior "A" company.

Goyer finished behind Biltmore "veterans" as Bob Forhan (76), Ed Shack (72) and Bill Sweeney (67) and in front of such stars as Ron Howell (61), Bryan Webber (61) and Bill Graham (60). He was one of five Biltmore tots in a club that boasted the best scoring machine in the junior ranks.

He was fourth in the list of the Biltmores' goal-getters and ranked the same position in the assist department. His best scoring effort was the game in which he banged home four goals. Another neat performance garnered for him two goals and four assists. Another cost him four teeth.

His effort is all the more creditable since he was playing with a galaxy of goal-getting stars. The Biltmores averaged five goals a game, and had nine players who scored 20 goals or more. Gerry took part in the entire 48-game schedule of his club.

While Gerry starred while he was playing minor hockey here—and he toothed on a puck, a baseball bat and a softball glove—he was never noted for his speed afoot, nor his ability to break fast. He learned to shoot and score goals early, but he never burned the icelanes with his miles-per-hour record.

Perhaps the main reason, or at least one of them, for his more or less phenomenal success in junior "A" circles has been the coaching he received under the Blits' mentor, Eddie Bush, former professional, and who appeared in Belleville years ago when the Philadelphia Rockets were training here.

Another reason is Gerry's adability. His minor coaches inform us that the youngster had a remarkable aptitude to "do as he was told and shown." He had faith in his coach's ability, and never deviated from their methods to his own. He was not afraid to ask questions. He sought knowledge—and had faith in his instructors.

A story from Guelph has it that Coach Bush had Gerry pushing a heavy scraping machine for lengthy periods to aid his legs and that elusive "breaking." No matter what method Bush used, it has had the desired effect.

Goyer leaped from the training camp plumb into junior "A" ranks. He showed plenty of go and potential in the workouts. A year ago he was offered a spot with the Woodstock Junior "B" club, but circumstances prevented that.

Goyer possesses a hereditary sports versatility. His father Frank "Soup" Goyer starred on Belleville baseball and hockey teams. Brother Vern's record is well known. Leo starred in baseball, softball and hockey.

Gerry is following in their footsteps. Last season he won the senior softball batting crown with a record of .497 with the Point Anne team. He starred with the Hagar baseball juniors. Last spring he worked out with the Toronto Maple Leafs baseball club—and quite likely will get another call this year.

But his sensational performance in junior "A" hockey in the 1955-56 season should and will stand out as an early milestone in an illustrious sports career that lies ahead for the native-born youngster.

Spare a moment's sympathy for Chicago Black Hawks, the unfortunates of the National Hockey League.

The poor old Hawks seem hopelessly lost in the frantic dash for Stanley Cup playoff spots. Unless something happens soon, the Hawks are destined once again to finish last.

They were cuffed 3-1 Friday night by the league-leading Montreal Canadiens and the setback just about knocked them out of playoff contention.

It was the only game of the night and 8,251 customers at Chicago Stadium watched Hawks suffer their 33rd loss of the 1955-56 campaign. The Chicago squad has 27 points, three behind Boston Bruins and seven off the pace set by Toronto Maple Leafs, who hold the fourth and final playoff position.

Hawks, who trailed the league for the last two years and made the playoffs only four times since their good years in the '30s, have eight games left in the campaign. Bruins and Leafs each have seven. So, it appears, Boston and Toronto must collapse and Hawks catch fire before they can hit postseason action.

Canadiens, who have assured themselves of first place and the league title, weren't too impressive. They got a brilliant Chicago goaltender Al Rollins until 2:06 of the third period before the goal was fired into an empty net as Hawks sent out a sixth attacker in a late-minute bid to snatch a tie.

Bernie Geoffrion, Henri Richard and Floyd Curry accounted for the Montreal goals as Canadiens surged to their 30th win of the season. Curry caught the empty nets at 19:36 of the windup period. Eddie Sandford scored for Hawks at 6:42 of the second session.

Dutchies Protest Referee 'Error' In Playoff Game

Kitchener (CP) —Kitchener KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen Friday night protested to the Ontario Hockey Association for what they called an error in officiating which cost them a senior A playoff game to Owen Sound Mercurys.

Dutchmen said referee Larry Lewin did not blow the whistle when a Kitchener player was hurt and gave Mercs a chance to score. The dispute involves Thursday night's game here which Mercurys won 3-1. They lead Dutchmen 2-1 in the best-of-seven league semi-finals.

Dutchmen said Lewin's mistake permitted Mercury forward John Lumley to break away for the winning goal with 33 seconds left in the game and the score tied 1-1. Mercs tallied another goal at 19:53.

Dutchmen said that just before Lumley broke loose, Kitchener Senator Zeke McKenzie was hurt. He collapsed in the Owen Sound end as Dutchmen fired at the Mercury net. Officials said Lewin should have stopped the play as soon as Dutchmen lost possession of the puck.

Watch Moncton

West Favored for Curl Title East Long Shots Dangerous

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONCTON (CP) — Western rinks—especially Manitoba — are usually favored to win the Canadian curling championship but there are some worthy looking long shots this year.

The bonspiel starts here Monday in a big rink, two from Ontario and one from every other province, taking part in the weeklong round robin competition.

The real long shots, of course, are Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Quebec and Newfoundland, who have never won a title.

But the Moncton Beaver rink slipped by Ralph Lister, is a sentimental choice and there are some statistics that really make their chances interesting.

This is the first time the championship has been held in Moncton and bonspiel records show that on only six occasions in the last 25 years have rinks representing the town of the bonspiel been in the play. Three of these rinks have won the title.

The smart money will likely be riding on such favorites as Manitoba, 13-time winner, Skip Bill Walsh of the Winnipeg entry is no stranger to the championship circle, having copped top honors in 1952.

Then there's a spring in Saskatchewan that the rink good enough to beat the champion Campbell is capable to beat anybody. Jimmy Hall skipped his Delisle rink to the Saskatchewan championships against the Campbell brothers. It will be the second crack at the Canadian title for Hill. He represented Saskatchewan in 1953.

Behind Manitoba in the win column comes Alberta with five victories. Leading this year's contender from Edmonton is Matt Baldwin, who won the crown for Alberta in 1954. He has an entirely new rink this trip.

Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island are represented by skips seeking the Canadian title for the third time. Gerry Glinz is back at the helm of the same Truro rink that played for Nova Scotia last year and Dr. Wendell MacDonald of Charlottetown leads Prince Edward Island's rink as he did at Edmonton and Regina.

Native Nova Scotian Bob Goudey will be handling the R. John's rink as Newfoundland shoots for its first title. Walter Smith and his Thetford Mines four will carry Quebec colors.

Coming the farthest for the bonspiel and making their first appearance in the Canadian championships will be Harold Jordan and his Kimberly, B.C., rink.

Alfie Phillips skips the Toronto Granite club rink this year representing Ontario.

Northern Ontario won its last championship in 1950 with a Kirkland Lake rink. This year Steve Kuzmaskis from Copper Cliff, will represent Northern Ontario.

SIGNED WITH ESKS

HAMILTON (CP)—Ferris Gaudi, 260-pound lineman from Windsor, Ont., was reported here Friday to have signed a contract with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union. Gaudi, 21, played tackle for Windsor AKO juniors last year.

Hornets Sting Providence 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets kept alive their championship aspirations in the American Hockey League race Friday night by winning a 4-3 overtime contest from the first-place Providence Reds. Camille Henry scored three goals for the losers in the night's other game Cleveland Barons moved into a third-place tie with Buffalo by scoring two goals in the last nine minutes to defeat Buffalo Bisons 4-3.

Pittsburgh's victory pulled Hornets to within five points of Providence. Joe Klukay scored the winning goal at 1:06 of overtime.

TPTs Finish Hockey Season With 8-6 Win Over Cornwall; MacDonald Scores Hat Trick

Belleville TPTs wound up the 1955-56 season in fine style last night defeating the Cornwall Colts in a points-gathering wide-open game by an 8-6 score.

Both clubs were conspicuous by their absence in the free wheeling contest that didn't mean anything to either club outside of scoring averages.

Moe Savard, brilliant Cornwall centre, was kept off the scoring list and suffered a leg injury in the third period which did not prove serious. Six penalties were handed out by the referees, four going to the TPTs.

Pug O'Brien was the top sniper for the Colts rounding out a fine effort with three goals. Bought had three assists with McMillan getting a goal and two helpers, Joannette one and one and Belmore a single goal.

Keith MacDonald paced the TPT's offensive with a trio of markers with Vern Goyer getting one and three, Leonard one and two with Peter Jones, Pat Gilmour and Teddy Greenlaw each scoring once.

PENALTY-KILLER

Joannette had the customers standing with a brilliant exhibition of penalty-killing stickhandling in the third period when he weaved in and out of the TPT's for nearly forty seconds.

The TPTs roared into a 4-0 lead in the first period with MacDonald with two, P. Jones and Gilmour scoring before O'Brien got his first goal of the night.

The Colts scored the only two markers of the second period with O'Brien dominating the picture with both tallies.

The teams opened up in the first with the TPTs scoring four of the seven goals tallied. Joannette split three Belleville markers by Leonard, MacDonald and Goyer before McMillan and Belmore struck within 13 seconds of each other. Greenlaw tallied the final score of the game with six minutes to go.

The players fraternized on the ice following the game after the TPT's shaking hands with the Colts in best-of-luck gestures.

Between the second and third periods Mayor Jane Forrester drew the ticket for the team's main program prize, a Williams Oil-O-Matic heating unit donated by the Morch Manufacturing Company, Ltd., Installations and Burners-Schuster. The holder was D. J. Garvin, 108 Cedar Street.

The mayor was introduced by TPTs president Frank Grandaise who, in his brief remarks stated hockey would be back next winter.

The teams:

Cornwall — Goal, Devaney; defence, Leacock, Marshall, Bingley; Oleksuik; forwards, Joannette, Bougie, Savard, St. Jean, Belmore, O'Brien, McMillan, Ingram.

Belleville—Goal, Barclay; defence, McMaster, Murray, Wilson; forwards, Goyer, MacDonald, Gilmour, Leonard, Bill, P. Jones, White, Mulholland, Greenlaw.

Referees—Moon Flanigan and Ken Parks. Linesmen.

Solmar Notes

The Damascus Barrel Battle

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
Outdoor Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables.)

Last January 8th there was a news story in this column about Damascus shotgun barrels and rattlesnakes being equally dangerous to human welfare. The story was written because it is our sincere belief that Damascus barrels, no matter what make, are extremely dangerous.

A gentleman in Nebraska read this story, then took typewriter in hand and wrote to Mr. Howard Wolff, Outdoor Editor of the Omaha World-Herald. He said, in part, that I knew what was what about fishing but when it came to shotguns I was "so far wrong it is just pitiful." Then he went on to relate how he had been shooting Damascus barrels on his three guns for a great many years.

Not only did he prove conclusively (at least, to himself) that Damascus barrels are better than modern steel; also, he implied that the gun companies are putting over a fast one on the customers, selling field steel barrels instead of the superior "good old Damascus."

Mr. Wolff sent me the letter. Having read it, I realized that anything that the gun companies might say in their own defense would be offset, more or less, by his correspondent's claim that these companies are selling the shooting public a bill of goods.

MANY BARREL FAILURES

So I looked to the independent gunsmiths and repairmen for my concrete evidence—also, to the sporting goods dealers. I asked, not for opinions but for facts—actual cases of barrel failure. Believe me, they gave me plenty.

The gun man at one of our local sporting goods stores had seen four cases of Damascus barrel failure. One barrel removed four fingers from the left hand of a nineteen-year-old boy. Another tore away four fingers and part of the left hand of a man in his forties. A third, an old Baker, removed four fingers and part of the left hand of the owner, causing his death from gangrene two weeks later. The fourth, fortunately, blew out near the muzzle and did not cause any injury.

One of my correspondents has a friend who is now retired and living in Connecticut. When he was a young man he was employed as an apprentice gunsmith in one of the gun factories. Many of the Damascus barrels came through with tiny holes and crevices and it was his job to seal these with ordinary solder. You can imagine how much pressure such a job-of construction would stand. Small wonder that some of these barrels let go when used with smokeless powder.

The owner of one of New England's big gun repair companies—an independent concern that is not associated with any gun manufacturing company—replied to my letter of inquiry in considerable detail. This man has worked with all makes of shotguns all of his life.

His letter starts like this—"In our opinion, Damascus barrels are unsafe for modern loads . . ." In my letter to him, I mention the Parker shotgun that is owned and shot by a correspondent in Nebraska. He comments on this as follows: "We have replaced a couple hundred sets of Parker Damascus barrels with new steel barrels some of these because they were blown and others because they were considered unsafe."

MORE DATA

With this factual data at hand, next came two books on shotguns. Mr. George Greenland in his slide book, "Gunner's Guide," has this to say: "Time was when barrels were made of iron and steel strips, twisted and forged together, known as Damascus barrels. They retained flaws, and improved metallurgy and modern ammunition have outmoded them."

The Hunter's Encyclopedia has this to say: "Various grades of American heat-treated alloy steels so far surpass the profiled Damascus barrels that there was no comparison . . . American barrel makers were the profiled Damascus barrels that the world had ever seen."

And again—" Modern smokeless powder completed the death blow of Damascus-barrels; its sustained pressure made it no longer safe to shoot a Damascus barrel, at least less of how expensive the arm had originally."

Admittedly, some Damascus barrels can be used with modern shotgun loads. Were this not true, there would be far more casualties than there have been so far. But the inescapable fact remains that if you insist upon shooting modern loads in these obsmoded barrels, the next shot may be the one that takes your left hand along with it. All of the evidence indicates that it is only a matter of time.

DIES IN CULVERT

TORONTO (CP) — Four-year-old Richard Mackenzie fell into a newly-swollen ditch Friday and was swept to his death in a culvert.

Baseball TV Bigger Than Ever This Season

NEW YORK (AP)—Major league baseball clubs are going into television in a big way this year and next season, with 13 teams putting some 154 games on the air at a total cost of about $36,300,000.

The magazine Television Age in its first issue released Friday that baseball itself would realize $6,300,000 for game rights—$3,300,000 for regular season games and $1,000,000 each for TV rights to the world series and all-star game.

Only three clubs, Milwaukee and Pittsburgh in the National League, and Kansas City of the American League, are without television.

A major trend is the televising of road games, with some 105 "away" contests to be televised to the home folks. Five major league clubs will have more road games on TV than home games.

Baseball also is re-negotiating the world series and all-star game contracts, with estimates which would boost the price in the neighborhood of $3,000,000.

GAME OF WEEK

There will be a "game of the week" network broadcast against the Saturday NCAA special by CBS, New York Giants and Yankees, Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds and Boston Red Sox, Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox on pay-as-you-see.

This network will include some 175 stations and each team is expected to get $25,000 a game, amounting to $2890,000.

Brooklyn Dodgers will televise more games than any other team, a total of 102, or all 77 home games and 25 on the road.

Stirling Bantams Oust Stouffville Win Second Thriller by 6-4 Score

STIRLING (Special) — Scoring two goals early in the first period and never looking backward, Stirling's bantam "C" puckists raced to a well-earned 6-4 victory over Stouffville last night, winning the semi-finals round 10-9 and qualifying to meet either Bedford or Forest for the OMHA championship.

Stirling dropped the first game by a 5-4 score here but they hit their stride on the Stouffville ice last night, scoring a brace of goals in each period.

Roger Smith and Mayhew burned in sensational scoring efforts, the pair dividing the hat trick honors scored by the club. Mayhew fired home two unassisted goals on neat individual efforts, besides earning two assists, while Smith scored one alone and teamed with Mayhew for the remaining pair.

Penman starred for the hard-battling Stouffville youngsters, scoring two goals and being credited with an assist. Wedeldoft and Stewart scored one.

Smith took Mayhew's pass early in the first period to whip home the first Stirling goal. Mayhew fed a three-man drive with Smith and Falve to put his team two up. Penman cut the margin to 2-1 midway through the period.

Mayhew's two unassisted efforts gave Stirling a 4-1 lead, but in the closing minutes of the second period Stouffville raced back with Wedeldoft and Penman each scoring to cut the margin to 4-3.

Roger Smith clinched the victory early in the third period taking Mayhew's pass to cross, and added another insurance goal on an unassisted effort.

Stouffville battled back hard and were rewarded with their fourth goal with seconds to go. The Stirling youngsters threw back their late-seconds desperate bids and skated off with the victory and the series.

Marmora Defeats Madoc 7-3; Wins Group Title

MARMORA — Marmora Millionaires won the northern group "C" intermediate hockey group title here last night defeating Madoc 7-3 before 900 fans. Marmora took the best-of-seven series with four wins and a tie.

The Millionaires meet the Napanee winners of the southern group in the first round OHA playdowns.

Four Marmora goals in the first period decided the issue. They outscored the Blues 2-1 in the second and split a pair in the third.

Bob Brooks paced the winners with three goals, with Leonard, Mumberville, Brown, Doyle and Moore scoring. Bill Carswell scored all three Madoc counters.

SUMMARY

Mustangs Whip Gunners 75-61

TORONTO (CP)—University of Western Ontario Mustangs defeated Sault Ste. Marie Gunners here Friday night to win the round-robin series in the combined Ontario senior men's and Olympic playoffs basketball championships.

In the other game of a double-header, Toronto Norsemen beat Toronto Andy's 80-68 to capture the Toronto city senior men's title. The Toronto, Ontario and Olympic playoffs were bunched into the round-robin series.

The games were the first of a double-header to decide the Ontario-Olympic zone champions. Today's Norsemen meets Gunners, last year's provincial champs, in a sudden-death game for the provincial title. Western will go against Andys in the second contest.

Sault Ste. Marie will meet Andys A.C. Sunday afternoon while Western and Norsemen battle.

Grey Cup Site, Upped Prices Main Themes Football Confab

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Rugby Union delegates from Vancouver to Halifax sat down today to voice their opinion on questions thrashed out at closed CRU executive committee meetings. Topping the list is the site of the 1956 Grey Cup final, believed to be Toronto.

But the CRU doesn't expect clear sailing on at least two issues to move to black out the Ontario Rugby Football Union and Grey Cup competition and a recommendation to adopt the six-point touchdown instead of the traditional five in the Canadian game. Officials expect no battles on both points.

The two-day hush-hush sessions of the CRU and the newly-organized Canadian Football Council ended early this morning in a flurry of rumors. These included:

Toronto will not get over Vancouver in its bid to stage the Nov. 24 East-West final; seat prices for the classic will be increased to $10 from an all-time top of $7.50 set at Vancouver last year.

CRU committee-members made up their minds on the two questions Friday night but refused to make public their recommendations before today's open general meeting, scheduled to start at 10 a.m. EST.

Most of the expected fireworks are expected over the question of OFRU participation in the cup semi-final. The Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union are backing the former league while the OFRU champions from challenging for the prized trophy.

The 74-year-old ORFU, oldest in the country, accepted the wishes of the powerful Big Four and WIFU to drop out of the competition in 1955. At the time it was for one year only and Don Downey of Toronto, then president of the ORFU, declared that "the OFRU will definitely challenge for the Cup in 1956."

The Big Four and WIFU Friday introduced a motion which, in effect, would learn it up to the creation of the CRU executive to decide annually whether an ORFU challenge would be accepted. The Big Four and WIFU must muster seven votes if they are to push through this change in the constitution.

There are 10 votes in the CRU with the Big Four and WIFU each having three, the ORFU two and one each for the senior International-Canada Rugby Football Unions.

It is expected touchdown is the most revolutionary change in the game since the forward pass was introduced by the United States in 1931. Both the Big Four and WIFU recommended the change last January and the CRU rules committee subsequently gave the proposal the okay.

It is reported the ORFU and the college union are against the recommendation and they probably will have a lot to say about it at today's meeting.

One report Friday said that a $10,000 offer for the television rights to the 1956 game had been received by the Canadian Rugby Union but only if the game is played in Toronto.

After the closed meeting McCafferty and CRU secretary Harry McBrien of Toronto termed the reports on TV and ticket prices as "premature."

"We have not received television bids from anyone," CRU secretary McBrien said. "I have been approached by two or three different outfits about television but no bids have been forthcoming."

McBrien said CRU has set up a four-man committee to handle all applications for television, radio, film and program rights to the Grey Cup game "and we have recommended that no bids be made before March 31."

The committee is made up of Karl Slocomb and John Payne, both Winnipeg, McBrien and McCafferty.

Maroons Thump Stratford 6-3

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons pumped in three goals in the third period to defeat Stratford Indians 6-3 Friday night before 3,164 fans.

The win ties the playoff series at 3-3 with the teams playing again tonight at Stratford.

The Maroons took a 3-0 lead in the first period on goals by Ted Power and Eric Unger.

Bill Flick scored at 1:43 of the second to put the Indians back in the running, with Eddie Busch scoring eight minutes later to move Stratford into a 3-2 lead.

Power got his second goal of the night at between the third. Dorjesty and Aitken scored in a row to close the gap to 4-3. Eddie Busch fired his second goal of the night at 12:17.

Goalie Read was pulled at 18:30, Connelly scoring in the empty net to wind up the scoring.

At The Capitol

CinemaScope Drama, with Eight Stars, Opens

"The High and the Mighty," starring John Wayne with a 23-star name cast in CinemaScope, opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre. Filmed from the Ernest K. Gann two-year best seller, "The High and the Mighty" will be seen in color by WarnerColor.

Starring with John Wayne some of the leading roles are played by Claire Trevor, Laraine Day, Robert Stack, Jan Sterling, Phil Harris, Robert Newton and David Brian. The film also introduces newcomers Doe Avedon, Karen Sharpe and John Smith.

Produced by Wayne-Fellows for Warner Bros., "The High and the Mighty" depicts the lives and love affairs of 23 people during a 2,400 mile journey from the island of Honolulu to San Francisco. The effect of impending danger creates a force which bares the emotion of the 17 passengers and five crew members.

"The High and the Mighty" was directed by William A. Wellman. Dimitri Tiomkin composed and conducted the background music for the film.

Tiomkin and Ned Washington collaborated on the words and music for the title song.

AT THE McCARTHY — Jane Wyman and Rock Hudson are co-stars of Universal-International's Technicolor romance, "That Heaven Allows." Current feature attraction at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

SECOND FEATURE

Jane and Jeff Star in "Foxfire" Film

Jane Russell, Jeff Chandler and Dan Duryea star in Universal-International's "Foxfire," in color by Technicolor, a fiery love story of a young heiress who marries a half-breed Apache Indian miner, which opens next Monday at the Capitol Theatre as the second attraction.

The Aaron Rosenberg production was directed by Joseph Pevney and features Mara Corday, Barton McLane and Frieda Inescourt in important roles.

CIRCUS KING DIES

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—Germany buried its circus king Friday. He was Lorenz Hagebeck, who never put the whip to an animal he trained. The 73-year-old grandson of the founder of the famed old Hagenbeck circus died Sunday of a stroke. The city of his birth paid homage with a funeral procession through his famous zoo.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which the birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday, March 5, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Be extra careful in driving. More cars urged. Handling Mostly mixed vibrations with Mars adding added vigilance. Keep loss temper nor be oversensitive. Personal behavior, money matters require cautious treatment.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Day's stars present mostly happy tendencies so with moderation and good sense you can avoid extremes to drive ahead in finances, private interests. Care in dangerous tasks.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your sensitive gifts, legal and other matters are favored. Be careful in your verve and ambition in full tools, machinery, railroading.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Can get ahead in your endeavors by applying well your intelligence and talents. Don't delay over important matters; day stresses attention to the urgent.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Speed not necessary to best results, but rightly allocated effort and doing essentials first are important. Maintain good humor, be alert, acquisitive for your interests.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Some things tend to slow up brilliant ideas now so it won't be amiss to go cautiously in signing legal or other significant papers. Best results if you are serene, tactful.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Inviting day. Familiar activities, industry, mechanics have good aspects. Domesticity, religion, road-building, engineering, children's affairs rate high.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Be eager for knowledge; be ready to accept and manage propositions knowing there may be strong opposition. Keen brain work, domestic interests need care.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — May show expert power handling your work or conducting home or organizations with encouragement now. Aid drives for humanitarian causes.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Your Saturn dayboner stimulating and helpful influences for practical matters, sound investments, expanding, innovating, improving. Good day on whole.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Be usefully busy at your chores, duties. Exercise forethought in family and other close interests. Day urges to go forward with courage in your field.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Neptune's Influences good today; benefic rays favor both familiar and new activities. Accept challenges, have faith in your capacities. You born today are highly talented, artistic, appreciative of knowledges and are generous acknowledging others' ability and talents. May tend to hide your own efficiency and bright ideas, sometimes fearing criticism. Consolvard Maizr are eager to cooperate with you, would help you to advance. You can succeed well where your special talents can prevail. Pray for more confidence, determination. Birthdate: Cerardus Mercator, Flemish geographer; Geo. Brent, actor; Sir Henry Layard, scholar, who excavated ancient Nineveh.

Garden Notes

Begonias for the Garden

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The tuberous begonia has been called the mocking bird of the garden since it has so many forms.

There are those that resemble camelias, others look like carnations and with their fringed, or picoted petals these are called Marginatas; others are like the roses. Crispa Undulata is a single type but these have frilled and fringed blooms and the colors in each type is clear and the texture rich.

The flowers are large, up to six inches across and the color range is from white and the pastels to deep crimson and all the red, yellow and coppery tones.

The pendula strain is still considered new. This type has large clusters of many petaled blooms. The flowers are not as large but they are more numerous. This is also known as the basket begonia. It is excellent for hanging baskets, window boxes and terrace walls as the location is shaded.

The heavy shade cast by the carport, by a thick grubbery, or on the north side of the house are suitable places to plant tuberous begonias.

LUSH FOLIAGE

The foliage is lush and has a shiny surface; the plants are compact and one foot high. At one time they were considered difficult to grow and were left to the English gardeners who had been trained to the care of roses and parks. And the nurserymen have passed their cultural needs on to others. With moderate care any one can grow them.

They do need plenty of humus in their soil, shade and moisture.

To have, early blooms the tubers should be started indoors in March early March. Fill a seed flat with shredded peat moss and water well. Allow to drain then press the tubers down into the peat until it is almost buried. The upper side is concave and often has the beginning of a new leaf bud to sprout. The tubers may be crowded close together at this stage. A light basement, or sun porch which will have a temperature of 45 to 55 degrees at night, and about 70 degrees day time temperature. Is a good place to start the begonias. The need light but no sun. Keep the peat moist but not soggy.

When the plants are five inches high re-pot using four-inch pots, or place three in a large bulb pan. The soil mixture should be two part sand or good garden soil, one part peat moss and one part leaf mold or compost. Mix in two pounds of sheep manure to a peck of soil, or one cup balanced fertilizer. Lift the tubers carefully with as much of the roots and soil as possible. Have the tuber one inch below the top of the pot.

LARGER POTS

If the plants become crowded before time to set them out move to larger pots. After transplanting, place the plants away from the window for a few days until they have adjusted to the move.

When all danger of frost is passed the plants may be set out. The soil should be rich and loose with good drainage. A mixture of manure must be provided in dry weather.

In extreme heat a fine spray during the morning hours will keep the plants in good condition. Also, fertilizer applied once a month will keep the directed blooms.

For really large blooms you will have to buy large tubers. Named varieties are expensive however, a dozen mixed bulbs at about two to three dollars a dozen will give you a handsome bed. The bulbs can be stored over for four years and more. We heard of one bulb still producing immense blooms and it is 15 years old.

Set the plants out 15 inches apart or sink the pots in the soil. They do well in pots on the veranda.

There is another type of tuberous rooted begonia which is finding favor as a bedding plant—the multiflora. It will demand some light shade. The plants are covered with masses of small blooms from early summer until frost. In this list there are double and single blooms. They are available and the Jean Bart, copper-orange, Helene Harms, double yellow. This type includes pink orange and scarlet. The culture is the same as the larger tuberous begonias.

Teepees Triumph Over Marlboros 4-2 As Irish Hand Biltmores 5-2 Defeat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Teepees, first-place finishers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A schedule, are running hot and cold in the playoffs.

Teepees, who registered 28 victories and three ties in 48 league games, slapped down Toronto Marlboro 4-2 Friday night in the first game of their best-of-seven quarter-final. As Marlboros ended up in fourth place in the regular campaign.

A sellout crowd of 3,348 fans at St. Catharines saw Teepees drive from behind to a 4-0 count early in the first period to take the win.

In two other games Friday night, Toronto St. Michael's Majors beat Guelph Biltmores 5-2. In the opening game of their best-of-seven junior final while Barrie Flyers and Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks battled in a 3-3 overtime tie, the Barrie-Kitchener series, a best-of-seven affair, also stands at 1-1, with one game tied.

At St. Catharines, Marlboros' Red Kennedy sent Toronto into a 1-0 lead in the first period. However, it didn't last long. Teepees' wasn't ahead 3-1 before the end of the session. Dick Lafleche, Ernie Vasko, Bill Hockstra and Ab McDonald scored for Teepees. Kennedy and Ken Ellard handled the Marlboros scoring.

The game developed into a bumping duel in the third period. Carter and Bob Pulford staged a brisk scrap in front of the Teepees' goal with seven seconds left and were tagged with majors.

Some 4,000 customers were on hand at Guelph, where Canucks' Frank Howarth led Majors with two goals. Bob McKnight, Lon Angotti and Frank Mahovlich each tallied one goal. Eddie Shack and Don Bellisle scored Biltmores'.

At Kitchener, Canucks had "it come from behind in the third period to tie the game after trailing 1-0 and 3-2. Penalties were costly to Guelph clubs as they had six goals came while the teams were shorthanded. Don Cherry, scored for Canucks.

Fred Merkle 'Boner' Plays End of 67

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Fred Merkle, 67, former major league baseball player best remembered for a boner which cost the New York Giants a pennant, died Friday.

Merkle was in the majors from 1907 to 1929, playing with the Giants, Dodgers, Cubs and Yankees, but he was best known for the play that cost the Giants the National League pennant in 1908.

In the last month of the season the Giants and Cubs played a game at the Polo Grounds on which the pennant race practically depended. The score was tied 1-1 with two out in the first inning with Merkle on first. Harry (Moose) McCormick was batting for the Giants. Al Bridwell singled the winning run home.

Merkle neglected to run to second, running over toward the club-house when McCormick crossed the plate. Johnny Evers, Chicago second baseman, noticed that Merkle had failed to touch second, took the ball from center fielder Artie Hofman and stepped on second and then claimed a force play.

The victory was thrown out by the umpires and the two teams wound up the season in a tie. In the famous playoff, the Cubs won to take the pennant.

Considered by manager John McGraw of Giants to be a shrewd and aggressive player, Merkle also packed a wallop at the plate in the days of one "dead" ball. Always close to the .300 mark in batting, he had his best season in 1912 when he hit .309.

FOUR NAMED

Miss Lucy's admission to the university, incidentally, was on the basis of a federal court order in her last year. The matter of whether she should be admitted had been carried successfully up to the United States Supreme Court.

Mrs. Houston is one lawyer also sought enrolment in the university in companion actions with Miss Lucy. After a series of marital difficulties and the birth of a child, however, she dropped her efforts.

Both Miss Lucy's case and that of Mrs. Hudson have been handled by the NAACP and three NAACP lawyers—Thurgood Marshall and Mrs. Constance Baker Motley, of New York, and Arthur D. Shores of Birmingham, all of whom were included among the list of candidate defendants.

In the contempt hearing Wednesday before Federal Judge H. Hobart Grooms, Marshall asked that the charge against the four men who now have entered suit be dropped, and that all contempt charges be eliminated.

At that time Marshall said, "after careful investigation we are unable to produce any evidence to support this allegation."

Judge Grooms held that none of the men was in contempt. He ruled that they "acted in good faith" in barring Miss Lucy after the riots. He directed, however, that she be returned to school by Monday.

Within hours after the Federal Court hearing, the trustees repealed their ban, declaring that no university could permit a student to make any such charge and remain undisciplined. The next move to test the validity of the segregation law is up to Miss Lucy.

In New York Friday night, Miss Lucy said she will return to the South "within the next week" and renew her fight to enter the university.

The dispute over racial segregation has spread meanwhile to Mississippi libraries.

Selby Mariners Present Three Act Comedy

IVANHOE — "Auralia Bridge From Hemlock Ridge", a comedy in three acts was presented in Ivanhoe town hall on Wednesday evening by the Selby United Church Mariners, under the auspices of Beulah United W.M.S.

Mr. Glymer Rollins acted as chairman and welcomed the visiting group and the audience.

The Rev. J. Renshaw, director of the play, introduced the cast of characters: Elsworth Moffet, a wealthy financier — Neil Pringle; Mrs. Bernice Acheson, a society matron — Beverly McCutcheon; Green Acheson, her pretty daughter — Ruth Pringle; Billy Cooper, wants to marry Green — Paul Duddgeon; O'Brian, the colored maid — Shirley Farr; Auralia Bridge, comes to the city to get a man — Jean Priskin; Lady Sybil Banning, of the nobility — Catherine Kerr; Bert Wendell, a wealthy broker — Stanley Kerr; Bess Fruling a newspaper reporter — Betty Jackson; Director — The Rev. J. Renshaw; Script — Douglas McCutcheon.

During intermissions, Mrs. J. Renshaw of Napanee sang "Just a Cottage Small", and "Songs to Our King", accompanied by Mrs. Geo. Robinson. Miss M. Cartner, of Madoc, sang, "Bless This House" and "The West, a Nest, and You", accompanied by Mrs. Keith Bray.

The chairman congratulated the "Mariners" on their fine performance and thanked all who had contributed to the program.

RUSSIA TAKES TO PLAYS

MOSCOW (Reuters) — British playwrights, classical and modern, are enjoying a boom in Russia, where 263 British plays were produced last year, Tass news agency reported today.

Wellington on The Lake

Although I am writing from Wellington with the February sun brightening Lake Ontario, my thoughts turn to the United States as I have been hearing a neighbor, Mr. Fred Morton, tell of his recent trip to Florida, bringing memories of that delightful clime. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton and Mr. and Mrs. H. Weese returned from the South on Saturday. On their way to Fort Lauderdale they gave St. Petersburg a fleeting visit, not long enough to enjoy the green benches, but long enough to awaken memories of my happy visits there, hence the following rhyme—

A DREAM OF ST. PETERSBURG FLORIDA

The winter world is wrapped in white,
The frosty air is keen,
The ice - locked lake in slumber lies,
The fragrant cedars lean
Close to the lonely ice-bound shore
As if its aid they would implore.

And while the snow piles deep and high
About my country home,
The hearth-fire sheds its warmth and light
And lures my thoughts to roam,
And memory leads me far away
In sunny, southern lands to stray.

Again I see a city fair
Beside a jewelled bay,
Its sunny skies and balmy air
Beguile the winter day;
On benches green along the street
A throng of tourists daily meet.

The fisher folk upon the bay,
The bathers on the sand,
The palms and flowers and citrus groves
Recall a picture grand;
And from the million-dollar pier
A scene unfolds the heart to cheer.

When winter rules the northern land
With stern despotic sway,
Then to escape the despot's power
The people haste away
To this, the Sunshine City bright,
Where Summer spreads a glamour bright.

—Helen R. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. Glendon Sanders entertained friends from Toronto over the weekend.

Mrs. Edna Platt entertained at a pleasant card party, guests including Mrs. D. Murphy, Mrs. Wilson Ainsworth, Miss Marjorie Blakely and Mrs. Harry Carley.

Mrs. C. Wannamaker spent the weekend with friends in Trenton.

Mrs. Dayton Murphy suffered a broken arm in a fall on the ice. She has the sympathy of many friends.

Miss Ann Dorland, Queen's University, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Dorland.

Miss Vaunga Brimely of Toronto, spent the weekend at her home in Wellington.

Mrs. Frank Harris spent a few days in Toronto, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Hubbs.

Mr. Alex Tait of the Toronto College of Art, spent the weekend at his Wellington home.

Mr. and Mrs. Aylesworth and Mr. and Mrs. Rendell, Napanee, spent a recent day as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vanderwater.

Mrs. G. Stoneburg entertained the W.A. of the United Church on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Percy Archard is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. John Miller of Prescott.

Mrs. Arnold Vanderwater is now able to be about after a recent illness. Miss Mary Lumb is also much improved in health.

NEW NAVAL HEAD

BONN (Reuters)—The West German defence ministry Thursday appointed Vice-Admiral Friedrich Ruge, a mine-laying and mine-sweeping specialist, head of its naval department to replace Capt. Karl-Adolf Zenker. Zenker aroused public criticism last year when he praised Nazi admirals Erich Raeder and Karl Doenitz—two of the six chief war criminals in Spandau jail, Berlin—saying their conviction was due only to the confusion of the immediate post-war years.

Molson's bowling clinic
SPOT BOWLING

This is the most complex of the bowling methods, but once mastered, it is a highly effective way of achieving consistently good scores.

The spot bowler never looks at the pins when bowling for a strike. Instead he concentrates his aim on a mark on the alley itself close to the foul line. You can use the alley's specially marked spots or choose a mark in the graining of the wood for your guide. The idea is to have the ball pass directly over the same spot each time.

Some spot bowlers use the method only on the delivery of the first ball and then on the second and third ball aim directly at the pins that remain standing. But a true spot bowler never looks at the pins even when shooting for single pins.

WHO IS ONTARIO'S OLDEST LEAGUE BOWLER?

Among the letters that have been pouring in from bowling fans everywhere is a very interesting one from Will Ott of Wisconsin. At ninety years of age Will is the oldest active league bowler in the U.S.A.

The letter has given Molson's an idea. We'd like to know who is the oldest active league bowler in Ontario . . . so come on bowlers . . . let's find out who he is. Just send in name, age and favourite alley.

Send 'oldest bowler' claims and any requests you have for advice and information on bowling to Mabel McDowell or Ed. Moody at Molson's Bowling Clinic, Box 4030, Terminal "A", Toronto, Ontario.

Bodies Dumped, Left on Streets In Red Romania

FRANKFURT GERMANY (AP) —A mysterious wave of terror in Communist Romania, where slain bodies have been dumped and left on the streets as public warning, was reported here today.

Reliable informants, who said they had checked and double checked the reports because of their "unbelievable nature", claimed that several hundred persons had been apparently summarily executed in recent months to intimidate the population.

The informants said the first reports of the executions and public display of bodies on the streets came from refugees reaching the West as early as last autumn.

"The refugee reports, it was said, were later confirmed, and others then new reports of the terror wave have been reaching Western sources.

The Communist purpose of exhibiting slain bodies on the street was not known. But it was believed the Red regime in Romania wished to terrorize the population and warn that opposition would not be tolerated.

Tribune Praises Parley Called By Eisenhower

NEW YORK (CP)—"Nothing but good" can come out of the conference of the chiefs of government of the Canada, Mexico and United States, the New York Herald Tribune says.

The newspaper calls the meeting scheduled for March 26-28 in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., a North American "summit conference." It will strengthen the ties that already exist among the three countries, the newspaper comments in an editorial, and is aimed at setting up a line of relations within the western hemisphere.

The White House announced in Washington Saturday that Prime Minister St. Laurent, Premier Adolfo Ruiz Cortines and President Eisenhower will confer informally on "matters of mutual interest."

The Herald Tribune, giving credit to President for conceiving the meeting, says the president "is keenly aware of the need for mutual understanding and alignment of policies by the three countries" and "And he has appreciation for the unique relationship among the North American nations, which dwell along serene and untroubled frontiers, by proposing the informal setting of the Greenbrier Hotel . . . rather than the more formally official surroundings of Washington. ....

"There are no outstanding issues of importance that separate the North American nations: all the more reason, then, for a cordial and outspoken interchange of ideas which can prove of benefit to all."

Rejected Suitor Shoots Woman

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Police said a rejected suitor admitted orally today that he shot 23-year-old Mary Alice Broderick of Buffalo through a window of her home.

Walter E. Tips, 26, a machinist, was held for arraignment later today after being questioned at length in the night of the attractive dental receptionist.

Trying to Win Back Girl with Gun, U.S. Airman Arrested at St. Kitts

ST. CATHARINES—(CP)—A U.S. Air Force sergeant accused of seizing a 23-year old English schoolmistress at gunpoint in an attempt to win back her affections was remanded today in custody to next Monday.

Nora Hurst said she was threatened with a gun held by Master Sergeant Howard Pruitt, 36, even while they were questioned by United States immigration officers Saturday at Niagara Falls, Ont., and Lewiston, N.Y., on a bridge between the two countries.

Friends said Miss Hurst first met Pruitt in England in 1953. He returned to the U. S. and she followed, but on arriving in August last year, decided to break off with the sergeant. She was in the U.S. for two weeks and was returning to Canada to live with a sister.

Pruitt, now stationed at Selfridge field in Michigan, was said to have made frequent attempts at a reconciliation. Saturday, they met again and, Miss Hurst said, Pruitt offered to drive her to her sister's home.

Miss Hurst said, however, he took them to the Lewiston docks and threatened her with a revolver. She said that on the way they had been police would be informed if she didn't phone her general manager of federal farm credit legislation; and a vigorous opposition policy to increase the number of food customers in Canada and to overcome difficulties in getting farm help.

The federation estimated that by 1980 Canada will have to produce—just to meet her own needs—78 per cent more eggs, 64 per cent more of evaporated milk, 73 per cent more cheese, 68 per cent more eggs, and 56 per cent more milk for everyday use.

FIRE TAKES TWO MORE LIVES IN OTTAWA

Flames Sweep Old Frame Building

OTTAWA (CP)—Death by fire—a frequent visitor to the capital—struck again Sunday night.

Two persons died in upstairs rooms when flames swept an old, frame dwelling on Gladstone Ave. in west-central Ottawa. They were Ottawa's 20th and 21st fiery victims since last Dec. 17.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Morely Strong, 49, formerly of Cornwall, Ont., and Robert Derry, 50, a bachelor who had moved into the rear upstairs room only about three weeks previously.

The fire came only two days after a coroner's jury completed inquests into the deaths of 19 persons in five previous blazes. The fifth fire, which took two lives, occurred only two days before the inquest opened Feb. 27.

JURY'S RECOMMENDATION

The interior walls of the house were covered with paper almost to floor tab. The jury, at one of last week's inquests, recommended a ban on the use of wallpaper on walls in boarding houses.

A third roomer, Joseph Bertrand, only other person in the dwelling at the time, escaped through a second-floor window.

Mrs. Strong's body was found between and bed, mostly burned. Witnesses said the short, stocky woman, who weighed more than 200 pounds, apparently could only squeeze through the window head first.

Mr. Derry's body was found beside a trunk at the foot of his bed. The official said he might have been overcome by smoke in his room overlooking a lean-to roof only four feet below. From there it was only a six-foot drop to the ground.

Cause of the blaze was unknown, but fire officials said the heavily damaged part of the house was the central downdraft area around the oil space heater.

Eden Recalls British Army Officers Serving in Jordan

LONDON (Reuters) — Sir Anthony Eden told Parliament today that Britain is recalling British Army officers now attached to the Arab Legion in Jordan following the dismissal of the British commander, Lt.-Gen. John Bagot Glubb.

The prime minister said there are about 13 British Army officers on the active list in Jordan. The position of officers under contract to the Jordan government would be discussed with the Middle East-ern kingdom.

The prime minister told the House of Commons:

"The House will have heard with resentment and regret of the summary dismissal of General Glubb and other senior British officers of the Arab Legion.

"The lifelong and devoted service which General Glubb has given to the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan should have received more generous treatment.

Eden described the dismissal of Glubb as "against the spirit" of the 20-year Anglo-Jordan treaty signed in 1948. He said King Hussein and Jordan's prime minister had told the British ambassador in Amman they did not want any change in Anglo-Jordan relations and that they stood by the Anglo-Jordan treaty of alliance of 1948.

The Jordan government has also given assurances about maintenance of the due protection of British lives and property.

The Jordan prime minister has also said his government intended to retain the British officers now working with the Arab Legion.

"The British government have given effect to the Anglo-Jordan government statement with regard to the officers," Eden said.

"They will, however, bear in view of the treatment meted out to the British officers who have been dismissed, it would be wrong for British officers in the Arab Legion to be left in an uncertain position.

"In our opinion officers in executive command cannot be asked to continue in positions of respect of Eden.

Food Needs in Next 25 Years May Force Halt to Exports

OTTAWA (CP)—A big upsurge in Canada's food needs during the next 25 years may force a halt to exports of most food products, the 450,000-member Canadian Federation of Agriculture predicted today.

It estimated that some 15,000,000 acres in the northern part of the prairies may have to be brought under cultivation to help produce enough men with more feed grains.

Eyen so, it told the Gordon economic commission on Canada's future, there may be barely enough beef to meet Canadian needs and none may be left for export by 1980. But there will be plenty of pork and wool—even with a population forecast to increase by 50 per cent by 1980.

Along with beef, exports of eggs, poultry and oats and barley may also disappear as the federation's busy feeding the expanded Canadian population, the federation said.

This will decrease the impact of overseas competition, it conceded, but it doesn't mean Canada should attempt to—protect her own manufacturers, the federation added.

Canada may gain rather than lose if she encourages the discovery of her expanding resources by exporting raw materials or semi-finished goods to countries short of goods or services from other countries.

And while the federation opposed a "major problem" for Canadians in the years ahead unless steps are taken to cope with it.

It also was concerned about the increasing cost of distributing food —from the farmer's gate to the housewife's pantry—and said it seemed farmers will continue to get a gradually declining share of the consumer's dollar.

On this point it suggested there should be "more protection for farmers' through continuation of price supporting programs and interest-free "disaster" loans to producers hit by calamities, plus general expansion of federal farm credit legislation; and a vigorous opposition policy to increase the number of food customers in Canada and to overcome difficulties in getting farm help.

Eisenhower Asks Bulganin To Aid Disarming

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has asked Premier Bulganin for new talks regarding Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin to join him in reaching a basis on a world disarmament program.

The letter constitutes the latest round in a propaganda duel which the two men have been carrying on over disarmament and world peace for many months.

Eisenhower's note was due to be delivered to the Soviet foreign office today by U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, Moscow dispatches said administration plans call for it to be made public today.

The Eisenhower message is both a negative reply to Bulganin's repeated proposal for a Soviet-American friendship pact and a positive reassertion of Eisenhower's own "open skies" disarmament plan.

WOMEN REFUSED VOTE

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The voters of the canton of Bern on men only refused Sunday to extend voting rights to women. A proposed amendment to the Bern constitution was rejected, 49,791 to 32,929. Women do not have the right to vote in Switzerland.

FREIGHTER SINKS MINUTES AFTER SIXTY RESCUED

Survivors Being Taken to Alaska

SEATTLE (AP) — Her forward section wrenched off by high winds and mountainous seas, the Greek-bound freighter Washington Mail sank in the North Pacific minutes after the 60 crew members and passengers including four Canadians had taken to lifeboats.

But minutes later, the transport, Gen. H. H. Arnold, brought to the scene by the freighter's first SOS, dropped rope ladders to the bobbing lifeboats and the 60 survivors scrambled up to safety.

"All survivors aboard, uninjured and in good health," the Freeman radioed.

The dramatic account of the rescue in the stormswept Gulf of Alaska some 700 miles northwest of here Saturday was radioed here by Captain Leslie Nigh, Capt. Robert T. Fulton, skipper of the rescue ship.

The Freeman, with the 51 crew members and nine passengers from the Washington Mail, was en route to Kodiak, Alaska, today. Capt. Fulton reported. It is to put the same lumber on seas that sank the freighter were holding the Freeman to a slight list today, and the vessel was not expected to reach Kodiak before this afternoon. The survivors will be flown to Seattle.

INCLUDES MISSIONARIES

Among them were two Roman Catholic missionaries, one a Canadian, en route to the Orient. The Canadian identified were Brother Charles Lelef, 38, of Montreal, who was travelling with Brother Ambrose Gouvert, 50, of Arlington, Va., Miss Ivy W. Withers, 46, of Washington, Herman Lesfor, 45, and his wife Phyllis, 42, of West Vancouver.

Miss Withers and Miss Charlotte Rodgers, 42, of Beaver Creek, Ore., were identified as two of the passengers.

The Washington Mail and the Freeman sailed from here Wednesday. The freighter carried a cargo of flour and lumber. The Freeman troops being sent to Japan.

The storm hit about noon Saturday, and both ships rolled in 30-foot seas.

Children Fight Off Angry Dog Pack with Clubs

HAMILTON (CP)—Armed residents of nearby Dundas fought off a pack of dogs in the woods in the Lynden, Copetown and Princeton area Sunday after they had been overpowered and their two-year-old dog beat off an attack of wild dogs with clubs.

Police said today three children—Susan Shantz, 7, Doug Menasse, 5, and Ruth Menasse, 10, were walking with their dog along the Copetown road when the dogs suspected rabid dogs charged them.

The children, holding their dog back, beat off the attacking dogs with clubs. It was the first reported incident of dogs attacking humans in this district, where children are armed with clubs when they go out.

REPORT MAY PACKS

Police declared a state of emergency following the report of the attack.

Reports of roving packs of dogs, foxes, and timber wolves poured in from the township officers from many parts of the district.

The dog population is estimated to total 40 animals in all, and all were suspected rabies carriers.

Severe Flood Dangers Threaten Parts of Europe

VIENNA (Reuters)—Severe flood dangers threatened several European countries today as millions of tons of melting snow and ice surged already swollen rivers and streams. Italy, Switzerland and France already have suffered flood damage.

Eight persons died in Austria during the weekend from floods, gales and avalanches. In Linz, upper Austria, a state of emergency was proclaimed. Several hundred persons in Linz were evacuated and two villages were cut off. Special emergency squads were posted in Vienna along the Danube where the waters of the River were flooded. It was feared the river would continue to rise.

'Wide Measure' Self-Government Offered Cyprus

Colonial Secretary Makes Statement in British House

LONDON (AP) — Britain today offered Cyprus a "wide measure of self-government now."

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd made the announcement in a speech prepared for the House of Commons in conjunction with a white paper detailing Britain's negotiations with Cypriots demanding union of the island with Greece.

Lennox-Boyd said Britain wants to work towards "a final solution which will satisfy the people of Cyprus, but consistent with the interests of Her Majesty's government and their allies, and have regard to existing treaties."

The colonial secretary rushed through the report after a flying visit to Cyprus where the talks with the union-with-Greece faction broke down over three major issues.

Britain previously had made plain she was ready to hand over restricted self-government to the Cypriots but retained control of foreign affairs and defence.

THREE REASONS

The white paper said the three reasons for the failure of the talks with Archbishop Makarios, leader of the union-with-Greece movement, were:

1. The archbishop's insistence on an immediate amnesty for all political prisoners on the east Mediterranean island before the three scores are held for anti-British terrorism.

2. Whether, under self-government, the British governor should retain control of internal security in addition to foreign affairs and external defence.

3. Demands by the archbishop which would result in the Greek Cypriot majority outnumbering four to one the Turkish minority in the proposed Constituent Assembly.

STATES POLICY

Lennox-Boyd today read to Parliament a statement of British government policy as it was presented to Archbishop Makarios. This said it was not the government's position "that the principle of self-determination can never be applicable to Cyprus.

"It is the position that it is not now a practical proposition on account of the present situation in the eastern Mediterranean."

The statement stressed that Britain had entered the 50th anniversary of the sacrifices of men of Greek descent and the rest Turkish "in the two world wars" must be remembered now."

It added: "Her Majesty's government will be prepared to discuss the future of the island with representatives of the people of Cyprus when self-government has proved itself capable of maintaining the interests of all sections of the community."

The white paper published a statement made by Lennox-Boyd to the archbishop during his visit to Cyprus last week.

The colonial secretary gave an undertaking that when law and order had been established there would be an amnesty for persons convicted under emergency laws, except for those involved in serious political people or illegal possession of arms and explosives.

Emergency regulations would be repealed "at a pace commensurate with the need for re-establishment of law and order."

NEW WEATHER SERVICE

LONDON (Reuters) — A weather forecasting telephone service went into operation for Londoners for the first time today. About 1,000,000 calls a month for weather information are expected.

Adenauer's Party Seals Control Of Upper House

STUTTGART, Germany (AP)— With the last state election hurdle safely cleared, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic Union looked ahead today with renewed confidence to the 1957 general election.

The CDU turned back an opposition challenge in the rich industrial state of Baden-Wuerttemberg Sunday and won six more seats in the state parliament.

Voters in the country's third largest state gave the CDU 86 of the 220 seats—less than a majority but enough to assure control with coalition party support—in an election that swept the Communist party out of the parliament. The Reds lost their four seats.

The CDU victory sealed Adenauer's control of the Upper House of the national Parliament, which gives the Christian Democrats West Germany's foreign policy, rearmament and domestic legislation. The Baden — Wuerttemberg parliament elects five members to the national body.

One of Canada's 10 Most Wanted Men Arrested

CALGARY (CP) — Harold Henrichon, 45, one of Canada's 10 most wanted men, was arrested by RCMP here Saturday after he had lived in the city's northeast area for nearly two years under an assumed name.

The man, who occupied fourth spot on the most wanted list, surrendered to four armed RCMP officers without a struggle.

RCMP said Henrichon, wanted for robbery, was charged with the armed robbery of a bank at Lyman Lake, Sask., in October, 1951, was detected following publication of his picture in Friday's newspapers.

His wife and 11-year-old daughter joined him when he was apprehended in an east Calgary residence. He is the third of Canada's 10 most wanted man to be arrested as the direct result of publication of pictures of their pictures.

Mrs. Frank Lang, who lived beside the family in the rooming house, said he seemed "like a good sort of guy."

"He was a little nervous, but I thought nothing of him because he worked so hard all the time. . . ."

SMASH TERRORIST RING

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Federal police Friday announced that they have smashed a ring of Peronist terrorist ring, arresting 13 persons and seizing a big arms cache. In ordering the crackdown on anti-government's campaign against a revolt by sabotage and terrorism, the 13 will be imprisoned for life, police said.

North Ontario Secession Movement Started by Wawa to Obtain Road

WAWA, Ont. (CP)—A three-man committee was set up here Sunday to organize a northern Ontario secession movement from the rest of the province.

A meeting here, including William Quarrell, a former township reeve, insurance agent J. H. Tessier and merchant B. A. Turcotte, also plans to co-ordinate secession movements at the Lakehead, Timmins and Sudbury.

Mr. Quarrell said the secession movement would provide a good lever to get the government to build a road from Wawa to Sault Ste. Marie to the south.

Wawa, whose only link to the outside world now is by rail, recently formed a committee to build a connecting road this spring. The group has promised to start on the road next year.

August Meacham, United Church minister from Errechook, the area-owner and bush pilot, township clerk Hugh Ferguson and Turcotte were chosen to present Wawa's case for a road before the government.

The committee also decided to distribute several thousand stickers in Toronto and Lake Superior communities asking motorists to write to their legislature member and newspaper about Wawa's lack of a road.

Quinte Club Figure Skaters Pass Tests

Nine of ten figure-skating students of the Quinte Skating Club passed preliminary tests in Memorial Arena on Sunday afternoon.

Successful students were: Lynn Punchard, Sidney Pringle, Ellen McCreary, Sheila Tracy, Barbara Dyble, Barbara Matthews, Frances Dickens, Joe Calbury and Mrs. Joan Kells.

The students practised under the competent supervision of Mrs. Olivia Weese, well-known city figure skater and instructress. She was assisted by Miss Lillian Sprackett, another well-known Quinte club figure skater.

The judges were: Mrs. Vardy Cobourg; Mr. Hughes, Bowman ville and Mrs. Talmage, Oshawa. The arrangements for the tests were made by club treasurer, Jack Dickens.

President John Lewis and the Quinte Skating Club management were well pleased with the results. They are looking forward to an exceptional season next winter when, they say, they will be able to devote more hours weekly practice at the arena.

Tuesday night the club is holding its annual championships in Memorial Arena starting at 7.30.

Religion in Life Program Staged At Albert College

For the first time in its 100-year history stately Albert College staged a Religion in Life program for its students last week.

Religious leaders for the three-day program were: Wednesday and Friday evening "were Rev. A. J. MacQueen, pastor of First St. Andrew's United Church and St. Andrew's United Church, Oshawa, and Miss Audrey McKim, director of Christian education at Islington United Church, Toronto.

Theme of the three-day religious life weekend was "What Is Your Leader?" with Mr. MacQueen as the theme speaker. The program included services in the chapel at which all students were expected to attend, and discussion groups with attendance on a voluntary basis.

Students were invited to attend the discussion groups and bring along their problems. Suggested topics for discussion were: "Does the Bible Have Authority for Life Today?"; "Do Christian Ethics apply to all of Life?" and "How Can We Believe in Resurrection?"

Discussion group leaders were Mr. MacQueen, Miss McKim, and Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, principal of the college.

Congregation Of New Church Meets Socially

On Saturday night Eastminster United Church held a congregational Dessert Social in Bridge St. United Church. An informal social hour featuring a luscious variety of refreshments and coffee was enjoyed.

Watson Wheland had on display a miniature model of the proposed church.

Mr. Linton Read, clerk of session, acting as chairman opened the meeting with a prayer and Mr. William Riley then introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Neil Campbell, representative of the Board of Home Missions, Toronto.

Through a film entitled "Mr. Jones Makes Plans," Mr. Campbell illustrated the task confronting every member of a new born church. The solution, he suggested, could be found in the 10th verse of I Corinthians. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him. Rev. Don Moorman thanked the speaker.

Mr. Jim Allan gave an interesting outline of the church history. A suggested program for the new church was given by the general superintendent, the Sunday School, Mr. Ralph Wightman.

The difficult job of financing the new church, which is uppermost in the minds of all, was clearly illustrated by Mr. William van Steenburgh. The estimated cost of the church built with its necessary furnishings will be approximately $55,000. The annual operating expense will be $18,000.

Helpful guidance and advice was given by Rev. H. M. Davis, supervising minister, who was in attendance.

Plans for the every member canvass to be held Sunday, March 11th, were explained and the meeting was closed with the singing of "O God our help in ages past." Our hope for years to come."

Large Indian Townsite Found Near Consecon Described to Club

The February meeting of the Quinte Field Naturalists was held in the Entomology building with Miss Frances Young, the new president, in the chair.

Mr. Hedley James gave an excellent report on the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Ontario Field Naturalists held in Toronto at Hart House in the Ontario Museum.

Members were reminded of the Nature school to be held at Camp Billie Bear from June 30 to July 7.

After examining bulletins from other clubs it was decided that Miss Lillian Hart, Miss Daisy Young and Miss Jean McIntosh would be a committee in charge of preparing a small bulletin for the Quinte club.

Looking forward to spring field trips Miss Joy Nichols invited the members to her cottage at Frenchman's Bay for the 31st of May, and Mrs. Ethel Bennett to Valleycroft farm in June.

Mr. Ralph Bell then introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Howard Hagar of Consecon. Mr. Squire is a retired clergyman who has always thought a farm on the shores of Consecon Lake and by his devotion to the study of birds, flowers and search for a large Indian village site. He has been successful and is adding much to our knowledge of the people who inhabited this part of the country centuries and even thousands of years ago.

The Indian village site, Mr. Squire was made while looking for some data to be used in painting historical scenes of Kents. Mr. Squire is an artist as well as preacher and archeology.

His first asked himself where he would have chosen to live as a townsite if he were an Indian. It turned out to be the very spot where his home was built—a beautiful knoll. Several times was an island, the approaches to which were protected by quick-moving water. It had a deep well, good vantage point with a view of the lake, was protected from cold winds in winter by a range of hills to the north.

Consecon, now over a mile wide was much smaller in Indian days and a deep well-protected creek and extremely important waterway, or canoe route from Consecon to Carrying Place. The swamp was a good place to find many kinds of all kinds for food. There were plenty of fish in the deepest part of the creek. Plenty of wild grapes, berries and blueberries, all used for food by the Indians. Also on the high plateau and rumac which was used for dyes.

Next came the search for the water supply which the Indians must have had. They were found of clear, sweet running water but no one around Consecon had ever heard of a spring on such a plateau within the last two hundred years. Finally, after much water diviner, after weeks of search, found a cold, underground stream. He diggled down two feet through topsoil and sand to come to limestone but there he held back the sand. Digging further he came to limestone and a copious supply of spring water. A well has since been made and there stone steps down to the flow. One piece of Indian work was found by the spring—a carved piece of stone in the shape of a bowl with an animal figure on the side possibly the earliest bowl for mixing war paint.

TWO HAND AXES FOUND

After days of fruitless search two hand axes were found. Removal of dirt exposed by ploughing brought to light small pieces of pottery. By moving a little farther to the east there were found white ashes about forty feet long and twenty feet wide in cross section view. This was thought to be a kitchen midden or refuse heap. Here many artifacts were found.

A large circular patch alien to the surrounding soil was said by archeologists to be the ancient site of a bubbling spring many centuries ago by Indians. Some of the artifacts found were more than 3,000 years old, period dating three thousand years before more before Indian times. Such artifacts have never been found in found in this part of the country.

Six fireplaces each five feet long and six feet wide which must have stood in front of the Indian houses were uncovered. Many more are probably waiting discovery.

Among the artifacts found were many stone pipes, deer antler and bone awls and needles, etc., arrowheads and fishhooks, bone needles, scrapers, many various sizes, spear points, bone and shell necklaces, a Laurentian period axe and various other Indian kinds, one being a double bitted. Mr. Squire has much about when you stand in the spiritual presence of a vanished people. What happened to them, they got? We don't know. We can only guess.

Miss Young thanked the speaker for his interesting address. During the lunch period which followed the members were given an opportunity to see the exhibit more closely.

No Fatalities In District During January

The Ontario Provincial Police highway crackdown ordered by Attorney General Leslie Frost in last fall apparently had results in the Belleville headquarters area during January.

Highway accident statistics for the month released today by Supt. R. H. Deverexu, head of the traffic department for No. 3 district, revealed that although there were 66 accidents recorded resulting in 24 persons injured there were no fatalities.

Evidence that the police highway checkup was continuing was that 2,930 vehicles had been checked and 640 had warnings issued and 640 charges laid.

Speeding charges still continued to be the lead with 323 of these being laid against speeding motorists. There were 117 charges laid for defective automotive equipment; 20 drivers were charged with careless driving; seven were charged with drunk driving and eight motorists received summonses for driving while impaired.

CHMC to Offer Houses in Two Areas for Sale

Central Mortgage and Housing will offer for sale this spring the 203 homes in the two veterans' housing areas, Churchill and Bayview Heights, it has been learned.

Local manager of the Central Mortgage, Mr. E. T. Connell, said it was expected the houses in the two areas would be offered for sale some time in the spring although the date was still not announced.

Price to be charged by the Crown company for the one-storey and a story-and-a-half dwellings had not yet been decided on, it was learned.

Some months ago rentals in the two housing areas were increased to enable larger payments to the city in lieu of taxes. Tenants now pay $48 for storey-and-a-half homes and $48.50 for one-storey bungalows.

Staff of Central Mortgage is to give tenants the first opportunity of purchasing the house in which they are living.

Curlers Asked To Attend Meeting Thursday Night

Another meeting of the Curling Club will be held in the City Hall if the information gleaned over the weekend from the president, Bill Hall, it is understood the curling committee appointed to confer with the Fair Board and other bodies has compiled enough data to know something is needed to start on the project, so that they can be working efficiently this fall.

All the details have been arranged. An agreement has been made between the Fair Board and the Curling Club with respect to a recommendation that the board propose to build the Fair Building. It has given its blessings to the Fair Board with respect to a site on the fairgrounds. It is up to the Curling Club to carry out its part of the agreement and a new curling club in the city is assured.

During the interval from the last meeting, the committee has looked over several sketches for the proposed building with the Fair Board and it is understood this matter is fairly settled. The committee and the Fair Board have been informed that the building can be ready for occupancy during the fair and that the artificial plant for the Curling Club can be installed from that time till curling is started. A great deal of membership has been made and even larger crowd will be on hand Thursday than at the first meeting when more than eighty curlers and interested members turned up.

This is your meeting and what you put in it will determine the outcome. Should the curling rink in Belleville so be on hand on Thursday night and hear the latest information on this venture.

6,000 CHICKS DIE

AURORA, Ont. (CP)—Six thousand baby chicks perished Sunday in a fire that levelled a three-storey poultry house owned by Robert Muller near this town, 25 miles north of Toronto. It was the fifth fire of its kind in 10 days. Nine thousand chickens died in a fire at Stouffville and 3,000 at another in Glenville.

Father and Son Banquet Enjoyed By Cub Pack

The 10th Belleville Cub Pack held their annual father and son banquet at Holloway Street United Church on February 25th.

After grace by the Rev. T. F. Townsend and a toast to the King by the chairman, Howard Armstrong, the cubs sat beside their dads for a real tasty meal prepared by the Club Mothers' Auxiliary.

Seated at the head table were District Cubmaster John Townsend, Mr. Townsend, District Forester Ruxton, a representative from the Department of Lands and Forests, John Ross, president of the Exegetic Club, who are sponsors of the cub pack, Howard Armstrong, president of the group committee and his son Ronald Armstrong.

Cub Garry Thibault welcomed the fathers and Fred Kemp replied. Then Howard Armstrong introduced the guests.

Tony Kopas introduced the new Akela, Lloyd Greaves, who is also carrying out his duties in a very capable and enthusiastic manner. The Akela then presented a short but interesting program describing the duties of the cubs and the leading parts were taken by Cubs, Lloyd Kaufman, John Hughes. These two boys also qualified at the Y.M.C.A. swim meet. Fred Kemp. Service star for completion of one year in cubs, Bobby Butcher, Douglas Row, John Hughes, Richard Cherry. Service star for completion of two years in cubs: Ronald Pipe (absent).

District Forester Ruxton presented two cubs with their first aid fires in Ontario and the study of birds' wings.

A vote of thanks was given to the fathers by John Smith for the delightful dinner, on behalf of the Cub Mothers' Auxiliary. Mrs. D. H. Cooke, Cub Mother, that was thanks enough to see the smiling faces of the fathers and cubs while they enjoyed their meal.

Cub Jimmy Tiker gave a vote of thanks to District Forester Ruxton for the interesting films and brief talk and Mr. Ruxton replied that it was a pleasure to do this work for the cubs.

The meal then took their fathers and formed a Vesper Circle. They sang the cub vesper after which Mr. Townsend pronounced the benediction.

Film Council Hears Lecture, Views Pictures

On Thursday evening the Belleville and District Film Council held its meeting in the Corby Hall. It was an especially large group present.

Mr. L. A. Kells, in the absence of president Charles Pyle, presided and introduced the speaker.

The feature of the evening was an illustrated lecture on "Europe Revisited" by Canon A. S. McConnell, of St. Thomas. It was an especially large group present.

Mr. L. A. Kells, in the absence of president Charles Pyle, presided and introduced the speaker.

The feature of the evening was an illustrated lecture on "Europe Revisited" by Canon A. S. McConnell, of St. Thomas. The pictures, taken in color, were beautiful. Canon McConnell, who is Irish born, enlivened his pictures with many humorous as well as informative remarks.

The speaker, a padre in the Second World War, showed slides of gears of many battlefields as well as the burial places of the honored dead. Included in his slides were many beautiful and historic cathedrals.

Sister Mary Timothy of St. Michael's very ably thanked the speaker.

Miss Olive Delaney then showed pictures of her recent lecture entitled "Flywood of B. C. and Its Uses."

The meeting closed with a social cup of tea.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market strode forward firmly in active flourishing trading today. Industrials advanced to a record index while western oils were at a three-year peak. Selected medium-priced coppers were strong. Leading industrials ahead were financial institutions, utilities, papers and steels.

Top industrial gain was $4.25 to $24.25 by Cochrane-Dunlop on a 100-share block. Among mines, Martimes moved over the 34 mark before drifting back to 33.95, up 25 cents. Merrill Island and New Dickenson gained 20 cents. Duvan lost a few pennies.

Blue Ridge climbed 30 cents to $4.30 in uranlums. Greyhawk and Milliken Lake advanced. Home B with a 15-point gain at 13¼ guided western oils forward.

Five Persons Killed in Car Crash in Alta.

BOW ISLAND, Alta. (CP)—Five persons are dead and two others are in serious condition in hospital as the result of a head-on collision between two automobiles early this southwestern Alberta town Saturday night.

Four persons were killed in the crash on a slippery stretch of road and another died Sunday in hospital at Medicine Hat.

The victims — four of them members of one family—were Roy S. Beattie, 66; Lloyd Lunseth, 40; his two daughters, Audrey, 10, and Marlene, 7, and his mother-in-law Mrs. Justine Domzo. All were from Bow Island. Marlene died in hospital.

Oust Eastland Or Lose Our Votes Negro Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Negro leader Sunday called Senator James Eastland (Dem., Miss.) a spoken segregation advocate, in a Washington speech to the NAACP's civil rights assembly.

Representative Adam Clayton Powell (Dem. N.Y.) told a church rally in New York City that he may leave Congress and devote himself to country-wide prayer movement against segregation if his March 28 deliverance day "exiles Eastland from office."

The Negro congressman wants Negroes and others to pray in support of the Negro boycott against buses in Montgomery, Ala., on that day. Powell is pastor of the 6,000-member Abyssinian Baptist church in Harlem and chairman of the national deliverance day committee.

WILL ADMIT NEGROES

Meanwhile, two New York newspapers reported that the University of Alabama, which recently expelled Autherine Lucy, will admit fully qualified Negroes if the law says it must.

The Times and The Herald Tribune said in dispatches from Tuscaloosa, Ala., that the university will resist compulsory integration but would abide by court decisions.

"Our action in the Autherine Lucy case does not mean thereby that we are going to keep all Negroes out," The Times quoted university president Oliver C. Carmichael as saying. According to The Times, Carmichael also said the very careful investigation would be made of any Negro applicants.

LASHES DEMOCRATS

In an opening speech to the three-day civil rights assembly, Mitchell declared that civil rights legislation was an obligation of both major political parties. Then he lashed out at the Democrats by saying:

"If they're going to keep a stinking albatross like Senator Eastland around their neck, they've got to kiss our votes goodbye."

The Democrats, adhering to the "southern strategy," last week elevated Eastland to the chairmanship of the Senate judiciary committee, succeeding the late senator Harley Kilgore of West Virginia. The committee considers most civil rights legislation.

TO U.S.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Soviet composer Aram Khachaturian will travel to the United States for the first time in June to conduct a program of his works at the Los Angeles music festival, Franz Waxman, festival director, said Friday.

First in Series Bahamas, Colorful Winter Playland, Visited by Writer

By ELMER BONTER

NASSAU, Bahamas (Special)—Everybody should try and see this colorful winter playland once in their lifetime. And with the progress of aviation and the re-opening of Windsor airfield the end of this year there is talk that these beautiful little islands can be reached from New York in less than three hours.

Right now is the height of the tourist season in Nassau, the capital described by a wide-awake Chamber of Commerce thus: "Capital of the Bahamas on an island of New Providence, resort for the discriminating, the ideal choice for a winter in sunshine for a holiday or permanent home."

The British flag flies over the Bahamas, novel in its pictureqsueness, offering something new and at the same time possessing all the amenities of modern living. This city of 46,000 boasts one of the finest winter climates in the world, the temperature varying comfortably between 80 degrees high to 65 degrees low, and an almost cloud climate unusually equable.

More and more wealthy Canadians are being attracted by the tax laws governing the islands. The only direct taxes levied are a personal property only.

Just a few days ago one of local daily papers here heralded an announcement by E. P. Taylor, the Canadian financing genius. Mr. Taylor expressed intention to develop a 2,800-acre tract of land on the eastern end of New Providence. So far the scheme had cost him about $1,000,000. Some 2,000 homes and commercial conveniences will eventually spring up from a barren piece that overlooks Lyford Cay where Mr. Taylor maintains his elaborate estate.

SIX-HOUR FLIGHT

Nassau lies some 2,000 air miles southeast of Toronto. The flight there takes just over six hours. I flew TCA in a 300-mile-an-hour strato-cruiser that fairies 40 passengers comfortably. Price of the return ticket was $152.

There was snow on the tarmac at Malton, although the sun was trying hard to shine through a soupy overcast. I was wearing my three-quarter length winter driving coat, the temperature was in the 30's.

In 12 days I flew with three different airlines, two American and one Canadian. The Canadian service seemed to be more courteous and concerned about the passengers' welfare.

Pilot Joe White, veteran of World War II and skipper of many cross-ocean flights, drew attention to a graveyard for 300 U.S. naval escort ships as the aircraft headed out over the Atlantic at Wilmington, North Carolina. The coastline from 12,000 feet stood out in relief against back-lighting of the setting sun.

But the awesome scene came just at dusk high above Andros Island, the largest of the Bahamas and closest to the U.S. coastline. A thin layer of cirrus reflected against purple heavens across a sea of floating cloud.

As the light disappeared the passengers peered down through the portholes into a fading green land of hills and valleys dotted with tiny lakes. Now with Nassau only a matter of minutes away the stewardess that goes with the arrival in a strange new place gripped this writer in particular.

EXCITED VOICES HEARD

The excited voices of the passengers could be heard plainly above the steady drone of the four powerful engines. Some talked about plans for their first night in Nassau. Others enquired about customs regulations. Some asked the stewardess about good places to eat. A few remained at the windows as they would not miss the lights of the city. The passengers generally were in a happy mood at the expectation of reaching their destination and the enjoyment of a dream holiday that will, going to finally become a reality.

Twinkling lights in multi-colors signalled the approach to Oakes Field south of Nassau's fabulous waterfront and business section. The warning horn indicating the aircraft was below 500 feet sounded as the pleasing voice of the stewardess instructed passengers to fasten seat belts. Runway markers plainly visible in the beam as the landing lights shot out my observation post just before the squeal of rubber tires sliding on to the dry concrete runway broke the peculiar silence that goes with landings and take-offs.

750 Dogs, 150 Cats Receive Innoculations

CAMPBELLFORD — About 750 dogs and 150 cats received a rabies innoculation here on Monday at a special one-day clinic set up at the Public Utilities office. A team of two veterinarians worked three two-hour shifts to handle the animals. In one two-hour period during the morning, the two vets innoculated more than 275 animals.

The two vets were Dr. Robert Miller, of Cornwall, a representative of the Department of Agriculture, Health of Animals branch and Dr. J. E. Trimble, of Campbellford.

Dog owners came from as far as 45 miles away to take advantage of the vaccination. Suit-cases, bags and cardboard boxes were in some containing as many as four or five cats.

Announce Names Of Four Airmen Killed in France

OTTAWA (CP)—Air force headquarters here last night announced names of four Canadian airmen killed near Benfeld, France, Friday when their Sabre jets crashed in a four-plane mid-air collision.

The airmen were FO John Adams, 24, of Winnipeg, FO Frederick Karl Axtell, 24, of London, Ont., FO Gordon Wesley, 24, of Kelowna, B. C., and FO Joseph McLarty, 25, of Dawson Creek, B. C.

NOTED CARTOONIST DIES

LONDON (Reuters) — Sidney Strube, one of Britain's leading newspaper cartoonists, died at his home here Sunday night. He was 76. Strube's working life was spent on The Daily Express which he joined in 1912. He retired in 1948.

Four of Nine Accident Deaths Caused by Fires

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents took at least nine lives in eastern Canada during the weekend. Five died in Quebec and four in Ontario. A Canadian Press survey showed no deaths in the Maritimes.

Four of the nine died in fires, while traffic mishaps claimed the other five. The deaths were recorded between 6 p. m. local-times Friday and midnight Sunday.

Two persons died Sunday in a rooming-house blaze in Ottawa where a series of hearings into five fires that took 19 lives during a two-month period concluded only last week.

Dead are Mrs. Morley Strong and Michael Derij, both middle aged.

BROTHERS DIE

Two little brothers, Wayne Barr, 4, and Ronald Barr, 2, died Saturday in a Montreal house fire.

Leonard Losey, about 40, was killed Saturday when his car plowed into a ditch near Belleville.

John Zreiak, 27, was killed Saturday when his car crashed into the cement railing of a bridge near Hamilton.

Health Minister Pledges Support To St. Laurent

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Speaking here Saturday, national Health Minister Paul Martin pledged his support in the next federal elections to Prime Minister St. Laurent.

He told the Western Ontario South Liberal Association: "The prime minister of Canada today will again be the prime minister of Canada because he has given responsible leadership and he is this country's leading statesman."

Mr. Martin hinted that an election may come in 1957. The Liberal government's term runs out in 1958.

THE FUNCTION OF EDITORIALS

Within the past week or so, we have twice devoted space in this column to outlines of public speeches, by a statesman and by a diplomat, with little or no accompanying comment.

We were vaguely uneasy about this performance. Material of this nature is generally printed in the news columns which, while they must not express the opinions of the newspaper itself, are freely devoted to publicising the views of other people. Why did we permit this material to be diverted to the editorial column? A defence was easy. One address, was old, delivered in November, and so no longer news. The other was not yet news, for the speech had not been delivered when the text reached us. The news coverage of it might, or might not, include the parts which we considered important and this report might, or might not, manage to appear in any way fair in paper. But is this defence a legitimate one, or is it just a case of discovering excuses for a lazy man's way of filling this column? That set us wondering how we should define the function of an editorial column.

Is it to express the views of the newspaper, that is to say of its publisher, its editor or its editorial writer? The answer is that it sometimes is, yet it ponders us it must be a qualified affirmative. For if the editorial column does no more than express opinions, it does not begin to play as important a role as do the news columns. They exist to report news, in order that the readers of the newspaper may be informed. The editorial column's opinions ought, therefore, to present opinion for some purpose and that purpose appears to us to be to induce the readers to form their opinions. In other words the primary purpose of editorials is to get people to think for themselves.

Grant that, and we have no reason to apologize for summarising the views of Dr. Evard Kardelj, vice-president of Yugoslavia, on the existing international situation, or those of A. D. Emmart, Canadian Ambassador to the United States, on Canadian-U.S. relations. Both addresses were replete with statements and opinions which challenged readers for themselves to weigh and sift the arguments presented and to form their own opinions.

But if encouraging people to think for themselves is the primary purpose, then this should not this column be devoted exclusively, or at least mainly, to the presentation of thought-provoking addresses by men who are experts in their fields? Why should some hack writer, with little or no education and no genuine knowledge in any field, a mere jack-of-all-trades, set himself up to weigh the arguments of experts, to sift the evidence they presented and to form opinions?

If there is an adequate answer to this argument, and we think there is, it must be that so often experts differ, so infrequently do they all agree. No matter what an editorial writer may say, he is entitled sure to find himself in agreement with some expert. Some of the readers of editorials may themselves be experts on the subject being discussed, but the majority are not. They know only a little about it than the editorial writer. The difference is that the editorial writer has started to think about the subject. Who is the best equipped to make these readers who have lacked interest in, or knowledge of, the subject start to think about it—the specialist with his unconscious assumptions of some latent knowledge and interest in his pet subject or the all-knowing editorial writer, who starts his consideration from the same general level of ignorance and apathy as the majority of his readers and proceeds to provide them with some of the more interesting facts and opinions outlined by the specialist. Who is the reader more likely to challenge, the expert or the hack? To one he says: "Well, I suppose that must be so, if he says so." To the other he says: "Is it so? Come now!"—or more explosively, "What drivel!" And which set of reactions is more indicative of a reader who is doing his own thinking?

THE CHANGING FACE OF ASIA

Amongst the litter of paper which descends on the editorial desk every day are gems. But one of the better efforts is "Change in Asia," a 64-page booklet issued by the Colombo Plan Information Unit, Bureau for Technical Co-operation, Colombo, Ceylon. It consists almost entirely of photographs, admirable in their clarity and fascinating in their variety. Here we see the Asia of which we have read, the towering heads of the Himalayas, the exotic ploddings of their denizens in the mists of a peasant's rickety water wheels, rice boats and their dwellers, hammer-laden women among the tea bushes, the rich paddies with their straight lines, the dancing girls with their curved ones.

But here, too, we see oil derricks silhouetted against the sky; smoke and chimneys streaming skyward in a manner reminiscent of Pittsburgh; concrete blocks which could be a prairie elevator but are a Burmese cement factory. And here, we see a dam which could be a St. Lawrence powerhouse project, which, we learn, will dwarf that project. For this dam, at Hirakud in India, will be the world's longest when it is completed.

INCOMPETENT DRIVERS

The competent driver must be under no illusions as to the incompetence of many of those who, although at the steering wheel of a car or truck, are only by courtesy drivers. In extending the courtesy he must add to the courtesy the reservation that he must not be blamed for their inadequacies, which he must-imagine, as well as his own which he can face with knowledge. BIRCH TREES

Along a bleak and wind-swept shore
The birch trees manage still to thrive.
The birds, a few brief years before,
Dropped seeds where nothing second Alive.

Among great boulders here and there
Where there was neither Soil nor spoon,
Within a narrow crevice bare
A miracle was taking place.

With naught its happier fellows knew
The life within that seed survived,
And there a twisted birch tree grew,
And to adorn the spot contrived.

I never see one brave the gale,
But what I'm sure my strength would fail
Had I to face such odds as that.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 6, 1936

Mrs. Fred Greenwood has returned home after spending several days in Toronto.

Miss Daisy Gardiner of Bancroft is visiting her cousin, Miss Margaret Lane, in this city.

The members of the Belleville Gunners' Club have been given place for their own use in the headquarters of the 34th Battery. A meeting of the club was held last evening, in the new quarters and during the business meeting Gunner Walter Allore offered to donate a piano to the club in order that at future meetings music may be enjoyed. His generous offer was gratefully accepted. The president of the club, Fred Wiggins, presided.

Mrs. D. M. Moore observed the 90th. anniversary of her birthday on Wednesday. She received the congratulations and good wishes of many friends and neighbors. Mrs. Mouck, who prior to her marriage was Miss Annie Graham, was born in Ireland and came to Canada at the age of four years. For many years she resided in Tweed and for the past twenty-seven years she has made her home in Belleville. She has eighteen grandchildren and eight great grandchildren. Seated at the birthday dinner last evening were her married sons and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Mouck, Tweed; Mrs. W. E. Graham, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Mouck, Thomasburg; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bateman, Thomasburg, and Miss Nettie Mouck who lives here with her mother.

Rt. Wor. Bro. W. C. Mikel, K. C., was the speaker at the banquet which followed Past Masters' Night at The Belleville Lodge A. F. & A. M. last night and in the course of a most interesting address he gave a account of some of the great legal trials he has taken part in.

Dr. A. T. Ramsay, M.P., Bancroft was in town today.

Mrs. Dunbar Ketchum of Madoc is visiting her mother, Mrs. Fauley, Octavia Street.

Mr. R. B. Hamilton of Foxboro was in town today.

Mr. Thomas Lash of Toronto is spending a few days here with his family.

Mr. Robert J. S. Dewar, county registrar, has taken up residence here on Queen Street.

Twenty girl guides in charge of Miss Ethel Thompson, Miss Jackson and Miss Helen McCraig, enjoyed a snow shoe tramp and winter picnic last evening; refreshments were served around a camp fire.

Coasting on the hills was permitted years ago. From our file copy at this time in 1896: "A number of people enjoyed the coasting on Murney's Hill last evening. They are grateful to the police for not interfering with their amusement".

When Belleville Defeated Midland. Here are some interesting notes with regards to the Belleville - Midland hockey match here in which the local team won by a score of 13 to 1, thereby off setting their recent defeat at Midland by a score of 10 to 6.

Brock Shorey has sure fulfilled all his promises; this is the first time since 1901 that Belleville has been in the finals. Conley is the greatest amateur net guardian — barring none — in the game. Whalen at centre is another hard worker and never lets up from goog to goog. Mitchell is not spectacular but he is there every minute of the play and his passing should not be implored upon. Simmons and Whitty are a great pair to serve to and when they start down the ice they are simply irresistible. It was their lightning-like rushes that broke the hearts of their opponents before the first period had ended. A welcome addition to the line up was our old friend Bill Pinkie; he was there all the way through in his old time form and he is sure a dazzler. The return of Finkle raises Belleville stock immensely. One member of the Midland team who is on the job every minute of the play is Sammy Symonds and he is one of the most effective men on the team; his back - checking and Apperin tactics help in no small degree to put the tally on the right side.

50 YEARS AGO

Members of the Bar in this city and county and a few friends outside the legal profession were right royally entertained recepy at the residence of Lieut. Col. W. N. Ponton, president of the Hastings County Law Association. The following were present: Judge R. Pinkerton; police magistrate, J. J. B. Flint; P. J. M. Anderson, County Crown Attorney; Wm. Williams, clerk of the Surrogate Court; Siewart Bill Price, W. McCanon, Frank S. Wallbridge, Curtis Bogart, W. S. Morden, W. Jeffers Diamond, Jas. O'Flynn, A. R. Walker, W. P. McMahon, William Ponton, Jr., Lieut. Thomas Gusse Porter, W. C. Mikel, also Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Senator Ritchie and A. W. Johnson, not members of the legal profession. The evening was one of the most enjoyable spent by those present for many a day.

Albani Sang Here. From our file copy at this time in 1896: "Manager T. J. Wilson has arranged excursion rates on all railways, where by every 25 cents or more leave the one town to attend the grand concert in the opera house here on the evening of March 24."

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT

Twelve men sat on a mountain-side, along with Jesus.

They had followed Him into Peter's fishing boat, across the Sea of Galilee. At His order they beached the boat. Up a steep path they climbed to a wildflower-lined ledge. Late afternoon light misted waters below. It was as though they were on an island of rock, between earth and heaven.

An hour before, Jesus had chosen these men to be His apostles, to be the first Christians. And He had brought them to this mountainside to explain what this new faith was, to show them the heavenly mysteries that were to be theirs — and ours.

There on the misty ledge He told them all a soul needs to know of God and the world, of today, and the life to come.

And Jesus was speaking not only to them, but to you, and to me. The men who heard Him learned His words by heart, and wrote them for all to treasure. Never are those words been forgotten, though often they are misunderstood.

What does it means to be a Christian? It means to live in happiness.

Since the world was born people have searched for happiness. They have said: If I had more money, then I would be happy. If they were older, younger, stronger, or more beautiful, then certainly they would be happy. And they are wrong. Happiness is found not in getting, but in giving, in loving God, and His laws.

OFFERS HAPPINESS

Jesus came to offer happiness. He did not say we would escape pain, or tears, sickness, or poverty. But He promised that in spite of those things we could still be happy, and blessed.

What must we do to be truly happy?

Jesus gave us eight rules, called the Beatitudes, because those who live by them are blessed. And because the One who spoke was the Son of God unchanging, they are as true today as on that mountainside so long ago.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven," said Jesus.

And He meant: Happy are they who are humble and not proud of good Christian. He was sad for cares not for riches or fame, or proving how wonderful He is, because he knows only God is wonderful.

"Blessed are the meek, for they shall possess the land," said Jesus.

And He meant: Accept God's will, believe that because He is good everything He does is good, and you will find happiness. Then nothing that happens can frighten you, or make you feel forsaken. A good Christian, He was saying, knows God exists for him, and he feels safe even in the face of darkness.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted," said Jesus.

And He meant: "You who sorrow for others who are in trouble, and help them, shall find happiness.

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after justice, for they shall be filled," said Jesus.

And He meant: "You who really want to know God, and to serve Him, will surely find happiness. For God will show you His works and feed your soul.

"Blessed are the merciful," said Jesus, "for they shall obtain mercy."

Blessed are the clean of heart—for they shall see God.

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God."

STARTLING SECRET

Jesus looked at the twelve men in a circle before Him, men who would soon be killed for serving Him. He was about to tell them a startling secret — they would find happiness in suffering, even in dying for His sake. We may never die for His sake, but every Christian at some time will suffer a bit for His sake, and His words are true for us as they were for those twelve.

"Blessed are they that suffer persecution for justice's sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

"Blessed are you when they shall revile you and . . . speak . . . evil against you, untruly, for My sake. . . . Your reward is great in heaven."

The twelve men sat-in silence; causing the sparrow to sing and the sunset. In their hearts His words repeated themselves — the eight rules of Christian life, so difficult, so simple.

Then Jesus spoke again.

Did they remember the Ten Commandments? He did. Then, said Jesus, remember those laws are for Christians, too. But it is not enough to refrain from doing evil, a Christian must not think evil either. A Christian must only love, and kindness, even when it is hardest to love and be kind.

"You have heard," Jesus asked, "You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy? But I say to you: Love your enemies!

"Be good to them that hate you. Pray for them that persecute you . . . Remember you are the children of the Father Who makes His sun to rise upon the good, and the bad — and His rain to fall upon the just and the unjust."

He said:

"Be you perfect, as also your heavenly Father is perfect."

Be perfect, He said, but never boast of perfection.

As the setting sun painted the mountain rock, Jesus explained if you brag about your goodness to make others admire you, that will be your reward. But if you try to hide your goodness from everyone except God, your reward will come from Him. And, after all, nothing on earth can compare with heaven. The only reason God has created the earth and world, is to let us prepare for a life with Him in heaven.

Money? Riches?

Jesus, the King born in a stable — spoke through the twilight:

TREASURE IN HEAVEN

"Lay not up for yourselves treasure on earth — where rust and moths can consume them, and thieves break through. Lay up treasures in heaven — where neither rust nor moth can consume, and where thieves do not break through.

"Where your treasure is, there is your heart also."

He raised His eyes over the darkening sea.

"No man can serve two masters . . . You cannot serve God, and Mammon with its riches.

"Therefore I say to you, do not think it is important to worry about how you shall find food to eat . . . or fine clothes to wear. . .

"Behold the birds of the air. They do not sow, nor reap . . . Your heavenly Father feeds them. Are not you of more value than they?"

Jesus touched a flower growing in the high, sweet-smelling grass of the field . . . They do not work or spin. But not even Solomon in all his glory, was dressed as one of these. If God clothes the grass of the field in such glory, how much more richly will He care for you?

"Seek first the kingdom of God, and His justice — and all these things shall be given to you, too."

The last glow of sunset crowned His hair as He spoke the most wonderful promise of all time.

"Ask — and it shall be given to you.

"Seek, and you shall find.

PRAYER BRINGS LIFE

"Knock, and it shall be opened to you. For every one that asks, receives. And he that seeks, finds. And to him that knocks, it shall be opened. . .

"If one who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children — how much more will your Father give good things to them that ask Him?"

These things and more Jesus explained to the Twelve on the mountainside. A crescent moon rose as He told them that only by prayer could a man find strength to live.

And how should a Christian pray?

"Our Father, Who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil . . ."

The stars shone bright overhead as the disciples learned for the first time the prayer we call the Lord's Prayer.

And that was the Sermon on the Mount.

BOGEY IN HOSPITAL

LOS ANGELES (AP) Actor Humphrey Bogart is resting is hospital today following major chest surgery. The operation removed a small swelling in Bogart's esophagus. His physician, Dr. Maynard Brandeau, said the swelling was due to inflammation, and was not cancerous, and that Bogart is "a little miserable, but doing comparatively fine."

MAKE SMALL HAUL

PORT DOVER (CP)—Local fishermen who ventured into the icechoked water of Lake Erie on Thursday, failed to pick up more than a few pounds of fish in the first attempt of the season. The tug H. H. Misener returned to the waters off Long Point Friday to lift its nets and got only about 50 pounds of perch.

Low Verbal I.Q. of Readers What Is Wrong With Reading

By MRS. WANDA SINE

Not so long ago when a child was doing badly in school it was blamed on his tonsils or adenoids. A quick trip to the doctor and the removal of the organs under suspicion was supposed to make Jack a bright boy once more.

Now the universal cause of failure in school is supposed to be poor reading; and remedial reading is expected to do for the modern boy what the removal of his adenoids failed to do for his father.

There is no doubt that the school is faced with a difficult problem in trying to discover why some children are poor readers and to what extent they can be helped, but unfortunately this very real problem has led to the most completely lost sight of in an angry dispute over the relative merits of two systems of teaching reading, one called the "phonetic method" and the other the "word-recognition method."

There are two kinds of reading: (a) that which is concerned with getting a meaning by looking at written words, and (b) that which is concerned mainly with reproducing the sounds represented by written words. The first of these is generally called silent reading and the second is referred to as oral reading. No small part of the confusion apparent in many of the arguments about reading is due to a failure to distinguish between these two types of reading.

PHONETIC LANGUAGE

In a completely phonetic language, where each letter always represents the same speech sound, oral reading presents few problems. Modern languages range from some European ones that are almost perfectly phonetic to English where the relationship between the symbols we call the alphabet and the sounds that are speech is so extraordinarily irregular that the language might almost be called unphonetic.

In several highly phonetic European languages it is not unusual for a child by the end, or even the middle, of Grade Two to be able to read orally practically anything that has been written in his native tongue—without understanding much or any part of what is being read.

The European reading in the lower grades, which critics such as Dr. Rudolf Flesch refer to as being superior to that done by our pupils, is oral reading, and the superiority is due to the difference in the phonetic structures of the languages used. There is no evidence that in reading for comprehension these pupils are in any way superior to our own, or that the superiority in oral reading persists so obviously beyond the first two or three years.

The argument for an exclusively phonetic approach to the teaching of all English reading, when based on the success of such a system in teaching the oral reading of highly phonetic European languages, is not valid and may be dismissed.

Probably not too many people have been concerned about this comparison between European and North American methods, but I doubt if there is a single parent with children in school who has not at some time or other been drawn into the controversy concerning the phonetic and word methods of teaching.

LITTLE DIFFERENCE

Basically, there is little difference between the two systems; and that is pretty well true about any of the modern methods of teaching reading whether they are labelled "phonic" or "word-recognition." Modern text-wooks have deliberately combined the two methods.

When we taught reading by the phonetic system we turned out many good readers and quite a few poor ones. Now that we use the word-recognition system we continue to turn out many good readers and quite a few poor ones.

There seems little doubt that the reasons why we have poor readers now are the same as they have always been and have little or nothing to do with the technical method of teaching being followed.

What then are these reasons?

The first by far the most common, reason for poor reading is inadequate verbal intelligence. One-half of our population has a verbal intelligence quotient below 100. These people will never be good readers, particularly of material that is in any way abstract. This is a simple fact: a situation to be accepted, not a problem to be solved.

In the past the great majority of these people left school at an early age and many took up work at which they prospered. Now there is no correlation between high academic ability and good citizenship or morals or emotional stability or many types of financial success.

INDIFFERENCE EVIDENT

Now, these children remain in school at least through early and middle adolescence and the fact that they are indifferent or poor readers becomes very evident. But they are poor readers because of their limited intelligence—not because they were taught by either the word-recognition or the phonetic method.

It is not easy for the school to make this statement to the parent nor is the latter particularly anxious to accept it as an explanation. The parent, quite naturally, would much rather say that his child is a poor reader because he has been taught by a poor method.

The remedial verbal intelligence accounts for by far the greater part of all cases of "poor" reading and for this group remedial reading can do almost nothing. That is why it is so cruelly misleading to put forward remedial reading as a cure for all "poor" reading.

The remaining cases of poor reading, and they are the only ones that should be classed as remediable, are easily defined. They are the cases where the student, although intellectually capable of reading up to the standard required, is not doing so. Such cases exist at every intellectual level.

CAUSE OF FAILURE

The cause of failure in these cases is generally referred to in professional circles as a "block". For a deficiency in reading will block almost any academic progress a child might otherwise make.

What are some of these "blocks"?

The one most obvious to parents is a poor teacher. Failure to keep reasonable order in a class, unfair treatment of individuals, lack of technical knowledge, lack of interest, lack of personality, lack of good judgment, are all obvious indications of a poor teacher and are all possible reasons for a child's failure.

The "block" most obvious to teachers is poor parental attitude—severe or too indulgent, uninterested or over-anxious. Either of the teacher and of the methods used in the school, nagging and fault finding, dishonesty, dishonesty: all these provide an atmosphere in which intellectual interest and antagonism develop readily and failure becomes probable.

Other "blocks" include overcrowded classes, poor equipment and poor health. But the first teacher and the parent are really "good" nothing else seems to matter too seriously. The fact is that when verbal intelligence is adequate the cause of "blocks" at the school level is far more likely to be emotional than technical.

DIFFICULT NOTE

And it is for this reason that remedial work is so difficult and frequently has such meagre success.

From all this three pertinent facts emerge.

The first is that remedial reading is the cure-all.

The second is that as far as failure concerned it makes little no difference whether the method used in teaching reading is labelled phonetic or word-recognition. Good teachers have always combined these two methods.

The third: when verbal intelligence is adequate the cause of failure in reading at the school level is generally due to a poor teacher or unsatisfactory home influence rather than to any particular technical method of teaching.

Several Important Foodstuffs Still Rationed in Red China

Editor's note: Leis Mitchenor, British newspaper writer, took a two-months tour of Red China as a British journalist. This story, written for The Associated Press, was forwarded through Hong Kong.

By LOIS MITCHISON

SHANGHAI (AP)The people of Red China may go hungry sometimes, but they certainly do not appear to be starving.

People can be seen sitting by the doors of their houses at lunchtime, eating from large full rice bowls. Children' bellies are not swollen as they are in famine times; adults do not look unnaturally thin.

Chy Yu - chun of the Shanghai municipal people's council said Shanghai's rations vary from 13 to 50 pounds a month. An office worker, for instance, gets 24 pounds of rice a month. A driver of a bicycle cab 41.

The principal cooking oil ration now is 10 to 14 ounces a month. The sugar ration is six ounces for people in the city, four for country people.

VEGETABLES PLENTIFUL

The cotton cloth ration for this years is 45 feet for adults in all Chinese cities and 22 feet for children. In the country it's 38 feet for adults, 30 for children.

Some unrationed foods are scarce. But vegetables and fish are plentiful. So are relatively expensive canned goods.

Rice, in south China and flour for noodles and steamed buns in the north are more important to the Chinese than any single food is to westerners. To the poor they are the main—sometimes the only —dish in every meal. Most men will eat three or four small bowls of rice, twice a day. A ration of 30 pounds a month should be enough for most men. Most, but not all, Chinese get this much or more.

Sugar and pork are luxuries to most people in China. Poorer families use pork more as a flavoring than as a main dish for ordinary occasions.

The cotton cloth ration can hardly be adequate for middle class city dwellers. Most Chinese use cotton to make their padded winter clothes as well as their summer clothes. A winter overcoat takes 24 feet of cloth, more than half of the year's ration.

Most of the rationing dates from the fall of 1954, a time of floods and bad harvests. And China's industrialization program—her new steel mills, lathes and factories—can only be paid for by the export of some of her grain, edible oil and pigs to the Soviet Union and other countries. This program has been speeded up recently and the exports consequently increased.

Weddings

LOFT—HILL

Pink and white snapdragons decorated All Saints' Anglican church, Tyendinaga Reserve, Deseronto, Ontario, for a wedding at three o'clock, Saturday afternoon, February 25th when Betty Marie Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hill, of Oshawa, Ontario, was united in marriage with Arthur Edwin Loft, of the United States Air Force, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Loft of Shannonville, Ontario.

The Rev. W. Smith performed the double ring ceremony.

The wedding music was played by Mr. Thomas Brant, and Miss Ruth Angevine sang "I Love You Truly", and "O Promise Me."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length gown of ice-blue brocaded satin on princess lines with scoop necklins outlined in sequins. The brief sleeves were complemented with matching gloves. Her chapel veil, scalloped at the edge, was gathered to a crown of pearls and sequins, and she carried a white Bible topped with a sheaf of white and stephanotis.

Miss Marion Clark of Oshawa, was maid of honor, wearing a strapless gown of golden-brown lace over taffeta, with which she wore a matching bolero jacket and sash.

Miss Evelyn Loft of Shannonville, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, wearing yellow nylon fashioned with a strapless bodice topped with a bolero jacket with matching gloves. They both wore yellow headdresses and carried bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Joseph Whetung of Buffalo, N.Y., performed the duties of best man. The ushers were Mr. Delbert Hill of Oshawa, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ronald Brant of Deseronto, a cousin of the bride.

The reception was held at the Council Hall, Tyendinaga Reserve, Deseronto, Ontario. To receive the guests the bride's mother wore navy blue crepe with white accessories and the bridegroom's mother, who assisted, chose a rose knitted suit with black accessories. They both wore corsages of harmonizing roses.

For the wedding trip to points West, the bride travelled in a two-piece ensemble of blue wool jersey, harmonizing accessories and a corsage of mauve orchids.

On their return the couple will reside at Colorado Springs, U.S., where the bridegroom is stationed.

Out-of-town guests were present from Cobourg, Buffalo, Oshawa, Toronto, and Napanee.

Women's Activities

SPRINGBROOK W.A.

A successful pot-luck dinner was held in the basement of Springbrook United church on Thursday, with Mrs. Fred McKeown and Mrs. Arthur Reid as hostesses.

Proceeds realized from the dinner were $34.20.

Following the dinner, the members of the Womin's Association held their regular meeting.

The president, Mrs. Clayton Burkitt, opened the meeting.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. George Thompson, with the worship theme being "Penitence".

The Scripture reading was Psalm 51.

The roll call a silver collection to be used to buy salt and pepper shakers was well responded to with $6.93 realized.

Reports of sick and shut-in committees were given.

The business of the meeting was dealt with. It was decided to hold a pot-luck supper in the basement of the church on March 21st, proceeds to be given to Quin-Mo-Lac camp at Moira Lake. Committee in charge, Mesdames George Thompson, Percy Bateman, Emerson Reid, Delbert Hill, Reg McKeown and Murney Mason.

Report from the decorating committee was given by Mrs. Delbert Fleming.

The correspondence was read and dealt with.

A short program followed with the topic on "Lent" being given by Mrs. Ralph Wellman.

Mrs. H. Beare brought with a solo after which a short skit entitled "What is Our Women's Association?" was given by Mrs. Delbert Fleming, Mrs. Percy Mumby, Mrs. Carman Silse and Mrs. Ken Thompson.

The meeting closed with prayer by the Rev. A. Beare.

Canniton-Corbyville C.G.I.T. Sponsors Annual Banquet

On a recent evening the annual Mother and Daughter banquet was held by the Canniton-Corbyville CGIT in the Sunday school auditorium. The occasion was marked by a 100 per cent attendance by both mothers and daughters.

The tables were decorated in red and white in the form of a square. The mothers and guests were welcomed by the president and leader, Mrs. Milton, after which delicious turkey dinner was served.

Toasts were given after the supper that of the Queen was given by Marilyn Holgate to the church and Sunday school by Beverly Cooke, who stated it is one's duty to attend church regularly and to go to Sunday School to receive Christian way." This toast was responded to by the Rev. J. McCrea, who added the church was not just a building, but it is the people in it that make it a good place of worship.

The toast to Mothers was proposed by Reta Vipond, who stated it was the girls' obligations to do their duty by their mothers. The response was given by one of the mothers, Mrs. Cook, who stated mothers should help to help their daughters when they need help.

The leader, Meribeth Holgate, called on the girls to sing their theme song.

A small presentation was made by one of the leaders to one of the girls, Betty Yorke, who is moving to Trenton.

Mrs. Roy Vipond, president of the W.M.S. tendered a vote of thanks to the girls, stating "we should take our place in the church and offer our services to the Lord."

A solo was then rendered by Carolyn Brenton, who sang "Bless This House."

Mrs. McLeod, another of the leaders, gave a vote of thanks to the Mothers and guests. She remarked that the girls have had a mother and daughter banquet for five successive years.

A story was read by Sharon James, entitled "St. Valentine's Day." This was followed by a piano solo by Marion Brenton.

The guest for the evening was Mrs. T. F. Townsend, who was introduced by Myrna Milton, who stated that Mrs. Townsend spoke at the rally in Belleville and that she helped to make the CGIT girls of tomorrow.

Mrs. Townsend thanked the girls for their warm welcome and for the delicious dinner.

In her talk Mrs. Townsend stated that there were three essentials to remember: stand erect; speak out distinctly, and sit down when finished. She also remarked that the CGIT purpose makes the girls of tomorrow.

She was thanked by Meribeth Holgate, on behalf of the girls and mothers.

Mrs. Jack Williams gave a vote of thanks to the leaders and girls.

The Rev. J. W. Merrick gave a vote of thanks to the girls and leaders and to the mothers and the guest speaker for her splendid talk.

Mr. Townsend led in prayer.

Both mothers and daughters joined in with "Taps."

The dishes were washed by mothers and daughters and all went home with a heart-warming sense of comradeship.

Energetic Club Enjoys Talk on Decorating

The regular meeting of the Energetic club was held Friday evening in the church parlor with 38 members and seven visitors present. The meeting opened with call to worship by the president.

Ruth and Archie McMillan's group had charge of the meeting. Tony Lepore read the Scripture; Ross Dryden gave a reading and poem and Ann Hitchon led in prayer.

Following the devotional, the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Winifred Parks. New couples were introduced and it was decided to have a paper drive early in April also to bring in an out-of-town play.

Bob Wessels and Ira Spearman gave two musical selections on accordion and guitar. Francis Rose favored with a guitar selection, "The Wabash Cannon Ball Se," and then sang "Ife" accompanied by his mother at the piano.

Rose Dryden introduced Harold Farrow from Quinte Paper and Wallpaper, who showed a film on "Design for Living" and also gave a demonstration on redecorating. Partners were chosen for the refreshments, which were served by the group in charge.

Notes on Health

(Dept. of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa)

For those who expect to retire soon, a well planned program of substitute occupations or hobbies will help to keep mind and hands busy. There are many skills which would be invaluable to the local civil defence organization that may not require great physical strength but for which the older person with experience in the field is eminently suitable.

A person injured in an accident should never be lifted until he has been given first aid by a qualified first aider. If there are any signs of internal injury, bleeding or fractured limbs, the patient should not be lifted until hemorrhage has been arrested and the injured limbs immobilized against movement. Until the doctor arrives, the first aider should remain with the patient.

When a cold threatens, it is a good idea to get plenty of rest. Drinking lots of fruit juices, water, and milk is essential. Disposable tissues should be held over the nose and mouth when coughing and sneezing to prevent the spread of germs.

Children usually enjoy scraps of raw vegetables that are being prepared for cooking. Since in the raw state the vegetables are richer in certain minerals and vitamins which may be partially lost if cooked or soaked too long, the raw vegetable is especially good.

The disease tetanus or lockjaw is contracted through a wound infected by the tetanus germ, usually picked up from the ground. Immunization against this condition and often fatal disease may be given to children at the same time as immunization against diphtheria and whooping cough.

Women's Institute

SPRINGBROOK W.I.

Mrs. C. Gordanier was hostess on Wednesday afternoon for the February meeting of Springbrook Women's Institute, with 6 members and three children present.

The vice-president, Mrs. Campney, opened the meeting and conducted the business. The roll call was "When Should a Farmer Retire?" with all answering.

A quilt is to be finished, a bale of clothing and linens and a pair of blankets to be purchased for a burned-out family.

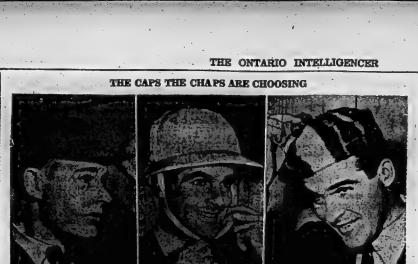
A donation of $10 was voted to be sent to the Mental Health Association.

The secretary-treasurer reported on the successful euchre party held in Springbrook hall on February 17th.

Mrs. Gerald Burkitt, convener for agriculture, took charge of the program. Readings, "The O'Hara Mill," by Mrs. George Mumby, and "The Moira Watershed," by Mrs. Percy Mumby, were led by Mrs. Jim Spry as quizmaster.

The topic, "Advantages of Living on a Farm," took the form of an interesting discussion in charge of Mrs. C. Gordanier.

Mrs. Cyril McKeown read a poem, "Im Going On Strike."



Mrs. Arthur Burkitt gave a demonstration of home-made soap.

The chairman expressed thanks to the hostess and to Mrs. Burkitt for her good program.

All enjoyed a contest and a social half hour with refreshments.

The Canadian Red Cross Society will celebrate its 50th anniversary in 1959.

THE CAPS THE CHAPS ARE CHOOSING

Once there was a time when the mere male dared to criticize the chapeau-conscious female. Now, apparently, the tables will be turned, for whether the wearer is coming or going, complete with chinstrap, which used to be seen exclusively on polo fields, comes the fluffy Tam-O'Shanter with a knob on top is a favorite of golfing types (Central Press Canadian). Holmes, the deerstalker, little number at left, has a peak, fore and aft which makes it hard to tell with a cowl which is the latest word in headwear.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A PROBLEM CAN BE SOLVED ONLY BY HONESTY

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I have been going with a certain girl for about five months. For four of these months, we have been going steady.

Everything was perfect until about a month ago, when her oldest sister started to interfere. Every time I called my girl, this sister would hang up on us. Last week she told her mother that we had been going to a certain place where everyone got drunk, and now her mother won't let my girl go out with me. We have been seeing each other before and after school, but every day now I can feel her slipping away from me. I don't know what they are saying in her head about me at home, but it must be something terrible.

We were planning to get married when she got out of school this year, but I doubt it now. I think I would die if I ever lost this girl, because I love her so much. — D.

Dear D.:

You don't tell me how old you two are, but your letter makes me quite certain you are making much too-ambitious plans.

Are you out of school, and older than this girl? Or still in school yourself? If she is graduating only this year, she can hardly be more than 17, far too young to be talked to about marriage. If you're still in school, you're also far too young for any such talk, and if you're out of school, you need a lot more maturity before thinking about getting married. If you had any maturity now, you wouldn't be talking marriage to a teenager.

If you want to continue seeing this girl, there is only one thing for you to do. That is, to go directly to her mother and find out why she objects to her daughter's friendship with you. Maybe she's heard something about your plans for marrying. If so, I don't blame her for putting her foot down on your acquaintance.

However, if you can get the mother to listen to you, and if you are polite, respectful and honest with her, and don't talk any nonsense about marrying the girl as soon as she graduates, you may be able to straighten things out. You certainly won't be able to, if you keep on trying to see the girl without her mother's knowledge, as you are apparently doing now.

The only way any problem is ever solved is to go at it in a straightforward, open manner. So plan carefully how you will approach the mother and just what you are going to say, then see what you can do. If it is true that you have taken the girl to any place where she shouldn't be, admit it, say you are sorry and offer such a mistake again. Say that if reinstated you will never make the mother will give you another chance, you will follow to the letter any rules she may lay down for her daughter's going out, including hours for your seeing that she is home again when you take her out in the evening. Talk and act like the kind of boy a good mother would be glad for her daughter to have as a friend and you may win her over.

Cheese in Every Course

By Mary Moore

Yards and yards of columns could be filled with the cheese recipes I have been holding until Lent. The "go" signal is up now and cheese may be used in every course of your meals, as you will presently see: soup, main, salad, dessert—and even for breakfast.

Come on you timid cooks, and you girls who are in a groove, (I don't like to say "rut" because of the words it rhymes with.)

FRENCH ONION SOUP
(With cheese)

One-third cup butter or cooking oil (the French use unsalted butter), 1-4 lb. finely sliced Spanish onions, 1 chicken bouillon cube dissolved in 1-2 cup boiling water, 1-2 cup undiluted consomme, 4 cups water, pinch of thyme and rosemary leaves, 1-4 bay leaf, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon cornstarch, 8 slices French bread, about 4 oz. grated Parmesan cheese. Tie spices in small cheesecloth bag. Gently sauté onions in butter until limp, add chicken broth and consommé, water and spice bag and simmer 40 minutes, covered. Remove spices. Add pepper and salt. Mix cornstarch with 2 tablespoons cold water and stir in. Apportion soup into six individual casseroles, float slice of French bread on top of each, sprinkle generously with Parmesan and brown under broiler. Serve piping hot. Note: This may be served in soup bowls with cheese sprinkled on toasted French bread.

OVEN CHEESE OMELETTE
(Not so temperamental as a soufflé.)

One-half lb. process cheese, 1-2 cup evaporated (or regular) milk, 6 egg yolks, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, shake of cayenne, 6 egg whites. Slice cheese into top of double boiler, cover and let melt over hot water. Stir in milk. Beat yolks until very stiff then add seasonings to them, and stir cheese sauce into them gradually. Fold that into stiffly beaten whites. Turn into large buttered baking dish and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 40 minutes. Serve at once. Wonderful for Sunday morning brunch.

LUNCH OR SUPPER CHEESE PIE

Line a 9-inch glass pie plate with your best pastry. Grate 1-2 lb. Swiss or old Cheddar cheese and add to it 1 tablespoon flour and sprinkle over bottom of pie. Beat three eggs well and add 1 cup milk or cream, season with 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-16 teaspoon each pepper and dry mustard. Carefully pour into shell. Bake at 400 deg. F. 15 minutes and at 325 deg. F. 30 minutes. Serve hot. Note: After Lent 1-2 to 1 cup ground ham may be added to the custard before baking.

VIRGINIA'S CHEESE BALLS
(Serve with salad.)

To 1 cup sifted flour add 1-2 cup butter or margarine and 1-2 lb. grated best quality Cheddar cheese and shake of cayenne. Cut butter (or margarine) in like pie crust with blender. Roll into ball and chill. Break off pieces and roll into 1-inch balls between palms (then if desired in sesame or poppy or celery seed). Bake at 375 deg. 20 min. Those are for the epicures in the audience.

DESSERT IDEAS:

(1) Serve stewed cottage cheese to which you have added thick cream, apple or cherry pies or fruit cobblers or applesauce. Cut Spy apples in eights, spread one side thinly with Saumert cheese. Serve as part of fruit salad plate.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

TWO-TONE HAIR STYLES A SPRING FANCY

'Twas said once upon a time that when a woman went into the doldrums, if she'd go out and buy a red hat or a new lipstick, quick as a wink her spirits soared. Today, chances are, she changes the color of her hair. And, come the spring, she'll probably go a step further and get herself a two-toned coiffure.

Actually, the vogue began a few seasons ago—but more or less tentatively. We have become somewhat used, therefore, to seeing the occasional brunette with a blonde streak through her hair, the more sophisticated type using a white streak for dynamic accent. But trust the girls to go even further. In fact, if the predictions come true, the stir created some years back by the late Lady Mendl when she created the vogue for blue and, yes, even green hair to match her evening gowns, may be regarded as the merest whisper compared to the sensation of the latest color effects. Just to give you an idea—at one smart hairstyle showing held recently a sultry model appeared with her hair dyed four colors—blue, blonde, pink and red!

Few women, we'll admit, would be quite daring but, if the fashion experts are correct in their predictions, it will not be an uncommon sight to see a brunette caring a blonde chignon or vice versa; nor will it be unusual to wear a contrasting stripe through the chignon, in bangs, at the parting of the hair or wherever the unusual effect will show to the most artistic advantage.

If you like to keep up with the latest fads and fancies, you can experiment at home. You don't have to go to expensive beauty shops to get the job done for, with all the temporary color rinses and tints on the market, you can have the fun of "trying on" different colors as you'd try on different lipsticks. If you like the effect you've created, voila, you'll probably feel like a different woman. And, if you don't, where's the harm? You just wash it out again. It will probably be a lot of fun anyway—especially when the Boy Friend gets his first glimpse of the new You!

A blonde chignon worn by a brunette provides contrast that's startling, to say the least—but it's the latest!

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

PROBLEMS WHEN BRIDE'S PARENTS ARE DIVORCED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married soon. My mother and father are divorced. My father has married again, but my mother has not. Since my mother cannot afford to pay for my wedding, my father is paying for it. I am having a church wedding, a dinner for the family and wedding attendants, and a reception afterward. I am planning to have the invitations read (using my father's name):

Mr. So-and-So requests the honor of your presence at the wedding of his daughter
Miss So-and-So

Is this correct?

2. Where would my mother and stepmother sit in the church, and when my father takes a seat, would he sit beside my mother or my stepmother?

3. I have been told that my mother and father would stand in the receiving-line, but not my stepmother. Is this correct?—Wondering

1. The form of your wedding invitation depends on circumstances . . . and you do not tell me enough details of the circumstances. My first advice would be that, although your father is paying for the wedding, he give to your mother the honor of sponsoring the invitations to the church ceremony. Like this:

Mrs. Robinson Smith
requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of her daughter Constance to Mr. John Clark etc.

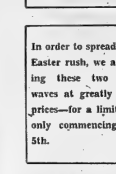
(The church invitations are always worded "at the marriage of," never "at the wedding of." And "honour" should be spelled with the "u." And no title before the bride's name.)

Then the invitations to the dinner and reception would be issued in the names of your father and stepmother, since they are to be the hosts.



2. Your mother should be seated in the first pew at the left of the aisle. When your father has finished his part in the ceremony, he joins his wife, your stepmother, in the third pew at the left of the aisle.

3. Yes.

Third City Being Born Within Winnipeg-St. Boniface Area

By WALTER GRAY

WINNIPEG (CP)—A third city is being born within the greater Winnipeg area which also includes St. Boniface. During the current session of the Manitoba legislature the municipality of St. James will seek a city charter.

The charter is another feather in the cap of the sprawling community of 27,000 adjoining the west side of Winnipeg proper.

For out of the debt-ridden '30s St. James has emerged as the rich giant among the 13 municipalities collected about the Winnipeg-St. Boniface area.

ONCE BUFFALO PARK

Where once Lord Strathcona entertained distinguished Canadians and English royalty who marvelled at the herd of buffalo kept on his estate now stand acres of industrial plants and new homes.

Municipal officials, who in hard times had their purse strings tied by the government for lack of money and a lot of red tape, now deal in millions of the community's own money.

After years of bad luck good fortune smiled on St. James.

A. J. Reid, St. James' real estate officer, explained it simply: "It just happened."

The municipality was at its lowest ebb in 1930. Its consolidated debt was $4,700,000 plus interest charges. The municipal and public utility board stepped in to handle the municipality's finances when its bonds became worthless.

But gradually the municipality trimmed its debt and by the end of the Second World War it was ready to ride the post-war boom. St. James hit its stride in 1950 following the Red river flood disaster when city dwellers and industry began shopping around for dried ground.

The municipality had set aside a 630-acre tract of land in its northeast section as an industrial area. It negotiated with Canadian Pacific Railway and Canadian National Railways to make the industrial zone one of the best railway services in Canada.

As automobile manufacturing company moved into the area first with a warehouse. The rush was on. Today nearly 40 firms manufacture and distribute such widely assorted products as cement, machinery and airplane engines. Or this number 22 settled in St. James after 1949.

The municipality issued a $1,500,000 debenture last year for the installation of sewer and water facilities which will open a further 140 acres for new industrial development and at the same time service the original zone.

Industrial land served with trackage now sells at $4,250 an acre without trackage $3,750.

Mr. Reid said the municipality "hand picks" its industries. It wants no offensive smells or dust wafting over the new residential areas. All buildings must be of masonry construction.

Since the war nearly 3,000 new homes have gone up in St. James. Most are in integrated housing projects in which the contractor accepts the responsibility of all local improvements.

The largest of there is the 650-home Silver Heights project located on the former estate of Lord Strathcona. The residential area is screened by a 136-suite apartment block stretched along Portage avenue.

Population of the municipality has jumped from 12,000 in 1940 to the present 27,000. It's assessment stands above the $30,000,000 mark. Its debt is only $2,400,000, including the $1,000,000 sewer debenture issue plus a $600,000 bill for new school rooms.

The municipality's plum is the ever-expanding Stevenson airfield, operational base for the RCAF, three airlines and civilian flying companies. Straddling the administration and hangar area are numerous industries allied to the flying business.

"St. James is fortunate enough to contain 4 per cent of the field within the municipality—the 96 the richer half," smiled Mr. Reid.

Prime Minister And Gronchi Confer on NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent and Italian President Giovanni Gronchi today conferred on possible methods of strengthening NATO in the non-military field.

Informants said this was the main subject Mr. Gronchi wanted to bring up in private talks with Mr. St. Laurent and External Affairs Minister Pearson.

Mr. Pearson also held discussions with Italian Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino, accompanying Mr. Gronchi here on a three-day official visit which ends this afternoon.

Mr. Gronchi was scheduled to address— possibly in French —a joint session of the Senate and Commons (at 3:30 p.m. AST) after the morning conference with Canadian leaders and leave later by train for Toronto. Mr. Gronchi is scheduled to be in Toronto only two hours tonight before leaving for Detroit.

ECONOMIC SPHERE

Italy and Canada have both urged for a long time that more emphasis be placed by NATO on Article II of its charter. This article has to do with NATO cooperation in the economic and political spheres.

Mr. Martino indicated in an interview Sunday that Canada, the United States and Italy will emphasize the need for more non-military collaboration among the 15 NATO members at the next meeting of the North Atlantic Council, tentatively scheduled for May 4.

Mr. Gronchi also stressed this point during his talks in Washington last week and in his address to Congress.

The Italian president and Signora Gronchi were to be luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. St. Laurent today.

The 63-year-old president's three days in Ottawa have been crammed with various official and unofficial functions.

1,000 Island Navy Flag Hoisted Over Fort Henry

KINGSTON (CP) — Reprisals against Soviet University students, who two weeks ago claimed for the Crown the rebellious colonies south of the border on George Washington's birthday, were carried out Saturday night by "admirals" of the 1,000 Islands Navy.

They hoisted the "1,000 Islands" flag," a bedsheet with rotten fish rampant, a lighthouse and the legend "1,000 Island Navy" outside impregnable Fort Henry.

Three declarations "Taking into possession the citadel of "Upper Canada and land for miles around" and giving it back to the Indians and Eskimos" were read from a city hall, one at a Queen's University men's residence and another at the fort.

Said R. L. Way, director of the fort:

"They didn't get into the fort.

NEW SHOOTING

Meanwhile, Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd was visiting New Delhi en route to the SEATO meeting in Karachi, repeated Britain's proposal that Israeli and Arab forces withdraw from Israel's frontier. Lloyd recommended that the UN Palestine truce commission be increased to patrol the demilitarized zone and prevent incidents.

Lloyd said in a speech to the Indian Council on World Affairs that "time is running out (in the Israeli-Arab dispute) and the trouble is getting worse rather than better."

In Amman, joyful screaming crowds continued to roam the Jordan capital's streets cheering Glubb's ouster. King Hussein in a special broadcast, thanked his subjects for their support but urged them to go back to work.

Glubb's dismissal brought sharp criticism of British and American Middle East policies from both Tory and Labor ranks in London. One Conservative member of Parliament, Sir Robert Boothby, declared that Lloyd and State Secretary Dulles, both en route to the SEATO talks, would do better to spend more time at their desks.

Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell said the Eden government has "completely failed" to reckon with the new situation in the Middle East and "the danger of war there is undoubtedly becoming more acute."

PROTECT BRITONS

British War Minister Antony Head arrived on Cyprus Wednesday to reinforce the British garrison of Cyprus, where British sailors and two paratroop battalions ready to move to Jordan to protect British citizens if trouble comes. RAF transport planes were sent to Cyprus during the weekend to evacuate Britons from Jordan if necessary.

A four-engine British transport caught fire and exploded under mysterious circumstances Sunday on the airport at Nicosia on Cyprus. All 65 persons aboard had left the plane. With sabotage by Cypriot seeking union with Greece a possibility, British authorities launched an investigation.

The Communists, supplying arms to Egypt and Syria, were openly jubilant over Glubb's ouster and the setback to the West. Moscow radio, in an Arabic-language broadcast, called him "the honest servant of colonialism."

Reserve Pilot Praised for Crash Landing Mustang

WOODSTOCK (CP)—A reserve air force pilot was praised today for crash landing his burning Mustang fighter plane, instead of bailing out and perhaps sending the pilotless craft into a Woodstock residential area.

PO George Shorey crashed his plane into a field three miles southeast of here, after hitting tree tops and losing part of a wing. He escaped with minor burns.

PO Shorey moved to London from Toronto 18 months ago and is an instructor with No. 420 City of London Squadron, A wartime pilot, he has been flying more than 10 years.

Praising Shorey for a "skilful job" Wing Cmdr. Gordon Burns, commanding 420 Squadron at Crumlin said: "He didn't bail out because he realized he was close to Woodstock and the risk of a pilotless plane over a city. He carried out later perfect, forced landing procedure and did a beautiful job of landing."

The Mustang bounced 200 feet over frozen ground on the Oxford Centre farm of Andrew Carmichael and stopped less than 100 feet from the barn.

FO Shorey scrambled out of the smoking cockpit to be met by Mr. Carmichael. He was given forced aid for minor burns about the arms and one leg and then went back to the plane to help linerkip, firemen in covering 1,000 rounds of ammunition from the Mustang's six guns.

A crashwagon crew from Crumlin tried to salvage part of the burning plane but it was believed a complete loss.

STEAL PHONE LINE

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police said Friday they have arrested seven men, suspected of stealing 22 miles of copper telephone wire between the Quebec towns of Lavaltrie and Joliette and over a four-month period. Joliette is some 35 miles northeast of Montreal. Most of the wiring was taken from telephone poles strung in heavily wooded areas.

Wildlife Review Is Folksy Publication on Conservation

By LARRY STANWOOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)— Game warden William Thomas Ward's office is just large enough to hold two filing cabinets and the chiffonier desk at which he compiles and edits the unique and popular periodical, Wildlife Review.

"I never say an editor's desk should be piled up to show he's working," chuckled Mr. Ward. "You wouldn't think this little thing we're putting out once in three months would make so much work."

The "little thing" is a quarterly publication regarded as British Columbia game commission's official organ.

PREACHES CONSERVATION

Wildlife Review is crammed with anecdotes and a few features in easy - to - read conversation style which tell the policy of the government concerning wildlife and what individuals and clubs are doing for conservation.

"We try to deal with wildlife conservation in its widest scope using ordinary, plain talk," said editor Ward. "Wildlife cannot exist without forests, soil and streams and lakes. We try to show the public what this means with our little stories.

"Voluminous reports are written continually on conservation by our scientists but they'll rot in the files before the general public reads them. We try to boil this valuable information down into easily read little stories."

While about 30 states in the United States publish similar periodicals, Wildlife Review is the only one of its kind in Canada. Its distribution is free and costs the government 10 cents a copy, including mailing charges.

Editor Ward's files contain more than 1,000 letters from across the continent praising Wildlife Review since its first issue in October, 1954.

"We started with a circulation of 2,000 and 14 pages. The January edition ran 26 pages and we printed 8,000. They're all gone and we could have used a lot more," said Ward.

This folksy magazine was born out of a mimeographed sheet Mr. Ward published as a hobby for seven years when he was game warden at Kamloops. He also presented a weekly radio program on his own time to forward his gospel of conservation.

Last year, at the annual provincial game convention, he became the first Canadian to receive the annual Nash Conservation Award, which includes a handsome plaque and a $500 cash prize, in recognition for his work "above the call of duty."

Wildlife management, says Mr. Ward, is largely human management. . . "Keeping people informed of progress and problems.

"Wildlife Review . . . is one of the most effective publications of its type," said Wildlife Management Institute of Washington, D.C., in its recent Outdoor News Bulletin.

CRIME DETERRENT

The second issue of the review published an article appealing to adults to take "kids fishing." It gave statistics showing less than one per cent of juvenile delinquents follow outdoor activities.

"We're trying for bigger circulation and for monthly publication" said the 37-year-old editor who joined the game department as warden in 1946. "I really had no idea this was going to snowball like it did."

But what surprised him most was that he liked his change of job. "I never did this kind of work before but I was never happier," said Mr. Ward.

FREIGHTER SINKS

In his radio message Sunday night, Capt. Fulton said the pounding seas snapped the forward section of the 7,343-ton Washington Mail at 3:15 p.m. Saturday.

PLUNGED TO BOTTOM

Thirty minutes later, the forward section plunged to the bottom, leaving the derelict at the mercy of the seas and the winds.

The winds carried away the radio antennae and for 32 minutes the hull wallowed helplessly and silent. At 4:38 radio operator Perry Harrison got his emergency equipment in operation and sent out his S O S.

Capt. Fulton said he immediately ordered the Freeman to the northwest and radioed Capt. Dudley A. Durrant of the Washington Mail that rescue was 45 miles away.

"The Freeman increased to the best possible speed in high winds, seas and swells, winds of 45 knots and frequent snow squall," Capt. Fulton said.

At 6:15 p.m., still two hours from the sinking freighter, Capt. Fulton established radio communication with Capt. Durrant, who reported the freighter's boiler room bulkheads were giving away and the derelict would not survive the night.

SPOTTED HULK

At 7:20 p.m. a "blip" appeared on the Freeman's radar screen and 45 minutes later the ship spotted the hulk dead ahead.

Capt. Fulton swung his ship in a wide arc and ordered fuel oil poured on the seas to calm them enough for a lifeboat to survive.

The Freeman pulled 3,000 feet to the windward of the sinking ship and waited as the first lifeboat was lowered.

The boat hit the water, disappeared for a minute, then reappeared.

At 8:04 p.m., the second boat was launched.

As both bucked through the heavy seas toward the Freeman, someone shouted "She's gone," and the hull sank to join the bow section.

Five minutes after the freighter went to the bottom, the first lifeboat reached the side of the Freeman, and passengers and crew carried to safety. At 9:43 p.m. second boat pulled alongside and its occupants joined the rescued.

Marmora

MARMORA — At the February meeting of the Catholic Women's League, which met in the parish hall the first of the week, the Rev. Father Healey announced that the official opening of the new Separate school will take place on Sunday, March 11. In the afternoon the public are cordially invited to attend.

TALENT MONEY

Talent money turned in at the meeting amounted to $106, which will be used in supplying drapes for the school. Mrs. G. Forestell, convener of the visiting committee, reported 18 visits made to sick and shut-in members.

The social part of the meeting was a tribute to "Grandmothers." Mrs. B. Gaffney received a gift, being the oldest grandmother in the league and Mrs. Richard Maloney, who had attended all meetings in the past year, also received a gift.

A reading by Mrs. Breen O'Connor, "When Grandmother Her Eyes," was enjoyed. Mrs. Hugh Brady gave a solo, "Wonderful Mother of Mine"; Miss Shuts Mary Hughes read "To Heck With the Good Old Days," which was followed by a skit by Mrs. F. Brawley, and Miss Hughes.

The next meeting will be in charge of Group 4 for program, and Group 3 for lunch.

Master Peter O'Neill celebrated his first birthday on Wednesday, February 29; also celebrating their natal days on February 29 were Mr. Harry Loveless and Mr. Michael Callery.

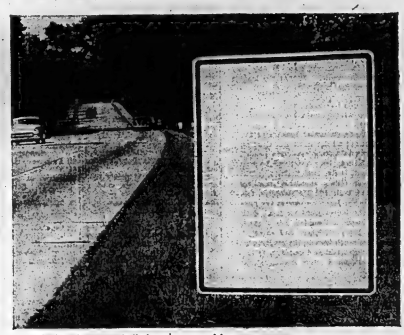
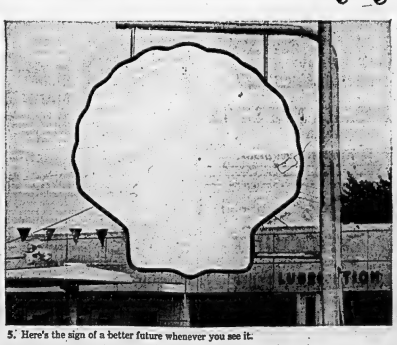
SHELL BETTER DRIVING QUIZ NO. 5

Can you tell a road sign by its shape?

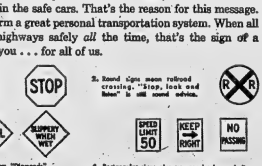


1. At crossroads, this octagonal sign means only one thing, regardless of wording.

2. When you see this sign, you listen carefully.



3. This shape suggests a very important word in driving.



4. This sign places certain limits upon every driver.

Read and obey your signs of life!

5. Here's the sign of a better future whenever you see it.

The Shell people believe that being a good neighbor calls for more than just making good products. Part of our job is to help keep you safe on the road. It's not enough that today's cars are the finest, safest ever made. We need safe drivers in the safe cars. That's the reason for this message. Canada's highways form a great personal transportation system. When all motorists use these highways safely all the time, that's the sign of a better future . . . for you . . . for all of us.

1. Octagonal signs always mean "Stop"! Take a good look at cross traffic before you proceed.
2. Round signs mean railroad crossing. "Stop, look and listen" is still sound advice.
3. Diamond signs caution, slow down. "Diamonds" are good friends on the road."
4. Rectangular signs give you road rules and directions. Follow them to the letter.
5. Shell sign good products, good service, good going for you and your car.

Sign of a better future for you

ALL OVER!

The Eastern Ontario senior "B" hockey group dropped the final curtain on schedule activities yesterday. The mantle fell on a season that was marked with more or less wackiness, arguments, a weird schedule, threats, and whatnot. However it is safe to assume that peace has fallen on the scene even if only an interim affair between playoff battles.

The eastern group has dominated the senior "B" scene since it was elevated to that category from intermediate "A" three seasons ago. The Kingston Goodyears have won the provincial crown on two occasions, defeating Woodstock and Sarnia respectively with the then Oshawa club winning the title the odd year, ousting the Simcoe Gunners.

Eastern observers all agree the group will repeat this year. The experts say the Whitby Dunlops, by far the best senior "B" club to come out of the eastern neck of the woods, if not the province, will romp home with the group's fourth championship.

However some western Ontario minds do not agree. They claim the brand of senior "B" hockey down thataway has improved greatly over that of the past three years, and the upstart easterners had better look to their laurels. That we must see.

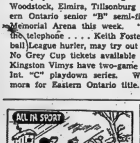
The Whitby Dunlops' group schedule record is something for the western brethren to shoot at. They won 33 games, some of them by lop-sided scores, lost five and tied two in a forty-game card. They scored 295 goals or an average of 7.4, and had 129 scored against them for an average of 3.2.

Brockville, with two victories, Kingston and Belleville were the only clubs in the group to nail defeat to the Dunlop mast. The Cornwall Colts have yet to have that "pleasure."

MINOR HOCKEY

There was a pint-size thriller at Memorial Arena Saturday morning when the Canadian "Squirts" and Black Hawks battled forty minutes overtime before the diminutive Habs came through with a 4-3 victory to clinch the title two years in a row. Four little guys gave all they had in a strenuous tussle and it was anybody's game until this department's Peter pushed a loose puck over the Hawks goal-line. Jim Hurst and Richard Evans were the scoring stars for the Habs and Hawks, each getting three. "Bun" Hurst and Billy Fisher, the respective goalies, played outstanding games and the loss could not in any way be attributed to the Hawks' clever goalie. It was the longest game in minor hockey records of the city.

POST MORTEM



Now that the curtain is down on senior hockey for the season, it should be noted that not all the work was done on the ice. Behind the scenes a hard-tailing executive headed by President Frank Granland, did yeoman service holding up their end, and a lot of credit is due such fellows as Bill Bell, Jimmy Driscoll, and their fellow executive members for a job splendidly done. The Belleville I's Mentions, too, rendered outstanding service to the hockey cause in the program department. Four lovely lad;gs were on hand each home game start selling the books, a thankless job at least. I's Mentette president, Mrs. Mary Fletcher, and director, Mrs. Ingrid Bateman, who gave much time to the project and their assistants deserve a lot of credit and needless to say have the wholehearted appreciation of the executive and players.

GOLF SCHOOL

Considerable interest is being shown to the golf school organized by YMCA for the third consecutive year. The school gets under way at 7.30 tonight in the "Y" Gym, and will continue each Monday evening till April 23rd. Instructors are Tom George Balazs, Pro of the Bay or Quinte Country Club and Mr. Ken Linton, Pro of Napanee Golf Club. The school is open to men and women whether they are expert players or beginners.

HODGE PODGE

Whitby defeated Cornwall 5-1 Saturday night, and the Colts edged Kingston 5-4 in Cornwall on Sunday to wind up the senior "B" schedule . . . . Brockville opens the playoffs with Whitby on the latter's ice tomorrow night with Cornwall visiting Kingston Thursday night for their semi-finals opener. Both are best-of-seven . . . . Napanee entertains Marmora tonight in the first of a best-of-seven OHA intermediate "C" first round playdown series . . . . Kingston Orphans defeated Peterborough Jets 69-50 in their two-game series opener in OBA intermediate "A" playdowns. Second game in Kingston Saturday . . . . Woodstock, Elmira, Tillsonburg and Wallaceburg are the Western Ontario senior "B" semi-finalists . . . . Ice goes out of Memorial Arena this week. "Rassle fans" are already using the telephone . . . . Keith Foster, young South Hastings Baseball League hurler, may try out with Toronto Maple Leafs . . . . No Grey Cup tickets available yet. Call November 24 . . . . Kingston Vimys have two-game lead over RCAF Flyers in their Int. "C" playdown series. Winners meet Napanee or Marmora for Eastern Ontario title.

"One nice thing about ice fishing. No mosquitoes!"

Sets Points Mark for Centre Ties Goal-Getting Figure; Boston Point Closer to Leafs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Well, tick off a few more accomplishments for Mr. Beliveau.

Le Gros Bill, Montreal's Canadiens' great centre, had another dazzling evening in the National Hockey League Sunday night. He set a record for points by a centre in one season and equalled the goals mark for a centreman.

Beliveau, 24-year-old leader of the NHL scoring race this campaign, tallied twice as Canadiens belted Detroit Red Wings 6-4 with a powerful third-period attack. His two goals and two assists gave him 81 points, one more than the old mark for centres set by Elmer Lach of Montreal in 1944-45.

Beliveau has boosted 44 goals this season, tying the mark for centres set by Joe Malone of Montreal in a 22-game schedule in 1917-18. And his second goal of the night equalled NHL total to 109 in three seasons.

CLEAN SWEEP

The victory also gave Canadiens a clean sweep of their two weekend games. They beat the lastplace Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 in Montreal Saturday night.

Meanwhile, Toronto Maple Leafs lost a point to Boston Bruins in their drive to hold on to the fourth and last playoff berth. Leafs tied 2-2 with Boston Saturday night after battled to a 2-2 standstill against Bruins in Boston Garden.

Bruins picked up the single point when they clobbered New York Rangers 6-2 in Boston Saturday. Rangers ended their weekend accounts by losing to the Hawks in New York Sunday night.

Here's how the league race stands now:

Canadiens are first with 92 points. Boston is second, one point deadlocked for second with 65 apiece. Toronto have six games left in their hotbird with 53 are the Bruins. Hawks are discard materjal with 45 points. They have six games left in the regular 70-game schedule.

SIX GAMES LEFT

Getting back to Beliveau . . . he has six games to play this season and needs a goal-a-game pace to equal Rocket Richard's all-time record of 50 goals for a season. Richard, by the way, and Maurice Cloche Provost and Floyd Curry scored the other Canadiens goals. Alex Delvecchio, Dutch Reibel, Lorne Ferguson and Ted Lindsay tallied for Detroit Red Wings.

Canadiens all but wiped out Hawks' hopes of qualifying for playoff spot Saturday. Jackie Leclair, Maurice Richard and Ken Mosdell scored for Canadiens. Tony Leswick accounted for the lone Chicago goal. A crowd of 13,905 sat in on the sluggish affair.

RIDING HIGH

Bruins were riding high Saturday. They were led by defenceman Fern Flaman, who scored two goals and assisted on another. Real Chevrefils also accounted for a pair. Defenceman Bill Quackenbush tied the other Bruin goal.

Peter Conacher and Danny Lewicki were the Ranger marksmen.

There were 13,506 customers on hand Sunday night as centre Rudy Migay gave Leafs a 2-2 tie with a third-period goal. It marked the second time in as many nights Leafs came from behind for a tie.

Left winger Sid Smith scored the other Toronto goal. It was his second of the 1955-56 season. Johnny Peirson and Cal Gardner tallied for Bruins.

FORCE TIE

Leafs were behind in the score twice Saturday before they forced the Detroiters to overtime. Detroit before 13,272 fans. Right winger Gerry James and rookie left winger Dick Duff scored for the Leafs. Lindsay and Howe tallied for Detroit.

At New York defenceman Bill Gadsby scored late in the third period to give Rangers their win over Hawks. It was Rangers' 30th conquest, the highest New York total in NHL history.

The 11,275 fans saw Bronco Horvath, Andy Hebenton and Gadsby handle the Blueshirt scoring. Johnny Wilson and Gus Mortson scored for Chicago.

BEATS RECORD

AMSTERDAM (AP)— Cocky Gastelaars, 19-year-old Dutch girl, Saturday night swam 100 metres in 1 minute, 4.2 seconds to break a world record that had stood for 20 years. The mark was 1:04.6. It was made by Willy den Ouden, also of Holland, in the same pool.

Northern League Fines, Reprimands Two Coaches

NORTH BAY (CP)—The Northern Ontario Hockey Association Sunday fined and severely reprimanded two coaches whose players juggled the final standings in the battle of Southern League leadership in their own nets.

The association slapped $200 fines on Ed Reigle of North Bay Trappers and Pete Backor of Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians as a result of the fiasco in the windup of the regular schedule Feb. 19.

The league executive also recommended that the management of both Trappers and Indians be reprimanded for "the farce."

Indians won the game 8-2. The victory gave them a third-place tie with Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds. However, since Indians beat Trappers by six goals they finished third place because of a better goal average. Greyhounds were then shunted into the playoffs, last the playoff berth.

Indians and Greyhounds were eliminated in the league semi finals.

Toronto Gets Grey Cup Final CRU Adopts 6-Point Touch

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Another American import has hit Canadian football.

It's the six-point touchdown, most revolutionary change since the introduction of the forward pass from the United States 35 years ago. The Canadian Rugby Union discarded the traditional five-pointer Saturday.

The revolution comes in an era when kicking is an almost-forgotten art in this country. Although fewer than 10 field goal-kicking specialists have happened on the Canadian scene since the 1940s, legislators of the present highly-specialized game apparently have viewed their presence with some alarm.

Why, they argued, should two field goals count more than a touchdown? They took action Saturday at the CRU annual meeting and the measure, brainchild of the all-powerful Big Four and Western Inter-provincial Football Union, was pushed through on a 7-3 vote. The eastern and western unions between them control six of the 10 votes in the CRU, enough to win any decision.

WITHOUT PRECEDENT

All other legislation was carried without dissent as the CRU voted on the 1956 Grey Cup final in Toronto, set an all-time high of $20 a ticket for playoffs and, for the second successive year, decided the Ontario Rugby Football Union was to be the host and shunted it out of cup play.

The CRU also decided to alter nate the cup final between the East and West "providing suitable financial and other arrangements can be made." CRU jurisdiction was spread to the Maritimes when the union accepted junior and intermediate leagues to non - voting membership.

The death of the five-point touchdown was sealed last January in Winnipeg when the newly-organized Canadian Football Council decided it should go. The CFC is made up of five representatives each from the Big Four and WIFU.

But it didn't get by without protest. Bobby Coulter of Toronto, representing the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, Frank Ilsley Commins of Toronto, president of the OFRU, and Leo Dandurand of the Montreal Alouettes, spoke out against it.

"Increase the value of the touchdown and you decrease the value of the field goal and the single," warned Coulter, Commins, a former player with Toronto Balmy Beach in the early 30s when kicking was a big part of the game, agreed with Coulter and Dandurand called the six-pointer a "flight of fancy."

The Quebec Rugby Football Union lined up with the Big Four and WIFU in the vote against the OFRU, with two votes, and the college union, with one, balloted against it.

Bert Warwick of Winnipeg, chairman of the CRU rules committee, said the change had been discussed for years.

Toronto and Vancouver bid for the 1958 cup final but the west coast city's case was lost when its brief revealed that rental at Empire Stadium would be $31,181. Vancouver, which staged the 1955 final, will go all out for the 1958 classic.

"We weren't very serious about getting the game this year," said Gerry Clancey, a director of British Columbia Lions. "We had received assurances from all members of the CRU that they would support our 1958 bid and that's what we wanted."

There was no discussion when it was announced the OFRU would cut challenge fee for this year. All the talking was done in the committee room and Doc Downey of Toronto, past president of the union, said in an interview Saturday that the issue developed into a "real battle."

WILL CHALLENGE AGAIN

"We didn't ask for, nor did we receive, any remuneration or other consideration for withdrawing," Downey said. "We wouldn't have taken any amount had it been offered. But we retain all our rights and privileges in the CRU. We'll challenge again in 1957."

Last year's OFRU accepted $5,000 from the CRU to give up its right to challenge for one year. The cup ticket price elevation now shows the following range: $10, $7.50, $6 and $5, compared with $7.50, $6, $5 and $2 standing room at Vancouver last year. Net gate receipts for 27,400-capacity Varsity Stadium next November is estimated at $187,000 after taxes and $15,000 rental. The all-time net gate receipts for the final were set in 1953 when $197,182 was taken in at rent-free Empire Stadium.

Before this year's final it is likely a new system of ticket distribution will be used. Since 1952 the Big Four, WIFU and CRU each received 30 per cent of the tickets with the OFRU getting the other 10 per cent, and each year there have been complaints.

A four-man committee has been set up to look into the situation.

Predict AAU Revolt

Suspended Santee Wins Race Meanwhile Pot Boils Merrily

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—You can't tell the players without a program, and here's a rundown on the principals in the most bizarre track and field case in American history:

Wes Santee—No. 1 U.S. miler. Suspended for life by the Amateur Athletic Union for accepting excessive expenses after being cleared by his own district association on the same charges. A temporary injunction enabled him to run in the Knights of Columbus Columbian Mile Saturday and he won in 4:13.8.

Charles F. Grimes — Santee's lawyer, and off the results thus far, a mighty successful one. He obtained the injunction, fought off an AAU appeal. He's batting 1.000 against the AAU.

Philip Seber—Chief of the AAU's track and field committee, who wrote the report that convicted Santee. He acts as announcer at Madison Square Garden meets and can't be known how he felt when he was forced to announce Santee as an entry in the mile.

Dan Ferris—The big man in the AAU, who usually says nothing that might get him in trouble on any side. This time he thought he was on safe ground, though, and warned meet promoters before that injunction was granted—that they would be thrown out of the AAU if they had any truck with Santee. The courts decided otherwise and he had to back down.

Avery Brundage—The key man. All-powerful in Olympic circles, feared by athletes, coaches and governments. The key man, president of the International Olympic Committee, to put it mildly, is not an admirer of Santee.

AND THE EXTRAS

Then there are various athletes, coaches, jurists and other officials. Since Grimes is the big spender so far, he bears a further hearing.

"I have information that a revolt is brewing within the AAU," he snapped. "Officials in four different states have told me they will secede from the AAU because it is 30 years behind the times. They are fed up with the present administration."

Santee's temporary injunction runs out Friday and a hearing will be held in New York state Supreme Court to determine whether it should be made permanent. If it is, then the miler is an amateur in good standing no matter what the AAU says and he'll go in the Milwaukee Journal Games Saturday.

Who will run against him, of course, is another question. The other milers will be aiming for Olympic berths. The International Olympic Committee and the International Amateur Athletic Federation, are not bound by New York laws, so they can hold the figure-five stick over the heads of Santee's would-be rivals.

Stars Last Night

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jean Beliveau, Montreal, whose two goals and two assists paced the Canadiens to a 6-4 victory over Detroit Sunday.

Fern Flaman, Boston, who scored two goals Saturday to lead the Bruins to a 5-2 victory over New York at Boston.

Gordie Howe, Detroit, who scored one goal and assisted on the second in Detroit's 7-2 tie Saturday with the Maple Leafs at Toronto.

Bright Future For Football In Maritimes

MONTREAL (CP)—Ralph Backstrom triggered all four goals for Montreal Sunday as the junior Canadiens outgunned Guelph Biltmores 4-2 before 5,106 Laurier Tripoy hockey fans.

Guelph defenceman Eddie Shack scored both Biltmore goals. His first came in the opening period and his second late in the final stanza.

Backstrom scored his first goal in the second period and added three more in the third. Two of his third-period markers came with the Biltmores shorthanded.

The junior Canadiens dressed 20 players against 14 for Guelph and by the third period they had things pretty much their own way. Ron Boomer had 32 saves in the Biltmore nets while Montreal goalie Eddie Johnston stopped 25.

Nortowns Whip Gunners 91-71

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Northern 98's strengthened their bid to be Canada's Olympic basketball representative as they defeated Sault Ste. Marie Gunners 91-71 in the second round of the Olympic zone round-robin championship series Saturday night.

The 98's will meet champions of the other three zones to decide which team will form the nucleus of the Canadian Olympic squad. Five players will be chosen from the winning team and five from the total of the four participating teams.

The game—second of a twin bill also clinched the Ontario senior men's title for the 98's. Sault Ste. Marie were defeat champions Andy's A.C. defeated Sault Ste. Marie Gunners 93-56 in the third round of the series Sunday afternoon. The game did not affect the standings of the leaders.

Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals picked up two points during the weekend but the total wasn't enough to post a threat to the pace-setting Shawinigan Falls Cataracts in the Quebec Hockey League race.

The Falls, idle during the weekend, have a total of 79 points, eight more than the Royals, who downed the third-place Chicoutimi Saguenegens 4-1 Sunday behind the three-goal performance of Calum MacKay. The loss left Chicoutimi nine points behind Montreal in the well-spaced standings.

In another Sunday game, the lowly Trois-Rivieres Lions kept alive their slim hope of gaining a playoff berth by defeating the fourth-place Quebec Aces 3-1. The Lions have six games remaining and trail the Aces by eight points.

Teepees, Irish Battle to Tie; Biltmores Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Here's a hockey game that bore more resemblance to a boxing show.

Toronto Marlboros and St. Catharines Teepees battled 19 minutes to a 3-3 stalemate Sunday in the second game of their semi-final series in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league.

A wholesale skirmish broke out with 36 seconds remaining in the game. Every player except the two goaltenders got into the act. It took told there were 33 penalties worth 118 minutes. The total included 12 minors, two misconducts and 12 majors. Teepees were assessed 10 minors, both misconducts and six majors.

A crowd of 7,150 turned up for the afternoon game at Toronto. Teepees still lead the best-of-seven semi-final set 1-0, with one game tied. The clubs square off again in St. Catharines Tuesday night.

BEAT RULTS

In a quarter-final engagement at Toronto Saturday, Toronto St. Michael's Majors grabbed a 3-0 lead in their best-of-five series by whipping Guelph Biltmores 6-3. The teams meet in Guelph Friday and Majors could wind up things with a win.

There was no weekend action in the other junior A final series, Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks and Flyers meet in Barrie Wednesday in the fourth game. The best-of-seven series is tied 1-3, with one game tied.

In the Sunday game, tempers, which flared during most of the game, hit the boiling point at 9:28 of the 10-minute overtime period when Teepees defenceman Pat Kelly crashed Marlboros' Charlie Burns into the boards.

Burns, who returned this season after suffering a serious head injury in hockey last years, still wears a head helmet. He struck his head against the protective glass at the end of the rink when hit by Kelly. He did not appear to be hurt and was in the middle of the brawl. The fight produced 12 penalties—10 majors, a misconduct and a minor.

LED WITH TWO

Left winger Bob Pulford led Marlboros with two goals. Right winger Ernie Nevin got the other. Centre Art Stratton, Elmer Vasko and Don Carter scored for Teepees. Stratton sent the game into overtime when he beat goaltender Len Broderick at 18:13 of the second period.

Teepees took a 3-0 lead in the first period but were staggered by a three-goal Marlboro attack in the second. Stratton got his little more than six minutes after Nevin gave Toronto a 3-2 lead.

Majors shook off a mid-game lapse at Toronto to overpower Biltmores. A crowd of 2,668 fans saw left winger Frank Mahovlich fire two goals, including the winner as Dave Majors their 2-0 lead in the series.

The winner of the set meets either Canucks or Flyers in a semi-final affair.

Majors were in front 3-0 by the 17-minute mark of the second period, faltered while Guelph tied it up at 9:21 of the third and then broke loose for three more goals.

Pat Hannigan, Louie Angotti, Gino Ubriaco and Tim Hook scored singles for Majors. The Jerry Goyer-Billy Graham-Bob Forhan line accounted for all Guelph goals. Goyer bagged a pair. Graham fired the other goal. Forhan assisted on all three.

Dutchies, Mercs Series Tied; Indians Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stratford Indians were only one game shy today in their attempt to grab a final playoff spot in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League.

Indians took a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven semi-final set against Chatham Maroons Saturday by defeating Maroons 5-3. They could finish things tonight when they meet Maroons at Chatham.

As Indians were taking care of Maroons, Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen were beating Owen Sound Mercurys 5-1 in their semi-final series. The best-of-seven affair is tied 3-2. The fifth game is set for Kitchener Tuesday.

At Stratford, Indians scored twice in the third period to take the win. Dexter Delgrof tallied the winner at 2:30 and Lou Bendo picked up the insurance goal at 14:39.

Other Indian goals were produced by Harry Paulin, Apples Finkbeiner and Doug McKay. Jim Connelly, Doug Baldwin and Graham Joyce scored for Chatham.

RENEWED FEUD

Chatham reutre Ted Power and Stratford goaltender Don Head renewed their feud, which started Friday in Chatham. They traded punches with 11 seconds left to play. Both were given major penalties.

There were 2,300 customers sitting in at Owen Sound as Dutchmen took advantage of Mercurys' defensive mistakes to score their first two goals.

Jim Logan, Jack McKenzie, Paul Knox, Ken Laufman and Bob White were the marksmen for Kitchener. Roy Leckie, who scored unassisted on a breakaway in the second period, robbed goaltender Dennis Brodeur of a shutout. It was Leckie's fifth goal of the series.

Mercs outshot Kitchener 41-31 but Brodeur was sensational. The teams engaged in a bruising game and the heavy hitting resulted in 14 minor penalties. Dutchmen got eight of them.

Junior Habs Whip Biltmores

TORONTO (CP)—John Funston of Halifax, president of the Maritime Football Union, forecasts a bright future for football in the Maritimes now that the MFU has gained membership in the Canadian Rugby Union.

Funston predicts that senior football, comparable to that played in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, will be played in the Maritimes in perhaps 10 years—when the Maritimes will have a professional league.

In an interview Saturday, a few hours after Maritime Football Union had been granted non-voting membership in the CRU, Funston summed up the Maritime football future in these words:

"Our future plans include the graduating into senior football and I hope we can do that in five years. When that happens we will have three leagues going—senior, intermediate and junior.

"And it's conceivable that we could have professional football in the Maritimes in 10 years if we get big enough facilities in such places as Halifax, Moncton and Saint John."

He said a lot of hard work lay ahead to promote the game in the Maritimes which down through the years was a hotbed of English rugger. Ten years ago there was no football played east of Quebec.

British Actress, Claire Bloom, To Be Seen in 2 Spectaculars

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)— Within a single week NBC-TV is bidding for top dramatic honors with two outstanding dramas. A beautiful, brown - eyed British actress, Claire Bloom, plays the feminine lead in both.

This evening "Producers' Showcase" presents a ninety-minute color production of George Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra," starring Miss Bloom as Cleopatra.

On Sunday, March 11, NBC-TV will present the American premiere of "The Brothers Karamazov," with Miss Bloom playing Lady Anne to Olivier's portrayal of the wicked hunchback Richard in this three-hour color film.

NO ROMANCES

In short, Miss Bloom is a young lady of great interest to the television audience these days. But if anybody hopes to learn anything here about her romantic interests none. Any personal eccentricities none, any headline-making views none, they're doomed to disappointment.

After spending a pleasant hour with her, I can positively report only these things: She is beautiful, restrained to the point of shyness, and wholly dedicated to acting.

Having seen her play Roxanne in NBC-TV's production of "Cyrano De Bergerac" last fall, I also can report she's a superb actress.

Born in London in 1931, the theatre and movies have been her life since she was 15. She played the role of the ballet dancer in Charlie Chaplin's last film, "Limelight," and plays the feminine lead in "Alexander the Great," a widely publicized British film which has not yet been released in the United States. Her only live appearance before an American audience was in "Cyrano."

Marlon Brando's New Film Venture Takes Him to Japan

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This week that versatile independent young man, Marlon Brando, embarks on a new film adventure which will take him to Japan to play a wily Okinawan.

Last year at this time Brando was almost to win his long-awaited, long-deserved Academy Award. He remarked that the film he wanted to do next was the John Patrick comedy, "Teahouse of the August Moon."

Whatever Marlon wants, Marlon gets. MGM was only too happy to meet his terms in order to sign him for the role David Wayne created on Broadway, later played by Burgess Meredith and Larry Parks on the road.

LIKES ROLE

I caught up with Brando before his departure for the Orient. He was with George Englund, handsome young producer for Brando's Pennebaker productions.

"I'm very happy about "Teahouse," Brando remarked. "We've got a fine cast, Delbert Mann is a great director, and filming it in Japan should give added value.

"It's a very funny story. But more than that, it says something. It has a lesson in internationality which I think is valuable today. It should help in promoting understanding."

Others in the cast include Glenn Ford as the bewildered occupation officer, Louis Calhern as his superior, Eddie Albert as the psychiatrist and Larry Keegan as the sergeant.

Brando said MGM artists have devised a fabulous makeup to "orientalize" him for the picture.

"I wear patches on the eyelids, face lines and a wig," he said. "It's really great. I don't think that the makeup men get the credit they deserve for their contribution to pictures."

Unlike some young stars who storm even a light coating of pancake, Brando has often favored involved makeups. In "Viva Zapata" he had his eyes taped up and nostril flared. He employed a plastic nose bridge to give himself a more Napoleonic profile in "Desiree." And in his Oscar-winner, "On The Waterfront," he simulated scars about the eyes to portray the former prize fighter.

FIND WINS RACE

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Find, 17-to-10 favorite, splashed to victory under the steady handling of jockey Eric Guerin in the $63,900 New Orleans handicap at the Fairgrounds Saturday. He won by a length over H. G. Bockman's Happy Go Lucky. Hasty House Farm's Sea O Erin, second choice in the betting, finished third.

U.S. WINS 'SPIEL

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—The United States Saturday won the annual Gordon International Medal bonspiel with 98 points against Canada's 34½.

The American curlers won only five of Saturday's 15 matches but they had a 31-point lead from 17 matches Friday.

The International Medal has been in play since 1884 Canada won it last year at Montreal.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, March 6, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Don't undertake more than you can handle efficiently. It is all right to have ambition but if you spread it too thinly over many projects, results will be negligible. Concentrate!

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Temper any tendency to "bullishness" with steady and smoothly planned activity. A look-before-you-leap attitude is best. An appraisal of others' performance can generate fresh ideas.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — al good account of yourself without overstraining. Competition may be strong but don't evas...be discouraged. Have faith.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — As with Gemini, concentrate your energies on essentials first, then tackle the "probables." An eye-opening discussion with capable associates could lead to new methods with subsequent gains.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Results of recent accomplishments. Have you attained your highest goals? If not, where did you bog down? Time is ripe for finishing up incompleted matters. In p.m. relax with family, good friends.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Exercise control over emotions and finances. Future success will, in great part, be the result of such daily alertness, discernment. Where time permits, a good book provides wholesome diversion.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You, like Libra, are now urged to be carefully selective in activities as well as companionships. Don't overdo, or neglect your personal interests for others'.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Some people want things to run their way to the exclusion of wishes others rightfully have. Do not be a party to such unfairness! Be discreet.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — There are mixed vibrations — some fine, others restrictive. It will be wise to plan actions thoroughly, follow a well-determined route. And keep good humor out front!

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)—You need more sleep and should give better thought to your diet than you usually do. Plan now for a better system and you can better future health. Written matters, travel, entertainment need extra care.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — If you slipped up on anything yesterday, begin anew

ENDS IN DRAW

SARGODHA, Pakistan (Reuters)—The visiting English cricket team Sunday ended its three-day game with a Pakistan services eleven in a draw.

A ninth-wicket stand of 83 in 75 minutes by bowlers Tony Lock and Peter Salisbury narrowly failed to give the visitors a first innings lead over the home team.

Mayfield Wins Baton Rouge Open

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Shelley Mayfield, a three-stroke winner in the $15,000 Baton Rouge Open, today headed for his Los Angeles home and a visit with his new daughter.

Mayfield dropped a 22-foot putt for a birdie on the par-four 17th hole Sunday, then sank a six-footer for a 4' shot on the last hole to pull away from Jimmy Demaret after the two were even for 16 holes. Mayfield finished with a three-under-par 69 over the 6,450-yard Baton Rouge Country Club course for a 277 total and $2,300 in prize money.

Demaret, Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., had a par 72 and fell into a five-way tie for second at 280 after 72 holes.

Deadlocked with Demaret were Doug Ford, also of Kiamesha Lake; Walter Burkemo of Franklin, Mich.; Freddie Haas of Claremont, Calif.; and Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex. They each won $1,066.

Ford and Burkemo both finished with 68s. Hawkins had 70 and Haas 71.

Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver had a 76, his worst score of the tournament, for a total of 287. Gerry Kesserling of Kitchener, Ont., scored 76-74-73-73 in the first two rounds and then dropped out.

Hornets Win Two Nudge Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets crept closer to Providence Reds, leaders in the American Hockey League, by capturing two weekend games while the Reds split a pair. The results left Pittsburgh, with 75 points, three behind Reds in the standings.

Hornets beat Hershey Bears 5-3 Saturday night and then took an overtime squeaker 4-3 over Springfield Indians Sunday afternoon to loct 7-4 to Cleveland Barons Saturday and then came back to defeat third-place Buffalo Bisons 5-3 Sunday.

In the other Saturday game Buffalo bested Springfield 5-4.

Ken Hayden got two goals—and an assist to lead Barons to their Saturday night victory over Providence in a game in which Providence manager Terry Reardon was fined $100.

The fine was automatic because Reardon stepped on the ice to make a long and loud protest against Cleveland's first goal, by Gord Velpiava.

Teen-Ager Steals Swim Meet Show

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 16-year-old from the Brantford Swimming Club stole the show Saturday night at the Ontario swimming and diving championships held at the University of Western Ontario's Thames Hall.

Sara Barber, with three first-place finishes, practically assured herself of a berth on Canada's junior women's swim team which will take part in the 1956 summer Olympic Games slated for Melbourne, Australia.

Sara won all events that she entered, the junior women's 220 yards free style, the 100 yards back stroke and the 100 yards butterfly.

She also cracked the junior women's Canadian record in the 220 yards free style in the preliminaries with a time of 2:33.3

Geordies Favored To Retain 'Coop'

LONDON (CP) — Newcastle United, 4-to-1 favorite to retain the Football Association Cup it won last year, was eliminated in the quarter-finals Saturday by Sunderland which defeated the 1952 upset victory.

Two goals—one in each half—by centre forward Bill Holden knocked United out of the competition in a game at Newcastle before a crowd of 61,000 fans.

Other teams to reach the semi-finals are Birmingham City, 2-1 victor at Arsenal, and Manchester United which defeated Everton 2-1 Tottenham Hotspur and West Ham United tied 3-3 and will replay their game Thursday.

West Ham, only second division team still in the running, was leading 3-2 on goals by inside left John Dick until 15 minutes from the end when centre forward Len Duquemin headed home the tying goal. Ernie Gregory, West Ham goalkeeper, made two desperate saves in the last two minutes to preserve the tie.

Birmingham became the first team this century to reach the FA Cup semi-finals without playing a cup game at home.

Hab 'Squirts' Win Title in Overtime, Bruins, Hawks Top Bantams, Peewees

The Squirt Canadiens took forty minutes of overtime to win the city championship Saturday morning while the Bruins took the bantam title and the Black Hawks won the peewee championship.

The Black Hawks played a two-game, goals-to-count series with the Canadiens for the peewee title, defeating them 3-1 in the first game and 3-2 in the second. The bantam Bruins-Red Wings game was a sudden-death affair with the champs pulling out a narrow 3-2 victory.

Squirt Canadiens and Black Hawks battled through a real thriller. The score was tied 1-1 at the end of regulation time and 3-3 after a ten-minute overtime period. Overtime continued with the first goal the winner, this coming after some minutes.

Peter Carver was one of several stars for the winners pushing home a loose puck to give his team the title for the 2nd consecutive year. Jimmie Hurst tallied the Hats other three goals, two in the first overtime period with the Hawks leading 2-1. Tommy Dolan played an outstanding game two minutes of the winners' goal to avoid Hurst starred in goal. Richard Eves accounted for all three Bruin goals while Billy Fisher turned in an excellent effort in goal.

The bantam Red Wings went down to defeat for the third straight year in a championship game. Kelly tallied the winner for the Bruins with about 4 minutes to play breaking the 2-2 tie.

Kelly's winning goal was his second of the game with McKenzie getting the other. Pug Kellar collected a pair of assists for the champs with one each for Jack Boutler and Hallam. Billy McGuire led the Wings' attack with a goal and assist while Pete Adams also scored. Gerard and D. Dale each earned one helper.

Turner and Dennis Hull led the Black Hawks in their first peewee win, Hull scoring two goals and Turner getting one and a brace of assists. Stu Mulhead also drew one assist. Skinner tallied for the Canadiens with assists for Kiser and Rutherford.

Ted Dunlop took both goals for the Canadiens in the second game behind Turner. Seames and Plunkett tallied for Hawks to give them the series six goals to three. Hull and Hoqang each had one assist.

Intell Whips Point Anne 5-3 In Finals First

The Ontario Intelligencer was awarded the first game of the Industrial hockey league finals over Point Anne yesterday before they went on the ice then went on to defeat last year's champs 5-3. This was the first game in a two-of-three series with the second scheduled tonight at 7.00 p.m.

League president Ken Cannon after conferring with four other team representatives, informed manager Ed de Leeuw of Point Anne that the game would be awarded to the Intelligencer if Jack Stewart played for Point Anne. Stewart, Intelligite because he did not participate during league games, played defence for the Pointers.

The game itself was a close hard-fought battle most of the way. The Intell took a commanding 3-0 lead only to have Point Anne net two in a row before the winners sewed it up with another pair. The losers closed the scoring with about five minutes remaining.

Leo St. Amour was the writer's attack with his eighth and ninth goals of the playoffs, compiled in five games. Frank Cris, Gord. St. Louis and Bob Brooks scored the other goals, St. Louis proving to be the deciding marker.

Point Anne was shaken up by a rugged bodycheck from McKenna about halfway through the first period. Ed Dunlop and Bob Cummings was the other Point Anne marksmen.

Jake Wade and Bill Hurst were the referees.

'Terrang' Eyes Florida Derby

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Horseman Rex Ellsworth sends his top three year olds to Florida today in search of further Derby honors and don't be surprised if Swaps' kid brother collects some of them.

There was thought that Swaps himself might go along on the flight to Gulfstream and another race with the great Nashua March if in the handicap there. Now the word is that Swaps will go by Swaps a year ago.

train later and miss the handicap.

Definitely booked, and for the Florida Derby March 24, are Terrang, winner of the $153,900 Santa Anita Derby Saturday, and Like Magic, who finished a fast closing fourth less than three lengths behind his stablemate. Like Magic is a full brother of Swaps and the stable thinks he might be an even better Derby horse than Terrang as the big races coming up for three year olds.

Terrang, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, beat Llangollen Farm's fast closing Social Climber by 1¼ lengths with G. I. Martin's More Glory a neck behind. The winning time was 1:51 compared to 1:50 for Swaps a year ago.

Worried about Bills?

Not Mr. Peake!

Mr. Peake was off work for a few months last year. It wasn't his fault and he is now working steadily again at a good salary. But while he was out of work bills piled up and he was constantly worried trying to meet the most pressing obligations and stall the others. Finally on a friend's advice, he dropped in to see us. After talking circumstances, our Loan Manager was able to show him enough to settle all his bills, and on payments he could easily meet out of his income. "Going to Citizens was the smartest move I ever made," Mr. Peake says. You'll say so too. If you need money for any useful purpose, come in or call our Loan Manager today.

Western Position In Middle East Further Worsened

New Disorders on British Bastion of Cyprus Seen

LONDON (CP) — The tense Middle East situation, smouldering with Arab-Israeli strife, was worsened further today with the prospect of new disorders on the British bastion of Cyprus.

The situation aroused fresh alarms among the Western Allies and provoked a rising clamor in Parliament here against Prime Minister Eden's government.

The high-octane inflammability of one of the world's most strategic areas was further worsened by the shooting down of an Israeli plane near the Syrian border and Israeli patrol clashes with Jordanians and Egyptians.

With British leadership of Jordan's Arab Legion ended by last week's ouster of Lt.-Gen. John Bagot Glubb and the recall of 15 high British officers, the government told the House of Commons Monday night that it would crack down to restore order on Cyprus, the east Mediterranean island colony which is Middle East headquarters for British forces.

JAMMING RADIO

Reuters news agency reported Monday night that Britain had started "experimentally" to jam Greek radio broadcasts to Cyprus, following Monday's breakdown of Anglo-Greek talks here. An official spokesman in Cyprus confirmed that experimental jamming took place Monday night.

The British government decided last January to abandon the Israeli-Jordan of inflammatory Athens broadcasts, but Monday night's action was the first known to have taken place.

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd reported the collapse of five months of negotiations with Archbishop Makarios, leader of the Greek-speaking Cypriot majority which wants union with Greece.

Lennox-Boyd said Britain has offered Cyprus a wide measure of self-government, but that the talks had foundered on Makarios' demands—amnesty for all political offenders including convicted murderers of British soldiers, absolute Cypriot control of internal security and—a written guarantee that the Greek - speaking majority would control the legislature.

With 50,000 British troops stationed on the island, Lennox-Boyd told the House, "the first and most important duty is to restore law and order" to Cyprus.

"For this we have the resolution and the force and it will be done."

CYPRIOT DEFIANCE

Makarios retorted defiantly from Nicosia, the Cyprus capital:

"We shall in no circumstances strike the flag of self-determination. We shall struggle to the last, resisting passively illegal sovereignty over the island. . . .

"Tyrants will be tyrants.

The house reacted angrily to the twin setbacks in Jordan and Cyprus. Labor party leaders Hugh Gaitskell and Herbert Morrison called the developments part of the "creeping collapse" of Eden policy.

Right-wing Conservatives urged Eden to meet the Middle East reverses with firmness and to reassert British interests.

Labor pressed for early debate on the entire Middle East situation.

BUTTER SUGGESTION

TORONTO (CP) — A Retail Merchants Association executive Friday proposed that a family allowance cheque should include a 30-per-cent allowance on the price of a pound of butter. Arnold Rands of the association's food division said the move would help boost butter surplus, increase butter consumption and benefit the taxpayer.

Today's Chuckle

He took his defeat like a man. He blamed it on his wife.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Showers and thunderstorms that occurred over southern Ontario Monday night were part of a line of showers whether that extends along the lower Great Lakes. This line represents the boundary between very mild mild air over the eastern United States and the cooler air to the west. Temperatures soared to the 70s and 80s in the mild air Monday, while in southern Ontario temperatures were in the low 40s. Somewhat cold air pressing down from northern Canada is lowering temperatures in northern Ontario. Present indic. as are that this cold air will cover all of Ontario by late Wednesday.

NICOSIA, Cyprus. (CP) — The director of civil aviation in Cyprus today said it has been proved beyond doubt that a British airliner which blew up at the airport here Sunday night was sabotaged.

The airliner exploded and burst into flames as it was being refuelled a few minutes before 67 Britons, mostly servicemen and their families, were due to board it.

In Athens, meanwhile, the Greek airline Tae said it is reporting to the government a case of a "degrading and humiliating search" of the passengers and crew of one of its planes by British authorities on Cyprus.

Tae's plane's stewardess, Jennie Faissis, said she was taken aside by two British Women's Army Corps soldiers at Nicosia and, despite her vigorous protests, "stripped naked."

Officials here said that because of the possibility of sabotage of the British plane, all aircraft landing at Nicosia and their passengers were being searched. There was no reason to make an exception in the case of the Greek airline.

Ontario Scores Third Straight Win at Moncton

MONCTON, N. B. (CP)—Ontario today gained third win in the Canadian curling championship defeating Quebec 9-4 in a match settled by four enders.

Allie Phillips, Ontario skip, drew in on the Quebec shot rock but his anxious mates almost cost him the game by sweeping too hard. An official measurement gave Ontario the nod.

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Alberta all won third-round matches, giving Queen records. Saskatchewan finally broke into the win column after dropping two games, defeating Prince Edward Island 15-6. The Islanders have a 1-2 mark.

Nova Scotia hammered British Columbia 14-7, Manitoba defeated Saskatchewan 11-6 and New Brunswick downed Northern Ontario 15-8. Jack Cooper Cliff crew's record is 0-2.

Undefeated Manitoba, with two wins, drew a bye in the third round.

In the fourth round, starting at 1 p.m., Ontario meets the armed forces team from the northern part of the province.

Other fourth-round matches are Alberta vs British Columbia; Prince Edward Island vs Quebec; New Brunswick vs Manitoba, and Newfoundland vs Saskatchewan.

Nova Scotia has the bye. . . .

The Ontario-Quebec match was the first meeting of the two provinces. Quebec deadlocked the count in the 11th end.

Professor Proves Aristotle Wrong: Best Jokes Those Without Surprises

VANCOUVER (CP)—Do people observe two minutes silence when you tell a joke?

They do if Then take your problem to Dr. Douglas T. Kenny of the University of British Columbia. Chances are you're telling the wrong kind.

Your problem is probably that you subscribe to the incongruity theory and Dr. Kenny says the discrepancy hypothesis is a lot more effective.

Victor-born Dr. Kenny is assistant professor of psychology at UBC and explained his views appearing in the Journal of Abnormal and Social Psychology.

The title of the paper is: "The Contingency of Humor Appreciation on the Degree of Incongruity of the Joke-Ending Expectations."

Dr. Kenny says he thinks it is funnier than any of the 30 jokes he tested to prepare it.

Co-ed: I'd like to see the captain of this ship.

Sailor: He's forward, miss.

Co-ed: That's all right, this is a surprise visit.

"None of the jokes was what you would call really naughty," the 32-year-old Dr. Kenny says. Most of them—"about 20 of the 30"—are corny. Dr. Sigmund Freud's works. The others came from "college humor publications" and other such sources.

CANADA EXPECTS BIG WHEAT SALE TO CZECH GOVT.

Contract May Be Signed by Wednesday

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is expected to sell up to 302,000 tons—about 11,000,000 bushels—of wheat to Czechoslovakia under a contract reported scheduled for signing later this week.

"We plan to buy a great number of tons of Canadian wheat," an official of the Communist satellite country's Ottawa legation told a reporter Monday night. "Contracts may be signed by Wednesday."

He said his country plans to buy at least 100,000 tons. But he expected the purchase to be closer to 302,000 tons.

It would be the second good-sized transaction in agricultural produce between the two countries in less than a year.

HAS SOLD BUTTER

In the last half a, the federal government has sold Czechoslovakia 55,639 pounds of surplus butter for 39 cents a pound. The government stockpiled the butter as its support price of 58 cents a pound. Price of the wheat Canada is expected to sell the Czechs was not known.

Negotiations for its purchase, however, are being handled by federal officials and a Czech trade mission comprising state officials and businessmen.

The legation official said the grade of wheat and period during which the grain will be bought has not yet been decided.

The purchase is a result of heavy crop losses in Europe from severe winter conditions. Orders are expected from other countries, including Poland and France, hit by the cold and snow.

Lower House Backs Building Of German Army

BONN, Germany (AP) — The Bundestag today approved permanent legislation to rearm West Germany as the defense force of Europe.

Then an overwhelming vote on show of hands the lower house passed the "soldier's law" which will permit the fast buildup of a powerful German army, navy and air force.

Fourteen constitutional amendments intended to clamp firm civilian control on the armed forces were passed by a vote of 390 to 20. This means the legislation now goes to the Bundesrat (upper house) for final parliamentary approval. The Bundesrat is expected to act March 16.

Barring a major political upset, Bundesrat approval is considered certain.

Socialists joined Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's supporters in pushing through the amendments.

DOG PACK ATTACKS THREE CHILDREN

Children in areas near Hamilton, Ont., have been told to carry clubs with which to protect themselves from rabid dogs and foxes after an attack by wild dogs on Marian and Doug Mannen and Susan Shantz. The children, who held their dog on a leash, beat off the attack without being bitten. Reports of roving bands of dogs, foxes and wolves have poured in from various rural areas in Southern Ontario and police have destroyed 40 dogs, believed to have rabies, have been destroyed. Canada, Italy Will Ask NATO To Emphasize Economic Field

OTTAWA (CP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with Canadian and Italian prodding, may switch its main effort from the military to the economic field.

The two NATO partners agreed informally Monday to press jointly for increased recognition of the non-military aspects of the NATO alliance at the May meeting of the North Atlantic Council in Canada.

External Affairs Minister Pearson has announced the view that the military buildup of the 15 NATO members has thwarted Soviet designs on western Europe and that Russia now is probing into the Middle East and South Asia with economic weapons.

Mr. Pearson said Monday he feels that non-military spheres of the NATO alliance should be the main subject for the council meetings in light of Russia's policy of competitive co-existence.

British Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino made a similar statement, also in an interview, after the two nation talks. Prime Minister St. Laurent and Italian President Giovanni Gronchi discussed the same subject.

In an address to a joint session of the Senate and the Commons, Mr. Gronchi said at one point:

"The new course of international events makes it advisable that the next session of the Atlantic Council . . . should have the extent and implications of a conference where an objective and therefore realistic examination should be made of all political, economic, social and psychological requirements. . . .

"Essentially, the Western viewpoint is the indispensable premise for any action in order to confer upon joint policies a dynamic and flexible character to counteract the force which now lately given proof of possessing such flexibility."

Govt. Denies Charge Civil Servants Being Mistreated

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario CCF leader MacDonald said Monday the provincial government has driven its civil servants to the verge of affiliating their'association with a large union.

He told the Ontario legislature the government is giving its employees the "run-around" and is ignoring their grievances.

Their only recourse was to get the support of a large union which would bargain more forcefully for them.

Premier Frost said later outside the House he has no knowledge of any move by the Civil Service Association to affiliate with a union. He said the government does have the civil service represented by a union specifically support one of the political parties sitting in the assembly.

Mr. MacDonald's remarks on the government's civil service policy provoked hurried denials on the estimates of the provincial secretary's department, sparked a bitter exchange between the CCF leader and government members.

He said the government is paying such low wages that high-calibre employees simply will not be attracted to government jobs.

Planning Minister Nickle, former provincial treasurer, told Mr. MacDonald could "measure up to the greatness and history of civil servants, he would quickly develop a new line of thinking."

"You should hear your head in shame for suggesting any civil servant is of low calibre."

Shouted Mr. MacDonald over government members' protests:

"I never said civil servants are of low calibre."

Provincial Secretary Dunbar then said Mr. MacDonald is trying only "to complain not offer constructive criticism."

Mr. MacDonald replied the government is trying to override all opposition.

"You have lost all the sense of parliamentary democracy you once had. Anyone who criticizes you now is a complainer."

The government was "heading for trouble if it did not stop treating civil servants as "second-class citizens."

A government member interjected: "They're first-class citizens. They are better citizens than you are."

F. Edwards (PC — Perth), deputy Speaker, had to pound repeatedly for order during the 45-minute argument. At one point he had to call three times for Gordon Lavergne (PC—Russell) to yield the floor to Mr. MacDonald.

The House finally approved the estimates, for $5,366,000.

Grenades Stolen From Army Camp

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Army Provost Corps and RCMP Monday night issued a warning that a "considerable quantity" of high explosive hand grenades, complete with primers, may be scattered around the city where they could fall into the hands of children.

The grenades were stolen from nearby Sarcee military camp.

Art of Catching Runaway Horse Appears Lost

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—Police today were the first to admit that the art of catching a runaway horse is lost.

Four radio - equipped police cars—participated Monday in the chase of a bolting, wildly pulling a junk wagon.

Police said the modern equipment chased the horse over a wide area and finally overtook an hour—but they could not stop him.

Eventually the horse dropped from exhaustion.

COMMONS HEARS PLEA FOR BIGGER ECONOMY SHARE

Atlantic and Prairie Provinces in Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—Needs of the Atlantic and Prairie provinces for a greater share of Canada's industrial expansion have been placed before the Commons in an all-day debate.

Speeches about the problems of the east coast provinces predominated as a series of Maritime members took the floor Monday. But their point of discussion was a resolution introduced by a westerner, Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris).

His proposal called on the government to use "every possible opportunity" to promote decentralization of industry.

Quebec and Ontario have 60 per cent of Canada's population and 80 per cent of its manufacturing output, Mr. Dinsdale said. Decentralization would spread population and development more fairly, ensure a strategic arrival of vital war industries and help reverse the "drain from the eastern provinces "with the accompanying social evils."

ONTARIO CRITICIZED

Ontario and Quebec came in for some criticism in the debate.

A. R. Patterson (PC—Moncland) took issue with a recent statement by Premier Frost that Ontario is not interested in any plan which should not be harmed by federal equalization payments.

"Ontario lays no golden eggs for us," the Nova Scotia member said. "She is not a goose whereswhilat to lay the eggs for herself."

The Ontario premier's statement was questioned Maritime feelings that "Ontario is not only the heartland but the bogland of Canada."

Lesby Jones suggested certain areas be given preference in allotment of defence contracts as one way of spreading out industry.

Mr. Dinsdale said defence industries are not the answer. Federal government can give impetus to re-distribution but this should be done if Canada was to have a reasonable defence programs. A lot depends on what policy is to have most defence industries in and around Toronto and Montreal.

Besides industrial concentration, Ontario and Quebec have the concentration of political power. The country's development had been distorted by the "pull and haul of political politics." West had been played against East, and the natural emergence of splinter political groups in the West.

As for the needs of huge industrial cities, Mr. Dinsdale said the result has been the construction of society, the rise of slums and the breaking up of close family ties.

"Human beings have become less than human. They are merely pushing urban areas."

Carter Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) said it would not require much of a shift of industry to overcome the economic ills of the maritimes.

Defence Confederation the Maritimes had industrial wealth. But in a 60-year period more than 80 major industries moved from Halifax-Sydney off to Ontario and Quebec.

Crazed Gunman Held After Leaving Stolen Police Car to Talk to Wife

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A crazed gunman held a priest and two policemen hostage in a confiscated patrol car today during a chase through two states before he was overpowered and captured.

The gunman, Joseph Madera, 37, commandeered the police car to talk over with his wife a possible surrender.

Then he started a three-hour pursuit during which he fired at New Jersey state policemen and through a Pennsylvania roadblock and finally wounded two bystanders.

Madera was identified by authorities as a former patient in a mental institution who had been arrested for armed robbery.

Authorities said he first called by reporter George Thompson of the Philadelphia Daily News. The News said Thompson, answering an office telephone call, was told by a man who identified himself as Madera that he wanted to meet a reporter at city hall in central Philadelphia, or he would "shoot someone or myself."

Thompson called authorities, but Madera surprised a detective and a policeman sitting in the patrol car, disarmed them and took control of the car.

Rev. John Lynch, whose church is in central Philadelphia, had also been summoned, and Madera forced him into the car as well.

Other police had followed the car when it happened but, fearing for the safety of the hostages, apparently unable to do more than pursue the stolen car, which took off at high speed through the streets and then through a Pennsylvania roadblock and finally rounded to bystanders' pleas that he talk over things with his wife said a priest. Neither his wife nor children were present.

King Saud Flies To Arab 'Summit' Parley At Cairo

Israel Parliament Rejects Call for Preventive War

JERUSALEM (CP)—The Israeli Knesset (parliament) today defeated an extreme rightist Freedom Movement call for an immediate preventive war against the Arabs.

A no confidence motion was defeated by 66 votes to 13, with 14 abstentions, in one of parliament's stormiest meetings.

The premier and defence minister, David Ben-Gurion, strongly opposed the movement's call to launch an immediate preventive war.

Ben-Gurion said the chances of preventing a war with the Arabs "are somewhat smaller now."

Making his first statement since the dismissal of British Lt.-Gen. Sir John Glubb as commander of Jordan's Arab Legion, Ben-Gurion asserted:

CHANCES SLIM

"Israel will not start a war. We had to make preparations because we know the Arab states were bent on a second round—but we always hoped, and still hope, it can be prevented. The chances for the prevention now perhaps are slimmer."

The premier spoke shortly after the Israeli foreign office had accused Egypt of massing fighting forces inside the Gaza strip and "provoking" along Israel's southern frontier.

CAIRO (AP — Saudi Arabia's King Saud flew into Cairo today for an Arab "summit" conference with Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and President Shukri al-Kuwatly of Syria.

They were expected to seek ways of bringing Jordan and its Arab fighting force—into their "united front" Arab alliance now that Jordan's King Hussein has ousted British Lt.-Gen. John Glubb from command of the Legion.

Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia, who have linked in a military alliance, have already offered to replace the subsidy of some £9,000,000 which Britain pays Jordan for support of the Legion.

Alignment of Hussein with the three-power Arab group would bring strong pressure on his cousin, King Faisal of Iraq, to quit the western-sponsored Bagdad pact which Nasser opposes. Iraq's defection from the alliance with Turkey, Pakistan and Britain probably would deal it a death blow.

In Jerusalem, the Israel foreign office today denounced Egypt for "massing fighting forces inside the Gaza strip and in the Sinai peninsula."

A statement by a ministry spokesman condemned "the growing volume of Egyptian acts of provocation against Israel, mounting evidence of the massing of Egyptian fighting forces inside the Gaza strip and the Sinai peninsula, and the increasing belligerency of the tone of public anti-Israel announcements by Col. Abdel Nasser and other members of the Egyptian military junta."

Report Ontario Will Strengthen Equal Rights Law

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says Ontario government has decided to stiffen its anti-discrimination legislation. Amendments to the Fair Accommodations Practices Act are to be introduced before the legislature within three weeks.

The decision followed recent incidents in restaurants at Dresden and near Chatham, where Negroes were refused service.

A delegation from 11 organizations met Premier Frost Feb. 16 and asked that section 3 of the act which makes it an offence to "publish" signs or symbols of the use of such words as "withhold" or "refuse."

The newspaper says the weakness of the charge that customers were "denied" service was the section which makes it an offence to "publish" signs or symbols of the use of such words as "withhold" or "refuse."

The newspaper says the weakness of the charge that customers were "denied" service was the two Dresden restaurant proprietors pleaded guilty there was no actual denial of service when customers were simply ignored. The paper said they were too busy to serve the Negro customers.

Second Gas Blast Leaves East York Citizens Jittery

TORONTO (CP) — Jittery residents of suburban East York attempted to settle down again today after being rocked with their second natural-gas explosion in 10 days.

Two persons were injured Monday in the blast that buckled a wall and blew out a door in a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. Five persons hurt Feb. 23 in a house, only three blocks away, was destroyed.

The bank accident occurred when accountant Alfred Cushman, 28, struck a match to light a cigaret in the basement vault. Bank manager Ernest Hodgins, a loud rumble and then Mr. Cushman disappeared in a cloud, pelting from his face and hands.

Yvonne North, an employee of the bank, the shaken, suffered face cuts when hit by a piece of flying glass as she passed on the street.

Oakah Jones, vice-president and general manager of Consumer's Gas Co., said the explosion was caused by natural gas from a leak in a main.

Residents in the area were apprehensive.

"No one is safe around here anymore," said Mrs. Hodgins, whose hardware store is two doors from the bank.

Salk Vaccine Program's Start Not Yet Known

Dr. McColl Metcalfe, Medical Officer of Health for the Belleville Health Department, has announced that the program of vaccination against poliomyelitis with Salk vaccine will start some time before the close of the present school year, at a meeting of health conference held in Bigelville, Dr. D. S. Puffer, assistant to the Deputy Minister of Health for Ontario, stated that he was unable to give an exact date for the commencement of the program. However, Dr. Metcalfe says that the public of Belleville will be kept informed through the press as new developments arise.

The pupils of all the elementary schools, both public and separate, will be the first to receive the vaccine. If a sufficient quantity of vaccine is released, pre-school children will be given the vaccine at a later date.

Theatre's Tastiest Comedy Given Fine Treatment by Guild

"The Man Who Came to Dinner", one of the theatre's tastiest chestnuts, was served up in turn by the Belleville Theatre Guild at the BCIVS auditorium last night. It will be repeated again this evening.

TNWCTD is about Sheridan Whiteside, a nationally known radio personality, who is imprisoned in the unheated wilds of central Ohio by a fractured hip. During his stay he wreaks enormous havoc with the small-town Stanleys he manages to curdle the milk of human kindness before performed him with a vinegary disposition that is the tang of the play.

While dispossessing the Stanleys, Whiteside accepts tribute from the world's great in the form of a clutch of cockroaches, a crate of penguins, an octopus and an Egyptian mummy. The human fauna that congregates from the four corners of the world includes a theatrical grande dame, Noel Coward and a Hollywood comedian. The local specimens, including the Stanleys, a nurse, the local journalist, and the family doctor are only slightly less ludicrous in their wacky comedy.

Guild newcomer Owen Llewellyn plays Whiteside in the grand manner and does a memorable job. His rippings and roarings bring laughs in clusters. His appearance is right and his evident glee at the discomfiture of others adds the right touch. Last night he started well and got better and more assured as the play progressed. He enjoyed playing Whiteside and the audience enjoyed it, too.

NO DISAPPOINTMENT

Sylvia Llewellyn, as Lorraine Sheldon, the actress' "first lady" came into the play in the middle of the second act like a shot of adrenalin. Sheldon is a gorgeous caricature and Miss Llewellyn made the most of it. Her appearance and acting were exciting and the rest of the cast got much closer to the farce and turned in more vigorous performances after her arrival. Her vitality gave balance to proceedings which Whiteside had dominated unmercifully.

The play, of course, has the advantage of offering a playing and singing collection of eccentrics in its second half and the parade last night was no disappointment.

Harry Mulhall, as Beverly Carlton, alias Noel Coward; Jim Alexander, as Professor Metz, the cockroach king and as a fleeting radio technician, Les Jourard as the Hollywood comedian Banjo, and Douglas Ingles as the local newspaperman gone libel, were the production in high gear until the final curtain.

Winnie Lewis was a perfect haunt as the Stanleys' slightly mad maiden relative. Her bright makeup and distracted demeanor brought laughs every time out. Her walk, however, was a little too ethereal for good listening in the rear pews.

Flo Yanover, as Whiteside's longtime secretary about to abandon the career for the mating call of the local newspaperman, was a bundle of too early. Whiteside's barbs and double crosses produced her hard, professional veneer too early in the play so that his ultimate betrayal of her friendship failed to fill the required quota of crying lovely.

Peter Gaunt, as Whiteside's tormented nurse, was properly professional and properly confused by the pandemonium until the last act.

David Bradley, as Dr. Bradley, local physician and surgeon and the Stanleys played by Stu Nichol, Mick Dennis, Gerald Putman and Sally Masterbrook, provided the background of normalcy in the midst of the bedlam. Helen Sulman and Joe Overfelt, as the manager and parents, played well.

WELL STAGED

The set, designed by Dolly Cain, assisted by Elsa Puncheon, Edna Clifton, Helen Sulman and Mary Robbin, was a liveable melange of mis-mated ancient and modern furniture and just right for the locale. It was tastefully done.

Syd Rose, who has been directing most of the Guild's major plays in the last few years, directed TMWCTD, assisted by Harry Bankier. Count Miller is producer.

The Moss Hart and George Kaufman script, loaded with sparkling dialogue, snaps and thrives on wit. The play has been done almost everywhere since Broadway saw the original in 1939, which is a tribute to its virtues which are many and durable.

The disappointingly small audience last night ended up for lack of enthusiasm by playing a dwindling collection of eccentrics in its second half and the parade last night was no disappointment.

MAUREEN KENNEDY

Maureen Kennedy Spelling Champ of Separate Schools

Maureen Kennedy, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy, 155 Hastings Drive, has been declared winner of the district spelling competition for Separate School pupils.

Miss Kennedy took top honors in written and oral tests for students in schools in Cornwall, Brockville, Kingston and Belleville and carried the right to enter the zone contest which will be held in Peterborough on March 24.

The Kingston Kiwanis Club presented the spelling champion with a Bulova wrist watch. St. Michael's parent-teacher association will present her with an Oxford dictionary this Thursday evening.

Miss Kennedy, now a student at St. Joseph's school, attended St. Michael's Academy until April 1954. Her teacher is Sister Mary Noreen of the Sisters of Providence.

Retailers' Sales Will Rise Billion But No Need to Worry About Debts

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

MONTREAL (CP) — A $1,000,000,000 sales tag and a lot of problems were hung before Canadian retailers today.

On one hand they may expect that on nearly half a year they will be selling $1,000,000,000 more in goods in a year's time than they are selling now—to add to the current record $13,000,000,000 yearly pace.

Gilbert E. Jackson, Toronto economist and business consultant, bolded the big increase figure Monday at the annual conference of the Canadian Credit Federation.

It was as simple as this, in Mr. Jackson's words:

Projection of $7,500,000,000 in various Canadian development is planned for this year. This would mean, by standards already established, an increase of $1,500,000,000 in gross national product—or new wealth of all goods and services.

But only about half could expect in 1957, $1,000,000,000 in new sales.

Increased population, increased income and "thrift" greater than ever before in this country provided the backing.

True, Canadians were piling up debt, but much of this was an illusion. Much of the debt was in the form of mortgages on homes which one day hundreds of thousands of Canadians hope to own. Their commitments were no larger than that of their fathers and grandfathers, who paid rent all their lives and, in the end, today's generation would be better off.

With this background of virtually assured increased sales, why should Canadian retailers worry?

They don't worry about the business but they have to be concerned about who will get it.

Judging by comments in their discussions, they don't seem too worried about this. They all expect to stay in profitable business.

Predict Canada To Become Nation Of City-Dwellers

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada in the next 25 years will become predominantly a land of city-dwellers, the government - owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation predicted today.

It estimated that about 3,400,000 new homes valued at some $35,000,000,000 may be constructed during the next quarter-century as Canada's population rises by some 10,000,000 to 28,500,000.

Of that population increase, about 9,000,000 will be added to the big cities, requiring an additional 900 square miles of urban property for house construction. CMHC said in a brief to the Gordon economic commission.

Brewers' Warehousing Co. To Build Modern Retail Store

The Brewers' Warehousing Co. with district headquarters at Belleville will construct a modern warehouse on Station Street to bring all departments under one roof, it was announced today.

Forced to vacate one of their two retail outlets to make way for the construction of the new federal building at the corner of Pinnacle and Station Streets, Brewers' Warehousing has purchased the old Clapp foundry building on Station St., opposite the Canniffon Road.

Renovations are now underway which will allow the company to move into temporary quarters by April 1st.

According to Ted Jones, district manager, long range plans call for the erection of the first phase of the new building at the rear of their newly acquired Clapp foundry property. Then when this is finished the old foundry building will be torn down to make way for completion of the front section of the new warehouse.

The completed new warehouse will have space for all branch operations of the warehousing company and the grounds will have adequate parking facilities and unloading facilities, as well as parking space for 60 cars.

Police Court

Pleading guilty to theft of a tire and wheel from a parked car, Clarence Hill, Shannonville, was sentenced to 15 days in jail this morning by Magistrate R.C. Jackson.

Harold VanAllen, Belleville, pleading guilty to the same offense was remanded until Thursday at which time a further charge of false pretences will be heard.

The two men were caught stealing a tire and wheel from the trunk of a car owned by Harold Pope. They had been in custody since February 22.

Rotarians Give Demonstration Of Their Hobbies

The resourcefulness of the modern-day businessman may not only be witnessed in his office. It also extends to his private life.

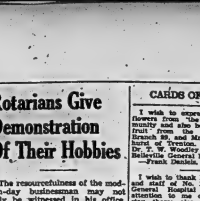
Evidence of this was presented at yesterday's meeting of Belleville Rotary Club at the regular weekly meeting in Hotel Quinte yesterday.

For the best part of the meeting club members entertained each other by displaying their hobbies and the ingenuity required in their various off-business-hours tricks of the trade.

Among the Rotarians contributing in an outstanding fashion were: Don MacKinnon of the county's Family Court and Ernie Garnett, manager of the local Ontario Hydro division.

Mr. MacKinnon, an enthusiastic follower of the placatorial art, came equipped with a fishing rod fur to demonstrate the manufacture of artificial lures for fishing. His exhibition gave members an insight into the finer points of a fine art and the on-the-spot manipulation of odd portions of fur and feathers into simulated live bait was given interested reception.

Highlight of the program was Mr. Garnett's explanations of matchstick model railroading. Equipped with wood blocks and a finished product of his hobby—violin making, incidentally—he held the club's attention with his demonstrations. Finally, as a working example of his workmanship Art Locke received a solo on the finished product.



Also during yesterday's meeting Miss Camella Campbell, New York City representative of the Community Concert Association, spoke on behalf of the current membership drive by the association's local branch.

"The Association's four annual concerts will be presented once again this year in Belleville," she said. As always they will feature four top artists on the concert circuit.

City residents will remember that it was just 20 years ago this month that the last serious flood took place in the city.

At that time ice piled up in the river and the current spilled over into Front Street and onto Coleman, flooding the low lying areas until the level of water.

Businesses on lower Front St. were flooded and basements were damaged under the crush of ice and the suspension footbridge was carried away.

Ice Water Bug Normal Risk Of Texas Visit

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Al H. Miller, Miller, Oaks, Calif., says there was a bug in the ice water he was served at a Dallas hotel but that Judy and he enjoyed for $250.

J. D. Blanton, operator of the restaurant, filed his formal defence Monday. The gist of it:

"Texas insects are so much smarter than California insects they naturally know when to come at mealtimes and go to the best places to get it.

"Subjected to the rigors and hardships of our pioneer society in Texas, plaintiff assumed the risks incident to travel in our fair state and should have been aware of the natural desires of Texas insects."

Miller permanently lost his keen appetite, as he claims, "this bug can have him up to $7 a day. I probably will improve his health, too, because it is hard to overeat."

Parisians Will Bid Goodbye To 500 Old Taxis

PARIS (Reuters)—Parisians will say goodbye soon to 500 of the capital's oldest taxis to make room for the replacement of 1,900 new double-deck G7s.

The taxis, known as G7s because their number plates all began with "G7," are the only taxis running in Paris which were designed specifically for use as taxis. The company which runs them says they now are too slow for the fast Paris traffic and are too hard to start.

Many will regret their disappearance from the city's fleet of 12,000 taxis. The old vehicles are the only really comfortable cabs on the streets—if you can get in to much hurry. They are roomy, easy to board—designers claim that one can get in wearing a top hat without difficulty—and have ample luggage space in a rack on the roof.

Passengers in most of the modern sedans operating as taxis have little space, are forced to bend double to get in, and women complain of the risk of catching their stockings in the narrow doorways.

IN MEMORIAM

LONG. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Henrietta (Nettie) Long, who passed away March 8th, 1952.

Loving back with memories,
Sweet memories of days gone by.
We bless the years we had with you,
But miss you more than words can say.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Kathie, son-in-law Bill and family.

LONG. — In loving memory of my parents, William and Nettie Long. Loving memories never fade
As years roll on and days pass by;
As our hearts remember you best,
Of parents we loved and will never forget.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughter Kathie.

AYLESWORTH. — In loving memory of our darling daughter, Doreen Margaret, who died instantly as the result of a motor accident on March 8th, 1953.

No night or day on her little heart,
Sin had ever entered there.
And innocence slept sweetly on
The cheek that now is pale and fair.
She was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay;
And so God's holy angel bore
Our darling child away.
—Sadly remembered by Mommy and Daddy.

AYLESWORTH. — In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Margaret,
Who passed away four years ago today, March 8th, 1952.
Four years have passed away and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
Her memory is dear as ever
Her grave
May wither and decay,
But the heart of her who sleeps there
Will never pass away.
Shall never be forgotten
—Ever remembered by Grandmother, Aunts, Uncles and cousins
Edwin, Harold Aylesworth.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market moved back in bullish mood today as first-hour trading saw industrials and base metals move to record levels while western oils scored another sharp advance at a three-year high.

Vefining oils were again a strong feature of the industrial list, led by Transmountain, up $1. Papers, utilities, liquors and manufactures were ahead.

Noranda, up $1 at a year's high of $57.12, led senior mines forward.

Among medium-priced issues, New Royran climbed 35 cents to $4.85.

Great Plains continued to roll ahead in western oils, posting a $1.50 advance at $33.50.

Uraniums showed little change.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trade was slow on a low-quality offering at prices steady to Monday's decline at the Ontario stockyards today.

Receipts: cattle 850; calves 196; hogs 221; sheep and lambs 251; carryover from Monday 1,200.

Prices: good to choice 18; good steers 17-18; mediums 15-17; commons 13-15; good heifers 15-15.50; mediums 14-15; commons 12-14; choice feeder steers 19-19.50; goods 18-19; mediums 15-18; good cows 11-11.50; canners &cutters 7; good heavy bologna bulls 13-14; common and medium light bulls 9.

Calves 26-28 for good vealers with odd sales to 30; medium 18-26; commons 12-18.

Hog, steer and lamb at $2.50; sows 16 dressed; stags 13 dressed.

Included in lamb receipts were 191 western lambs. There were no early sales.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged today.

The egg market was firm with offerings light for a good demand.

Quotations, supplied by the Dominion department of agriculture: eggs, in three cartons, graded: A large 43; A medium 42; A small 36; B 36; C 33. Wholesale to retail: A large 48; A medium 47; A small 41; B 41; C 38.

Butter solids: Canada, first grade, Ontario 58½; western 58½ (nominal).

Federal Works Plans Curtailed

TORONTO (CP)—Works Minister Winters said Monday that a shortage of materials because of the trans-Canada pipeline project and the St. Lawrence seaway, plus extensive plans by private industry for capital construction in 1956, has caused his department to curtail its estimates somewhat for next year.

He did not give details of the reductions in the estimates to the Toronto Board of Trade, but said that 300 public buildings were under way in Canada in 1955 and in spite of the cut, more will be started in 1956.

Officer Wanted To Know Why Woman Shrieked

BIRMINGHAMM England (CP)—A policeman heard screams as he passed the Theatre Royal here Monday night.

He dashed in through the stage door and was in the wings before a stagehand stopped him and told him the screams came from Constance Shacklock, who was playing Carmen.

In the first act, after she is old she will be arrested, Carmen screams—and that was what the policeman heard.

"Fortunately he got no farther than the wings, otherwise the scene would have been a bit too realistic," theatre manager C. F. Price said.

New Hospital Commission Will Be Set Up

TORONTO (CP)—A bill to set up a commission to "administer any system of hospital-care insurance" was introduced in the Ontario legislature Monday by Premier Frost.

The duties of the commission, as outlined in the bill would be to develop and ensure a balanced and integrated system of hospitals and related health facilities in Ontario.

The commission also would be responsible for the establishment of new and additional hospitals, distribution of capital grants for hospital construction, establishing institutes for the training of hospital and related personnel and to conduct surveys and research programs.

The premier said decision to establish the commission, to have three to seven members, is based on more than two years' study, including the question of a provincial hospitalization care plan.

NOT A COMMITMENT

"While this bill is designed to permit the administration of any such hospitalinsurance plan, it must by no means be taken as a commitment that there will be one such a plan."

He said he will give details of the province's plans when the bill receives second reading Wednesday.

"Any insurance plan must be built upon hospital services and administration. This is the foundation. Any structure to be built will only be as strong as these foundations.

"This bill, whether or not there is hospital insurance, will contribute very greatly to the development and continuation of the development of a balanced and integrated system of hospitals."

Roads Minister First Driver to Complete Tests

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Allan Monday became the first Ontario driver to complete the new tests which are to be required of all applicants for new drivers' licences in the Toronto area. He passed.

But a highways department official confided the minister had a "dry-run" through the written, vision and sign-recognition tests last week to ensure their debut for newspaper, radio and television reporters would run smoothly.

The new tests, which on Wednesday will become compulsory for anyone applying for a licence for the first time, will apply only in the Toronto district.

Officials said they will be extended to other large centres in the province later. Before taking the test, Mr. Allan said the cost of re-testing all persons now holding Ontario driving licences would be prohibitive.

He said the tests would be confined to new applicants and to selected groups of drivers chosen because of their records, age, or some other reason.

To weed out licensed drivers who are not following rules of safety on the highways, a special section of the motor vehicles branch of the department of highways was set up to review the conviction and accident record of drivers.

Nassau Story

Bahamians' Favorite Drink 'Planter's Punch' Quite Potent

By ELMER BONTER

NASSAU, Bahamas. (Special,) —Bahamians take special pride in serving visitors a famous island drink named Planter's punch. It is a concoction with a rum base in a mixture of fruit juices and other ingredients. It is very potent.

When you walk down the ramp from the aircraft en route to the customs building you are greeted first by a native youth dressed in a white coat standing behind a cart-like bar. He pushes an inviting pink-colored refreshment in your hand. You appreciate the hospitality at the end of a long air journey. You sip the cool pleasing drink all the time your baggage is being checked and sorted. Already you have a warm feeling for Bahamians.

Oakes airfield is only a short distance from downtown Nassau where most of the hotels are situated. You find the cab fare reasonable and the service good.

Maybe by coincident I found myself stopping at the Olympia Hotel, Bay Street, Nassau, operated by a Canadian Peter McNab, whose homejown is Acton, Ontario. Later I learned that my very friendly host had a piece of good fortune two years ago winning second prize $56,000 in Irish sweepstake money. He was the manager of a night club on Fleuthera Island, 55 miles to the east at the time. He took advantage of this unexpected twist of fate, moved here to the capital and secured one of the finest small hotels on the island.

MET MANY CANADIANS

Naturally there are a number of Canadians stopping at the Olympia. I ran into one very interesting fellow from Ottawa who knew as much about Belleville as I do. He asked me to say hello to Magistrate T. Y. Wills the next time I saw him. "Tell him it was his old R.M.C. classmate D. McDonald enquiring," he said. It was Mr. McDonald who told me that he had met Jack Ireland and his wife of Belleville at the Prince George Hotel, "down on the waterfront" earlier in the day.

The first thing you notice in Nassau is the comfortable climate. The thermometer at the hotel read 70. Topcoats were off and the people on the streets were standing around in shirt sleeves. Quite a difference: I thought from the time I landed in Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, ten years earlier when the mercury hovered around 35 degrees below zero and the locals welcomed the new arrivals in furlined parkas with their breathing plainly visible in the frosty atmosphere.

Another thing that comes to your observation is the traffic travelling on the left hand side of the street. You wonder if the driver knows what he is doing. You are inclined to be tense for the first mile or two until you see the other drivers following the same rule. The driver tells you that accidents are few and far between although you still can't adjust yourself to these peculiar regulations.

MUST DRIVE CAREFULLY

Nassau authorities give speeders and careless drivers the full treatment. The local daily newspaper showed the Magistrate was stern in the case of native Alfred Best found guilty of negligent driving. The offender was fined £50 (about $150) or had the preference of spending six months in jail. His permit was cancelled. In addition the cad labelled Best "a potential murderer." Charges were laid after a cyclist hit by a car from behind was found injured by the roadside.

By the time I reached the hotel it was close to 8.00 p. m. Strains of calypso music carried across the night air in a setting of palm trees, walled patios and subdued colored lights. I was reminded of other exotic lands portrayed in south sea island movies or Sunday TV presentations like "Captain Gallant."

There comes a time in every man's life when hunger overcomes enthusiasm and at this point I had a terrific hankering for sea food. I was told there were many good places to eat uptown so shaved and in best attire I headed out in quest of food.

GRANDMOTHER BURNED

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Mrs. Lorna Kirby, 51, was severely burned Monday when she dashed from her burning home with her four-year-old granddaughter clutched in her arms. The boy was uninjured.

TO WITHDRAW

OAKVILLE (CP)—Oakville council Monday night unanimously approved withdrawing its application to annex 6,000 acres of Trafalgar township. The application had been before the Ontario municipal board since September, 1954, and was opposed by the township.

Senator Croll Makes Plea For Canadian Penal Reform

OTTAWA (CP)—An impassioned plea for Canadian penal reform and a new attitude toward criminals has been made by an outspoken Liberal senator from Ontario.

Senator David Croll, one-time Ontario minister of public welfare, urged Monday night in the upper house that Canada's "antiquated" penal system be investigated by a royal commission or a Senate committee.

The many Canadians still thought that a person who has committed a crime has forfeited all his rights to be considered and treated as a human being.

The former Liberal member of the Commons for Toronto Spadina said it is time for Canadians to be shocked into recognizing that Canadian thinking on penology is at least 50 years behind the times.

VICTORIAN LOCKUP

"By and large, we Canada are still back in the days of the Victorian lockup. Our penal thinking is as antiquated as our jail houses and it is high time that both of them came in for some drastic overhauling."

In his demand for penal reform, particularly in the field of probation, Senator Croll said "the only remedy some people can conceive of for crime is more jails, more and more punishment."

The senator also called the Bastille complex-has not died."

Senator Croll said effective program of probation and rehabilitation is the only way for society to help Canada's "forgotten" men and women. Punishment without cure was worthless.

PROBATION NEEDED

Senator Croll said probation is almost three times as successful in the rehabilitation of convicts as prison. Yet Canada, which sent 100,000 persons to prison in 1955, had only 101 probation officers.

Ontario had 85, British Columbia 12, Alberta two, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia one each. There were no probation officers in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island or Quebec.

"By British and American standards we should have at least 700," said Senator Croll.

A comparison of British and Canadian crime statistics should smock the conscience of Canadians "to the core."

England and Wales with a population of 43,000,000 convicted 688,- 630 persons in 1955, sent 32,000 to prison and placed 40,000 on probation. However, Canada with a population of 15,000,000 convicted 1,- 215,376, imprisoned 90,000 and placed only 3,000 on probation.

"These are frightening figures."

The population of Britain is three times that of Canada's but "we sent them times as many people to jail. Ontario alone is sending more to jail than all of England and Wales."

Senator Croll cited the "famous" Don jail in Toronto as one reason for increased crime in Canada.

"In the Don jail are kept the prisoners up like cordwood. Most of our provincial jails also are a disgrace to the nation. To enter them is punishment in itself."

He protested strongly against sending youths under 21 to federal penitentiaries. This only increases crime because it was inevitable that youthful prisoners would come in contact with hardened offenders.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS

Senator Croll also urged: 2

1. That the federal government bear most of the cost of improvements to the penal system.]

2. Appointment of a federal parole board to deal with the complicated problems of the remission of penitentiary sentences.

3. As automatic parole system after one-third of each prisoner's sentence would be considered whether or not he applied.

4. Home leave for well-behaved prisoners in the interest of marital relations, family life and discipline.

5. Rehabilitation leave for deserving prisoners to enable them to make arrangements for their return to society.

"We have to do more than simply open the prison door and turn them loose," he said. "We may be punishing, but we are doing little in cure. We are still sending out into the world men filled with bitterness, resentment and hatred of society."

MORE CANADIANS ARE SAVING

Frequently we read about authorities "viewing with concern" the rising total of consumer credit, in other words the increasing debts of individuals.

It is pleasant, therefore, to learn that although Canadians are increasing their debts they are also increasing their savings.

The Bank of Nova Scotia, in its monthly review, states that of the ten million bank deposit accounts in Canada, more than eight and a half million are personal savings accounts. The "fifth man" is saving, on the whole, more prosperous brothers. Of the personal savings accounts considerably more than half are accounts of less than $100. The bank notes that the number of accounts is more than twice as large as before the war. They have increased much faster than the population and are now the equivalent of about 66 accounts for every 100 of population, as compared with 43 per 100 in 1939.

The proportion of bank accounts is likely to increase in future years, if we can base a forecast on data published in the weekly newspaper supplement for advertising and sales executives. "Marketing," says that 72 per cent of high school students save money regularly and 67.7 per cent own a bank book in type.

This will be surprising, but welcome, news to many members of the older generation who, like older people since the beginning of time, have sometimes been heard to complain that the younger generation has no sense of responsibility and fails to take life seriously.

When it comes to saving habits, sex does not seem to make much difference, "Marketing" reports that in the 12-15 age group more girls (76.9 per cent) than boys (70.6 per cent) put something away for a rainy day—or, perhaps more usually, for a celebration. In the 16-19 age group, however, the score is practically even, with regular saving by 70.6 per cent of the girls and 69.7 per cent of the boys. Overall, a few more girls than boys save regularly, but boys run a bank to a greater extent. It is easy to understand why—a girl's stocking is a much more attractive repository than a boy's sock.

CANADA'S MOST-WANTED MEN

If The Canadian Press story out of Ottawa, listing Canada's most-wanted men, crosses our southern border, it may create a few sophisticated chuckles.

"Bush," it will say, may exclude from a character out of Cicero—out of the city of Illinois, that is, not out of the writings of the long-deceased Roman senator.

"Bush" will say and chuckle.

"Bents all, eh!", he will agree, oiling his automatic or polishing his brass knuckles. "Number Two on the list a jolk who just tried to murder a copper. We ought to drift south and help him get big time."

"Yeah, but a guy couldn't even have a little innercent amoosement in his spare-time without having those bloomer-clad Federals, those bluenoses, breaking out the bloodhounds. Looka here, a $16,000 heist and it wins honorable mention. Jeez what alfalfa country that must be."

Seriously, though, when a mere murderer, a one-timer sinner apparently, can be a nation's most- wanted criminal, when a man who attempts to kill an RCMP constable can rank second, when a $16,794 armed robbery can put a man on the list and when one of the previous holders of the dubious honor of mention is a man suspected of a $15,000 fraud then there is some cause for alarm. The nation has good reason to feel proud. The reason for pride could be either the high moral character of its citizens, or the efficiency of its police forces. Probably both factors are involved in this record.

Or, disturbing thought, is the RCMP listing the wrong type of men, or unable to list the names of those responsible for the worst crimes? How about the man who was responsible for the death of Susan Cadieux of London, Ont.? Or Marion McDowell's kidnappers? Or the Toronto strangler—is he free or is he, as reported, in a mental hospital as the result of another crime?

CURIOSITY IN THE BATH HOUSE

One of man's greatest and most human qualities is his perpetual curiosity.

Curiosity on the part of Pasteur led to the discovery of the germ's existence. Curiosity on the part of the Wright Brothers made man really could fly. Curiosity on the part of Columbus led to the discovery of North America.

Now curiosity on the part of the city of Toronto has revealed that 870 people use the city's public baths in an average week. And that isn't all. Of a census taken of 377 persons using the city bath house some 100 were employed in the construction workers, 28 were pensioners and 20 truck drivers.

These revelations are a tribute to the painstaking ends which man will reach to satisfy his curiosity. Future the census taker, pencil poised over pad in the soggy atmosphere of the bath house, filled with the scents of carbolic, with steam from the showers, with the grunts of the patient soaping their shins, patiently gathering vital statistics for the record from all and sundry.

Bravo Toronto, and many, many thanks. Is it too much to hope that such fine endeavors will not end here and that similar surveys will be carried to other city institutions and organizations?

Could anything be more in the way of drawing aside the curtains surrounding say, the habits of sewer-workers during lunch breaks or the domestic lives of the bear pit cleaners at Riverdale Zoo? Personally, we have often wondered how many mounted policemen chew bethel nuts.

THE COMMON LOT

Fame pays no heed to aches and pains;
Wealth buys for none the gift of skill.
However dressed, the man remains
The product of his mind and will.

His journey, cradle to the grave,
Through joy and grief will swiftly run;
The call to day for food he'll crave,
And sleep at night, his labors done.

And in the child that bears his name
His hopes throughout the years will lie
For common and enduring fame.

This is the common lot of man:
To work, to dream, to hope and pray;
With life to do the best he can
And leave the future, some what may.

Wedding Anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gerow celebrated the 45th anniversary of their wedding on February 19 at their home at Massassaga and the many guests assembled to join in the happy event. A sumptuous supper was served following which a social time was passed. Guests were present from Belleville, Frankford, Melrose, Consecon, Mountain View, Rednersville and from the surrounding vicinity, and from them Mr. and Mrs. Gerow received many congratulations and expressions of good wishes. Among the many gifts received was a beautiful banquet lamp from Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Walker of Massassaga. The observance of the anniversary was much enjoyable.

Mrs. George Brooker, who resides with her son-in-law, Mr. James Woodley, Murney Street, will celebrate tomorrow the 87th anniversary of her birth. The aged lady is enjoying good health and many friends will be pleased to extend congratulations and offer good wishes.

Hydro Birth Cost Only $28

(By W. E. Elliot in the Toronto Telegram

Power-hungry municipalities of Western Ontario chipped in 28 each toward expenses of the meeting 50 years ago that led to creation of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario. That produced a pot of $28. Hydro, which now serves about 1,500,000 people, is celebrating, not about returning that $28, to representatives of those municipalities at a meeting in Kitchener in May. With assets exceeding $1,700,000,000, it feels able to do this.

Hydro is currently celebrating its golden jubilee — 50 years of service to Ontario. The idea for creating the Commission — only 22 sections in the Act — was given by Royal assent on May 14, 1906, by Sir W. Mortimer Clark, Lieutenant-Governor. First chairman was Hon. Adam Beck, member for London.

Who else was there? Who were the other commissioners? They were J. G. Hendrie and Cecil B. Smith.

The secretary-treasurer appointed school text books about the origin of the Hydro-Electric power which must to be desired. Building the Hydro Station, approved for use in Ontario, relates as follows: "In 1895 the first Canadian hydro-electric power was developed at Niagara Falls . . . in 1906 the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario was established with Adam (later Sir Adam) Beck as its chief. Within a few years it became one of the world's greatest electrical companies."

Sir Adam was chairman until his death in 1925, and in the public mind he remains the man who is associated with Hydro. He was not to founder. C. S. Sisley, assistant at St. Jacob's, Waterloo County, picked up the idea of transmitting Hydro power while on a business visit in Toronto. It would be a service who would like to see Toronto businessmen had the vision and did nothing about it. They remain nameless. But Mr. Sisley, grandfather of the A.M. Sulder who was chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, went before the Toronto Electric Board of Trade that manufacturers were investigating Niagara Power for their plants. The Toronto committee from Berlin, Waterloo, Guelph and Galt. The suggestion fell flat on its face.

Here entered Daniel B. Detweiler. He strode around the municipal hydro circuit on his bicycle talking to anyone who would listen. Successfully he had C. H. Mitchell, notes engineer, address a meeting. Professionals must have been good, for two dozen delegates returned home and petitioned the Ross Government for the right to generate Falls power and transmit it to Toronto and other cities. The first Hydro meeting, known as the Berlin conference, was held in Kitchener in 1903, and was addressed by Mr. Sulder, Dr. Detweiler and Mr. Frank Spence of Toronto. Beck who had attended the first meeting "with an open mind," presumably was among 90 at the second. Attendance was through the roof among 90 at the second. An investigating commission was set up and W. B. Snider as chairman. When the Hydro Commission was created, Beck became chairman.

The "original 14" municipalities that pledged their credit to get the ball rolling were Berlin, Guelph, Stratford, St. Mary's Berlin, Galt, Preston, Hespeler, London, Woodstock, and New Hamburg. Three years ago this month, at Kitchener, the Hydro municipalities celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Berlin conference. The hall was built to the memory of D. B. Detweiler and E. W. B. Snider, Mayor Webster of Kitchener said the former "was indeed the founder of Hydro." Two men. Determining a vision, a proponent, and a son of Mr. Snider sent from Florida a message regretting that year's annual dinner and went my father gave in promoting the idea.

There may be an idea on the part of young people that Hydro has always related Niagara power. It was in fact brought to Toronto by the Dominion Power and Transmission Company, and the Toronto Electric Light up quite a battle against the municipal undertaking, as did private companies in various other Ontario cities. Hydro was created to deliver more current for less money. Premier Whitney was asked to turn on the power at Berlin (Kitchener). He placed Beck's hand upon the button and made the honor his.

What! You Eat No Banana?

According to Sir Robert McCarrison, M.D., D. Sc., etc., famous British authority on nutrition, one of the earliest pathological evidences of nutritional deficiency, as observed in animals, is suspension of the timing of the digestive tract. Such a state of the gastro-intestinal success may well explain the gastro-intestinal catarrh (I, Brady, apologize for the term "catarrh," which doesn't mean anything) known as "nervous disease." (In England and in India, perhaps, but not in the United States, so far as I Brady, know.)

Last more laymen infer that we don't know much about it, we tend still other names for the disease from time to time. This is an old medieval modern look folks properly confused and have a switch on 'em whenever they threaten to catch up with us. Any mucous disease has been known at various times as gastro-intestinal catarrh, chronic intestinal indigestion, celiac disease, colitis, sprue (which Greeks for word meaning lack of nutrition), marasmus (still more Greek for sease are caused by the doctor or his treatment!

As for pediatrics textbooks published since medicine became a business, they're a dime a dozen and scarcely worth shelf room, except in the consulting-room of the trick specialist or klinik racketeer where they impress the customers.

Mind, now, Patsy, I do not believe or say that marasmus (or whatever you prefer to call it) is invariably due to inadequate diet prescribed or approved by a doctor. I am aware that other restrictions or customs or practices beyond the doctor's control lead to malnutrition—but enough of that now, for I'd rather be a live coward than a dead hero.

In the light of our newer knowledge or nutrition it appears that marasmus or infantile atrophy occurred most frequently at the end of the eighteenth century when so-called formula feeding was in vogue; and now that young infants get straight milk plus this and that solid food—albeit, vegetable soup and cereal—only an occasional case seems to light, except it does we learn, all too often, that the wherewithall to provide decent living conditions for the family is being squandered on booze, gambling, and associated vices.

The introduction of the banana diet by Dr. Sidney V. Haas in the 1920's is a matter of recent history. The happy results obtained from feeding these marasmic infants thoroughly ripe banana brought about a revolution in infant feeding. Dr. Haas used the green banana as a staple of everyday diet.

FREEDOM AND DEPENDENCE

"Christ came to make us free but not to make us "independent."

This statement appeared some time ago on the bulletin board of a church. There may have been those, as they passed by, shrugged their shoulders, raised their eyebrows, and remarked. "That's reaction for you. That church must indeed be behind the times."

But is such a judgment correct? What about the statement—God is free and He is free to be independent. For certainly it must be apparent to everyone who looks into his own heart and also observes the behavior of others that sin is nothing more or less than an attempt to get rid of god-

sion, perhaps scandulous in its name. We may fall into some transgression; this is acute sin. But chronic sin is the attempt to play God. God out of life—an attempt which is constantly and tragically succeeded often.

Probably the sign on the church should better be phrased "Come" same to make us free by making us independent of dependence on others but dependent upon Him. It is when we walk within the circle of His protection that we find we have that peaceful sense of security out of which come contentment springs.

Independence can be greatly overestimated; it is out of dependence that peace comes.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ORDER

Order has been called the greatest law in the Universe. It is the law that says that when we note how orderly are the movements of the heavenly bodies, day and night, and the coming and going of the seasons. There is order throughout all Nature.

Law and order in a city, or nation, are essential to their safety and wellbeing. And orderly management of lives have been saved since the stupidity of the early settlers in Iowa, cities and upon the great modern improved highways, in Canada. Order, there is law.

The great enemy to order is waste and indifference. The man or employee who takes pride in his job, feels responsibility and enjoys performing to all its demands, may some day own that business—as did often happened. The careless employee soon will "hardly look for change".

Ancient City To Be Restored

(UNESCO Features)

The ancient city of Tikal, in Northern Guatemala, probably the oldest site of Mayan Indian civilization, is to be explored and partly restored by archeologists from the University of Pennsylvania Museum.

Tikal, a metropolis of temples, levels and palaces, with long, paved streets and reservoirs, was an important centre of Mayan culture for more than 1,000 years before the 10th century AD. It was rediscovered about 100 years ago, partially concealed by the growth of tropical forests. Until recently, only a few parts of the ruins were laid back, but the building of an airstrip has now brought Tikal within an hour's flight of Guatemala City.

Five great temples and many smaller ones, rising from massive pyramidal platforms and capped by exotic carvings, dominate the city's ceremonial centre. An elaborate network of causeways, including modern airfield roads, to the outlying "suburbs". One of the temples is as tall as a 20

For several years now, The "Reminiscences", have sold them to a second hand dealer, or even shipped them off to some veterinary hospital, presumably for charity.

And I have the feeling that ten, twenty years from now, when I, a very old man, am tottering around the streets of Toronto, or San Francisco, or London, England, I shall find my own beloved book, with my name in it. And I will be so overcome, I will faint.

Speaking of dropping dead, I must say that I have just been sorting through my book shelves to see what books I was missing, in addition to the above-mentioned treasures. And I am a little shocked to discover that the total of fourteen volumes are unaccountably missing. In addition, I find I have eleven books in my collection that are unaccountably duplicated.

I will not give their titles; but I say of my friends as short a book, they might write me to see if I have it.

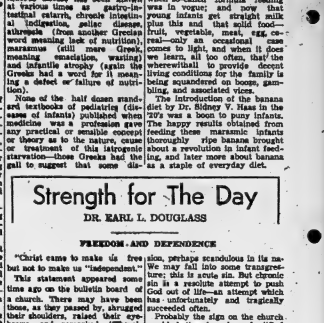
(Edmonton Journal)

Statistics collected by the United Nations yield the surprising information that of the 10 provinces Saskatchewan together form the healthiest province in the world. In these two provinces the general death rate (per 1,000) is lower and the expectation of life at birth (68 for boys and 74 for girls) is higher than in any other part of the globe excepting only the Hawaiian islands.

Too Many Cranks

(Brandon Sun)



New political machines seem to have too many cranks.

There was published a magazine many years ago called "System", created by a 28-year-old man by the name of Shaw. I was the first advertising manager of that magazine, and for the next several many years ago a millionaire! I, throughout all these years, learned many things I learned under the guidance of this man and his creative, his genius. He was the father of thousands of offices. Henry Ford might have been inspired and rowed much from the idea of system and order.

People who respect order in their daily lives do little, or no worrying, and are not troubled by the fact that life is a smoothness to life itself. Abolish causes from the heart!

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Ourser Armstrong

THE FIRST BOX OF OINTMENT

Jesus was invited to dinner in the home of a Pharisee named Simon.

In those days a Pharisee was a man who thought that God approved of him much more than of anyone else. The word Pharisee in the language they spoke then meant "someone who is separated from everyone else." The Pharisees had made a list of hundreds of little rules which they said had to be obeyed to please God, but inside themselves they had no love for God or for anyone but themselves. They were almost all very rich, and powerful, and they were also very greedy, and very proud.

Now Jesus of course did not approve of people like the Pharisees. Many of the people who lived in those times were afraid of the Pharisees, but Jesus had no fear of any man, no matter how rich or powerful. And Jesus, speaking to the crowds, told them exactly what he thought of the Pharisees.

He called them hypocrites, men who pretended to be very good and holy, and secretly are full of evil and wicked acts. He said:

"Woe to you scribes, and Pharisees, hypocrites! Because you are like white sepulchre tombs, which in the outside seem to be beautiful, but inside are full of dead men's bones, and of all filthiness!"

Naturally, the Pharisees did not like it when Jesus said such things about them.

At first they decided to pay no attention to Him. And then, when He went on talking to the crowds how wicked they were, the Pharisees decided the thing to do was to laugh it off as a joke.

"After all," they said, "who is going to believe what a crazy Carpenter from Nazareth has to say about us? We are too rich and too important to care what this Jesus says!"

MORE THAN CARPENTER

But finally they realized that even if they thought Jesus was just a crazy carpenter, the good people who heard Him knew He was much more than a carpenter, and believed what He said. Finally the Pharisees in the town of Capernaum talked it over, and decided they had better find out more about Jesus.

One of them, a rich man named Simon, said: "I will invite Him to dinner and talk to Him myself, and see what kind of fellow He is. Maybe if He meets me, and sees what a wonderful man I am, He will stop saying these things about us. Maybe if I offer Him some money He will stop, too. It could be only because He is poor and jealous of us that He says such terrible things!"

Which only showed how little Simon understood about Jesus!

Simon sent his servant to invite Jesus to have dinner with him. But when the twelve apostles heard about the invitation, they tried to stop Him from going.

"Simon is a wicked man. He did not really earn the money that he has made him rich," said Peter, who had lived in Capernaum all his life and knew a great deal about this Simon. "He cheats and steals to get his money. He sells sugar, and mixes sand with it. He sells horses that look strong and well, and are really sick and old. He is no one for You to eat with!"

"Simon is proud and cruel. He goes and prays in public where everyone will see him and think he is holy, but in secret he laughs at the very idea of God. He makes a big fuss about giving a few coins to the poor, but truth is a stranger to his lips," said Andrew, Peter's brother.

But Jesus only smiled. He who knows every secret of each person who has ever lived knew exactly why Simon invited Him, and He knew, too, just what sort of person Simon was. And still, He went to dinner.

GOOD MANNERS

Now in those days there were certain things which were did when guests came to their house, things which sound strange to us, perhaps, but were part of good manners and courtesy. When a guest came, for example, the host always offered a basin of water, and a towel, to wash the dust of the roads from his feet. The host always kissed the guest to show him he was welcome.

When Jesus came to Simon's house, Simon offered Him no water for His feet, and gave Him no kiss. And Simon had invited no other guests, which in the custom of the region was an insult. He did not serve his best meats, nor his strong oriental brandy. Clearly the rich Simon did not think any carpenter from Nazareth deserved the same courtesy he would show his own friends.

Jesus pretended not to notice. He sat down at the table with a cheerful smile. The two ate of boiled rice, raisins, spice, and lamb meat, and talked of the small things of which any two men might talk—of the weather, and the news of the war in the west, and of the crops, and the taxes.

Suddenly Simon leaned forward, glaring over the shoulder of Jesus. Behind Him stood a woman with long red hair, wearing a scarlet robe of perfumed silk. In her hands she was holding an alabaster box.

Simon knew who she was. All of Capernaum knew her, for she was a wicked and famous woman, and no decent person would have anything to do with her.

The red-haired woman did not even look at Simon. She knew that Pharisee would send her out of his house. With tears in her eyes she looked only at Jesus.

She knelt beside Him, and washed His feet with her own hands, and her tears fell like rain. She wiped the calloused, journey-hardened soles with her long red hair, and tenderly kissed the instep. Then she rubbed those feet with ointment from her box of alabaster.

SET THINKING

The Pharisee sat back thinking to himself:

"There, you see! This Man, if He were really holy, and a prophet or a messenger of God. He would surely know who this woman is, and have shrieked at her, and He would tell her to go away. Wait till I tell the world about this!"

Then Jesus said softly:

"Simon, I have something to say to you."

"Say it."

"A people owed one man some money. One owed him five hundred pence and the other fifty.

"Yes?"

"Neither one could pay what they owed, and so he forgave them both."

"Yes?"

"Which of the two loves him more?"

"I suppose," said Simon, "the one to whom he forgave the most."

"You are right. Do you see this woman? I entered your house; You gave Me no water for My feet, but she has washed My feet with her tears, and with her hair has wiped them. You gave Me no kiss, but since she came in she has not stopped kissing My feet.

"Many sins are forgiven her," said Jesus, "because she has loved much."

SINS ARE FORGIVEN

And for the first time Jesus spoke to the red-haired Mary Magdalene and said: "Your sins are forgiven you."

Who are You to forgive sins?" snarled Simon, jumping to his feet.

But Jesus was paying no attention to His host. He helped the red-haired woman to her feet and gently closed the lid of her box of alabaster. Expensive that box was, and the ointment was even more expensive. All her savings must have gone to buy it.

And He said to her:

"Your faith has made you safe. Go in peace."

And immediately afterward he, too, left the rich man's house.

"The Man is crazy," said Simon to himself. "And dangerous."

He did not understand the lesson Jesus had tried to teach him. He did not understand that because Jesus loves us He can forgive even the worst of us, if we will only love Him. The red-haired woman was wonderful, exciting, and different. We were served with culture in such a unique way that was uncouth as we were, lapped it up in great gulps. A whole

Barbara Annis, Grade 13 student at BCI & VS, contends that not enough Canadian history is taught in Canadian high schools as Education Week discussions focus attention on all phases of the education muddle. The map is of Canada but the text is "The American Adventure."

Education Week

Student Wants More History With Truly Canadian Flavor

(Editor's Note: Miss Barbara Annis is a Grade 13 student at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. She delivered the following address during the school's recent public speaking contest.)

By BARBARA ANNIS

I have long felt that one of the major defects of Ontario's educational system has been the lack of nationalism in the course of studies. I do not advocate extreme nationalism because this would be equally as bad as, if not worse than, extreme non nationalism. However, we cannot overlook the fact that Ontario needs a nationalistic shot in its educational arm.

The high school history course is my pet peeve, for herein lies the most glaring example of lack of nationalism. Consider the following recollections of my high school history course.

The grade nine course was a combination of a highly specialized account of the geography of the Western hemisphere and its settlement.

The following year, in grade 10, the course was wonderful, exciting, and different. We were served with culture in such a unique way that was uncouth as we were, lapped it up in great gulps. A whole new world was opened to us—the world of Mozart, Verdi, Michaelangelo, and de Vinci. We saw Rome, Paris, Venice — Europe at its best — and we loved it.

In grade 11 the diet was similar and equally palatable, but was called, this time, "historical culture". We studied the ancient Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans, and discovered the origin of our present-day political, philosophical, scientific, and artistic theories.

These courses in grades 10 and 11 combined to give us an extensive cultural background so necessary to an all-round education, and I feel these two years should be left unchanged.

REMOTE TOPICS

Grade 12 is the final year of compulsory history, yet the course continues to deal with such remote topics as the French Revolution, the Industrial Revolution and its effects on Britain, and the changes in American foreign policy from 1822 with Monroe, to 1955 with Eisenhower.

Midway through the year "The Canadian Scene" is summed up in a few short paragraphs covering the period from 1830 to 1930. A hundred years. A hundred words!

Many students leave school after grade 12 and in a few short years, as citizens of this country, are called upon to vote. How can people who know nothing of the Canadian political system or party policies be expected to cast intelligent votes? Hence their opinions are patterned on those of an uncle, a grandfather, a great-aunt, or Time magazine.

Thus, at a point where we should know the most and the most about our own country, we are given a last shifty and come up with a sketchy picture of the world from 1760 to the present.

For most students, grade 13 is the last hope of learning any more history. But what happens? We are confronted with a course, two-thirds of which is pure, unadulterated, detailed, American history. The final third concerns itself with 20th century problems and the post-war world. Sandwiched somewhere in between is a section of highly concentrated Canadian history, crammed with so many details that it has difficulty in writing a coherent note.

UNKNOWN P. M.

Let me point out some effects of this course. Were I to ask any grade 13 student to name Canada's third prime minister, he could not do it.

Were I to ask the same student to name the third president of the United States, he would quite matter-of-factly, "Thomas Jefferson—first term 1800—second term 1804." Is this reasonable?!

We are all familiar with the famous opening beginning, "Four-score and seven years ago . . ." We know who said it, why he said it, and where he said it.

But how many of us have ever heard these bold words, "I cannot like that faster than hell can frizzle a feather"? This was the characteristic reply of a great Canadian statesman to his opponents in Parliament whenever they confronted him with a seemingly insoluble problem. Who was this man? This illustrious figure was our first and third prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald.

What man, woman, or child has not heard of John Brown—the John Brown whose "body lies mouldering in the grave"? People may not know exactly what he did, but because he is immortalized in song, he is placed in the same league as "Daniel Boone, the Daddy of Them All", and "Davy Crockett, King of the Wild Frontier."

But what of George Brown? Somehow they neglected to teach us about George Brown who, for purely patriotic reasons, ruined his own brilliant political career in order to make possible Confederation in Canada. By his stepping down as leader of the opposition party at the time of Confederation a coalition government was formed and solid political foundations established.

PRESIDENTS ASSASSINATED

Any grade 13 student knows that so far, two American statesmen have been assassinated—Abraham Lincoln and McKinley. We look upon Lincoln's death as a tragedy, for had he lived, the South's needless misery and degradation of the post-Civil War years might have been avoided.

We fail to realize that we Canadians have suffered as great a racial disaster only by the skin of our teeth because of the assassination, a redoubtable Canadian, Thomas d'Arcy McGee, barely succeeded in closing the rift between the Catholics of Lower Canada and the Protestants of Upper Canada thereby giving us Confederation, before he was killed by a Fenian assassin.

And so it is we know so many details of American history, yet so few of the major events of our own past. Why should it be thus?

Canada is a growing nation. She has one of the greatest potentials of any nation on earth, a sound political and economical system, and a code of criminal justice greatly superior to that of the United States. She is unique in this hemisphere in that she fulfilled a dream of nation status not by bloody revolution, but by relatively peaceful, evolutionary methods, and mature reasoning.

GREAT PAST

With such a great past and so unquestionably bright a future, should not we, the citizens of tomorrow, know something of past mistakes in order to avoid them in the future?

How best can be done? Perhaps the grade nine course could deal strictly with Canadian history but avoid arid and confusing detail. Then could follow a two-year lapse during which time the cultural aspects of world history would be dealt with by the current courses of grades 10 and 11.

Canadian history could be covered extensively and in detail in grade 12, and this, in turn, would avoid the headache presented by the grade 13 study of concentrated Canadian history. Surely with two-year lapse break in the all-Canadian course the possibility of our becoming extreme nationalists would be avoided. At the same time, our knowledge of our own past would be greatly increased by two years of purely Canadian history. . .

Perhaps the answer lies in this "staggering" of the courses. However, the decision is not mine. I can but forewarn—if this pro-American, non-nationalistic trend runs unchecked in our high schools, together with our being exposed, to American television, radio, and movies—the results may be disastrous.

In a few generations, perhaps our grandchildren, yours and mine, will be singing not "O Canada" but the "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Weddings

POUNDING—MacDONALD

Tall standards of white chrysanthemums adorned chancel rail and white mums the altar in St. John's Anglican Church, Point Anne, on Saturday, February 11, at 3.00 p.m. for a lovely wedding when the Reverend L. Arthur Page, rector of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, Belleville, united in marriage Doris Catherine MacDonald, of Point Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew MacDonald, to ...ward E. Pounding, of Jersey ... New Jersey, son of Mr. and ... R. Pounding.

Mr. A. Evans, organist of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Peter van Everdingen, who sang before the ceremony, "O Perfect Love," and during the signing of the register, "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Andrew MacDonald, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white Alencon lace fashioned with fitted bodice trimmed with tulle illusion and iridescent shell sequins and having a portrait neckline and short sleeves. The flowing skirt was in waltz-length. Her matching Juliet cap was beaded with mother of pearl and shell sequins, and her veil of tulle illusion was of shoulder length. She wore long, matching mitts and carried a Colonial bouquet of red garnet roses, mingled with white hyacinth bells, and flowing satin streamers.

Mrs. Jack Rosevear, of Ottawa, as matron of honor was attired in a waltz-length gown of cameo brown Chantilly lace, with headdress of tulle studded with brilliants. She carried a Colonial bouquet of Johanna Hill roses, mingled with blue hyacinth bells. Three-quarter length mitts completed her ensemble.

The Misses Arline and Beverley MacDonald, nieces of the bride, were daffodil yellow organza lace, and Juliet caps trimmed with seed pearls and rhinestones. The former carried a Colonial bouquet of cream roses with blue hyacinth bells, and the latter a Colonial bouquet of yellow Sunbeam roses and blue hyacinth bells.

Mr. Robert E. Founding, of New York City, brother of the bridegroom, attended as groomsman, while Messrs. Vincent and Harold MacDonald, brothers of the bride, both of Belleville, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the New Queen's Hotel, Belleville, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who was attired in Copenhagen blue crepe with matching lace jacket, navy blue accessories, and corsage of pink Delight roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy blue with pink accessories and corsage of pink Delight roses.

The bride's table was lovely with its white damask centred by a three-tier wedding cake, and bridal bouquets.

For the wedding trip to Florida, the bride chose powder blue wool jersey, with navy accessories, and fur shortie jacket, with corsage of pink Delight roses and white hyacinth bells. Mr. and Mrs. Pounding will reside in Bayonne, New Jersey.

Guests were present from New York City, New Jersey, Hamilton, Toronto, Belleville and Point Anne.

Prior to her marriage, the bride, was feted by miscellaneous showers, given by Mrs. Harry McCreary of Belleville, and Mrs. Charles Scott of Point Anne, and by a presentation by the girls of the staff of Milady Shop, of a copper trimmed carafe.

Community Concert Association Opens '56-57 Membership Drive

At the annual kick-off dinner held last night at St. Thomas' Parish House, Mayor Jane Forester, on behalf of the citizens, welcomed the Community Concert Association on behalf of the city, for its contribution to the cultural life of Belleville. In "seeing off" on this week's membership drive, she wished the seventy-six workers every success.

Following the delicious dinner prepared by the Women's Guild of the church, Mr. Clifford Carruthers, association president, expressed appreciation to Miss Helen Sulman for her most capable arrangements and attractive table decorations.

Mr. Templer remarked, in his welcoming speech, that not until he became president had he fully realized how much credit belonged to the executive and workers for their untiring efforts to maintain an efficient organization. He was encouraging in his hopes for a successful campaign. He paid tribute to the splendid work of Mrs. Gilbert Scott who looks after the comfort of the artists while they are in the city.

Mrs. Victor Barkley in charge of publicity, was called upon to explain a poster contest sponsored by the Belleville Community Concerts, which was open to the four high schools. Trying in with Education Week, Les Jonkers and Gary Chambers, two students from the Quinte Secondary school, winners of the contest, were present. Their awards of concert memberships were presented to them by Miss Camellia Campbell, Community Concert representative from New York City. Raymond Taylor, of Albert College, received honorable mention. The judges were Mrs. Margaret Robbins and Miss Mary Moult. These posters will be on display at David's Electric this week.

Judge J. C. Anderson had the pleasure of introducing the guest speaker, Miss Campbell.

TALKS OF ARTISTS

In her introductory remarks, Miss Campbell delighted her audience with an amusing account of an efficiency expert's report on the proper handling of symphony orchestras. Her talk dealt principally with the artists. She announced that the NBC TV Opera will be available next year to Community Concert cities where there is sufficient budget. Leonard DePaur, formerly connected with the famous Infantry Chorus, is now associated with the DePaur Opera Gala which will now tour with chorus orchestra and soloists. The star of this group is Lawrence Winters, who completely captivated his audience when he sang last last week.

Miss Campbell spoke glowingly of three outstanding Canadian artists who have taken their undisputed places in the musical firmament. Soprano Lois Marshall, who sang here last season, is reaching her zenith; her Town Hall recital was memorable. Pianist Glenn Gould's fame seems to be sky-rocketing since he received such a tremendous ovation at his Town Hall debut. Ray Dudley, who will play this week with the Toronto Symphony, is another pianist to watch with pride.

Mr. Rod Cameron thanked Miss Campbell for her most interesting talk and Mr. H. B. Moorman expressed to Mrs. Bray and her committee grateful appreciation for the most satisfying meal.

Membership kits were distributed by Mrs. Edgar Buchanan, campaign chairman, and the workers realized the success of the campaign rested on their shoulders.

The singing of "The Queen" with S. Alec Gordon at the piano brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

TABERNACLE WA

The regular monthly meeting of group No. 3 of Tabernacle WA was held recently at the home of Mrs. Ollie Outred. The Scripture was from Corinthians 13. Mrs. Shirley Smith told the story.

There were 16 members present, and nine visitors.

Treasurer reported cash on hand, $18.80.

Shirley Smith thanked the WA for flowers. Ollie Outred made a report on crokinole party and travelling apron.

Mrs. Marion Taylor invited the group to her home for next meeting.

Rummage sale this week at the Armouries was planned.

Mrs. Butler closed the meeting.

Mrs. Pearl Johnston took charge of the auction sale which was a tremendous success.

Refreshments were served by Jean Dixon, Mary Bailey, Pauline Delaney and Nora Graham.

SHANNONVILLE W.G.

The regular meeting of the Women's Guild of Trinity church, Shannonville, was held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. W. Wilson, with the president, Mrs. Fitzgerald, presiding.

Mrs. A. L. Page opened the meeting with prayer and also conducted the devotional period. The business period followed with gratifying reports given by the secretary and treasurer.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. R. Goodfellow.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HAVE YOU NO PRIDE, NO MORAL SENSE, NO INTELLIGENCE?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 21 years old and have had two children by a young man who is three months older than I am. This man and I have been going together for three years and have been engaged for two, but he still tells me that he isn't ready to marry.

Lately, he has been refusing to take me places, yet when he sees me out with any other boys he gets jealous. He comes to see me once a week, but he never calls me unless he has seen me out with someone else. I never say anything to him about any other girls, but he never even wants me to talk to a boy.

Shall I keep on going with him, and wait for him, or should I forget him? I really love him, and from what he says he loves me too. — C.L.C.

Dear C.L.C.:

Have you no pride whatever, no moral sense, no—well, let's come right out and say it—no intelligence at all?

Don't you think it's about time you began to make some kind of life for yourself and those criminally unfortunate children of yours instead of just sitting spinelessly around hoping that this miserable creature will some time make up his mind to marry you? If he hasn't done so in all this time, especially under these most deplorable circumstances, what makes you believe that he is ever going to decide he is "ready to marry?"

Personally, I feel it will be nothing short of a miracle if he ever sees his way clear to marry you, and to be quite frank, it would probably be nothing short of a disaster if he did. What sort of husband do you think he would make for you? I hate to imagine.

What I would advise you to do is to take those two children of yours and go just as far away from this depraved character as you can get; then put the past behind you and begin remaking your life which, as I should hardly have to tell you, is a sorry mess.

With the help of the social welfare organization in whatever city or town you might choose to go to, you could make arrangements to have your children cared for while you went to work to make a living for them and yourself. You could then begin to create a whole new pattern of living, with new friends, new interests and most important of all, a new philosophy. But there is no one my taking time to go into detail about this unless you decide you want to proceed with such a plan. If you do wish to break away from your present sordid way of life and start over again, let me know. I will then outline for you more specifically the steps I would propose for you to take.

In any event, I urgently advise you to go through with this program, for unless you do, you are never going to be happy, and your children will never have any real chance to become the kind of people they should be. Moreover, if you have the character, the courage and the will power to strike out on your own, there might be a faint possibility that if this man has the slightest real feeling for you, he may eventually come around to your point of view and become a good husband and father. But I do not believe for a minute that any such desire will come to him while you are willing just to let things ride along indefinitely.

INSIDE STORY

By VERA WINSTON

One chapter of the inside story that makes the shape is this all-in-one petticoat bra. Of nylon crepe, the torso bra is lightly boned, is elasticized in back and has eyelet-embroidered cups. Eyelet embroidery trims the bendeau. This one takes little or no ironing, but a going over with a low-heat iron does give a finished appearance to the skirt.

Evening at Home

BY TRACY ADRIAN

If you are planning a little informal entertaining with a few friends dropping in for a light supper and some TV viewing you'll probably be interested in this most attractive lounging costume.

The outfit is made of polished cotton and is crease-resistant. Opulent black is used for the well-cut tapering trousers while shining white was selected for the shirt which features three-quarter sleeves, a buttoned front panel and a tiny mandarin-type collar.

Notes on Health

(Dept. of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa)

Baby's finger and toenails grow very quickly and, although they are soft, the child may scratch himself unless the nails are kept short. Fingernails should be rounded but toenails should be cut straight across.

Measles, one of the most dangerous of the contagious diseases, often leaves serious after effects. During the course of the illness, complications affecting the ears may occur, or pneumonia may set in. A child who has been exposed to the disease may, if under three years, be rendered temporarily immune to measles by the use of serum. Any symptoms of measles should have medical attention immediately.

Swelling of the feet may be a symptom of heart or kidney trouble or it may be due to wearing ill-fitting shoes. Relief may often be obtained by soaking the feet in hot water and then giving them alternate plunges into hot then cold water. Rest by propping the feet higher than the head. If the swelling is persistent, a doctor should be consulted.

Daily exercises, to be effective should be performed every day. They should be chosen for their suitability to age, weight and general physical condition. Before starting on a program of strenuous exercises, a doctor should be consulted.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHCRAM

CORRECT SIGNATURE FOR APPEAL CHAIRMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For almost a year I have been doing voluntary work with an organization which helps women to earn a livelihood by selling articles they make. Now this organization has decided to send out letters to appeal for donations to help carry on our work. I have been asked to be Appeal Chairman, to compose the letters and type the letters, and to sign them. Please tell me exactly what form to use when I sign these letters. (I am married, and my married name would, of course be included.) — G.B.

A correct form for your signature to these letters:

Sincerely yours,
Grace Hill Blake
Mrs. David Blake
Appeal Chairman

(1) You hand-write your signature: Grace Hill Blake (or, if you wish, Grace H. Blake). You type your formal married name: Mrs. David Blake.

(2) The date and the address to which the contributions are to be sent would be at the top of the sheet.

SOCIALLY AWKWARD TO SAY "DON'T YOU REMEMBER ME?"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know some girls who always make such a point of saying "We have met before—don't you remember me?" or something like this, to a boy or girl (particularly a boy) to bring interest to them and whom they have casually met since.

Last evening several of us were discussing this question, and I maintained that saying this is completely unnecessary, sounds awkward and unsophisticated, and undoubtedly embarrasses the person who may have (probably is) forgotten the meeting. All the girls admitted that this is always an important and bothersome question, but they certainly didn't all agree that I was right. What's your idea, Mrs. Beeckman, about this "We've met before—don't you remember me?" — S.L.

I agree with you. This idea of recalling a previous meeting is usually, I think, quite pointless. If the person asked to recall the former meeting actually does not recall it, he or she will be embarrassed, or at least ill at ease, by being put in the awkward position of not having the social grace to remember the name or the meeting or the occasion of the meeting. I think the socially-smart thing to do is to accept the introduction with a pleasant "How do you do," make no mention of the previous meeting . . . and start again on the acquaintanceship with the grace of manner that this time the meeting will really be remembered!

BROTHER OR BROTHER - IN - LAW?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to have a formal wedding in the early summer. My father has passed away, and my question concerns who should give me in marriage. I have a brother and a brother-in-law. Which one is the proper one to give me in marriage? — B.H.

Customarily the bride - to - be would ask her brother to give her in marriage.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

BRIDAL BEAUTY

"Happy-is the bride" — and beautiful, too, when her complexion's radiantly lovely.

If you are going to be a bride in a few weeks, or even a few months, you will want to look your most beautiful best, of course. And one of the most important things upon which to concentrate in order to achieve that beautiful peri is your complexion. For, no matter how lovely your gown and how fine flattering your veil, your face won't look pretty unless your skin is smooth and glowing.

So if you've let yourself get a bit lax about really thorough complexion cleanliness, now's the time to do an about face. Decide right now to scrub that face well at least three times a day—morning, night, and once in between.

Start with a well-lathered complexion brush or washcloth and really give your skin a thorough going-over. Scrub with a circular motion from chin to forehead. On the way, remember to give special soapsuds attention to those areas where make-up, dirt, and oil tend to combine and cause trouble—around the chin, the lips, the nose, the hairline, and in the eyebrows. Be sure to include your neck and ears in the beauty wash-up, too.

After the sudsing session is over, rinse face, neck, and ears thoroughly with warm water, then finish with several brisk splashes of cold water. Cold water has a "bracing" effect on your complexion, leaves it soft, firm, and velvety.

Where make-up is concerned, you may want to make some changes for the big day since the cosmetic tones you generally wear might not be as flattering when worn with white. Hit yourself, therefore, to one of the beauty bars in your favorite department store or to one of the salons which specialize in make-up. There, expert's will show you how to apply foundation, powder, rouge, mascara and lipstick so as to play up your best features and play down those which are not quite perfect.

Learn which make-up shades you should wear with bridal white and, while you're about it, get some hints as to the right colors to wear with the frocks in your trousseau. Once you've learned all these tricks, practice them faithfully until the big day arrives — and when it does, you'll really be a beautiful bride.

Wedding Reception 1956

By Mary Moore

(3RD INSTALMENT)

Last week I gave you the second instalment of this Wedding Reception Series—on sandwiches. Today's offering is a continuation of that sandwich article for it was too long for one column. Please remember to clip this.

MEAT FILLINGS:

(1) Combine 3 1-3 cups ground or chopped cooked chicken, 1 cup diced celery, 2 tablespoons minced green pepper (optional), 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 6 tablespoons mayonnaise, 4 tablespoons butter, (2) 1 1-2 cups finely canned corned beef, 1-2 cup chopped sour or sweet pickles, 1-3 cup mayonnaise, butter is optional. (3) 3 cups minced cooked ham, 1-2 cup chopped mustard pickle, 1-3 cup mayonnaise, 4 tablespoon soft butter.

ROLLED SANDWICHES:

Remove the crusts from thinly sliced bread. Spread with soft butter and then with any of the following; tinted cream cheese, finely minced ham, finely chopped crisp bacon and pimento mixed with a small amount of mayonnaise. Roll each slice up and fasten with toothpicks. Wrap the rolls tightly in wax paper, placing the cut edge down on the paper. Then wrap all of them in a damp towel for storage until used. Chill for about two hours. Take out toothpicks before serving and decorate with sprigs of parsley or watercress tucked into the ends. Asparagus Rolls—Roll each spear of asparagus in a thin slice of bread that has been buttered. Fasten in place lightly and fasten as above with toothpicks.

PINWHEEL SANDWICHES:

Have loaf sliced lengthwise into 1-4 inch slices. Remove the crusts and spread with soft butter. Spread with any colorful spread and roll up the full length. Wrap in wax paper and chill for several hours or until the fillings are set and seal the edges of the bread. Just before serving cut into 1-4 inch slices.

CHEESE FROSTED SANDWICH LOAF:

First prepare your fillings as follows: Pink Filling—Take 4 slices of cooked bacon finely minced, 3 slices crisp bacon crumbled and 1 finely chopped pimento. Mix with mayonnaise to spreading consistency. Yellow Filling—Finely chop three hard cooked eggs, salt and pepper to taste and mayonnaise to spreading consistency. White Filling—one half a 7 ounce package cream cheese mixed with 1-2 grated cucumber, well-drained. Add mayonnaise, softened butter and spread with fillings in order given. Place each slice on top of the other to reform the whole loaf. Soften a three ounce package of cream cheese with sweet cream and spread over sides and top of loaf as you would ice a cake. Decorate with sliced stuffed olives, slivers green pickles, toasted almonds etc. Wrap in a damp cloth and chill for three or more hours. Serve cold garnished with lettuce, olives etc., in slices cut to your fancy.

Green Filling — 4 tablespoons sweet green relish, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons soft butter, 3 tablespoons very finely chopped green pepper, enough green food coloring to make a nice bright green color. Have your loaf of bread sliced lengthwise into five slices. Butter each slice with

CAPTURE RED REBEL

MANILA (AP) — Troops have captured a Communist Huk member accused of leading the 1949 ambush slaying of Mrs. Aurora Aragon Quezon, wife of the late Philippine president. Paulino Viernes, described as a Huk field commander, was seized in Nueva Ecija province near the lonely forest area where Mrs. Quezon and 11 persons with her on a tour were slain.

Ten Years Ago Churchill Used Term 'Iron Curtain' First Time

Editor's note: It was just 10 years ago that Sir Winston Churchill made an auspicious and history-making visit to the little mid-western United States town of Fulton, Mo. Here's how the people there remember the event and how they feel about developments that followed the first public announcement of the "Iron Curtain."

By WILLIAM L. RYAN.

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — A bolt of brilliant international lightning struck this easy-going town just 10 years ago. It left a permanent mark.

The story of the intervening 10 years in Fulton is the story of a United States gradually and even reluctantly realizing that the end of the cruelest war in history did not mean world peace.

So far as Fulton is concerned—and for that matter in the opinion of many other Americans—the cold war started in Fulton on March 5, 1946. It was here and then that Sir Winston Churchill sounded a warning that reverberated around a startled world. It was here he first publicly used the phrase "iron curtain" and made it a permanent part of the cold war lexicon. Perhaps the cold war started even during the hot war years, but it was the speech at Fulton which dramatized it for the world.

SCENE OF SPEECH

Fulton is like many another small midwestern town. The corners of Fifth and Court streets form a main square and hub of an unhurried way of life. Its straight streets and low buildings are much like the streets and buildings of other communities of its size. Its people might be a cross section of the self-confident and unpretentious citizens of middle America whose opinions do much to shape U.S. policy. But Fulton was brushed by destiny because this town is the home of Westminster College, whose dignified columns look down from a gentle slope on the community. And Westminster College was the scene of the iron curtain speech.

Ask Fulton today—has the Communist world been lifting that iron curtain? Not so you could notice it, say the people in Fulton and the students in Westminster. As one citizen put it, in an animated discussion at the Palace Hotel, Fulton will begin to believe it only "when the barbed wire starts coming down in Europe."

In his real estate office overlooking the square, one sage tilted himself back in his straightbacked chair, squinted out at the county courthouse and delivered the prevailing opinion:

"It appears to me, now I look back on the last 10 years, old Winston was just about as smart as a treeful of owls."

This is high praise for any man from Col. W. Ed Jameson, whose words are supported by the accumulated wisdom of 81 active years.

MESSAGE PLANNED

Fulton will never forget Britain's wartime prime minister. They remember Churchill particularly right now because Monday is the 10th anniversary of the speech. Town elders and officials at the college have been getting together to discuss such matters as an anniversary message to Churchill and the prospects for making him an honorary citizen of Fulton, which Mayor Ed Estes has under advisement.

Churchill hasn't forgotten Fulton and Westminster, either. They hear from him occasionally. Last September he sent a letter recalling his pleasure at being a guest within the college's "hospitable walls" and summing up briefly the dangers of which he spoke 10 years ago. Churchill recalled in that letter "there have been many changes in the world" in the intervening period. But, he added, "although in recent months some clouds seem to have rolled away, we still require that constancy of mind and persistency of purpose which I described when I spoke to you."

The 12,000 people of this 135-year-old town, and the 375 students of Westminster say "Amen" to that. After he enlightened them 10 years ago, they'll tell you in Fulton, anybody who couldn't see how right Sir Winston proved to be would be "dumber than a barrel of hair."

In the Churchill memorial room at the Westminster College library, the original manuscript, with Churchill's pencilled corrections, is on display, opened to the historic passage:

"From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic, an iron curtain has descended across the continent. Behind that line lie all the capitals of the ancient states of Central and Eastern Europe, Warsaw, Berlin, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest and Sofia; all these famous cities and the populations around them lie in what I might call the Soviet sphere, and all are subject in one form or another not only to Soviet influence, but to very high and in some cases increasing measure of control from Moscow. . . .

The world was only a few months removed from the Second World War at the time. Many Americans still regarded the Russians as allies. Some were joked by the Churchill speech. Today the people here say Churchill was ahead of his time.

"We were a bit shocked," said Thomas H. Van Sant, a bank official who lunched with Churchill that day as a member of the local reception committee. "Some of us even resented it a little. But what Churchill did was wake us up from a dream."

In Irvin Smith's barber shop on Court street, the Fulton speech is more and more a topic as the anniversary date nears. Proprietor Smith holds Churchill nothing short of a genius in the way he called the turn. In B. W. Dunavant's drugstore, they say just about the same thing.

Today's Westminster students were children when Churchill made the iron curtain speech. But they are intrigued and pleased by the fame it brought the college.

"I guess," said Richard Frey, a student from Park Ridge, Ill., "Churchill startled us by calling a spade a spade. He told us we were living with illusions, we were dreaming things would work themselves out some way. We weren't facing reality. Churchill made us face it."

A bronze plaque at the 105-year-old Presbyterian college keeps the students aware of their school's spectacular part in dating the cold war. It reads:

"In this building, 5 March, 1946, Winston Churchill, wartime prime minister of Great Britain, delivered his 'Iron Curtain' speech, having been introduced by Harry S. Truman, president of the United States of America."

Getting Tired Of Santee Case Says Brundage

NEW YORK (AP)—The attorney for Wes Santee threatened contempt of court action against Avery Brundage Monday for a statement attributed to the president of the International Olympic Committee.

Attorney Charles P. Grimes also said he plans to try to get Congress to investigate operations of the IOC and the Amateur Athletic Union with whom Santee is staging a running fight over a lifetime suspension.

"If Mr. Brundage was quoted correctly, then he was in clear contempt of court," said Grimes. "I warn him he had better stay out of the jurisdiction of New York courts or I'll try to have him cited."

Brundage was quoted at his Santa Barbara, Calif., home as saying that if he were an amateur runner he would not compete against Santee despite a New York Supreme Court injunction temporarily staying an AAU ban on the crack American miler.

Grimes contends top milers were forced out of the Columbian mile feature Saturday by Brundage's warning.

"Brundage is an executive committee member of the AAU," Grimes said. "He was definitely one of those covered by the temporary injunction which said nothing should be done to penalize Santee pending the March 9 hearing. . . .

"Court action can be taken against the AAU and the Olympic committee just as it can against any group."

At Santa Barbara, Calif., Brundage said Monday he does not see how the court can overrule the AAU in the Santee case.

Brundage said if Santee's bid for a permanent injunction against the AAU succeeds, the matter would come up before the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the AAU's parent body.

He minced no words when asked to comment on the case.

"I'm tired of the West Santee case," he said. "I could say a lot but I'm not going to. The AAU is a voluntary organization, and if you belong to it you have to follow the rules."

It was then he added that he didn't see how the court could rule against the AAU in a matter involving organization rules.

The Pittsburgh Pirates won only 60 games last season. They have several cosmetic in the line lineups.

Here's a case, however, where they protected a slim lead with

FRED HANEY

Manager Fred Haney calling the correct signals.

What would you have done in this tight situation?

(K) stands for a righthanded batter or pitcher and (L) for a lefthanded batter or pitcher.

The Pirates are leading the Giants 3-1 in the last of the ninth at New York with Ronnie Kline (R) pitching. Don Mueller and Monte Irvin open the inning with singles. Willie Mays follows with a double, scoring Mueller and putting Irvin on third. Dee Fondy (R) relieves Kline. Al Dark (R) is the next batter with Whitey Lockman (L) and Ray Katt (R) to follow. Would you:

a. Have Dark intentionally walked and play your infield back?

b. Have Dark intentionally walked and play your infield in?

c. Pitch to Dark?

Results: B-Dark was intentionally passed and the infield was brought in. Lockman grounded to Gene Freese, who threw to the plate forcing Irvin. A strikeout and easy fly ball followed and the Pirates won 3-2 (May 6).

Nashua May Battle Swaps In Florida

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — The door which seemed to be closed on a Swaps-Nashua duel in Florida opened a little today.

It isn't definite but Swaps may join Nashua in the $100,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap March 17.

"All I can say is that we have not declared Swaps out for that race as yet," said Mish Tenney, trainer for Swaps' owners, Tex Ellsworth.

Swaps worked a sizzling mile in 1:36 4-5 at Santa Anita Sunday and Tenney evidently feels the 1955 Kentucky Derby winner over Nashua may be ready March 17 in Florida, even after a train trip which won't get the horse to Gulfstream until Monday or Tuesday.

It would be a "rubber" race for Nashua beat Swaps in their famous match encounter in Chicago last summer.

Ellsworth decided Monday to send Swaps to Florida by train Thursday, instead of having him flown Monday with other horses. Presumably the manner in which Swaps takes the train trip will tell the tale.

SIGNS WITH CATS

HAMILTON (CP) — Gil Reich, second draft choice of Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, was signed by Hamilton Tiger-Cats Monday night.

Reich, 1953 all-American defensive half with the University of Kansas, will play at that position and quarterback with the Big Four Union club.

MAY PAY OFF

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) —A new style of delivery may pay off for the Chicago White Sox Harry Byrd, ex-New York Yankee hurler.

Ira Hutchinson, former Sox pitcher, and pitching coach Ray Berres have been working with Byrd for nearly a week. Sunday he twirled three hitless innings.

ARGOS SIGN CENTRE

TORONTO (CP)—Jim Dublinski, six-foot-two centre and linebacker and brother of quarterback Tom Dublinski, has been signed by Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union, assistant coach Bill Earley announced Monday night.

Robin Roberts Sleep, Salary Not Bothered

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Each year Robin Roberts wins 20 or more games. Each year the Phillies pay him more money. Each year National League hitters hit more home runs off him. (Last season they got 41).

Roberts is baffled by the third fact but as long as it doesn't affect the victories and his $50,000 salary, he won't lose much sleep. Neither will manager Mayo Smith.

The 29-year-old righthander, who still looks like the all-American boy, has been on the banquet circuit all winter.

He tells the Hot-Stove League fans and the "Y" groups that he has done more for the home run hitter than the lively ball and the laminated bat. The audience grins and says, "Imagine, the best pitcher in baseball, making fun of himself like that."

Roberts' feat of winning 20 or more for six straight years puts himself in the select company of Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove and Mordecai Brown. If he can make it seven in 1956, he'll outdistance Brown. His winning record will be remembered long after the "homers off" have been forgotten.

Roberts can't explain why hitters sometimes take liberties in the early innings. "I guess I have to work myself into a game," he said. "As the game wears on, you sort of rise to the occasion."

West Favored In Badminton

CALGARY (CP)—Westerners are seeded tops in five of eight divisions in the Canadian badminton championship play which starts here Wednesday.

Defending champ Jean Waring of Calgary and Dave McTaggart of Vancouver were ranked first in the women's and men's singles.

Miss Waring was ranked ahead of Marj Shedd of Toronto and Jean Miller of Montreal, both of whom beat her in provincial play this year.

Bev Wescott of Toronto, finalist to Smythe last year and finalist in Toronto, Ontario and Manitoba singles this year, was seeded next to McTaggart. A former Calgarian, John Bouck of Vancouver, B.C. singles champion and former Alberta champ, is ranked third and Peter Ferguson, a University of Toronto student from Woodstock, Ontario singles champ, is seeded fourth.

Harold Moody of Montreal, defending his twice-won boys' singles championship for the last time, is favored in the event. Ranked second is Ed Hrejlac of Sudbury, finalist to Moody last year and eastern U.S. champion.

Spring Training Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The veterans are beginning to make their weight felt around baseball's spring training camps.

Home-run slugger Hank Sauer, who disappointed Chicago Cubs with a dismal season in 1955, powered a 400-foot drive over the fence in batting practice Monday despite a sore ankle. Hank has brought smiles to manager Stan Hack's face with his solid hitting in batting practice.

Pitcher Russ Meyer, acquired by Cubs from Dodgers, successfully weathered a severe test of his ailing elbow. Meyer complained the elbow locked on him while fielding a grounder Sunday.

Brooklyn Dodgers, who may lose their world series sensation, Johnny Podres, to the draft this month, were cheered by the excellent performances of Carl Erskine and Billy Loes in batting-practice stints. For Loes it was the first time he has thrown hard all spring. Bluy had been suffering from a sore arm.

Wes Westrum of New York Giants hit two home runs in an inter-squad game. He has been taking batting tips from ex-slugger Johnny Mize.

Giants also got a sparkling show from Willie Mays, who nailed a runner at the plate with a 350-foot peg.

WELCOMES SKATERS

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Monday gave a civic reception to six Canadian Olympic skaters, their coach, and two U.S. skaters.

Mayor Nathan Phillips presented gold brooches to skaters Frances Dafoe, Ann Johnston and Barbara Wagner of the Canadian Olympic team, and to New York's Carol Heiss of the U.S. team.

Canadian skaters Bob Paul, Charles Snelling and Norris Bowden, their coach Sheldon Galbraith, and Hayes Alan Jenkins, who won winter Olympic and world singles crowns for the U.S., received gold cuff-links.

RECORDS GALORE

The Whitby Dunlops raced to the leadership of the Eastern senior "B" group strewing league, if not provincial records in their path.

Winning 33, losing five and tying two in a forty-game schedule, the starry Dunnies set a scoring record of 238 goals, an average of seven plus and 139 against, an average of three plus. They garnered 285 assists for a new points record of 423, an average of 17.

Their top scoring line of Bobby Attersley (57), Bus Gagnon (31) and Tommy O'Connor (37) topped the group score trios with 115 goals and 121 assists for 236 scoring points.

Attersley set an all-time senior "B" scoring mark, if not the best in Ontario. He rapped home 57 goals and 51 assists for 108 points. The group assist record is held by Moe Savard, Cornwall, with 89. Five of Attersley's team-mates were included in the group top ten scorers. These were Freddie Eicher, 75, tied with Kingston's Don Murray for second place; Bus Gagnon (63); Harry Sinden (67); Tommy O'Connor (60) and Sandy Air also with 60 points.

The "bad man" of the group was Whitby's Gagnon, who spent 90 minutes in the hoosegow plus a three game suspension. Redmond of the same club also had 90 minutes in durance vile.

The group as a whole was tabbed with 36 major penalties, 45 misconducts, seven match misconducts and two game misconducts. There were three three-game suspensions, these going to Gagnon of Whitby and McMaster and Wilson of the Belleville TPT's.

Vern Goyer led the Belleville scoring with 53 goals and 55 assists. Two others, Chum Fryia and Keith MacDonald scored 52 goals or better. Goyer and Gus Leonard tied for the assist leadership, each with 55. Bob Wilson was tops in penalties with 88 minutes. Bill McMaster had $4.

The Peterborough contingent did an excellent job in their performances with the TPT's. Chum Fryia had a record of 21-34 for 61 points; Bert Hill had 24-31 for 55; Gus Leonard 15-25 for 40; Toodie Greenlaw 8-11 for 19 and Bill McMaster 3-5 for eight.

Incidentally just to prove the point that good things are wrapped up in small packages, the Whitby Dunlops used a maximum of 13 players during the season. This number included two goalkeepers. On the other extreme there are 29 players listed on the Brockville Magedomas roster.

MEET JACK JARVIS

The likeable little man with the English accent and the undeniable physical beak-busted evidence of a tenure in the ring wandered into the news room yesterday.

"I could, as old as I is," he said, a smile lighting his features. "I is one hand behind my back, wear a blindfold, be decorated with the hobbles of a harness horse and wham the day lights out of you and one Michael J. Rodden, both one and the other at the same time."

Michael J. being in Kingston at the time, and the income tax refund not yet arrived from St. Laurentville, he had no takers.

He was Jack Jarvis, popular boxing coach of Queen's University, who has looked upon life with a move benign countenance since moving his domicile from Reddenville to points slightly west of this village. Surprising what a difference a few miles makes.

After all you couldn't blame the guy for puffing the chest out a few degrees. Didn't Queen's win two senior championships? Yes, and last season, and boxing this year.

The chest-puffing was purely incidental. You had to extract the reason why. Jack is not exactly the braggadocio type. But get him started on his favorite topic, sawy from personal experiences, and you are in for a delightful half hour or so. For Senor Jarvis has, like the traditional merry-go-round, been around a lot.

He loves boxing. He loves Queen's. Boxing down thataway likes Jack—and that goes for the students, especially his ring proteges.

In the 1956 intercollegiate assaults, held this year at Queen's, Jarvis had seven fighters entered in the eight weight classifications. All were made it to the finals against opponents from Varsity, McGill, Western and O.A.C., and five of them won their bouts and intercollegiate championships.

This year's team win was the fourth for Queen's since the resumption of intercollegiate boxing after World War II. On one other occasion Queen's tied with McGill.

Down through the years Jack has had astonishing success with intercollegiate fighters at all weights. He has produced almost as many champions as all the other schools in competition combined.

Many of his proteges have received offers to turn professional but Jack says he steers them away from the professionals.

"The pros aren't what they used to be," he said. "There is too much exploitation today. There is too much racketeering. I never talked to the boys about turning pro. I never mention it. When they ask me about turning pro I try to talk them out of it."

FLAHERTY COMMENTS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Postponement of the world's middleweight title bout to May 18 at the request of champion Sugar Ray Robinson "is about par for the course," challenger Bobo Olson's manager, Sid Flaherty, said Monday.

"I don't believe Robinson is trying to duck us altogether," Flaherty added. "He always causes several date switches every time he's supposed to go in a big fight."

ROYALS SIGN 2

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League announced Monday the signing of two right-handed pitchers and a second-baseman.

The pitchers are Jim Peterson, who had a 6-5 record with Cedar Rapids, Ia., last season, and Frank White, who had a 10-7 record with Pueblo, Colo. The second-baseman is Harry Schwegman, who hit .305 with San Antonio, Texas, last season.

Need Four Points in 5 Games While Boston Requires Eight; Blues, Wings People's Choice

MONTREAL (CP)—Some long-forgotten game that Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins let slip from a blossoming win into a tie early this season may prove pretty costly in a couple of weeks.

It's that close for second place and for fourth place—last playoff spot—in the waning National Hockey League race.

Currently the Red Wings and New York Rangers are deadlocked for second place with 69 points each. Down in fifth place the Bruins trail Toronto Maple Leafs by only three points—53 to 56—and hope to make them up.

But if the New York-Detroit tie persists and the Bruins make it four each for the Leafs come the night of March 18, who gets the nod?

The NHL regulations say the team with the most wins. Press at look at the latest standings, that unlikely would mean the Rangers and the Leafs. The New Yorkers have 20 wins compared with Detroit's 27; the Leafs have 22 compared with the Bruins' 20.

WHAT THEY COLLECT

The second-place finishers collect about $500 each; third place, $350. Playoff money for the fourth team get only $150 each but they also get the Stanley Cup playoff money. This would mean a minimum of $500 and a maximum, if the Leafs win the cup, of $2,000. There's no money at all for fifth and sixth place.

The Rangers-Red Wings snarl is anybody's guess but the fourth place battle between the Bruins-Leafs' favor. Put it mathematically: If the Leafs get only four points of a possible 10 in their remaining five games, the Bruins will have to get eight of a possible 10 to finish ahead.

Meanwhile, the rollicking Canadiens, with the league title already wrapped up, are still rolling along and their ace centre, Jean Beliveau, has the scoring championship within his grasp.

In running their point total to 72, Canadiens three times in four games last week. It was the best performance of the six teams. The Red Wings caught up with the Rangers by getting two wins and a tie in four starts while the Rangers won two and lost two.

JEAN COUNTED FOUR

In the scoring division, Beliveau counted four goals and two assists and with his 81 points has a seven-point margin over Gordie Howe of Detroit. Howe collected one goal and three assists. Beliveau leads the goal-getters with 44.

Montreal's Rocket Richard scored one goal and two assists and holds third place with 67 points. Tod Sloan of the Leafs follows with 63, helped by a goal and an assist. The Rocket and Sloan have each scored 36 goals, closest to Beliveau's 44.

Bert Olmstead of Montreal, with three assists, moved from sixth to fifth place over Andy Bathgate of New York, who had only one assist. Olmstead has racked up 31 assists, only four off the league record. He has 60 points to Bathgate's 60.

Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal came up with a four-point production on one goal and three assists and took seventh place from Earl Reibel of Detroit. They are tied on points at 54 but Geoffrion has tallied 34 goals to Reibel's 17 and is ranked higher. Reibel has played fewer games than Reibel.

Santee, Union Amateur Feud Drags on Way

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — The long-range feud between ace Miler Wes Santee and the Amateur Athletic Union dragged on its weary way today with AAU major-domo Dan Ferris stepping up to take a couple of verbal swings.

His target, as always, was Santee's outspoken attorney, Charles P. Grimes, who has beaten the AAU in the courts twice—once by having its lifetime ban against Santee stayed and again by successfully fighting off an AAU effort to have the injunction wiped out.

In the process of issuing statements Sunday, Grimes touched on many subjects, hinted darkly that several states might drop out of the AAU, mentioned that the AAU might need a new lawyer for the hearing in the injunction contempt up Friday and suggested that perhaps there was not a quorum present at the AAU executive committee meeting which banned Santee.

"I've heard that phony stuff before," fumed Ferris referring to Grimes' prediction that the AAU would be ousted by states. "I suspect that it is Grimes who is deciding for the states."

By this time Super Dan was warming up to his task.

"What's his status as to needing another lawyer?" he asked. "Our chief attorney, Jay-Ehret Mahoney, is a defending Grimes case before Boo, so we thought it might be a good idea to get a neutral attorney."

Philip Sober, head of our track and field committee (who also wrote the report that convicted Santee) is an attorney, too, but he also would rather have a neutral lawyer handle our case."

Refuting Grimes' belief that there was not a quorum at the executive committee meeting that suspended Santee, Ferris said 15 members of the 26-man committee were present. All but one voted to ban the miler, he added.

Juniors Pluck Stars from Minor Ranks

TORONTO (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks picked up one player by priority Monday, then drafted another eight in the annual draft of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

The priority draft is for players within the Junior A team's own system. Only two players can be drafted from a club lower than Junior A and the junior A team has first sights to those players. Canucks' priority draft choice was Tom Thurlby of New Hamburg Junior B's.

St. Catharines Teepees, who monopolized last year's draft, picked up seven players by priority and three in the general draft.

The two Toronto teams, Marlboros and St. Michael's Majors, combined draft choices and made only two selections in the general draft. In the priority, Marlboros got six.

Hamilton, who finished last in the junior season and therefore, had first draft choice, chose five players in addition to their two priority selections. Guelph Biltmores picked four in the general draft and took one in the same number. Barrie Flyers made three selections along with their four players in the priority.

Draft choices included: (x-priority).

Hamilton—William R. Preston, Downsaville juveniles; Lou Puppa, Kirkland Lake Flame juveniles.

Barrie — Dale Rolfe, Timmins Moneta; Frank Prest, Timmins Moneta; Lorne Richland, Kirkland Lake Lions juveniles; x-Gordon Walmsley, Owen Sound junior B; Gerald Thurlby, New Hamburg junior B.

Helfand Strikes at Guild Boss Johnston Faces Licence Loss

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Charley Johnston, manager of two world champions and president of the Influential International Boxing Guild today faces a state athletic commission hearing that could cost him his licence.

Commission chairman Julius Helfand ordered written charges drawn up against Johnston, manager of featherweight ruler Sandy Saddler and light heavyweight king Archie Moore, and manager Carmine Tarantino, for violating commission rules.

The charges will be heard at "a later date," probably next week, to decide whether the two managers should be punished by having their licences suspended or revoked.

Both Johnston and Tarantino admitted at a commission hearing Monday that they shared in the management of three Italian fighters—Duilio Rossi, Italo Scortichini and Livio Miselli—but had not filed separate contracts with the commission as commission rules provide.

Tarantino admitted that in submitting the contracts of lightweight Rossi and middleweight Scortichini he had sworn to the commission he was the sole manager and no one else had any interests in the fighters. Johnston admitted the same for Miselli, a welterweight now retired.

"Everyone in boxing knows Tarantino and I have been partners in Italian fighters for 20 years," said Johnston. "We had an oral understanding. I'm no undercover manager."

Asked by Helfand why he hadn't filed assignments with the commission, Johnston replied he was out of town when Tarantino filed contracts for Rossi and Scortichini and Tarantino was not in town when he (Johnston) filed the Miselli contract.

Asked why he didn't advise the commission later of his share in the fighters, Johnston said "it slipped my mind."

"It was a misunderstanding," said Tarantino, who has a limited command of English.

The hearing Monday was held to determine whether there were any "outside or undisclosed" interests in Rossi and lightweight Carlos Ortiz, New York, who had been signed for a television headliner at St. Nicholas Arena March 31. Ortiz' manager, Ed Ferguson, swore he was the sole manager of the unbeaten 19-year-old.

The bout was tossed out, anyway, when it developed that Ortiz was suffering from an ailment that needed treatment. Commissio physicians ordered him placed on the "ill and unavailable list."

Helfand then approved a substitute middleweight bout between New Yorkers Hardy Smallwood and Ray Drake for the 13th.

Ontario, Manitoba Rinks Tops In Opening Curling Battles

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Alfie Phillips' Toronto Curling club may not have been rated much of a chance when the Canadian curling championships opened Monday, but after two rounds it is right on top of the heap.

In the opening rounds Ontario knocked off two of the top favorites —Alberta and Saskatchewan—and in the third round today it was to tangle with Quebec, which has a 2 win and loss.

Manitoba, a surprise to no one in scoring wins over Quebec and Northern Ontario, has the bye in today's third round.

British Columbia was undefeated with a win over Newfoundland in the first round. They had a bye Monday night and were to meet Nova Scotia, with a 1-1 record, today. In the other third-round matches New Brunswick and Northern Ontario were to face each other. Newfoundland was to take on Alberta with Prince Edward Island up against Saskatchewan.

Prince Edward Island, Alberta and New Brunswick all have 1-1 records. Newfoundland has two losses and Northern Ontario one. Northern Ontario had a bye in the first round.

FOURTH ROUND DRAW

In the fourth round, slated for the afternoon, Alberta was to play British Columbia; Quebec and Prince Edward Island; Northern Ontario and Ontario; New Brunswick and Manitoba; and Newfoundland and Saskatchewan. Nova Scotia has the bye.

The crowds attending the first two rounds, estimated at 1,200 and 2,000 respectively, were loud in their applause of good shots and several of the crowds commented on good sportsmanship.

Manitoba scored a 12-7 win over Quebec in the first round and an edged Northern Ontario 9-7 in the second. Ontario had a 9-4 win over Alberta and a 13-6 triumph over Saskatchewan.

British Columbia, the other undefeated rink, scored a 12-6 win over Newfoundland in the first round.

Prince Edward Island had a 16-12 win over Nova Scotia, but couldn't seem to get untracked in the second until it was too late. Dr. Wendell Macdonald's rink lost to Alberta 12-11 in the closest finish of the bonspiel.

Trailing 11-2 with three ends remaining, Charlottetown suddenly found the range and swept back for a total of seven. Alberta skip Matt Baldwin played his last shot just right, cutting off the Islanders' chance to tie the score.

Steve Kuzmaski's boys from Northern Ontario at the ninth end caught up with Manitoba, sweeping ends seven to nine to deadlock the score 6-6. The Copper Cliff team, playing for the singles instead of the big ends scored in singles in the seventh and ninth and two on the eighth.

But Manitoba took advantage of the last rock in scoring their 9-7 win. Tied at the end of the 11th, Manitoba scored two on the 12th when Matt Baldwin counted with both his rocks, his second taking out a Northern Ontario shot stone.

Ontario pulled two ahead of Saskatchewan, scoring four in the seventh to ninth ends while holding Saskatchewan down. After nine ends Ontario were ahead 9-7.

Saskatchewan then let out in the final end when Alfie Phillips kept them from building up a two'end needed for the tie. Phillips was lying two and Saskatchewan had only one rock remaining. It fell off to one side, missing the two Ontario rocks, giving the Granite club a 12-8 win.

DeMarco Whales Lightweight King For Technical KO

BOSTON (AP)—Power-punching Tony DeMarco, still overanxious, looks ahead to a hoped-for second chance at the welterweight title he once held after whaling lightweight king Wallace (Bud) Smith for a technical knockout.

DeMarco, the leading welter contender, battered Smith in the eighth round at Boston Garden Monday night after forcing the Cincinnati boy to drop his guard with a smashing left hook to the stomach.

It took the Boston belter just 45 seconds of the ninth round to continue his fury at a pace which caused Smith's corner to throw in the towel and referee Jimmy McGrory to call a halt.

DeMarco weighed 143½ and Smith 142 for the scheduled 10-round bout. DeMarco recovered from a first round knockdown and had his opponent on the canvas in the third when he couldn't finish the job.

Between DeMarco's wildness and Smith's cuteness, Tony was looking rusty and quite unlike his old self until he began turning his right unmerciful hook to Smith's midsection in the seventh round.

DeMarco, of course, wants a shot at the winner of the March 14 champion Carmen Basilio-challenger Johnny Saxton bout.

Maroons Edge Indians 3-2; Series All Even

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons kept their playoff hopes alive Monday night by edging Stratford Indians 3-2 in the sixth game of the Senior A Ontario Hockey Association semi-final.

The win ties the series at 3-3 with the final game scheduled for Wednesday night at Stratford.

Stratford shot back a 4-0 lead early in the first period on a goal by Ted Flanagan but penalties were the downfall of the Indians with Chatham tying the score while Art Hurst and Jim Bender were in the penalty box.

Jim Connolly fired the goal at 10:35. Chatham took a short-lived lead at 14:39 on a picture goal by Bill Chalmers with both sides a man short, only to have Herve Desjardins tie it up 15 seconds to the second period and the end period. Eric Unger scored the winning goal at 13:37 of the second period with Stratford two men short again. Harry Fruitia and Hurst serving the time.

There was no scoring in the third, both teams playing tight hockey and Chatham protecting the slim one-goal lead.

Montreal's Nomadic Junior Habs Shape as Threat for Memorial Cup

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal junior Canadiens, a nomadic team without a league to play in, nevertheless shape up as a threat for the Memorial Cup this season.

In the opinion of general manager Sammy Pollock there are half a dozen of his youngsters who ultimately may be with the parent Canadiens of the National Hockey League. Already eight of the junior Habs have filled in, on emergency or lend-lease duty, with teams in the pro Quebec Hockey League and the American Hockey League.

When the Quebec Junior Hockey League folded at the end of last season, managing director Frank Selke of the parent Canadiens' empire and Pollock busied themselves at "getting back to grassroots junior hockey."

Salaries of junior A players had been grabbed out of hand, and the Metropolitan League of 10 teams came into being. Kids by the carload were given a crack at the game.

KEPT THEM AS UNIT

But Selke didn't give up the fancy junior Canadiens, who graduated Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard to the NHL Canadiens this season. Generally speaking, the team remained as a unit—with an eye on the Canadian junior championship. The last Montreal winner of the cup was the junior Canadiens of 1949-50.

This year the baby Habs hit the road, 20,000 miles of it by train, plane, bus, boat and even taxicab. Their only organized competition was the Laurier Cup series. It had been Montreal Junior A's and Junior A teams of the Ontario Hockey Association and the QHL.

The junior Canadiens have already clinched that trophy. For that series there were games at home and away, including exhibition games the little Canucks have become one of the most travelled teams in hockey. They roamed eastern Canada from Kapuskasing, Ont., to St. John's, Nfld., and made a trip to Clinton, N.Y. They didn't hesitate to play out of their class. They defeated Sudbury Wolves of the senior Northern Ontario Hockey Association 4-3 and played to a 4-4 standoff with Montreal Royals of the pro QHL.

Their season record to date is 61 wins, 10 ties and eight losses. On a point basis they have played at an .833 clip.

SCHOOL CAME FIRST

The club has a roster of 22 players, but half a dozen or more do their share on the trips because of school work. Pollock said school comes first.

"We maintain strict discipline. On the road the players must be neatly dressed in blue blazers and white shirt. Every player must attend church on Sundays — the church of his choice. Even a curfew hour at home is maintained. If we know it is violated, even 10 minutes, the player is told to go home when he shows up for next practice."

One of the best hockey prospects on the club is Andre Pronovost, 18-year-old leftwinger from Shawinigan Falls, the team's leading sniper.

"He should make the NHL Canadiens next season," said Pollock. "He's big and strong, a good skater and can score. He's about on a par now with Boom Boom Geoffrion and Dickie Moore when they played junior before moving up to the Canadiens."

AND ANOTHER RICHARD

It's no surprise that the team boasts another of the Richard brothers. He is Claude, who may have to become the west-coast Rocket in the family trio of the Rocket and the Pocket Rocket. It is not impossible that 17-year-old Claude may some day play with his older brothers with the big team. He's on right wing.

Centres include Ralph Backstrom from Kirkland Lake, Que. Only Sandy Beckstrom supplied all four goals when his team beat Guelph Juniors 4-3.

Other forwards include Billy Carter of Cornwall. Defencemen include 19-year-old John Longarini of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. All the defencemen except Longarini have done emergency duty for pro clubs.

Leo Passador of Fort William, Ont., is the team's coach. This is his first season with the baby Habs. He was a scout for years for the Canadiens' organization. Before that he did a four-year stint as scout for Detroit Red Wings.

BUCS SELL MANGAN

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates announced Monday that New York Giants have picked up catcher Jim Mangan, 26, for the waiver price of $10,000.

Last year Mangan was with Hollywood and El Paso, He is also a player-manager at El Paso. However, he had an argument with the umpire and jumped the club before the end of the season.

Napanee Edges Marmora 7-6 In Series Opener

NAPANEE, (Special.) — Marmora Millionaires pushed Napanee to the wire here last night before winning 7-6 in the first game of a best-of-seven first round OHA intermediate "C" playdown series.

Trailing 7-3 going into the third period, the Millionaires staged a brilliant rally scoring three goals in seven minutes only to fall short of the mark.

The game was played on heavy slushy ice before 900 fans. The second and third games are slated for the Marmora arena Wednesday and Friday nights with the fourth game in Napanee next Monday.

Napanee took a commanding first-period lead, scoring five goals as against two for the village crew. The teams split a pair in the second frame and Napanee extended the lead to 7-3 after a minute in the third heat.

The Millionaires took over and outplayed the Gerow crew especially in the middle seven minutes when they fired their trio of goals.

The outstanding work of youthful Tommy McAllister was a large factor in the Napanee defence in this period. Johnny Green played brilliantly for the winners.

Emile Trumble, Harry Brown and Jones each scored twice for the Millionaires. Bobby Strahan had two for Napanee with Fish, Williams, Brady, Green and Gerow scoring singles.

Referees Stan Scrutton and Ken Partis, Kingston handed out five penalties, three to the home team.

First Period

Marmora—Jones (Mantle)	4.30
Napanee—Fish	7.19
Napanee—Williams (Birchall)	12.12
Napanee—Strahan (Williams)	13.35
Napanee—Brady (Rombough, Green)	15.18
Marmora—Trumble	15.56
Napanee—Gerow (Brady, Green)	18.58
Penalties—None.

Second Period

Napanee—Strahan (Williams)	11.03
Marmora—Trumble (Gray)	17.56
Penalties—Brown, Green, Williams.

Third Period

Napanee—Green (Brady, Gerow)	1.30
Marmora—Brown (Maynes, Leonard)	7.13
Marmora—Jones (Mantle, McCallan)	9.56
Marmora—Brown (Jones, Maynes)	14.38
Penalties—Linton, Barnes.

ESTABLISH AWARD

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—New York Yankees Monday established an annual award for their rookie who shows the greatest ability in his first year of spring training.

The prize, a watch or plaque, will be named the James P. Dawson Memorial award. Dawson, former baseball writer of the New York Times, died here three years ago today while covering the Yanks.

When next you see a Chrysler, note the ease with which the driver dominates even so elegant a picture as this. For Chrysler cars are styled in lines and colours of simple eloquence that whisper compliments about you instead of shouting their own self-praise. The Chrysler Windsor is built with good taste as its criterion . . . is priced for the discriminating rather than the merely affluent.

The Chrysler is as easy to drive as it is easy to own. Push buttons control the PowerFlite automatic transmission. Power brakes, full-time power steering, power window lifts, power seat adjustment—all are available to spare your every effort. Spirited V-8's, with up to 280 horsepower, give vast reserves of power for any highway needs.

Before you buy a new car, be sure to see your Chrysler-Plymouth dealer. He offers so much more motorcar for so much less than you'd imagine. Why not see him today?

AT THE McCARTHY — Three's a crowd. At least it seems that way to Tom Ewell, left, who disconsolately watches his wife, Sheree North, dance with Rick Jason, an Air Force captain in this scene from "The Lieutenant Wore Skirts." This Twentieth Century-Fox comedy in CinemaScope and De Luxe color opens on Wednesday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Ewell, who scored such a success in "The Seven Year Itch", repeats with a brilliant performance in this new comedy and Miss North, as the WAF lieutenant, demonstrates that she is a comedienne of the first-rank. Frank Tashlin directed the hilarious story under the productive guidance of Buddy Adler.

'Optical Outrider' Is Machine Which Feeds Moving Script

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Tele-prompter which has developed many marvelous devices to aid the harried speaker appearing before television cameras, has come up with a new one. It's called the "optical outrider."

The viewing public has become highly conscious of the tele-prompter, a machine which feeds a moving script for a speaker who almost appears to be talking extemporaneously. Most TV viewers these days can tell when a speaker uses a teleprompter. In some cases the movement of a speaker's eyes as he reads his lines is pretty obvious.

But the optical outrider would appear to solve that problem. Published descriptions of the new development make it sound virtually fool-proof. A glass coated with a thin layer of titanium dioxide is placed between the speaker and the TV camera. Magic lantern mirrors project the lines of a speech onto the coating on the speaker's side of the glass. The speaker reads his speech while gazing directly into the camera. The audience sees only the speaker.

AT THE BELLE—Rebel: The late James Dean is starred as a rebellious teenager in "Rebel Without a Cause", and Natalie Wood and Sal Mineo are co-starred. A Bugs Bunny Cartoon is an added attraction.

BOON TO SALESMEN

In salesmanship, where the direct clear-eyed approach is most important, we have sincerely enjoyed above all, the new invention obviously is a great boon.

It would be surprising if the major political parties failed to make use of the new invention in this election year when television will have such a big role. But as one voter and viewer, I draw a fine line of distinction between salesmanship and politics. I hope that whnvr a politician ism th op-ical outrid the TV audience will be so informed.

Personally I still go for the manuscript when I watch any officeholder or office-seeker on television.

Dolores Gray After Conquering Stage Moves into Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dolores Gray has a switch on the usual Hollywood rags-to-riches story. In her case, it's riches to more riches.

She was born with plenty, yet became a star of the Broadway and London stage. Now she's added the movies to her conquests.

She was saked about her family's wealth.

"Let's say that my mother has always been able to live comfortably," she said.

The extent of their comfort is demonstrated by the fact that they have a house near here and another in New York. At a recent count, they had six poodles and five cars—one to match whatever color scheme Dolores might be wearing. She balked at revealing how many furs she has.

SHARED EVERYTHING

"It would sound too lavish," she said. "Besides, you have to realize that everything I have is divided by two, Mother and I share everything."

Even dates?

"Yes," she said, "and usually I get the worst of it."

Not only does Dolores flaunt tradition in not battling her way up from poverty. Her mother didn't even encourage her career, as in the case of most young talents.

"I was always coming home and telling mother that I had entered a new contest," Dolores said. "she'd always say, 'No, not again!'"

Far from being a drawback, Dolores feels that her financial independence accelerated her career.

COULD AFFORD TO CHOOSE

"Because I didn't need jobs to get by one," she reasoned, "I could afford to pass up the roles that wouldn't help me. That's why I was a star in London at 21."

Dolores, a brown-eyed blonde with a big, big voice, was born in Chicago and came here when she was 3. She has been appearing professionally since 15, singing on radio, in night clubs and Broadway shows.

Her big break came when she was chosen to stay in the London company of "Annie Get Your Gun." She played the role created by Ethel Marman, whom she resembles in volume and lusty manner. Dolores drew 37 curtain calls opening night and played the western sharp-shooter for three years.

In the movies she scored in "It's Always Fair Weather" and "Kismet." Now she's in another musical, "The Opposite Sex."

Toronto Tough On Petes Boxers

TORONTO (CP)—Four Peterborough fighters found things rough Monday night, all losing to Toronto boxers on an amateur boxing card.

Peter Schmidt, who is planning to turn professional, took a unanimous five-round decision over Peterborough's George Herd in the 147-pound main event.

In the 175-pound semi - final, bearded John Morgan of Toronto scored a technical knockout over Tommy Brick of Peterborough. Referee Sam Hackett stopped the fight at 1:06 of the third round.

In a 126-pound preliminary, Toronto's Fernand Chretien decisioned Paul Daniels of Peterborough over five rounds.

Fred Tidligan is a three-round 141-pound bout.

Poirier Wins Over Joe Perez

NEW YORK (AP)—Gene Poirier of Niagara Falls, N.Y., pummelled Danny Joe Perez of New York from all angles Monday night to score a technical knockout at the end of the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

Poirier started miserably and was far behind on points for three rounds. But then the tide changed and it was Perez on the receiving end the rest of the way. Poirier opened a cut over Perez' left eye in the sixth and by the end of the eighth it was bleeding so badly Dr. Alexander Schiff of the New York state athletic commission refused to permit him to go out for the ninth.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 7, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — An unusual day, perhaps, with much activity high and bright. So put workable ideas into practice. On the other hand, needless drastic changes or sudden decisions are not advocated. Think before acting.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Most planetary aspects suggest alertness to possible (though needless) errors, perhaps losses. Study, legal matters, writings, all mental work apparent.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Control emotions, avoid hasty decisions and thoughtless action. Aspects advise steadiness, sensible action and co-operation with right persons. But it can be a day for advancement, benefits.

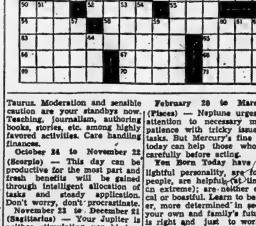
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your Moon and Venus stress a need for patience, alertness and steady (not spasmodic) moves. Take time to study your day's program, consult superiors and others qualified to advise you.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Determine which tasks are most important and handle them first; then go to the next in order and you can have a reasonably successful returns. Smart management, without anxiety, pays.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — This can be a smooth, profitable period if you are unhurried, unworried. Calm judgment, clear thinking are urged. Mental work, study, etc. under the Mercury aspect don't go to extremes.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Same for you as for Taurus. Moderation and sensible caution are your standbys now. Teaching, journalism, authoring books, stories, etc. among highly favored activities. Care handling finances.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — This day can be productive for the most part and fresh benefits will be gained through intelligent allocation of tasks and steady application. Don't worry, don't procrastinate.



November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarian) — Your Jupiter is neither stimulating nor hindering. Most incentive will come from well aspected Mercury. Your management and general personal attitudes will be important to success.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Similar indications to Sagittarius. Keep cheerful; it will help in judgment and direction. Worry causes confusion, upsets natural progress. This time to plan, discuss difficult matters.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Uranus' position now warns against unwise action, thoughtless promises. Be methodical, quick, self sure but don't allow restlessness to swerve you from the steady, productive path.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Neptune urges close attention to necessary matters, patience with tricky issues and tasks. But Mercury's fine aspect today can help those who think carefully before acting.

You Born Today have a delightful personality, are fond of people, are helpful (at times to an extreme); are neither egotistical or boastful. Learn to be firmer, more determined in securing your own and family's future. It is right and just to work and think for one's self; it need not entail selfishness. Don't pity yourself either.

United Church Says Little Man Hurt by Strikes

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The United Church of Canada said Monday big auto plant strikes in Ontario have hurt the little man and that the right to strike should be "re-examined."

In the first appearance of a religious body before the Gordon economic commission, the United Church urged also that the government help re-settle workers and with their children by raising family allowances so that mothers can stay home.

It suggested, too, that the commission make a thorough study of the impact of liquor sales, gambling and sexual vice on economic life; that the economy be kept free of influences which would exalt unduly the power of large corporations.

Touching on the labor issue, Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the United Church board of evangelism and social services, said he believes Canada has been chosen as the ground for industrial conflict because this is a presidential election year and it would not be appropriate to do anything to inflict in the United States.

Brazen as it has seemed that Ontario has been chosen as the battleground for long and costly strikes by both the Auto Workers and dustry-and-labor in the automotive business. It is quite true, the United Church would urge that the right to strike, particularly in large-scale North American developed industries, be re-examined."

Asked by the commission to provide further clarification of his views, Dr. Mutchmor said he did not want to go too far in this field. But he observed that Prime Minister St. Laurent has indicated he would not allow a rail strike and rules might have to be sought that rail labor-management disputes through compulsory arbitration.

It seemed that the automotive industry was at the edge of the limit of big industries where the state might have to step in, Dr. Mutchmor said.

Three of Five Judges Doubt Metro Authority

TORONTO (CP)—Judgment on whether metropolitan Toronto has the right to authorize fluoridation of drinking water in suburban Forest Hill Village was reserved today by the Ontario Court of Appeal Monday.

But three of five judges said they doubt that Metro has that authority.

Said Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier:

"The chemical formula of pure water is H2O. If you add something to it it becomes impure. Is something else."

Mr. Justice John B. Aylesworth said he couldn't find anything in the Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto Act that would authorize the addition of medical materials to water already essentially pure.

CHIEF JUSTICE COMMENT

Chief Justice J. W. Pickup said he could understand switching the water supply if the municipality had two supplies and one supply was which was the more wholesome. But he said he doubted that Metro could do anything to chemically alter a water supply already in use.

Fluoridation of the Forest Hill water was scheduled to begin by April 1.

Forest Hill is appealing Mr. Justice F. G. Gale's dismissal Nov. 10 of its motion to quash the by-law.

Metropolitan Toronto is a federation of the city and 12 neighboring municipalities, which administers certain public services such as transportation. Forest Hill is the only standout against fluoridation.

Filled 'Er Up So Negro Shot By Irate Driver

SUMNER, Miss. (AP)—A grand jury today indicted Leonard Kimbell, a 34-year-old white man, on a charge he murdered a Negro gas station attendant.

Kimbell, manager of a cotton gin at nearby Glendora, was accused of killing Clinton Melton, 33, of Glendora, with a shotgun Dec. 3.

Police said Kimbell told them the Negro had fired at him three times with a pistol. Gas station owner Lee McCardell, a white man, contradicted Kimbell's story. Melton was unarmed at the time he was killed, McGarrh said.

McGarrh said Kimbell had flown into a rage and accused Melton of filling the gasoline tank of his car when all he wanted was five gallons.

Alexander's Puck-Chasing 'Intellers' Win Industrial League Championship

Gord St. Louis' two goals in the dying minutes of the game gave the Ontario Intelligencer a 3-2 victory over Point Anne and the Industrial hockey league championship last night.

The Intell captured the two-of-three final series in two straight games over last week's little holdouts.

Point Anne came within 20 minutes of tying the series last night in one of the hardest fought but cleanest games of the season. The winners opened the scoring and held a 1-0 lead for a short time but Point Anne knotted the count and finally took the lead 2-1.

A Point Anne penalty gave the champs a great opportunity with about eight minutes left but the Pointers held on. Then with two minutes remaining Gord St. Louis took passes from Bob Brooks and Leo St. Denis to beat Jack Elliott and tie the score. A minute later the same trio hooked up again with St. Louis arriving at the goalmouth in time to hook the disorganized Elliott for the title-winning marker.

St. Denis opened the scoring early in the game, breaking in on goal after stealing the puck with his team-mates short-handed. Jack Elliott tending goal for the Cementmen, brilliant in the opening game as he kicked out drive after drive. Ray Brooks tied the score and shortly after Gordie Green put one past by Dolan to put his team in front for the only time in the game. The great save by Dolan on a clear Pi. Intell breakaway kept the champs within striking distance until St. Louis' markers wrapped it up.

The win completed a nine-game winning streak for the Intelligencer crew. This was the first year in the league in which they took four games, tied one and lost one during the regular schedule. They finished in second place, only one point behind the league-leading Pointers. The Intell was the only team in the league to defeat Point Anne while also being the lone club to boast a victory over Trenton.

Coach Alexander's crew swept through the playoffs in three straight games, winning two each from Avon, Meads and the Cementmen in last night.

The big line of Gord St. Louis, Cameron McKenna and Leo St. Denis sparked the attack during the 12 games played. St. Denis and St. Louis each had 14 points while McKenna racked up 13. Defenceman Bob Brooks netted six while forwards Ab Wright and Frank Cota each tallied five. Art Golden, Howard Skelly and Doug Murray also scored once. Other players on the team were Jack Spafford, Jack Gill, Garry Alexander, Jack Elliott and Bob McCann. Don Dolan tended goal in every game and was one of the main reasons for the championship. Spafford, Culloden, Brooks and Skelly provided a sturdy defence during the latter part of the season.

The Lineups:

Point Anne: goal, Elliott; defence, Spafford, Gill; forwards, Wright, Golden, Cota.

Intelligencer: goal, Dolan; defence, A. Culloden, B. Brooks, H. Skelly; forwards, L. St. Denis, G. St. Louis, C. McKenna, J. Spafford, A. Wright, F. Cota.

Referee: Bill Hurst.

Manitoban Has Easy Way to End Butter Surplus

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Manitoba legislature member Monday suggested Canada's butter surplus would all but disappear if housewives received large butter pats.

Jack M c D o w e l l, Independent Progressive Conservative member for Iberville, said restaurants are still serving butter warming regulations requiring that a pound of butter be cut by 24-pats.

"Ever tried it?" asked Mr. McDowell. "You can do it with a sharp knife but it destroys your fingers."

Election Act changes were discussed in the Manitoba House, and on the Nova Scotia legislature as well.

ASKS FOR COMMITTEE

Premier Hicks asked the Nova Scotia House for appointment of a committee to revise Elections and House of Assembly Acts. The move was taken as indications that the premier plans an early election.

Provincial Treasurer C.M. Fines, in presenting the Saskatchewan legislature w i th his 12th and largest budget Monday, described the province as having a "ruddy financial complexion."

His $256-37 estimates increased last government spending by 18 per cent to a record $87,000,000. Included is the province's biggest highways program in history.

About one third of the total outlay will go to long distance social aid, keeping it atop a fiscal program which has been the CCF was elected in 1944. Education's share rises slightly to a fifth.

Midget 'Fives' Defeat 'Ones' For City Title

Fighting back from the early 2-0 deficit, Team Five midgets shaded Team One 4-3 yesterday afternoon to capture the city championship and wind up the minor hockey here for the season.

Team One grabbed a 2-0 lead by the five minute mark in the initial period with the winners getting one back before the period ended. They rolled on with three straight to lead 4-2 at 12.09 of the second but the losers pulled to within one goal at the bell. Neither team could score in the third session.

Gary Rowbotham stickhandled his way through three defenders at the 10 minute mark of the first to put Team One ahead 1-0 and minutes later Jimmy Potts registered another with Belringer assisting. John Stevenson broke the ice for Team Five at 13.40, a solo effort.

Earl MacDonald took passes from Brennan and Boulter to knot the score on a breakaway early in the second. Doug Boulter netted the next one at 9.15 with Pointer and MacDonald assisting. What proved to be the winner came at 12.08, Jack Elliott banging the disc from Brennan and to Boulter in centre ice who went in unmolested to gun it home. Jim Potts netted his second goal of the game for the losers, firing Rowbotham's pass by Stevenson but they could not get the equalizer.

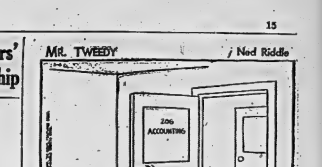
Referees Don Ashley and Gord Gregory handed out 11 minor penalties in all with the winners getting the odd one.

Need to Make Nations Immune To Red Virus

KARACH, Pakistan (AP)—State Secretary Dulles of the United States called today on the rulers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization to make a united fight against Communist subversion in Asia.

At the opening session of the annual five-day meeting of Seato's council of foreign ministers, Dulles also urged the development of "wholesome ties" to keep nations from Communist infection.

The American secretary said it is important that the military aspect of the alliance be pushed, along with the organization's other aim of deterring open, armed Communist aggression.



Dulles and the foreign ministers of the other seven Seato members—Britain, France, Turkey, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, France and Pakistan—spoke briefly after the session opened in the old Sind Assembly Palace.

MR. TWEEDY — Ned Riddle

"I know I should've put a sign on that door!"

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was watching pop smoking to himself, and she said, Well, William, I knew it would happen some time, but I dredded the day.

That has all the ear marks of the beginning of an intresting story pop said, and ma said, Do you remember the fur lined coat I bought about 25 years ago when you had a suddin stroke of luck in kindness and we felt you were rich forever?

At least you felt that way, pop said, and ma said, Yes, so I bought the coat for 300 dollers linded with summer ermine. Of course it's been miles out of stile of years now, and it would cost a fortune to have it done over, and yet I couldn't bring myself to get rid of it, even though it has just been hanging there like a useless lost memory. Ah well, I knew that sooner or later a real crisiss man would ring our doorbell and offer me a gollid price for it, and sure enough, William today was the fatal day, she said.

How much did he give you for it? pop said, and ma said, Well, to make a long story short, before he had time to open his greedy mouth I told him I shuldent or wouldn't sell it for less than a hundred and 50 dollers.

Yee gods, pop said, and ma said, So of course he left the house as quickly as he could get out, so now I can keep the coat indefinitely with, a clearer conscience. Dont you think I'm lucky, William? she said.

I think you're wonderful, pop said.

Which she is.

CAMPBELLFORD

J.F.R. Douglas Re-Elected C. of C. Head

CAMPBELLFORD — At the annual dinner of the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce, J. F. R. Douglas was re-elected president for 1956.

Mr. Douglas, in summing up the year's work, paid tribute to the 1955 executives and said that there had been no new industry secured for Campbellford, but that it had not been because of any lack of effort. Every new site had been totally explored. He pointed out that the fees of members constituted the only source of revenue the Chamber has and that consequently large sums are not available for any purpose. He said that expectations were high, partially because of confidence in the new Lake Ontario Regional Development Committee. He asked all to support the 'Old Home Week' committee and the new executive.

Other officers elected were: 1st vice-president, C. H. Davidson; 2nd vice-president, Don Meyers; secretary, F. G. DeCarrol, and treasurer, Austin Putnam.

Warden D. R. Maybee said that tourist business had been better last year. The meeting resolved to ask the Department of Lands and Forests to continue removing carp from the Trent River.

The treasurer reported a successful year with 78 members.

Mr. Don Kingdon, manager of the Lake Ontario Development Association, and speaker of the evening, was introduced by Mayor R. J. Locke.

Mr. Kingdon said he is proud to be manager of the association which represents one of Canada's most promising industrial areas. Planning on a municipal level is not enough, but plans must be on a regional basis, the speaker said. The Lake Ontario region embraces eight counties and 44 municipalities, of which about 30 are members. The regional body is formed to encourage and work with local bodies to promote industrial expansion and to aid established industries, including agricultural and the tourist business.

Though the Peterborough office had just commenced operations, it is planned to have slides in color made of each municipality and of the area as a whole. These will be shown wherever and whenever it is necessary to acquaint new industry or prospective tourist trade to the area. The office will assist municipal effort in every possible way.

He urged individual citizens to do what they can by boosting their own towns on every possible occasion.

After a question period, which Mr. Kingdon most graciously answered, George Nicholls thanked the speaker.

Afraid Surplus Grain to Become Surplus Pork

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario farmers suggested today the federal government buy up surplus prairie feed grain to prevent a big surplus of hogs upsetting pork prices.

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture said in a brief to the Gordon economic commission that Ontario farmers near prairie producers, by feeding surplus grain to hogs, may build up big pork surpluses with a resulting drop in prices.

Prairie farmers, the federation said, head the world in producing grain efficiently and if there is any surplus, it is easier to store it in the form of grain rather than meat.

For that reason it suggested the government establish an "even-normal granary," buying up western grain and storing it for future need, lessening the danger of a wheat pile-up.

Turning to the more distant future, it estimated that by 1975, Ontario livestock men will become increasingly dependent on western producers for feed grain. This dependence will be "extremely great" because of the difficulty of finding new farmland in Ontario and the disappearance of some land in current use through industrial and urban expansion.

"Possibly the beef cattle breeding industry would decline relatively in favor of the finishing of feed cattle of western origin. In fact, it would seem reasonable to suppose that much of Ontario's beef requirements may come from outside the province."

ACCEPTS POST

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Whitehead, an Associated Press writer since 1931 and twice winner of the Pulitzer Prize, has accepted a position as chief of the Washington bureau of the New York Herald Tribune. He will succeed Walter Kerr, who resigned from the newspaper's staff.

Nominate Rhee For Third Term

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—President Syngman Rhee's Liberal party renominated him for a third term Monday. The 80-year-old president replied that he did not want to run, but political observers took it as a political gesture rather than an outright refusal.

Eight hundred delegates at the party convention unanimously nominated Rhee for reelection in the elections which must be held by July 15.

A move to draft Rhee, was expected to form soon.

Rhee sent a statement outlining his reasons for not wanting to run to the convention shortly after it opened. He said his presidence will be "extremely great" because of the difficulty of finding new farmland in Ontario and the disappearance of some land in current use through industrial and urban expansion.

"Possibly the beef cattle breeding industry would decline relatively in favor of the finishing of feed cattle of western origin. In fact, it would seem reasonable to suppose that much of Ontario's beef requirements may come from outside the province."

Texas Tourist Finds $15,000 Diamond in Mine

MURFREESBORO, Ark. (AP)—A Texas tourist found a 15½-carat diamond Sunday at the nearby Crater of Diamonds, the only diamond mine in North America. The estimated value of the stone is $15,000.

According to the rules of the mine, Mrs. A. L. Parker of Dallas will be permitted to keep all but 25 per cent of the appraised valuation of the diamond. She must pay the 25 per cent to the manager of the mine.

Packers Declare Profit Margins May Have to Rise

OTTAWA (CP)—Meat packers may have to increase their profit margins if they are to provide more services for consumers in the future, the Meat Packers Council of Canada said Monday.

It noted in a brief to the Gordon economic commission that the trend in meat distribution is to have the product prepared and packaged at the plant in a way that the housewife can pick up at the super-market and take home. This "prepackaging" required extra equipment, labor and money.

But the council also observed farmers are tending to sell more of their products through producer marketing boards, and that the tremendous growth of supermarkets was changing the traditional wholesale method of meat distribution.

Russia Ahead Of West Says Ottawa Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Russia appears to be ahead of the West in military strength and in other vital developments, I. Norman Smith, associate editor of the Ottawa Journal, told here Monday.

"How much warning do we need that Russia is a mighty and flourishing nation!" he asked in an address to a joint meeting of the Canadian and Empire clubs.

Mr. Smith, who was in Russia with External Affairs Minister Pearson last October, said reports showed Russia ahead of the West in military strength and effort, in education, in scientific research, in expansion of agriculture and in production of atomic power.

He said there could be no doubting the "dark facts" of Russia, the oppression and utter lack of liberty. But it was time Canadians recognized what may be the darker facts—the evident vigor and growth of the Communist system both in Russia and throughout the world.

Against the successful spread of Russian propaganda throughout Asia the "meagre" Canadian contribution of $2.20 per person per year to the Colombo plan was, he said, a fair representation of the degree of Canadian awareness of the revolution going on in Asia.

saved. Interior of the building on the southern side was burned out. Owner Elias Laxoff estimated his loss at about $35,000. The cause has not been determined.

"IT'S TOO LATE TO PLACE INSURANCE AFTER THE FIRE"

22 HEAD OF CATTLE, HOGS, HENS BURNED In Sidney Twp. Blaze

Loss estimated at over $13,000 was caused early today when the large frame barn owned by a Sidney township farmer, was completely destroyed by fire along with many hay, grain and implements.

Twenty-two head of cattle including ten milch cows, 38 hogs, five brood sows and 123 hens were lost in the blaze.

Also destroyed were farm implements including seed drill, hay loader, cultivator, mower and binder.

The farm tractor, which was in another building, was about the only implement not burned.

The fire is believed to have started shortly after 4 o'clock and was discovered by a motorist who was passing at the time. The motorist awakened the farmer, but it was too late to save any of the trapped animals.

The Belleville fire department was called out but nothing could be done to save the building. No other buildings were endangered.

This loss was partly covered by insurance.

Bulganin Calls Eisenhower Note 'Very Interesting'

Letter About Disarmament 'A Good One' Says Russian

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) Administration officials say the United States will make several new disarmament proposals to Russia and the Western powers later this month.

The proposals will be in line with President Eisenhower's appeal in a new letter to Russia's Premier Bulganin to bring Soviet control of the nuclear threat" hanging over the world.

Eisenhower's letter was released by the White House Tuesday, and within a few hours Bulganin told reporters in Moscow "it was a very interesting letter and a good one." He added that it "should require much study.

The United Nations disarmament sub - committee is scheduled to meet in London March 19. Harold E. Stassen, Eisenhower's special assistant on disarmament, plans to fly to London Saturday. Between then and March 19 he will hold preliminary talks with representatives of Britain, Canada and France.

Those countries, together with the U. S. and Russia, make up the sub-committee which is trying to develop disarmament moves acceptable to both the Soviet and Western powers.

BASIC POLICY

Stassen says that for several months the Eisenhower administration has been making basic disarmament policy decisions, described as following up Eisenhower's proposal at the "summit" conference last July for mutual "open skies" aerial inspections.

Eisenhower's letter is authoritatively described as reflecting those decisions on several key points. The proposals which Stassen will make in London, it is said, will be general and subject to negotiation.

The points in the Eisenhower letter, which officials titled as significant for future disarmament negotiations were these:

1. The "open skies" plan, coupled with a Russian proposal for ground inspection teams, to reduce "the danger of surprise attack" and lead to easing tension.

2. If the air and ground inspection system could be put into "full working operation," the U. S. would be "prepared to work out with the needed arrangements" to freeze stockpiles of atomic weapons and to reduce the conventional armaments.

LIMIT ARMS

3. Disarmament negotiations in the immediate future should concentrate on limiting arms rather than on controlling or reducing military establishments. Eisenhower said it should be possible "now to agree" on limitations of "major types of armaments." Stassen said this would cover such things as bombers, missiles and tanks.

Hard for Doctors to Keep Abreast Of Progress in Heart Disease Fight

TORONTO (CP)—A medical professor says progress in combatting heart disease is so rapid that it is all the practicing cardiologist can do to keep abreast of the indications for, and benefits of, new and various investigations and surgical procedures available in his own centre and elsewhere."

Most notable advances, he said, have been in diagnosis and treatment of diseases of the heart and arteries.

He said Canada's refined diet, with its particular emphasis on dairy products, might be one of the most important factors contributing to the problem.

"Studies on diet of various races and tribes have the countries reporting the greatest incidence of atherosclerosis are those having the highest fat diet."

Dr. Burton said there are 500,000 Canadians with diseased hearts or blood vessels and these diseases are responsible for a third of all Canadian deaths.

Alex G. Solomon of Montreal, national executive secretary of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, said polio will continue to be a problem for many years despite the advent of Salk vaccine.

"Thousands of pre-vaccine cases will be in the foundation for years and there will continue to be new cases," he said.

Robert H. Robinson, education director for the Alcoholism Research Foundation said nearly 57,000 alcoholics in Ontario and 4,000 new cases are added each year. He said:

"When we think of preventing alcoholism we must not be blinded or shortsighted by the thought of preventing drinking. Alcoholism, after all, is not the inevitable end of every man, woman and child who drinks alcoholic beverages."

Defence Possible Against Guided Missile—Solandt

Claims CF-105 Will Be Last Piloted Fighter

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence against the Intercontinental Guided Missile is possible, says Dr. O. M. Solandt, former chairman of the Defence Research Board.

But the "next danger" in the next 10 or 15 years, he told a 90-minute press conference Tuesday, is the time-lag between development of the ICBM and the defence against it, which undoubtedly would be some form of counter-missile.

Whichever side—the free world or the Communists —first got the ICBM would hold political dominance over the other at least until an effective countermeasure was developed.

He said ground-to-air guided missiles fitted with nuclear warheads will be required for an effective Canadian air defence system in the foreseeable future.

SUPERSEDE PLANES

The 46-year-old doctor - scientist said ground-to-air missiles eventually will supersede fighter planes in the defence system.

The CF - 105 jet interceptor, a prototype of which may be flown next year, probably would be the last piloted fighter produced in Canada.

Dr. Solandt, who left DRB last week to become assistant vice-president of Canadian National Railways, said he was not "surprised" if the ICBM does not become a reality within 15 years.

Top priority must be given in Canada in the coming years to improved methods of detection and early warning of attack.

But when the ICBM became an operational weapon the air defence problem as it is known today—radar lines and interceptor planes—would be dead, he said.

WARNS OF SHORTAGE

A.H. Zimmerman, Dr. Solandt's successor at DRB, said the defence against the ICBM will have to be 99 per cent effective if the missile carries an atomic warhead.

Dr. Solandt warned that the shortage of scientists and engineers in Canada is already a critical problem, not only for defence research but for industry as well. This shortage would be the dominant factor in Canada's scientific and economic development.

Mr. Zimmerman, secretary of DRB from its founding more than 10 years ago, said Canada hasn't the scientific manpower necessary to develop new guided missiles on its own. Canadian scientists, therefore, would concentrate on adapting United States missiles to Canadian needs.

Mr. Zimmerman said some 400 Canadian scientists in government and industry now are up to date in the guided missiles field.

U.K. FOREIGN MINISTER ON TOUR

Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, left, and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd are shown walking through the Taj-Ismar palace, one of the former royal estates outside Cairo, as they conferred on the current tension in the Middle East. Lloyd's visit was aimed at bolstering the pro-West forces in the Middle East. After two days of secret discussions with Nasser, Lloyd left Cairo for Karachi, Pakistan, where he is meeting with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and foreign ministers of the Southeast Asia Collective Defence Treaty alliance. Bridges Closed by Widespread Flooding from Ontario Storm

TORONTO (CP) An anxious watch was placed today on the rain-swollen Humber river which claimed scores of lives in 1954 during hurricane Hazel.

Civil defence officials reported the usually-placid river, rising 2 miles north of Toronto, was swelling only a foot below suburban bridges and was clogged with ice.

At least 44 families were evacuated from their homes, 24 in near-by Pickering township and 20 in Pine Grove and Woodbridge.

Lightning flashed and thunder rumbled as the night storm which brought the new threat to south-ern Ontario swelled small rivers and streams to the danger level, choked sewers and sent flood-waters surging into thousands of cellars.

Many roads were blocked. No injuries or deaths were reported.

Police at Bolton, 24 miles north of Toronto, reported the water rose four feet during the night at one of the Humber's major dams. They said the level could climb 3½ more feet before reaching the danger point.

Peak of the storm —which dumped more than an inch of rain overnight—was said well past in most of southern Ontario, although showers followed by snowflurries were forecast for later today. Some freezing rain was reported between Trenton and Kingston.

Minor flooding was general. Lightning-ignited fires destroyed barns in Tillsonburg and Rodney, in the London area. Wind ripped the roof off a large farm equipment plant at Thamesville and lightning smashed a four-foot section of wall on a Hamilton school.

Dozens of communities reported power breaks and uncounted house basements were flooded.

Egyptian, Israeli Troops Exchange Gaza Area Fire

JERUSALEM—(Reuters)—Egyptian positions and an Israeli outpost exchanged fire on the Gaza strip border today, an Israeli military spokesman said.

He said the Israelis returned fire when Egyptians opened up on an Israeli outpost in the Beeri sector southeast of the town of Gaza. The Israelis suffered no casualties.

The Israeli foreign office charged Egypt with "massing fighting forces inside the Gaza strip and the Sinai peninsula" and accused the Egyptians of three new truce violations Tuesday. It demanded that the UN Israel-Egypt mixed armistice commission meet in emergency session to deal with the charges.

Czechs to Buy Canadian Wheat

OTTAWA (CP)—Czechoslovakia today signed an agreement to buy between $5,000,000 and $17,000,000 worth of "middle-grade" Canadian wheat during the next year, Dr. Josiav Gerych, Czechoslovakian commercial attache in Montreal, said today.

Avalanche Hits Norwegian Town, Fear 14 Perish

OSLO (Reters) — Three avalanches rumbled down Norwegian mountainsides today, one sweeping part of a village into the icy waters of a fjord and raising the known dead or missing toll to 34 so far this week in a rash of snowslides across European mountain ranges.

About 14 people are feared to have been swept into a Lofoten islands fjord when an avalanche thundered down on a group of houses in Sigerfjord.

The wreckage of one-house was towed back to land by a fishing boat.

A second avalanche destroyed a stone-built power station and cut off power from the East Lofoten islands. Rescuers dug in the ruins for two corpses found on duty.

Like more persons were reported missing after a third avalanche, also in the Lofoten islands, officials reported. Two houses near Kvaelford were buried. A family of five lived in one house, and in the other a widow lived alone.

The slides, produced by thaw conditionf softening record snow caps built up during a month of the hardest winter much of Europe has seen in a century, also struck in the Swiss and Austrian Alps.

MARLER OPPOSES COMPETITION ON SOME TCA ROUTES

Demand Made by Two Opposition Parties

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Marler has thrown cold water on opposition demands that air routes served exclusively by the publicly-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines be thrown open to competition.

He said in the Commons Tuesday he does not believe cheaper passenger and freight rates and better service would flow from TCA competition with private air carriers.

Widespread competition would result either in TCA operating losses or higher rates.

Demands that privately-owned airline companies be allowed to compete on TCA's cross-country routes came from both Progressive Conservative and Social Credit ranks.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) said there is no justification for continuing TCA's monopoly. TCA was well established, had surpluses year after year and operated to the limit of its equipment.

"I think the time has come to destroy the shackles in the other ways in Canada," he said.

George Hees (PC—Northumberland) said the CNR and TCA are bringing "the creeping paralysis of socialism to Canada."

TCA refused to permit competition from private companies. The CNR was trying to put truckers out of business by cutting rates and freight. Much of the financing would go with trucks carried "piggy back" on railway flatcars.

The two opposition members criticized the rejection of application by Eldon Woodcock, Pacific Airlines to run cross-country air freight service and by Pacific Western Airlines to operate an east-west air coach passenger service.

They were disturbed a government resolution, later adopted unanimously, to set up a three-member committee to carry out the annual review of operations of the publicly-owned CNR, TCA and Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships.

Mr. Marler said that in 1953 and 1954 TCA operated at a profit cost, with net income of $258,000 and $496,000 respectively, in the two years.

If there was to be competition on TCA routes, there must also be competition in arest where private carriers had monopolies.

John H. Horner (PC — York West) said TCA must take the lead in the use of jet transports, especially in Canada. Purchase of such planes by the government and TCA would help to develop an aircraft manufacturing industry.

R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) criticized reductions in CNR rail services on the Prairies. He said public service must be taken into consideration than CNR profits.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) renewed his past pleas for an increase in pensions of CNR employees retired some years ago. Some 6,900 were receiving pensions of less than $40 a month, including 3,200 receiving less than $25. Some were living below the lead of the CPR which recently decided to pay minimum pensions of $40 a month to all its retired employees up to the age of 70.

Teacher, Neighbor, Police, Soldiers Save Girl's Life After Artery Cut

HAMILTON (CP) — A school principal, police, soldiers and a next-door neighbor all combined forces Tuesday to save the life of an 11-year-old girl who accidentally cut an artery in her wrist.

Nellie Nieuwkerk of R. R. 3, Campbellville, suffered a slashed wrist when she accidentally fell through a plate-glass door while playing at East Flamboro public school near Hamilton.

As blood spurted from the girl's wrist, school principal Anita Johnston and Albert Bogle, a Hamilton Police Department officer who was on up his children at the school, took Nellie by car to the Ontario Provincial Police Waterdown detachment. They asked for an escort to hospital in Hamilton.

Provincial officer Allen relieved Mr. Bogle, who was near Brakaumion, in applying pressure on the girl's arm in an attempt to stop the flow of blood. Constable Alex Wynne took the driver's seat.

Heavy early evening traffic hindered the life and death race. Motorists paid little attention, police said, to the car's horn until the two officers flagged down an Army ambulance and with its warning light flashing and the siren going followed it to hospital.

Nellie was reported in fair condition after an emergency operation.

Does Not Mean Ontario Pledged To Implement It

Federal Aid Essential, Ottawa Offer Not Enough

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost today presented to the Ontario legislature for its consideration a full-scale hospital-insurance plan, including complete diagnostic, hospital and home care.

He said, however, the plan does not mean Ontario is committed in any way to setting up hospital insurance, but is intended only to show legislature members the latest government thoughts on the matter.

It was presented during a debate on second reading of a bill to set up a hospital commission.

The plan was based on more than two years' government study and outlined expenditures of $213,500,000 in 1957 if the plan were put in effective by then, rising to $300,000,000 by 1960. Federal aid was essential.

COVERS DRUGS

In its present stage, it would have the government picking up the tab for general, convalescent or chronic hospital bills including ordinary drugs, medicines and dressings.

Special diagnostic services such as radiological examinations and laboratory tests would be paid as would hospital bills for mental and tubercular patients.

Similar services would be provided if possible in homes to keep hospital crowding to a minimum.

The plan, however, would not be free. Most of the financing would be by premiums, a special sales tax or a combination of the two.

If premiums were used, and Premier Frost indicated the government prefers this system at the moment, they would be less than those now paid to private insurance organizations because federal and provincial payments would absorb some of the cost.

MUST HAVE HELP

There was no indication of when such a plan could be made operative if the legislature approves it.

Premier Frost told reporters in a pre-release press conference it is impossible for Ontario to go it alone in hospital insurance.

Federal assistance was essential, but that did not mean Ontario was satisfied with a federal government offer two months ago to pay about one-half the cost of some aspects of the plan.

"We feel the federal government's offer fails to take in all the phases needed for adequate coverage. It made, for instance, no mention of mental or tubercular patients or part of administration. We think all of these have to be covered before tough-editing considerably to Ontario's expenses.

SEAL TRACKS IN SNOW

GERALDTON (CP) — Forestry officials at this northwestern Ontario town Monday reported sighting tracks of what is believed to be a hair seal, a mammal found in Hudson bay, more than 500 miles to the northeast. Photographs were taken of the track which consisted of a trough with evenly-spaced flipper markings on each side.

Masked Bandit, Wielding Knife, Robs Housewife

WINDSOR (CP) —A suburban Sandwich East housewife told police a silent masked bandit Tuesday night entered her home, struck her with the side of a butcher knife and stole $368.

Mrs. Barbara Mallet said the man, who wore a rubber mask and rubber gloves, took the money from a box in the bottom of a cupboard and gathered up some of the family's clothing.

Britain Confers With Her Allies On Middle East

LONDON (Reuters) — Minister of State Anthony Nutting said today Britain is consulting her allies on the situation in the Middle East, and asked the House of Commons to await the outcome of these discussions before demanding a detailed statement of the British position.

He was opening a debate called at short notice to discuss the crisis created by Egyptian dismissal of Lt.-Gen. Sir John Glubb, British commander of the Arab Legion in Jordan.

Nutting said Britain is pausing through "a difficult and troublesome phase" in dealing with the Arab nations.

He referred to a third party which is "pouring poison into the wound and doing its best to increase hostility against all we stand for."

He rejected suggestions that Britain should drastically revise her Middle East policy. What is needed is patience and consistency, Nutting said.

"I want to make it perfectly clear that we stand firm and four-square by the Baghdad pact," he said.

"We have no intention whatever of abandoning our friends who have joined in it with us."

Britain, he said, wants to make it clear that the British government intends to stand firm in the Persian gulf, where Britain has been in dispute with Saudi Arabia over the oil-rich Buraimi oasis.

Nutting said Britain is consulting the second council of the United Nations on the possibility of improving and perhaps extending the machinery for supervising a truce on Israel's borders.

Coins Tax Line To Get Company While Drinking

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) a garrulous fellow fell in line with taxpayers waiting to make out their returns at the internal revenue service office here Tuesday.

Joking with those nearest him, he reached the head of the line. Then he headed to a rest room. In a moment he returned, and took his turn at the end.

Again he reached the head of the line. Again he left for the rest room. That kept up for a couple of hours.

Finally a government worker trailed him to the rest room and watched him lift a bottle of liquor from his coat and take a swig.

The explanation?

"Well," said the mystery man, "you see I don't like to drink alone, and I saw this line of people, so I just fell in."

Cypriots Defy British Effort To End Terrorism

NICOSIA; Cyprus (Reuters) — The crump of terrorist bomb explosions sounded during the night as Greek Cypriots defied intensified British measures to stamp out their campaign of violence on the Mediterranean island.

A Greek Cypriot youth was fatally injured by a bomb splinter when terrorists hurled a grenade at a British Army patrol car near Feyia, north of the west coast port of Paphos.

Terrorists, pressing Greek Cypriot demands for merger of Cyprus with Greece, also lobbed two bombs at police offices in Morphou, 20 miles west of Nicosia, at midnight. The bombs caused damage, but no casualties.

The outbreaks followed the biggest search carried out by British troops in Nicosia since the wave of violence reached its present pitch a year ago. Troops stopped cars all over this capital, and carefully searched drivers and passengers while other soldiers warily covered them with machine-guns from doorways.

Six Greek Cypriot youths were sentenced today to life imprisonment when they pleaded guilty to carrying arms and ammunition last December.

VOLCANO ERUPTS

LONDON (AP) — The volcano Bezymiannaya on the Siberian peninsula of Kamchatka has been erupting 35% months, Moscow radio reported today. It quoted a volcanologist as saying the eruption "is quite likely to continue for one or two years." No one lives within 35 miles of the volcano, he said.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The storm that produced considerable rain over southern Ontario during the night is now moving rapidly eastward through Pennsylvania. The cold air that has covered over the Prairies and northern Ontario for the past few days is now expected to plunge southward over the Great Lakes to bring us another taste of winter.

CITY & DISTRICT NEWS

CJBQ REQUESTS POWER INCREASE, FREQUENCY CHANGE

Radio station CJBQ has submitted a brief to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and to the Department of Transport asking for a power increase and a change in frequency.

The brief seeks an increase in power from 250 to 1,000 watts on a frequency of 800, not 1,230 kilocycles. The change was necessitated transfer of the transmitter site from the Foxboro road to Prince Edward County.

A. McLean Haig, President of the Quinte Broadcasting Co. which operates CJBQ, said the CBC governors would hear the application on March 28th.

MIXED-UP WEATHER VISITS QUINTE AREA

After a period of consistent mildness the weather last night became as mixed-up as a hurried cocktail.

Within the space of an hour the Belleville district underwent a downpour of rain, barrage of thunder and lightning and a snow fall.

The sudden change ended in sleet which continued into this morning. Snowflurries are predicted for tonight and Thursday with the temperature low at 25 degrees tonight.

House League Basketball Teams Feted at YMCA

Approximately 40 members of the Belleville YMCA basketball house league teams were feted, awarded and entertained by the "Y" 's Men's Club last night at a presentation banquet in the Y gymnasium.

Trophies, crests and words of praise were directed towards the members of the Junior and Youth league teams while tributes were paid to physical director Jim Herbert as Mr. Di Diamantides the "Y".

The feeling of good sportsmanship, which the YMCA fosters in the youth of the city, was expressed clearly by Mac J. Pearson, chairman of the Boys Works Committee. Chairman Pearson closed his brief address with the statement that "there's not too much left of it before the year's is the games' play, the point is they all gave their best and that's the main objective."

Homer "Red" Townsend brought greetings from the Physical Education Committee, complimenting Heffman and Diamantides on their fine work and thanking the press for coverage of the league games.

Mr. Diamantides expressed greetings on behalf of Don Williams, chairman of the Board of Directors of the "Y" who was unable to attend. He said he hoped the boys had learned something in the past season.

The "Y" is not a club, it is a Christian organization and we do things in the Christian way to make you better boys" he concluded. He also urged the boys to continue at the "Y", assuring them of plenty of new sports since the basketball season has closed.

In the junior division, the "Black Hawks" were the champions with captain Brian Valcamp accepting the trophy from Mr. Bill Hutchinson, president of the "Y" Men's Club. Crests were given to team members, Valcamp, Ted Hook, John Peoples, Chuck Ruttan and Bob Burley.

Mr. Hutchinson presented the "Y's" Men's trophy for the youth championship to Jim Dickey, captain of the "Bullets". His team was composed of Randy Evans, Don Masters, Dave Valcamp and Graham Fox.

Team captains Jack Calnan and Jim Green of the south section also received crests on behalf of the junior captains. Don Skinner, Ralph Boomhower, Jim Hook and Don Whitehead, the league's referees, produced all award winners.

Sixty boys in all participate in the two divisions. The junior consists of boys up to 14 years of age while the youth group is for the 15 to 17 year old bracket.

Accused Fined $150 and Costs For Bootlegging

Convicted on a charge of bootlegging, Joseph Anthony, 34 South Church Street, was assessed $150 fine and the costs by Magistrate C. C. Jackson in city magistrate's court Tuesday. In default of payment Anthony will serve two months in the county jail.

Police Constable J. Kent told the court that he had watched the Rushlow home on February 26th and after seeing a man enter and leave the house had obtained a search warrant and searched the house. He found 24 bottles of liquor and one of wine.

Rushlow was identified by the constable as the man who had sold him liquor.

Florence Thompson first attended teacher of music in Albert Ladies College, Belleville, and in the former location on College Street, and she attended the, related institution at the present college in its present location.

Mrs. Gillanders is survived by her husband at 2111 West 41st Ave., Vancouver; two daughters, Mrs. Stirling (Margot) of Seattle; Miss Beth Gillanders, of Toronto, and one sister, Miss Marion Thompson, of Vancouver.

4-H Homemaking Clubs Hold Achievement Day

On Saturday, at Madoc High School, Hastings County's 4-H Homemaking clubs held their fall and winter 4-H Homemaking Achievement Day on the project, "Club Girl Entertains."

Highlight of the afternoon's program was the judging of table flower arrangements, sandwich plate arrangements, and clothing as a party which took place during the morning's program. In the afternoon, skits, and demonstrations were presented on one of the topics, "Tea Time Etiquette, Table Manners, and Packing a Weekend Bag". Exhibits were also displayed on the topic, "A Table Set For Two."

Six clubs were represented at this Achievement Day. There were, McArthur's Mills, Mrs. Smith, leader; Maynooth: Mrs. W. J. David, leader; Eldorado, the leading Mrs. Ira Pigeon; Quenubore, Mrs. A. Holmes, leader; Cooper Hennigton, Mrs. Allen McCoy, leader; and Chapman, Mrs. Albert Martin, leader.

Mrs. Velma Carman, a member of the Eldorado club, received county honors, also completing six projects.

The project selected for this fall and winter club work, is, "Being Well Dressed and Well Groomed."

Good Driving Stressed By Kiwanis Speaker

The necessity of conscientious driving yesterday was stressed to the Kiwanis club here.

A special film, presented by the Shell Oil Company of Canada Limited, highlighted the program. Prior to the film an address by the company's local representative Robert Irvine, also a Kiwanian, also was given the club on the same subject. Mr. Irvine outlined the current Shell safety campaign now being presented the public and the reasons of the company in carrying out such a program.

He was introduced by Bud Punchard and thanked by Jim Jarvis.

The club also heard a brief address by Miss Camellia Campbell, New York City representative of the Community Concerts Associations, who spoke on behalf of the local association's present membership drive.

A reminder that this is Education week was also given the club by the president of nearly a dozen school boys, all members of the city's minor league Detroit Red Wings hockey team. They were introduced individually by Jim Musgrove.

Hastings Juniors Hear Details of Alberta Set-up

Hastings Juniors were privileged to take a trip to Alberta on Thursday, March 1st. The occasion was the annual meeting of the Hastings County Junior Farmers' Association.

Miss Myrtle Stewart, president of the Ontario Junior Farmers' Association, showed slides on her exchange visit to Alberta along with Don Middleton.

Miss Stewart described the junior organization in Alberta, namely; the junior section of the Farmers' Union. She stated that their organization does not have the same degree of organization as in Ontario, nor do they have the government support that Department of Agriculture. However, they have begun with judging and public speaking competitions and have exchanged delegates with England, Denmark and others from the U.S.A. to the Rockies illustrated her commentary.

The annual meeting began with a pot-luck supper. Following this, Ralph Dowson, president, gave a brief resume of the year's activities. He expressed his thanks for the co-operation given Girls in the past year and urged more participation in county activities such as public speaking, debating, and group singing.

TROPHY PRESENTED

An added feature of the evening was the presentation of the Ontario Veterinary Challenge Trophy by Dr. J. B. Clapp, a representative of the Ontario Veterinary Association to Ross Bancroft, Douglas Burnside and Douglas Dedon, for their efforts in Swine Judging at the Inter-County competitions at the Ex. in Toronto.

County Director Robert Burton in his remarks reviewed some of the changes which have taken place in the provincial organization. He informed us of the change of date and arrangements for the Guelph conference, the added participation in the leadership schools by holding them on Saturday, and the new system for membership in the Provincial organization.

A draw was held for the first copy of the second edition of "Hasco Facts" and the Farmers' Year Book., Once again, congratulations are in order to Miss Kathleen Homan and her editorial staff for this book, giving the activities of Hastings Juniors over the past year.

The new slate of officers for the coming year is as follows: past president, Ralph Swan, Corbyville, No. 1; president, Kathleen Homan, Corbyville, No. 1; vice-president, Ross Moorcroft, Madoc, No. 3; secretary, Geths Joslin Foxboro, No. 1; treasurer, Jean Frost Belleville, No. 2; publicity director, Marilyn Parks, Foxboro; county director, Ross Homan, Corbyville; directors—Betty Ketcheson, Madoc, No. 1, Helen Bellett, Stirling, No. 3, Ross Bateman, Tweed, No. 2.

Parents' Presence Probably Saved School from Fire

The fact that last night was "open house" at the Prince of Wales School on North James street was the only reason from possible serious fire damage when during the evening program a blaze was discovered in the furnace room.

An hour later and the school would have been empty and the blaze undoubtedly would have gotten a good start before it was discovered.

Under the circumstances the fire loss was negligible but some smoke damage to walls was reported.

Although city firemen who responded to the alarm termed the fire as a rubbish blaze, school officials today said they did not know the origin of the blaze.

During the course of last night's programs smoke was amplified as it filtered up into the school with investigation "revealing the small blaze in the furnace room. The blaze was brought under control before the arrival of firemen.

Steel Workers Likely to Demand Substantial Raise

NEW YORK (AP)—The national steel trade weekly says labor in the industry will not be inclined to take anything less than a substantial settlement in the current wage negotiations.

The magazine Iron Age says David J. McDonald, head of the United Steelworkers union, is decrying talk of a possible strike in the United States, but that the set-

AFRICANS DECIDE THEIR OWN FUTURE

New Construction, Additions Planned for OSD in Budget

On May 9, British Togoland will hold a plebiscite under U.N. supervision which will allow citizens of the African territory to decide if they wish to join the Gold Coast—when it becomes independent in the near future, or if they wish to continue under U.N. trusteeship. Heading the U.N. supervisory committee is Eduardo Espinosa Prieto of Mexico, centre, and assistant commissioner is O. R. Blair from Britain, shown talking to a boatman as they travel from town to town in Togoland. The territory has a population of 423,000. (Central Press Canadian).

Quinte Club Holds Skating Championships

The annual club championships for figure skating were held Tuesday evening at the Belleville Memorial Arena, by the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club.

This is the second year these competitions have been held and the interest shown by the skaters is encouraging to those of the executive in charge of this branch of the club.

This year the club has an enrolment of 480 members, many of whom are interested in general skating and many others who are interested more in figure skating. The skating committee has endeavored this year to encourage both types of skating by supplementing the ice time at the open air rink with supervised instruction in the Memorial school at the arena in figure skating.

Owing to the increased number of officials and judges required, the senior sections having reached the size of professional instruction, it is hoped that next year a professional can be hired by the club for figure skating with all this instruction to take place at the arena. This will leave the open air club rink more available for general skating, figure skating practice, and the junior and youth club to provide the younger boys with their skating time.

Dr. W. C. McCutcheon, vice-president of the club and chairman of the skating section; Mrs. Olivia Weese, club instructress, assisted by Miss Lillian Sprackett are to be congratulated for their fine efforts and results shown this year.

Judges for the events were: Mr. and Mrs. Percival Fairfield, Mrs. Duane Warren.

Results are as follows:

Junior Ladies—First, Miss Sidney Pringle; runner-up, Miss Margaret Hesselton. Those taking part in this event were: Ellen McCreary, Dayna Hasty, Brenda Hasty, Joan Sherry, Sherry Drysdale, Frances Sheffield, Jan Sheffield, Gail Greenwood, Judy Long, Sheila—Casey, Mary Jane Deacon, Meg Van Aistine.

Junior Girls—First, Miss Forrest Smith. Also taking part in this event were: Barbara Dyble, Edward Purdy.

Senior Ladies—First, Mrs. Joan Kelly; runner-up, Penny Grills. Also taking part in this event were: Barbara Dyble, Barbara Matthews, Frances Dickens.

Senior Men's—First, Mr. Jo Calcbery.

Senior Dancing (Waltz) — First, Miss Lillian Sprackett and Mr. Jo Calbery. Also taking part in this event were: Barbara Dyble and Lynn Punchard; Penny Grills and Mary Ann Kelly; Barbara Matthews and Frances Dickens.

Following the competitions a short program of skating numbers was given by the members, as follows:

Single, Barbara Matthews; pair, Jane and Peggy McCutcheon; single, Jo Calbery; pair, Lynn Punchard and Barbara Matthews; single, Mrs. Joan Kelly; pair, Mrs. Olivia Weese and Jo Calbery; single, Lynn Punchard; club skills by members of the club.

The evening concluded with a period of general skating.

Local Amateur Art Exhibition Will Be Staged

Belleville and District Amateur Art Show will be held on Friday, March 23rd. An opportunity is provided for any amateur artist resident to exhibit to enter three original pictures. These should be framed. The fee for each of the three entries will be chosen by a jury of three competent artists to represent Belleville in the East Central Ontario Travelling Art Exhibition. This exhibition opens in Port Hope on April 6th, and will appear in fourteen centres extending from Belleville, Kingston and north to Haliburton.

It is hoped that sufficient interest will be created, which will lead to a higher standard of painting

Increased school enrolment is causing growing pains at the Ontario School for the Deaf here as well as with other public and high schools across the province.

Indicative of this is the progress of new construction and additions at the OSD which was provided for in the Ontario government budget brought down last week.

Underway at the present time at the big school west of the city is the erection of a new central heating plant and school laundry as well as the construction of 35 classrooms. Lighting of the classrooms is being changed to modern fluorescent style.

Also listed for the school is the installation of a fire alarm system; installation of two fire escapes at the boys' building and the junior residence.

In the planning stage is a new junior residence to house 100 students and would be constructed to the west of the present buildings.

Work now underway at the school is being done by employees of Ontario Department of Public Works.

School Classes Will Be Heard At Work, Play

Taking part in the panel will be Rev. Silcox, Harry Jones, principal of St. Michael's High School and chairman of the Education Week radio committee; A. E. Kelly, administrator of Belleville public schools and Miss Hall, principal of Quinte Secondary School.

Police Blotter

Milk bottles on the West Hill took a beating last night with at least half a dozen residents in the Dufferin and Pinnacle street areas complaining that money had been taken from bottles set out for the milkman's collection.

One Purdy street man discovered his loss early — at 7.30 to be exact — and promptly reported the matter to the police. Another man reported that $1 in his milk bottle. He had put the money out for the bottle to purchase tickets.

A Sinclair street resident complained of a prowler and investigating police after checking tracks in the snow apprehended Maurice Archer, 21, at 102 Front street. This morning after questioning Archer was charged with theft with police alleging connection with the milk bottle thefts.

And Anthony Bell, 316 Victoria Ave., complained that someone had stolen four tires from his car. The car was parked on a downtown grocteria parking lot.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Papers and refining oils were firmer in a generally mixed industrial list during first-hour stock exchange dealings today.

A 52 gain at a high of $46 by Bathurst Power B topped industrial advances. International Petroleum added $1.25 at $34.50 and Dow Brewery was up $1.50 at $33.50.

Loblaw Inc. dipped $2.50 to a year's low of $78 and Chrysler was off $2.25 at 373.50.

Falconbridge and Steep Rock advanced fractions among senior mines. New Rouyn gained 20 at $4.90. Temagami retreated 25 cents to $6.75.

Uraniums showed weakness following a statement by W. J. Bennett, president of the government agency Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., that future demand for uranium for peaceful uses cannot yet be estimated. Losses ranged to Can-Met's 25 cents.

Calgary and Edmonton, Great Plains and Kroy were among the higher western oils. General Petro dropped 30 cents.

Blind Cripple Will Testify In Forgery Case

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A bedridden 86-year-old woman was to go to court by ambulance today to testify against a city detective charged with forging her sister's $11,000 will.

Miss Matha Catzwell, crippled and blind resident of a city nursing home, was to be one of the chief crown witnesses in the preliminary hearing of charges against Lt. Alfred Carter and Mrs. Gladys Dansdock, recently-dismissed city civil defence secretary.

Preliminary hearing of charges against auto dealer Lovell McMichael, also awaiting trial in connection with the will of Miss Mary Isabel Catzwell, is to be held later.

Mollet to Stake Govt. Life on Algerian Policy

PARIS (Reuters) — The French cabinet today authorized Premier Guy Mollet to stake the life of his government on the National Assembly's approval of his Algerian policy.

The government has asked parliament to grant it special military, economic and social powers to deal with the worsening Algerian crisis. The debate on the special powers bill opens Thursday.

Reports from Algiers said 16 were killed by the rebels in isolated attacks Tuesday. The rebels also sabotaged roads and railroad tracks, set fire to farms and blinded and killed cattle. Thirty-four rebels were shot in widespread clashes.

Flood Isolates Woodstock

WOODSTOCK (CP)—The upper Thames river was on the rampage here this morning after overnight rains sent it to the highest point since the upper Thames valley conservation authority improvements were started.

Woodstock is virtually isolated from the west. Highway No. 2 has been blocked due to undermining at the city limits.

Governors road, between Woodstock and Thamesford has been cut off by water three feet deep. The 19 highway between Woodstock and Tavistock was covered by eight inches of water and bridges on No. 97 highway between Hickson and Bright were weakened.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of ¼ per cent in terms of Canada funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Tuesday's noon rate 99 13-16 cents. Pound sterling $2.79 15-16, up 3-16.

ICE COVERED ROADS CREATE HAZARD

Rain, freezing as it fell, slowed highway traffic between Belleville and Trenton to 20 miles an hour most of today. Ice covered roads created a hazard for drivers of trucks and cars.

Grouper, Conch Best Sea Food Dishes Found on Holiday Trip

By ELMER BONTEN

NASSAU, Bahamas — (Special) — The first of only two disappointments came in my search of this 21-mile long island for something good to eat. I realized that businessmen here must make money in the tourist season and charge accordingly but surely the food could be of better quality and the cooking more tasty. I thought many times that Canadian culinary, especially in Montreal where fish dishes are known the world over, takes a lot of beating. More than once I longed to get my teeth into a nice thick T-bone steak anywhere than rabbit unknown to the Bahamians.

If you like fish choose grouper. Conch, a shelled sea delicacy is the favorite and most advertised native dish. It is served in salad form with fresh vegetables or in oil. Turtle steaks are also recommended on most bill-of-fares.

To give you an idea of the high cost of eating the two friends I came here with, Jim Morrell and Dave Katz and myself went to dinner in the Royal Victoria, one of the better hotels. The atmosphere on a patio enclosed by cocoanut trees was inviting and helped the appetite. Soft music played for dancers at one end of the spacious open-air dining room.

Two colored waiters provided excellent service. There were the usual appetizers, entrees and the main dish ranging from lobster, scrutiny of the menu turned out to be the old reliable prime rib roast of beef. The portion was sufficient, the meal was cooked under but the usual flavor was missing. Incidentally the check which I picked up this time totaled $27.95. And then there was the 10 per cent tip. I decided to think twice before I ate in a place like that again.

There is a true story going the rounds here about the most expensive hamburg in the world. A man and his wife operated a bar and restaurant just over the wall from the hotel I am stopping at. That was until last year when they put themselves out of business. Not because their charge for meat on a bun was too high. Because they could not agree on it.

Anyway the proprietors had a very popular gathering place, attracting many from the social register. The select clientelle found no objection to paying $3.50 for a hamburg without trimmings. Everything was going along fine until one night the couple tangled in the kitchen and by daybreak they had smashed every dish in the establishment. They had to borrow earthenware from a neighbor in order to serve their "goldburgs" the next night as the story goes. Even this much talked about rendezvous is vacant and up for rent.

Ten days had elapsed before I discovered I could buy a healthy leg of fried chicken for 4 shillings or about 60c in Canadian money. The only thing you had to do to take advantage of this bargain was pay one dollar for a taxi there and the same back. It seemed to me to be a come on for tourists who patronize the bar.

Once I had an evening meal at the Golden Dragon, advertised as a Chinese restaurant specializing in Oriental dishes. The only Chinese I saw in the place was a head waitress. The others under her were colored. Notwithstanding the sweet and sour spareribs were close to comparing with the Canadian and American equivalent. The bill was enough but more in line with local prices.

PERIOD BOOKED SOLID

It was reported that the Cumberland restaurant higher up from the beach on Marlborough Street had earned the reputation of the best eating place on the island. You have to make a reservation for a meal since it has become popular. I tried twice and failed both times because the dinner period was booked solid. I resorted to chicken in a basket at the Imperial where George Simonette, King of the Calypso, plays and sings his original songs nightly. This is one attraction few tourists miss. The native entertainer has contributed a great deal to the color of this south sea paradise.

17,000 Workers Needed to Take Canada's Census

OTTAWA (CP) — Almost 17,000 workers will count Canada's population in the first five-year census starting June 1, the trade department said today.

There will be a commissioner for each of 265 census districts, 526 field supervisors and about 16,000 enumerators who will gather the information. The department estimated most of the commissioners today.

Because of the time needed to compile results, and a trend in the past has had one only every 10 years, the new techniques developed in the 1951 census have cut down this time and made a five-year census practicable.

The department said this year's census has been designed to cost about $5,000,000, compared with $8,000,000 in 1951. It had been slimmed down to just five general questions plus a more detailed questionnaire on agriculture. Each person will be asked his age, sex, marital status, relationship to the head of the household and whether living on a farm. This compares with 29 questions in 1951.

BANK BACK TO NORMAL

BONHAM, Tex. (AP) — Operations got back to normal Tuesday at the First National Bank after an unexpectedly long weekend. When the bank closed Saturday afternoon there was a miscalculation, and the time vault on the lock was set to open at 8 a. m. Tuesday instead of 8 a. m. Monday.

Student Urges Housecleaning At University

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A 20-year-old sophomore at the University of Alabama has called for a top-to-bottom house cleaning at the school and challenged authorities to throw him out for his views in favor of segregation.

University officials had no immediate comment on Tuesday night's remarks by Leonard Wilson, a student from Selma, home of the first "citizens' council" in Alabama.

Wilson told a rally of the Association of Citizens' Councils of Alabama that the university's investigation of mob action which drove Negro co-ed Autherine Lucy from the campus was a "witch hunt" and an "inquisition."

The student quoted an Associated Press dispatch saying that Dr. Oliver C. Carmichael, president of the university, had said "the girl's constitutional rights might be admitted to the university if the board of trustees approved.

"She didn't have the courage to tell that to Alabama newspapers," Wilson said.

SHOUT THREATS

There were shouts from the 2,600 persons assembled in the Birstock hall at the state fair grounds of "throw him out" and "impeach him." The rally was held in direct reference to Carmichael.

Wilson last month had addressed one of the crowds which assembled after Miss Lucy enrolled in the university. She was suspended after three days of rioting. Subsequently she left the university in order to return and this was granted. Before she returned to her school here she was expelled because of the charges she had against university officials.

TUNNEL COLLAPSES

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—A tunnel collapsed in the Chilean - owned Disputada de las Condes copper mine on Santiago's eastern outskirts on Monday. Rescuers dug out seven severely injured miners and two bodies. A dynamite charge touched off premature cascaded tons of earth into the tunnel.

Defence Ready To Present Case In Murder Trial

COCHRANE (CP) — The defence was scheduled to present its case today in the trial of murder of Paul Gauthier, charged in the slaying last December of grocer Joseph Rizzo, 67.

The prosecution Tuesday called its last witness, Florent Lapointe, 23, convicted Friday with Armand Hebert, 34, of manslaughter in the butcher-slaying.

Lapointe said he and Hebert drove with Gauthier from this town, 40 miles north of Timmins, to nearby Hunta. There they smashed a door on Rizzo's shop and entered.

He said Gauthier ordered his companions into a storeroom to search for money while Gauthier they left the store. Lapointe said, he saw Rizzo lying on the floor today, killing 11 miners. Seven others were injured.

TAIRA, Japan (AP) — Gas exploded in a coal mine shaft here today, killing 11 miners. Seven others were injured.

THE RIGHT TO COMPETE

In most business and industrial enterprises the Federal Government is at pains to see that competition really works. The purpose of existing anti-combines legislation is to make sure that the public gets the full benefit of competition in the prices people pay for the goods and services which they need.

Strangely enough, however, the public is still denied the full benefits of competition when it comes to transportation.

This isn't the fault of the railways, which welcome competition. Rather, it is the fault of outdated regulation which prevents the railways, in various ways, from giving the public the full benefit of their inherently lower operating costs.

Railway transport costs work out at about 1½ cents a ton-mile. Highway trucking costs, on the other hand, average 5 cents a ton-mile.

Why, then, does so much freight move by truck? Why isn't the public getting the full benefit of the railways' lower operating costs?

The answer is simple. Regulation prevents the railways from charging freight rates which reflect the true benefits of lower railway operating costs.

Here is why:

The railways are required by law to maintain unprofitable branch lines in operations even when there is no traffic to justify the continued operation of such lines. The railways, too, are required by law to move export grain, which accounts for about one-third of the total volume of rail freight traffic, at rates no higher than the 1899.

To keep from going into the red, the railways must keep other freight rates high in order to meet the cost of unprofitable branch line operations and to meet the cost of moving export grain at 1899 rates in the face of 1956 costs.

This puts the railways at an unfair disadvantage in meeting competition from highway trucking. It also puts shippers and the consuming public at an unfair disadvantage in terms of the rates they have to pay for transport.

For the cost of rail transport is pushed far higher than need be by reason of the fact that the railways are required by regulation to carry a lot of export grain at unprofitable rates and to maintain unprofitable branch line services which are no longer needed.

SUNDAY LAWS

The Calgary Albertan wants its readers to stop listening to the radio, or looking at TV, on Sundays.

Its reason? The operation of radio and TV stations on Sunday is against the law.

"We are sure our readers would not want to be associated with any unlawful proceedings," says the Albertan.

The Albertan's observation comes to us via the Ottawa Journal, which may, or may not, have abridged the original editorial. We are therefore unable to say for certain whether the Calgary tongue was in the Albertan cheek, but we suspect it was. The portion of the editorial quoted by the Journal, however, does not reveal any suspicious bulge above the mouth busily pouring forth indignant words against illegal operation of TV and radio stations.

"The people who operate the radio and TV stations during Sunday are breaking the law in doing so, and they do it because they feel people want these broadcasts. But if the people would refuse to listen the sponsors would refuse to buy the programs and the stations would close down. That is the only law we expects," says the Albertan. "The fact that every radio and TV station does a big business on Sunday doesn't made its operation legal. The law is the law."

The radio and TV stations, though, are not the only businesses breaking the law. In some parts of the province, police have acted to close stores catering to Sunday crowds at beaches and resorts, but many others operate undisturbed. If the letter of the law were observed, we should see a great change in our way of life.

Do we want to make this change? If we do, we should demand that the law be changed, rather than allow it to be quietly ignored?

PLAYING FIELDS OF MOSCOW

The promising progress of Russia's Communist Commissars, if Khruschev is to be believed, may before long be sporting the old school tie and claiming the distinction of having attended the Soviet equivalent of Eton or Harrow.

"Wealthy" Russians, it is reported from Moscow, will pay the full cost of board and tuition at the new schools for Soviet elite. Those of more modest means whose children are promising students will be assisted by the state in financing attendance of their offspring at the more fashionable educational institutions.

In the Soviet Union, it seems, equality is something solely for the masses. For those in power, privilege, even in education, is the keynote.

SETTLED DISPUTES

Apparently, it is only the big labor disputes that get in the news. Many others are settled before they have a chance to cause trouble. Last year, according to the head of the United States Federal Mediation Service, more than 8,000 disputes were settled by direct mediation and 6,000 more by the parties involved with little or no outside help. THE HIDDEN HURT

There are scars no eye can view.
There are hurts that never show.
This of every one is true:
There's a hidden form of blow.

Cast and bandage tell to all
When the flesh has suffered pain.
But the heart for help may call
And the cry will be in vain.

Flesh and soul we all are made,
And the flesh is meant to die.
But the soul must, undisplayed,
Keep its wounds from every eye.

It must laugh and it must sing,
And that all is well pretend.
It must hide its suffering
And be patient to the end.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is a shocking fact that more and better fishing is to be had within an hour or two of London, England, than three or four hours of the main centres of Canadian population. Within the area of the receptions of Vancouver and Victoria and their neighboring communities, there are which all dedicated Canadian anglers should turn, as devout Moslems turn to Mecca.

There are several reasons for this situation the chief of which, apart from the wetter climate of Britain and the proximity of the sea which doubtless pushes up springs of fresh water all over the isles, is the long-established principle of preservation of the inland waters of England. It must be confessed that most if not nearly all of this good fishing close to London is strictly private. I imagine land values and income from land through which runs a stream as the Test and Itchen flow must be very great, largely by reason of the fishing.

Eric Taverner is one of the great names in contemporary English writing about angling and country life. Two new books of his have recently arrived in Canada, one of them, "The Making of a Trout Stream," telling about a revealing a story on how the English have achieved streams and their fishing as could be. I suspect it is a fictional account of the fascinating over and remodelling of a run-down little chalk stream in the heart of England. And it is written in the form of a season by season account of the rectification and reconditioning of a small stream such as might even be developed in the dried-up and exhausted regions of eastern Canada. It is not strictly one of those dull dedicated Canadian anglers should turn, as devout Moslems turn to Mecca.

First U.S. Kindergarten

Gilbertsville Journal

Almost a million and a half children will attend kindergarten classes in our country this year. Yet, a century ago there were only six kindergarteners in the whole western hemisphere, and all of them could have been found in one small room in Waterloo, Wis., where a comely young matron, Margarethe, Meyer Schurz, had just opened the first kindergarten in America.

Both Watertown and Wisconsin, are celebrating the centennial of that event during 1956.

One hundred years ago Watertown was the second largest city in Wisconsin, the bustling terminus of a plank road and a new railroad from Milwaukee.

Among the pioneers were Carl Schurz, fiery German revolutionary who had made a name for himself on two continents by rescuing his favorite professor, Gottfried Kinkel, from a Berlin prison under the noses of the Prussian police.

Imbued with the ideals of freedom and democracy, Schurz had brought his bride to America and was on the lookout for a booming town to establish a home. Here he could put his ideas into practice, and at the same time cash in on rising value in real estate.

Watertown in the middle fifties, however, was a far cry from the general of his relatives had already established. He got a high price for an 89 acre farm about a mile and a half from the center of town and built a rambling log house. On an imposing elevation overlooking the river he began the construction of a new house, which was just about finished when his wife, the former Margarethe Meyer, gave birth to their first child.

Miss Meyer herself, who has been engaged in social service work in Boston, Mass., is visiting her brother, Mr. D. V. Sinclair, in this city.

Mr. Thomas Odell has resumed his duties at the Ontario office after a brief absence.

Quiet, please. It doesn't matter at all that you have been through the big clinic or that you have consulted the best advertised specialists. If you get your money's worth out of it, and come away with superiority complex. We are not impressed.

My job, as I understand it, is not to argue with anybody about the diagnosis or treatment of his case. My job is merely to teach everybody who wants to acquire practical knowledge of physiology, hygiene, nutrition, and prevention of illness.

Take for instance the preventable cause of most of the everyday indisposition, illness, and time from work and hospitalization which keeps doctors busy, the C. R. I. (krez), that is, the common respiratory infection.

Interviewing a guest on television the M C sat beside the lady at a table or desk with a microphone between them. Upon the lady's entrance the M C dutifully warned her not to get too close to him, for he had a bad you know what and he'd not like to give it to anyone else. So they began conversing and laughing for several minutes, and all the time with nothing between them but three feet of atmosphere.

It would be difficult to escape infection in such circumstances. But, having shown his consideration for the welfare of the lady, the M C exercised his typical Yankee Wisecare freedom to spray the guest with whatever he had. Conversation modulates or droplet spray carries less than five feet, usually two or three feet. Laughing spray carries farther, and cough or sneeze spray may carry ten to twelve feet.

A lot of Yankee Wisecare with a health I. Q. like that of the M C might resent it, if someone coughed or sneezed at them, so that the impact of the spray droplets was noticeable. They'd resent it even though they didn't suspect the host had a communicable disease. But if they can't feel the minute spray droplets striking the face and they don't know that an invisible fine droplet of moisture may contain the germ or virus of disease, they don't mind being sprayed, especially by a person who is kind enough to give fair warning of the danger.

In view of the gravity of some M C ills, such as meningitis, poliomyelitis, streptococic sore throat, streptococic lung infection, the valid reason why the M C should not be sprayed is made of an almost transparent screen 4 by 4 feet between himself and the guest?

ONE OF HISTORY'S GREAT SAINTS

Almost everyone who has ever visited Westminster Abbey recalls a special place of lovely, living stone. His eyes may have been busy, but at his request the natives of Britain's great heart and soul were buried at the foot of a tall tree in the bustling, Livingstone, in many wise and noble things, but one saying of his most often quoted is his dying comment: "Make religion the business of your life, and a thing of beauty will start."

They found him dead, kneeling at the side of his cot, in the very center of the room. He began his life with a religious purpose and he literally practiced it to the last second of his existence. There were no spiritual ups and downs in Livingstone's life. He was frequently ill and sometimes greatly discouraged, but he never gave up. He is known as one of the greatest discoverers in history and a great naturalist, but his chief fame was that of a missionary. He was not permitted to found many churches, and judged by earthly standards, his accomplishment was meager; but to this day, and he died more than eighty years ago, his name is spoken of with awe among the natives of Africa. To them Livingstone was the very embodiment of the spirit of the living God. He was a white man who practiced what he preached; he practiced what he preached."

He was a Christian—a Christian man.

MAKE PATHS!

Many have claimed the distinction of being the author of that "Over paths were made" which is the path that led to its origin. To Emerson, I believe, most of the credit belongs, but to Lowell is that is important.

There are many who deserve immortality because of created paths to some ideas, enterprise or discovery. Those have pioneers who moved westward in the early days, who blazed trails, paths, and who left many a blood stained path, later were followed by others who made that path permanent one to a great new empire of the West. In his own degree, then we can prepay to those who have made paths in new territories, new fields and new discoveries, many that have benefitted all mankind, such as the discoveries that have wiped out disease and lengthened life itself. Scientists today are travelling over many a path, made years ago, 25 greater triumphs.

Many a surgeon has blazed a path forward that has saved thousands of lives later on, and so has many an inventor. Ideas have blotted out many a backache a day many a pain. Life is healthier, better and easier because of those who have made paths that have led to happier destinations. Path finders have profited from path makers!

Make paths and people will bless you as you bless them. God will bless you as you bless others who path makes for the easier one; burdens are easier handled. He will bless you as you bless others. "It is not given to any man, however endowed, to be lifted entirely by into intellectual splendor without the parentage of antecedent thought. The great paths, are our benefactors.

Let us remember what others have done, but by making new paths in a new direction that will be permanent one day, they, too, becoming path makers!

Down With Dyslexia

(Milwaukee Journal)

The Illinois department of public welfare has just given $13,000 to the Dyslexia Memorial Institute of Northwestern University to aid a study of why some children have trouble reading. The word "dyslexia," says the announcement, is a medical term for difficulty in reading. A sudden and cheap way to overcome at least some difficulty in reading would be to stop using words like that.

Robin Sights First Human

(Christian Science Monitor)

Somebody spoke the other day of having seen what probably was not the first robin of the year. To have seen a robin before anyone else does, say along toward the end of February, is merely to qualify to have seen a "first" one.

More likely it is to have seen a last one from the previous year, a very lusty one which stayed north the winter through.

The technical reason some human being sees this robin at this time and that human hold this robin himself goes out looking for the first robin seems to be the moment when these two "firsts" meet, each of them has been going through the mundane meanderings under cover — the robin, under the leaves and among branches of bushes, the human being under blankets and behind garments.

Their confrontation is very similar to that in which two people meet and both say, "Hello, stranger, where have you been." The factual answer to that one may sound unpleasant: "Minding my own business." But it is also factual and truthful to tell of that sort and then makes for a sense of mutual rediscovery that can be as cheery as meeting the "first" robin.

Proper Woman Has a Shape

(Vancouver Province)

Heaven help us, the "new manover silhouette" has cropped up in the news again, and anyone or fashion will ever stop banging its head fruitlessly against reality.

Reality is that a proper woman has a shape, and that this shape can only be altered so far and so far-ther by trussing, cross-bracing, shoring, buttressing or other forms of engineering and architecture that the shape is not that of the emaciated creatures — the apparent victims of anemia and tuberculosis, rickets and the Victorian vapors — who inhabit the ateliers of the Messrs. Dior, Fath, Balmain et al. and the pages of Vogue.

A proper woman is on the . . . well, say the cuddly side, with a certain amount of her above the waist and a certain (and, let's admit it, large) amount of her below it.

And what's more, we men like her that way.

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE STORY OF THE PRODIGAL SON

The Sea of Galilee sparkled in the sunlight. Winds whispered over the shell-strewn shore. In a boat by the beach stood Jesus, using the prow for a pulpit. On the sand, and the slopes, and in the branches of the trees, crowds sat and listened.

Men had left their hammers, their shops and their farms, to listen. Women had left their dusting and sweeping, and brought their children, to hear Him. They came because when He spoke of God, and the mysteries of heaven, they could understand.

Jesus was the greatest teller of good stories the world has ever heard. Jesus knew that no one's mind is big enough to understand God, and so He put God's secrets into stories called parables, which we can understand and remember.

The parable the people remembered best was the adventure of the prodigal son, which means as you know, the son who was wasteful, and threw his money away.

Jesus stood in the swaying ship, and His eyes twinkled as He began:

"A certain man had two sons..."

RICH MAN

He was a rich man, this father, who had worked hard to make his farm the finest in the country. He had many acres of grapes, and tall corn, and wheat, oats and barley. He had fine sleek horses, and cows, fat pigs, and a busy flock of chickens. And he had many servants, and hired men in the fields.

Now he had planned that when he died his two sons would inherit the farm and money, half for each of them. But the younger son, whom we may call Jacob, did not want to wait. The farm bored him.

"Father, give me my share of the money now, while I am still young. I don't want to stay on this farm all my life!"

The father's gray eyes grew sad. Ever since his son was a boy he had tried to teach him the good way to live, to love God and serve Him, and to be kind and wise. He had tried to show him that hard work was not only important, but a thing to be proud of, and to enjoy. But now his son was a man, and must think for himself.

"He would be happier here than in the city, I know," he said to himself. "But if I tell him that he will think I am old, and do not understand him. And if I refuse, and make him stay here, he will not love me or the farm any better. I must let him make his own decision — and pray that he does not come to harm.

So the father gave the money to his son. And the son packed his things, and said goodbye to his father and to his brothers, and went abroad to see the world. And as he left he did not even notice the tears in his father's eyes.

"I shall never go back," said the prodigal son. "I'll not be stuck on the farm, working and worrying. Only fools would work when they already have money. I'm going to spend mine, and have a good time."

LIFE LIKE KING

Jacob expected that before long he would become a very great fellow. He was sure his money would bring him friends and power and even more money, and soon he would be living like a king.

But Jacob was not very wise in the ways of the city. Wicked men heard the jingle of his purse and rubbed their hands together as they schemed to take his money away.

They sidled up to Jacob, and pretended to be his friends. They taught him to drink wine, far more than was good for him, and when he had drunk too much and did not know what he was doing, they stole some of his gold.

They taught him to gamble, and bet large sums of money on a throw of dice. And he never guessed that they were cheating him.

They promised to help him meet rich and important people. They told him to give great parties, and they would bring famous people as guests. So he spent his money on food and wines, on dancing girls and musicians — but his only guests were the same wicked men and their friends, who were neither rich nor important.

In a few months, Jacob's purse was empty. And when he went to the men who had said they were his friends, they pointed fingers at him and laughed.

A famine came on the land where Jacob was, and there was little food for anyone — especially for a man with no money and no job. Jacob looked for a job, but no one would hire him.

"What good are you?" laughed the shopkeepers and inkeepers. "What do you know of city life, or buying or selling, or keeping books? Go back to the country!"

WEAK WITH HUNGER

Jacob was weak with hunger. His clothes were tattered, and he had to sleep in the streets.

Finally Jacob went into the countryside looking for work. He knocked at the first farm he came to.

"Have you any work?" he asked the farmer.

"You don't look good for much of anything," the farmer said. "But you can take care of the pigs—and live with them."

Jacob took the job, and dirtier, more disgusting work than caring for those swine would be hard to find. He was so hungry that he ate some pigs' food, because no one gave him anything to eat.

Jacob felt sick, as he slept by the pig pen, Jacob was close to tears. Alone with the hogs, he thought:

"Even the servants in my father's house have plenty to eat, and here I am dying with hunger. I do not even deserve to be called his son any more. But still — I will go to my father and say to him:

"Father, I have wasted my money, and done many wicked things, and I have been a fool. But even though I am not worthy to be part of your family, let what takes place during school hours. However, since we accept the term "extra-curricular" as what takes place during school hours. However, since we accept the term "extra-curricular" as what should clarify its application.

Some activities are closely allied to the regular school subjects. Examples of these are class projects in social studies or art, and field excursions in science.

A second category would include such things as a school concert, the school paper, athletics, musical activities, radio broadcasts, service organizations, groups such as camera, science or industrial arts, clubs and Girl Guide and Boy Scout movements.

Parties and social activities form a third group.

Finally we would distinguish part-time work as a topic deserving of special consideration.

Consider field excursions as an example of science projects. Under the leadership of a teacher, If we turn from Him and leave His world, we will suffer just as did the prodigal son. But like that son, no matter how wicked we have been, we need only to be sorry, and return to God's house, and He will welcome us, and comfort us, and warm us with His love.

God, said Jesus, is a Father, waiting for all His sons to come home.

Extra-Curricular Activity Considered Mixed Blessing

(Editor's Note: Sister Mary Andrew is the principal of St. Michael's Academy.)

By SISTER MARY ANDREW

There is actually very little distinction between "extra-curricular" and "curricular" activities insofar as pupil participation is concerned. Both take place during school hours. However, since we accept the term "extra-curricular" as what should clarify its application.

Some activities are closely allied to the regular school subjects. Examples of these are class projects in social studies or art, and field excursions in science.

A second category would include such things as a school concert, the school paper, athletics, musical activities, radio broadcasts, service organizations, groups such as camera, science or industrial arts, clubs and Girl Guide and Boy Scout movements.

Parties and social activities form a third group.

Finally we would distinguish part-time work as a topic deserving of special consideration.

Consider field excursions as an example of science projects. Under the leadership of a teacher, of developing a larger sense of social responsibility in people. Much prejudice has been overcome and a broader outlook developed through international correspondence and the exchange of portfolios and handicraft with children of other lands.

VALUABLE ASSOCIATIONS

Brownies and Guides are valuable associations for children. The corresponding organizations for boys, Cubs and Scouts, do much to develop good citizenship and afford good training. Children and youth are taught loyalty, thoughtfulness, services useful to others, and handicrafts useful to themselves. Physical, mental, and spiritual development is promoted. At present Belleville has reason to be proud of its 12 Brownie Packs, 10 Girl Guide companies, and 13 Scout troops.

What are the objectives of extra-curricular activities? First, is the development of skills. These include skills in regard to sports, public speaking, acting, various fields of music, conducting a meeting, and doing executive work.

Second, is the development of attitudes — responsibility, co-operation with others, give and take, being patient with others' weaknesses, initiative, self-responsibility, good workmanship, courtesy, and politeness, and of facing frustrating experiences squarely.

The third objective is appreciation of such things as music, art, drama, journalism and athletics, all impregnated with the leavening influence of sound spiritual values. Worthwhile and permanent interests often result. One of the greatest appreciations to be developed is a real appreciation of others.

We have yet to mention part time jobs as an important extra-curricular activity. A recent survey of approximately 300 intermediate and senior high school students indicates that 38 per cent are doing part time work. The majority are employed in delivering papers, working in stores and in baby-sitting.

Part time work has valuable aspects. The student realizes better the value of money. He learns to save, develops a greater sense of responsibility in providing for his own needs, and is gainfully employed during what might otherwise be excessive leisure time. He meets the public and learns to get along with other people. Work in such places as libraries, garages, stores, hospitals, and offices increases the student's general knowledge and affords valuable aid in choosing an occupation or career.

But part time jobs are not an unmitigated blessing. Senior students with heavy school schedules haven't time for them. Homework may be neglected. The work may be too fatiguing. The immediate acquisition of money may cause a student to leave school before completing his education.

The Ontario Teachers' Federation, in its booklet "Now Suggest," issued during the past year, has evaluated the pros and cons of extra-curricular activities as follows:

They improve skills through practise, help to develop personality into fuller being, provide recreational outlets at the moment and introduce leisure-time activities for the future, provide good training ground for leadership and a place for using them and develop good sportsmanship.

On the other hand they take students out of the home, consume too much time and energy at the expense of academic work over-emphasize glamor and publicity, overload the teacher, overstimulate the student.

The judicious use of these activities will depend on the judgment, discretion, and co-operation of teachers, pupils and parents. Education is a team effort.

Weddings

RAY—BATE

On Saturday, February 25, at 3.30 p.m., a pretty wedding took place at the bride's home, Wooler, when Lottie Donalda, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bate, was united in marriage to Ross Milton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ray, R.R. 1, Harold, Ont. Rev. George Teskey officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of Swiss embroidered lace fashioned with bolero jacket and Queen Anne collar. Her veil of white illusion tulle in fingertip length was caught to a small halo outlined with white veiling and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of American Beauty roses.

Miss Patricia Morse, her bridesmaid, was in a blue lace gown with matching bolero jacket and a bouquet of white and gold baby mums.

Little Linda Anne Drewery, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl, dressed in yellow nylon with matching bonnet. She carried nosegay of matching baby mums.

Attending the bridegroom was Mr. Lorne Jenkins, of Harold, Ontario.

The bride's home was prettily decorated with streamers of pink and white and wedding bells.

The bride's mother wore black crepe with corsage of pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother was in navy lace and crepe, with corsage of pink carnations. A buffet luncheon was served by girl friends of the bride.

Guests were present from Brockville, Colborne, Belleville, Trenton, Ivanhoe, and Stirling.

The young couple left for a trip to Toronto, Rochester and Niagara.

The bridegroom is principal of S.S. No. 2, Tudor.

Alpha Lambda B.S.P. Plans Model Meeting

The members of Alpha Lambda Chapter Beta Sigma Phi, were enjoyably entertained on Monday evening, when Mrs. D. K. Black gave a pleasing talk on her recent trip to Florida.

The secretary, Mrs. D. F. Carr, took the roll call and presented the minutes. Mrs. H. V. McLean gave the treasurer's report.

Arrangements were made for the model meeting, which is the first meeting the pledges attended, to be held at the home of Mrs. M. C. Ryan.

A slate of officers for the coming year was presented by Mrs. G. E. Badgley on behalf of the nominating committee and unanimously accepted by the members.

A lively, discussion dealt with further plans for the 'Black and Gold Ball' to be held in April.

The president, Merie Ray, who was hostess, served tasty refreshments, assisted by Mrs. L. T. Sheppard.

The next meeting will be held on March 19, at the home of Mrs. M. C. Ryan.

Women's Activities

REDNERSVILLE W.I.

The Redersville Women's Institute held its monthly meeting in form of a banquet at Albury church on February 23, with around 80 in attendance. Everyone enjoyed the lovely pot-luck supper. After the repast the president, Mrs. Benford Peck, opened the meeting.

The correspondence was read, it was decided to have another euchre on March 14, with prizes being donated. An invitation to Mountain View W.I. on April 27, was accepted.

Mrs. Allan Weese was convener with Mr. and Mrs. MacKay giving two duets.

Mrs. Weese introduced Mr. and Mrs. Adcock of Belleville, who showed pictures of their trip to the Yukon, which was much enjoyed, with Mrs. Adcock as narrator.

A vote of thanks was given by Mrs. Harmon Montgomery, to all who made the evening a success with everyone showing their appreciation.

Proceeds for the evening were $22.50.

Products of the Women's Work Committee of the Canadian Red Cross were sent to ten different countries overseas.

MISS KAY HOMAN

Miss K. Homan New Assistant In Recreation

Recreational programs have necessitated appointing a full-time assistant for the recreation committee's director.

Taking up her duties next week in the office of Lloyd (Dud) Dorian will be Miss Kay Homan, 21, of Corbyville, already well - known in the Quinte district for her activities in Hastings County junior farmer work.

Announcing the appointment, William VanTassel, chairman of the committee, pointed out an ever-increasing schedule of city-sponsored recreational activities necessitated the move.

"The programs sponsored by the commission are multiplying constinuously while something new always is being added to our scheduled. We hope by this move to relieve Mr. Doran of some of the more detailed work of his department and leave him free to supervise our programs on a broader scale."

Miss Homan is a leading figure in community work among people of her age group. In 1953 she was elected Miss Hastings, especially for her contributions to community work through the junior farmers' organizations. At present she is president of the Hastings Junior Farmers and is also engaged in editing the branch's yearly magazine, "Hasco Fain,' the only magazine of its kind in Ontario and which enjoys an Ontario-wide circulation.

Past president of both the Carmel-Foxboro Young People's Union and the Thurlow Junior Farmers she is perhaps best known on a wider scale for her weekly radio broadcasts over Radio Station CJBQ to junior farmers' clubs in the Quinte area.

TAUGHT MANY COURSES

She also assumes her post with a knowledge of the more artistic side of the city's recreation program for she has herself taught many courses and has completed courses on leathercraft and plastic weaving. She also attended a leadership training course at Geneva Park, which laid special emphasis on planning and leathercraft.

She is a graduate from Belleville Collegiate with a Grade XII special commercial diploma.

Her background with the junior farmers' organization also include five 4-H clubs, three calf clubs and two home-making clubs.

Last year she was one of four representatives from the Ontario Junior Farmers' Association attending a special conference in the U.S.

A member of the choir of Carmel United Church, she also teaches Sunday School there.

Her father, Seldon Homan, was deputy reeve of Thurlow for two years and a councillor for six years.

Your family doctor, fatigued by a 15-hour day of crisis big and small, aroused from his sleep, summoned in the dark of night, rushing to meet your needs, and stumbling over a child's tricycle, would appreciate a light on the front porch to guide him in.

This - - - and That

So much to talk about this time of year, so much to see, so much for everybody to do—it is a problem knowing where to start. The Belleville stores are so chuck-full of grand merchandise that a woman may, without fear, resort to childhood's 'eeny, meeny, miny, mo' and know that her every wish can be satisfied. Shop in Belleville, and you will every imaginable desire fulfill; but let's go over the food shelves, first, then we'll have more time for other things.

A corner is turned into spring when the first leaf lettuce appears on the counters as it did last week. Those special crates are becoming fewer and fewer as most produce is available all year round because of modern, scientific refrigeration. It used to be too, that hot cross buns were for Good Friday or at the outside for Holy Week. Now they come in with Ash Wednesday and stay all through Lent.

Unusual ingredients called for in our recipes and appearing on store shelves are an indication that our tastes are broadening. Immigrations from other countries, especially since the war, has brought new foods and flavor to our diet. We are becoming used to herbs and wine in our cooking; weboue dill for dishes other than pickles; poppy seed and sesame seed cause no wonder in the stores now. Yes, the world is our kitchen for our cooking.

But for the old standby meal of meat, potatoes and vegetables, let's see. There is more beef being bought even though prices remain low. Lamb seems to be making a comeback and is to be had at very attractive prices. Cuts of lamb are tender and they should be served piping hot, or cold, never lukewarm.

Potatoes are plentiful and reasonable. To get the most food value, boil or bake potatoes in their jackets.

Between our own winter stored vegetables and the frozen food from the south, there is all the choice anyone could want. Add to this our own frozen foods and the choice is endless.

New fabrics seem to make the headlines above styles and fashions. Utility clothes, such as nurses' uniforms benefit greatly from the new quick drying, no ironing materials. But styles are not quite as "uniform" as they used to be, although the color is the same. The woman in white must look professional, but that need not prevent her from looking attractive. The stiffer high neck and long sleeves have almost disappeared. But nurses have turned thumbs down on the sheath and pencil slim skirts, and are sticking to the flared skirts. Fashion is fine, but comfort and serviceability come first.

For some years now, there has been a great deal of interest in knitwear as an outfit as well as a casual fashion. Now we see knitted cotton sheaths and knitted cotton separates. Cotton is, indeed, everywhere, from nubby rough material through knitwear to the sateen finishes of unbelievable richness.

If you are contemplating some decorating, do, with spring housecleaning, we are told to look for three points in selecting a paint brush. First see that the brush has a full stock of bristles and that they are firmly embedded in the base of the handle. Second, flip the bristles to be sure they are of varying lengths. This is important if you want a really good brush. The third point is to check the form of the bristles themselves. Good bristles are finely tapered and most of them have split ends to permit an even flow of paint to the surface being painted.

And speaking of paint, dealers tell us that there is no truth in the belief that painted surfaces are special fire hazards. It is said that dried paint, instead of tending to spread flame, effectively retards it. In the early stages of a fire, ordinary paints, particularly semi-gloss ones, slow down the blaze. You can check this claim the next time you are around a bonfire. Sometimes the fire planted and unpainted boards, then watch which catches fire first and is burned up the fastest.

Up to the end of 1953, a total of 939 pilots and 1,805 navigators from Belgium, Denmark, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway and the United Kingdom had been trained in Canada for NATO. In 1953 there were 985 trainees, including some from Portugal and Turkey. Notes on Health

(Dept. of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa)

Brushing the teeth immediately after eating is important, if the teeth are to last a lifetime. Two brushes per person will allow one to be taken to school or office for use after luncheon and one for home use. Brushes should be kept clean and allowed to dry between times of using.

A sunbath for baby may be daily practice even during the winter on bright days. The child should be placed in the sun before an open window, protected from drafts and his eyes shielded from direct sunlight. Three minutes should be the maximum time for the first few days, increasing this by a minute or so each week. He should also have a daily dose of vitamin D.

The senior citizen is usually quite a capable person, mentally if not physically, and doesn't require a life of coddling if he is in good health. Most old people like to make decisions for themselves. They should be encouraged to join groups in which they can find interest. Those who possess particular skills may find that their local civil defence can use their voluntary services.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU SHOULD CONSULT A PRIEST

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Could you kindly give me some information on the following:

A young man of the Jewish faith wishes to marry a Catholic girl. She wants a church wedding but he doesn't wish to convert to her religion. Under the circumstances, would it be possible to have a church wedding? — L.R.

Dear L.R.:

To work out any problem of this kind it seems to me the only wise and practical thing to do would be for the young man and the girl to go together to a priest and discuss the whole question with him. He would be the one to guide them to the right solution to the problem.

WHY DO YOU THINK SHE HESITATES?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a young man 30 years old and have been going with a woman for two years. We see each other every night. We're going to get married, but she said that she thought I didn't love her enough to stay with her always. But I love her enough to stay with her forever.

Can you suggest some way I can prove to her how much I do love her? — K.P.

Dear K.P.:

I am afraid you have hardly told me enough about either yourself or this woman for me to form any opinion as to whether or not you would make a devoted husband for her.

For example why should she feel so doubtful that you would be content to stay with her "always"? A possible reason I think of is that she may be older than yourself, since you use the word "woman" in speaking of her, and so she may be afraid that, after being married to her for awhile, you would get interested in some younger girl. Could that be the case?

Even supposing she is older than you are, if you have been going together for two years, it would certainly seem that the two of you must have much in common, and share many interests, which is the basis of a successful marriage. You could hardly see each other so constantly all that time unless you were very companionable, which would indicate that you would get along well in the day-by-day relationship of married life.

How much more proof of love any woman would want than constant devotion for as long as two years I can't imagine. And if, during all two years, you have consistently done thoughtful things for her, brought her appropriate gifts, watched out for her comfort and been considerate of her in every possible way, it seems to me you have done all you can do.

If you are sure that there is nothing you have done during your association with her which would give her any understandable reason for hesitating about marrying you then, if she does not soon show any more eagerness about marrying you than she does now, it would seem to be she who doesn't love you enough, instead of the other way around. In that case, it would be time for you to say good-bye.

More than 11,000 wives and friends of hospitalized servicemen were overnight guests at eight Red Cross lodges last year.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

BEAUTY "ON THE DOUBLE"

Waist - bending exercises done while brushing the hair save time for other beauty chores.

Where beauty is concerned, the thing most women complain about is time—or, rather, the lack of it. "Of course, I'd like to look as glamorous as a movie star 24 hrs. a day,"is the general plaint, "but how can I with the things I have to do!" And then they list their never-ending activities, whether at a job, in the home, or both. And it's certainly true that the average woman is mighty busy these days. So much is expected of her.

But every woman worth her salt devotes some time to a beauty routine else how so many pretty faces and figures on the highways and byways? We wonder, however, how many of them have ever figured out how much time they could save if they'd double up on their beauty chores. This is one field where a woman really can do two things at one time.

For instance, you can exercise while brushing your hair. As you wield the brush, do so simple bending-and-twisting exercises. They're marvelous for whittling down the waistline and, while it may take a bit of practice to get the hang of coordinating the two movements, it can be done. Try it — and improve your figure and your hair at the same time.

Then there's the manicure period. Are you one of those gals who'd literally a nervous wreck while waiting for her polish to dry? If so, you're doing yourself an injustice. Next time that you give yourself a manicure, don't spend the drying period frantically waving your hands in the air and blowing on them (and probably smudging the polish in the process). Instead, use this time for a ten or fifteen minute rest. Lean back and relax in the most comfortable chair you have, preferably with feet elevated. It will soothe your nerves, help to banish fatigue lines and give you renewed energy to carry on with your next task.

At bath time, you can get in a wonderful complexion treatment. Just before stepping into the tub, slather your face with cold cream and while your warm, relaxing bath takes the kinks out of tired muscles, the steam will open up your facial pores, giving the cream a chance to do a lovely softening job on your skin. These are just a few examples of how you can save time by doubling up on your beauty chores but we're sure that, if you use a little ingenuity, you can think of many more—and look lovelier for them.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

NON-COOPERATIVE FRIENDS ARE A PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Recently my husband and I held "Open House" in order to show our new home to our friends. Those friends I could easily reach by telephone, I telephoned to and extended the invitation. I told them I would very much appreciate knowing whether or not they could attend. The other friends I sent invitations to, on our "Mr. and Mrs." visiting cards, and wrote "R.s.v.p." in the corner of these card-invitations. One of the friends I had invited by telephone did not come, and when I met her soon after and told her I had expected her to come because she did not let me know she couldn't come, she said, "Well, I didn't receive a written invitation, so I didn't think it necessary to telephone you." She said she did not hear my request for a reply when I telephoned her.

I do think she should have shown enough courtesy to have let me know she was not coming. What if our other fifty-or-sixty friends had taken the same attitude? What a predicament for a hostess! What do you think about our friend's behavior, and what should I do about her in the future?—Hostess-Reader

Queer, isn't it, how some people take so much trouble to be ingrown about such pleasant occasions? They take a charmingly-intended invitation and shower it with an interpretation that we could not have dreamed would be possible. They have such a 'prickly' quality in their thinking and in their attitude that seems always to need so much pampering, if we are to enjoy them at all.

However, occasionally a person like this has some engaging qualities that offset this particularly trying quality, and so we make a special effort to be forewarned and do more prevaricating about the reactions of these ornery people than we would do about the more socially cooperative people. You did the right thing in the way you issued the invitation — some by telephone, some by visiting - cards. Apparently this one friend considered the visiting-card invitation, which undoubtedly some other friend showed to her! . . . more important than the telephoned invitation. This, of course, was not the case, nor did you intend it to be so.

The lesson for you in this happening is that, if you really enjoy this friend's company, you must take extra thoughts, extra precautions not to give her an opportunity to be "hurt." And be comforted by the thought that, in this varied world, we all have among our friends, people who need just this "extra added" attention!

Readers' Bonus Column

Conducted by Mary Moore

NOTE FROM MARY TO READERS:

No. 1 ("To "Plymouth Hoe") of Mount Pleasant: Apology for lateness of this reply. If "Plymouth Hoe" will write to me giving her name I will send a private letter. No. 2: To all writing readers: Mail from you is so heavy I have decided to devote at least three columns per week to answers to you—maybe more—until I get caught up.

QUESTION:

Please hurry that cook book so I can discard these hundreds of dog-eared clippings . . . am going crazy trying to figure out some good-looking cookies from ozs. to cups. Take this one as a sample: Butter Drops 5 ozs. plain flour (what is plain flour—just pastry?), 1-2 level teaspoon baking powder, 4 oz. butter, 4 oz. castor sugar, 1 beaten egg, 3 ozs. halved blanched almonds, 1-2 level teaspoon mixed spice. Melt butter until light brown, let cool but not set. Beat sugar and egg into butter. Sift together flour, baking powder, spice and stir into butter mixture. Roll into small balls, place on greased cookie sheet with plenty of space between. Press halved almonds into centre. Moderate oven for about 20 min.—Plymouth Hoe.

ANSWER:

Thank you for the Devonshire Cream method and unbaked pie with graham cracker crust. Plain flour is all-purpose flour. Five oz. flour are 1 1-4 cups stirred but not sifted flour; 4 oz. castor sugar are 1 cup sifted icing sugar; 3 oz. halved blanched almonds are slightly more than 1-3 cup. The cook book is still in the future but thanks for the encouragement.

QUESTION:

I enjoyed these "Flap Jacks" or "Firelighters" while in Scotland but cannot get the recipe changed over to our Canadian way of cooking. Can you help me pelase, Alex, will-you please let me know if they can be made with the new quick oats which do not cling to the pan. I have found that other recipes are not satisfactory with these oats. The cookies are too soft: 4 oz. rolled oats, 3 oz. shortening, 3 oz. sugar, 1 dessertspoon syrup. Melt shortening, sugar and syrup but do not let it boil. Pour mixture on oats. Place on greased tin in hot oven until golden brown.—Violet F.

ANSWER:

I have searched high and low for a Flapjack or Firelighter recipe with the ingredients you list, but can't find one. Maybe our Scottish readers will come to the rescue. One thing I know—quick oats are lighter and more absorbent than untreated oats. To make sure your ingredients are measured correctly here are equivalents: 4 oz. rolled oats measure exactly 1 1-3 cups; 3 oz. shortening are 3-8 cup; 2 oz. sugar are 1-4 cup plus 1 teaspoon; 1 dessertspoon syrup is 1 1-3 teaspoons. When our Scottish readers reply to this I will print here what they give us.

'I Am a Canadian' Fine Address Heard at River Valley W.I.

STIRLING. — On Thursday, Mrs. Jack Sager was hostess to River Valley Women's Institute with about 35 members and visitors in attendance.

Mrs. Roy Bush opened the meeting.

Mrs. Thomas Hanna gave a full report of the past month. Almost $32 was handed in by Mrs. Robert Philip, proceeds from the card parties held during February.

The conveners, Mrs. Philp and Mrs. J. L. Donohoe were tendered a vote of thanks.

The correspondence contained a number of thank-you notes; a money donation from Mr. Hart Holland and various items of department literature.

Plans were made for the four March card parties with the closing date, Friday, 23rd, and a committee will make arrangements for a play in April.

The club leaders, Mrs. George Heasman, and Mrs. Phil Conley, were given an ovation for their club work this winter.

A motion was passed that the secretary be a delegate to the Guelph conference; an invitation to visit Pine Grove W.I., on April 10th was accepted and Mrs. Ernest Carr and Mrs. J. R. Donohoe were appointed a nominating committee.

The annual meeting will be held on April 5th at the home of Mrs. Ernest Gifford.

PROGRAM

The program based on 'Citizenship and Education' was arranged by Mrs. Alex Bush and Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh with the former in charge. All sang "O Canada" and "School Days". The roll call "Why I Like to Live in Canada" stressed freedom of worship, freedom of speech, abundance of food, grand scenery.

Mrs. Percy MacMullin rendered a humorous selection and Mrs. George Heasman rendered an Irish vocal solo.

The president introduced Mrs. Clarence Holmes, a past provincial president, who gave a worthwhile address on the theme: 'I Am a Canadian." The speaker gave a geographic picture of Canada, followed by the importance of history and stressed that year by year Canadians are forming their own government. She pictured the influence of the neighbors to the south and warned that above all "Canada must keep her own individuality."

"Today Canada has about 15 million people with one-half of the population British. The Bible is distributed in 50 languages.

"Canada can be compared to a mosaic where the general and national pattern predominates in all and the problems are necessary to bring out the noblest and best.

"Canadians are urged to welcome folks from other lands; to study their own country from coast to coast; to have a united front and thus thwart Communism.

STRICTLY CANADIAN

"Canada has a variety of things that are strictly Canadian, such as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; sheaf of Marquis wheat; the Canada Goose; Indian Totem poles and several others."

Mrs. Holmes gave a brief glance of the tourist trade, and the stately old Canadian homes in the rural sections, and paid tribute to its poets, painters and musicians.

"Through our Governors General we have been given the Stanley Cup, as well as the Grenadier Village history.

"Canada is a young country, but she has made the most of her advantages and today she comes fourth in production of munitions; fourth in air power and third in sea power. Canada has earned the title, "Aldrome of Democracy."

"Publicity is most important and each individual should be a public relations officer.

"July 1st should be celebrated as a national day and the vision of the future is her homes and schools.

"The young parents of today should take a firm stand for justice and also stand pat on the questionable things that crop up in various communities."

The speaker urged that Canadians have pride in their country, that they honor past achievements and have great faith in the future and work hard today to put their ideas across.

Individuals should strongly uphold Canadian life and have an ability to friendship with their neighbors. The great Commonwealth of Nations provides us with freedom to live as we choose as an independent country, but when all nations are united in one common bond they can achieve many worthwhile things."

She closed with a graphic picture on the theme, "I am glad to be a Canadian."

The convener expressed thanks for the message.

Mrs. Phil Conley contributed a piano selection.

EDUCATIONAL SKIT

As Education Week is from March 4th to 10th, a special skit on education was presented with a different character in suitable costume. The Rev. Dr. Stanley, Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh; Mr. Freeman of the local school, Mrs. Ernest Carr; Jeff, a teen-age boy, Mrs. Don Donohoe; his grandmother, Mrs. Conrad, Mrs. John Hunter, principal of the school, Mrs. Ross Bush.

The skit pointed out the difference between juvenile delinquency and adult delinquency and emphasized that parents should be interested in their children, in the school and in the church. They should seek to build up their children and make them feel that they are needed.

In the case of Jeff, the story unfolded that he had learned his lesson the hard way, and he was willing to work during vacation to pay for his misdeeds.

Parents should assist with Scout and Guide work as well as support community activities that will benefit their children.

The skit was both entertaining and educational and brought out a number of interesting points.

PRESENTATION

On behalf of the two conveners, Mrs. Don Donohoe spoke appreciative words and presented Mrs. Clarence Holmes with a pansy cup and saucer in fluted effect with matching pansy gift card for which the recipient voiced her grateful thanks.

Mrs. George Heasman expressed thanks for hospitality and program.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

The other is also of calfskin and impressively large with a simulated gold trim frame and a wide single handle.

WI Presents Play At Regular Meet

RYLSTONE — Rylstone Women's Institute held its March meeting at the Orange hall, Petrick's Corners, on the evening of February 29th, which, but for Leap Year, would have been the regular meeting day on the first Wednesday of the month. There was a good attendance of men, women and children.

The meeting was brought to order by the president, Mrs. Wilfred Spencer. The roll call was "A Member of Parliament, and His Riding," which was also answered by several men in the audience.

Very little business was transacted that could be held over, on account of it being an open meeting. "Thank-you" notes were read from members who had been ill and it was decided to make a donation to the Mental Health Association, instead of sending for Penny Round-up bags, as had been done before.

Following is the program, for which Mrs. Percy Reid was convener: piano solo, "Jumping Jack" by Betty Linn; community singing; play, "Charity Begins at Home," written and played by the following cast: Scene, a meeting of "The Always Ratified Club of Tattlemore Corners" — Officers and members, "Mrs. Lotta Doe" president, played by Mrs. Jack Watson; secretary, "Mrs. Horace Meet," by Mrs. Ray Stewart; other members, "Miss Needa Mann", Mrs. Carl Reid; "Mrs. V. Otto Fyx," Mrs. Ernest Irwin; "Mrs. Candee Bean", "Mrs. Mercy Sakes," both played by Mrs. Stanley Kerr; "Mrs. Sam N. Cann," Mrs. Charlie Stewart; "Mrs. Carrie Sunshine," Mrs. Don Kerr; "Dr. I. May Q. Well," Mrs. Carl Linn; pianist, "Miss P. Anna Keys," Mrs. Don Stewart.

This short play only took half an hour but was most humorous with a good moral, which tied in well with the Rotary theme, for which it was prepared. Much credit is due these ladies for their work in writing, organizing and putting on this play.

Mrs. Ellis Jones supplied piano music for community singing and between items on the program.

The Rev. Gordon Whitehorn gave an interesting talk and showed colored pictures on his trip to the west last summer. He also showed a reel of pictures taken at local, fairs and another of wedding scenes in which he had been the officiating clergyman.

Mrs. Fred Barnum voiced the appreciation and thanks for all when she thanked Mr. Whitehorn for his splendid pictures and talk.

Donalda Kerr and Carol Miles, member of the "Happy Hostess" Girls' club, put on a demonstration on "Packing a Weekend Bag" and Mrs. Don Kerr, leader of the group and her daughter, Donalda, demonstrated the table setting for a "Dinner for Two."

All the club girls present were called to the platform and presented with a silver teaspoon each in "Exquisite" pattern for the completion of their course.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Gordon McIlquham, hostess, assisted by several other ladies. The hall is in the process of being redecorated and looked twice as nice in its new ceiling and blue grey imitation padded leather wallpaper.

Women's Activities

ROSLIN W. A.

The March meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. H. Sills. There were 13 ladies present. Mrs. S. Stirk presided for the meeting.

The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. N. Alexander.

It was decided to remember those in hospital at Easter. Quilt blocks were given out.

A quilting and dinner will be held in the hall on March 22nd.

Some plans were made re cooking for Scott's sale in April. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Slingerland and Eighth Line Guild will be invited to attend when final plans for cooking for sale will be made.

Mrs. A. Bates, leader for the evening, was in charge of the program: readings were given by the leader, Mrs. Bates, Miss A. Wilson, and Mrs. N. Alexander, and included pieces on March, How to live on 24 hours a day; Lent and Angels.

After the meeting, the hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

WIFE DIVORCE

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)— Tita Purdom Monday won a divorce from British actor Edmund Purdom after testifying that he brought her home from a party and then went back alone. The party, she later told reporters, was at the home of actress Linda Caristian, with whom Purdom has been keeping company.

St. Andrew's Guild Plans St. Patrick Tea

WELLINGTON. — The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Guild was held at "Cedar Lodge", the home of Mrs. Gray with the president, Mrs. S. Tripp in the chair.

The treasurer's report was heard and dues and flower fund money was collected.

Mrs. Davern moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Spriggings for preparing the chickens for the dinner held on February 23.

Mrs. Davern conveyed appreciation and thanks from Mrs. W. Thompson for flowers sent to her. A vote of thanks is to be sent to Mr. Archard, Mr. Fast and Mr. Cronk.

Miss Nash was asked to send a pot of flowers to Mrs. Murphy.

It was decided to hold the annual St. Patrick tea and food sale on March 17th and Mrs. Davern and Mrs. Boyle were appointed conveners.

Mrs. King, Mrs. Ogilvy and Mrs. Bailey to be in charge of the home cooking table, Mrs. Lavender, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Spriggings in charge of the tea table.

General business was taken care of and the meeting was closed by Mrs. Tripp after which the hostess served tea assisted by Mrs. Knox.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Knox on April 5th.

Mental Fitness Of Accused Will Be Decided

NORTH BAY (CP) — A trial within a trial of Percy Olmstead, 31, of Sturgeon Falls, charged with the fire-slaying of his wife, continued today.

A grand jury returned a true bill against Olmstead Tuesday and Mr. Justice H. A. Ayles immediately had a petit jury sworn in to decide Olmstead's mental fitness to plead.

He was charged after the bodies of his wife, Simonne, 27, and his three children were found in the ashes of their home Oct. 14. An early morning fire razed the tiny two-room building, 10 miles west of here.

Ten witnesses, including Olmstead's father, testified Tuesday on the accused's mental capacity. Harry Olmstead said his son was "different" as a child.

A statement taken from Olmstead by police a few days after his arrest was read into the evidence but Mr. Justice Ayles ordered newspaper men not to report it, as it did not pertain to the question of mental fitness.

If Olmstead is found fit to face trial another jury will be selected to hear evidence on the murder charge.

TOO COLD TO PLAY OUTDOORS

"Goofy," the giraffe at the London zoo, looks hopefully at keeper Bill Gribble as the latter checks a thermometer to determine if it is warm enough for "Goofy" to be permitted an outing in the open air. The cold spell that had England and almost all of Europe in its grip confined "Goofy" and other tropical animals to their quarters. (Central Press Canadian).

DOES NOT MEAN

"Well definitely press for a more realistic and equitable offer the next time we discuss the matter with these officials."

MAY BE SOME FEES

The plan made no definite suggestions as to who should be covered by a provincial scheme, or whether special fees should be charged for some services.

Most of Ontario's 5,200,000 population would have to be included in a plan to make it economically feasible, but it would be difficult to collect compulsory premiums from about 1,000,000 self-employed persons if they decided they did not want to pay. They could enter the scheme voluntarily.

A charge of $1 to $10 for diagnostic services might be necessary to discourage persons using facilities unnecessarily, but no definite agreement had been reached on this aspect.

The federal aid offer, made at last January's Dominion-provincial conference, was to pay 25 per cent of the national per capita cost plus 25 per cent of the province's per capital cost multiplied by the number of persons covered provincially. It was dependent on at least six provinces, representing more than one-half Canada's population, accepting.

COSTS WOULD CLIMB

Since grants would not include mental or tuberculosis hospitals, or the cost of administering the plan, the federal contribution to Ontario would be only 35 per cent of the total cost.

And since it was estimated Ontario's per capita hospital cost would increase more rapidly than the national, a plan would cost Ontario a larger percentage every year.

The most complicated aspect of the entire plan, the premier said, is what to do with private plans such as Blue Cross now in operation.

A provincial plan would not drive private organizations off the scene. They could offer to those willing to pay extra certain frills such as semi-private or private accommodations along routes the same lines as they did now.

But those offering similar basic coverage to that suggested by the provincial plan would have to be carefully incorporated.

The plan will be thrashed out by the legislature's health committee next week. All members and special experts will be invited to attend the committee meeting to put forward their suggestions.

COMMIT CONTRACTOR

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton contractor Amelio Tatti Monday was committed for trial on charges of bribing a government housing inspector. FEAR GAS MAKES BOMB OF HOMES

Two gas explosions that injured seven persons have caused Consumers' Gas Co. employees to dig up streets in East York, Ont., in an attempt to find where the leak has occurred. One blast occurred in a bank, blowing off a door and causing cracks to appear in the plaster. Two weeks ago a home was reduced to rubble by an unexplained explosion. Now residents of the area feel they are living on a bomb since, until the leak is found, explosive gas may seep into any home and would require only a spark to ignite. (Central Press Canadian).

Life Insurance Association Urges Canadians to Resist Inflationary Price Boosts

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians were urged by life insurance companies today to resist inflationary price rises.

Spokesmen forecast a spectacular expansion of the Canadian life insurance business over the next quarter-century, but emphasized it had to be driven home to every Canadian that inflation is a tax on savings, a tax on every person who has made planned provisions for retirement.

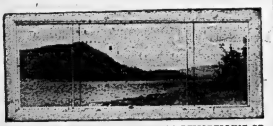
The Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, speaking for 76 insurance companies operating in Canada, maintained there is no need of a gradually rising price trend for a vigorously rising trend of production and employment.

In a hefty, 20,000-word brief presented to the Gordon economic commission, the association said this is a period when the will of society is determined to have high economic activity, if necessary with the massive intervention of government.

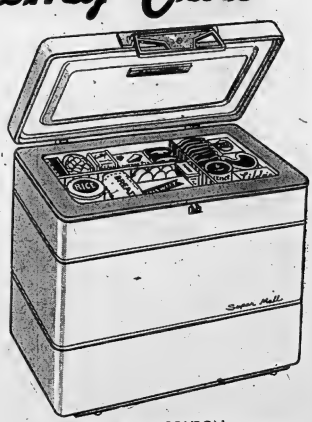
But full employment policies often advocated were sometimes so extreme as to produce inflationary pressures. It was up to the government to ensure continued price stability through fiscal measures. It had to be made clear to every Canadian that the benefits of inflation are illusory; that he has a stake in price stability.

The association forecast that if the economy continues its upward swing, life insurance held by Canadians may quadruple in the quarter-century to about $100,000,000,000 while assets of the insurance companies operating in Canada may increase almost five times to $28,200,000,000.

But government programs may have some adverse influence on this outlook, the association said. The government was selling annuities and now there were indications that it may get into health insurance schemes.



The social implication of providing security for all by government ought to be weighed with the gravest concern.



"Government attempts to provide universal health and accident protection, for example, have frequently proceeded rapidly to the point where political considerations have outweighed financial and where the schemes have created unexpected and serious drains on the exchequers at the expense of those services which it is the natural function of government to provide. . . ."

The continued sale of annuities through the federal labor department was an example "of government occupation of a field of business that can and should be served exclusively by private enterprise."

TEMPERATURE OUTLOOK VARIED

Scattered parts of southern Canada can expect near-normal temperatures in the next 30 days, according to this map based on the long-range forecast of the United States weather bureau. The area of expected near-normal temperatures covers the southern Maritimes, Quebec's Eastern townships most of Ontario and a belt around Hudson Bay and sections of southern Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. The rest of Canada can expect below-normal temperatures. (CP Photo).

Ontario Opposition Requests Special Committee to Study Province's Economic Future

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's Liberal opposition says the Progressive Conservative government should appoint a special committee to study the province's economic future.

Financial critic J. J. Wintermeyer said Tuesday the committee should decide the economic position with reference to financial relationships among municipalities, the province and the federal government.

Sitting between sessions, the committee could discover whether present revenue sources would be sufficient to maintain costs of government in an expanding economy, Mr. Wintermeyer said:

"We must review our sources of revenue. The basic sources have been succession duties, liquor licences, gasoline and highway revenue."

The Saskatchewan legislature passed a resolution criticizing exclusion of mental hospitals and tuberculosis sanatoria from a proposed national hospital-care plan.

Mrs. J. E. Cooper, CCF government supporter, said such exclusion will "permanently drive a line between the physically ill and the mentally ill."

Premier Matheson of Prince Edward Island moved a resolution asking the federal government to "proceed as soon as possible with the construction of a causeway between this province and the mainland." It, R. Bell, Progressive Conservative opposition leader, seconded the Liberal government motion. It will be debated after the province's return from a federal-provincial fiscal conference in Ottawa Friday.

Edgar Fournier, chairman of the New Brunswick power commission, told the legislature the Progressive Conservative government has asked federal authorities to consider construction of an atomic power plant in the province. He did not elaborate.

Manitoba Health Minister Robert Bend announced the province's municipalities will receive almost $250,000 extra, in welfare aid in the fiscal year beginning April 1. He said payments to the province under a proposed unemployment relief agreement with the federal government would be shared with the municipalities. Last year municipalities paid $1,242,000 in welfare costs and Liberal-Progressive government $1,250,000.

The Alberta house heard demands by three Liberal opposition lawyers that the Social Credit government boost qualifications and salaries for magistrates. Abe W. Miller said magistrates' salaries ranging from $6,780 to $8,280 should be doubled to attract lawyers as magistrates.

Premier Manning, also attorney-general, said lawyers will be appointed when they become available. The house approved a $185,815 appropriation for 37 salaried magistrates.

The Nova Scotia house approved in principle a bill to provide financial assistance for needy mothers and children. A Liberal government Social Assistance Act was praised by Progressive Conservative and CCF opposition speakers.

The bill would extend assistance to children of common law marriages, to the blind, to deserted wives, to families caring for deserted children and to families of wage earners serving a prison term of two years or more.

Premier and CCF Leader Clash Over Institutions

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald Tuesday renewed his attacks on reforms institutions, this time backed by a national organization.

He said in the Ontario legislature a letter from the Canadian Association of Social Workers which criticized the reforms institutions department.

Describing the social workers' group as the profession's equivalent to the Canadian Medical Association or the Bar Association, he said the Progressive Conservative government "won't get away with its attempts to laugh off" charges of improper practices.

Premier Frost interrupted to say Mr. MacDonald is an expert at insinuations, innendoes and smearing attacks on people without giving any evidence.

AGREES WITH CHARGES

The CCF leader replied that the premier is trying to sidetrack the issue by ignoring the fact that a reputable welfare group was agreeing with charges he made prior to the assembly opening.

The association's letter, sent to Premier Frost Feb. 16, said Ontario's institutions "do not reform." They are "places of punishment, medical and therapeutic facilities recognized as essential to modern psychiatry."

A freshman financial critic for the CCF opposition urged the government appoint a committee to survey the province's economic prospects.

J. J. Wintermeyer, (L—Waterloo) said there is a four-point want-of-confidence motion on the government's financial policies. Expressing regret that the government had not appointed an economic council his way in "political affairs was important enough to be "equated with peace." He said there is no "propagandist of genius, even if misguided," could hardly be lacking power when in control of papers whose circulation runs into millions.

A. J. P. Taylor, writing in The Observer, says what the British really loves is not power but excitement, something to feed his tremendous energy.

"Consider the photograph of him . . . pencil in one hand, dictaphone trumpet in the other, a telephone nearby. These are not instruments of power; they exist for their own sake. It is as though Napoleon fought battles not to win them, but solely to provide materials for his army bulletins; it is not necessary to fight the battles as long as the bulletins come out."

TUG-OF-WAR BEEN

Driberg's book was late in appearing, probably because of the subject's strenuous objections to the book as a "hostile" biography. It is fascinating to speculate upon the psychological tug-of-war that almost certainly took place between Beaverbrook and Driberg. The author, incidentally, told a reporter he does not consider it a cruel book, though his attitude is seldom sycophantic. He recalls the famous breakfast of 1933—"There Will Be No War"—and says Beaverbrook defended it by saying that if the prophecy proved correct, the paper would be a success, if wrong nobody would remember.

Lord Beaverbrook Had Brains, Got Money But Power Eluded Him Journalist Says in Book

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Lord Beaverbrook wanted power. Money plus brains, he thought, would get it for him. He had the brains and he got the money — but power eluded him.

So says Tom Driberg, journalist and left-wing politician, in a book on the 78-year-old press lord who emerged from a New Brunswick manse to become an enigmatic figure in British politics.

Driberg's verdict is implicit in his title: "Beaverbrook: A Study in Power and Frustration." The book traces his career from the first get-rich-quick deal in Canada to the present time, and concludes that despite all appearances the power-lust was never satisfied.

FLATLY DOWN IMPACT

"The appetite was never to be sated; the power remained a mirage," writes Driberg, who worked on Beaverbrook's Daily Express for 15 years.

In short, the book plays down Beaverbrook's impact, both as a backstairs politician, described by a contemporary as the "little Canadian adventurer," and later as a shaper of public opinion. His mass-circulation newspapers are entertaining, Driberg says, but hardly anybody takes them seriously.

Some British writers reject this judgment. Harry Boardman, in the Manchester Guardian, says Beaverbrook's way in political affairs was important enough to be "equated with peace." He adds that his "propagandist of genius, even if misguided," could hardly be lacking power when in control of papers whose circulation runs into millions.

A. J. P. Taylor, writing in The Observer, says what the British really loves is not power but excitement, something to feed his tremendous energy.

Freight Rate Increases Go Into Effect on About Fifth Of Canadian Rail Traffic

OTTAWA (CP)—Freight rate increases ranging up to six per cent went into effect today on about one - fifth the Canadian railways' traffic.

The increases, tied in with similar boosts awarded the United States carriers, are effective on a volume of about $500,000,000 a year in movements between Canada and the United States and export-import traffic involving Canadian ports.

The changes are in the form of a general six-per-cent hoist with various types of ceilings applied to the size of the increases on several commodities. For grain, livestock and fresh fruits the increase is five per cent.

Canada's rates on traffic with the U.S. are linked closely to the U.S. structure and move almost automatically with them. So are some of the export-import rates, which are geared to maintain a form of parity between competing Canadian and U.S. ports.

NO ESTIMATES GIVEN

No estimate of the railways' additional revenue from the increases was available. However, freight experts said the ceilings would make it considerably less than $12,000,000 a year.

Besides the grain-livestock-meat limitation, other ceiling increases include:

Lumber, six cents per 100 pounds; sugar, five cents; fresh fruits, six cents; 100 cents a ton; coal, 15 cents a ton; lignite, a three-per-cent increase with a maximum of seven cents a ton.

On lumber, the board of transport commissioners has decided to lift partially a ban it imposed last month on an increase proposed by the railway in rates on western Canadian lumber.

Effective March 20, the railways will be permitted an increase of six per cent—with the exception of using—on western lumber moving to points east of the Lakehead.

The board's February order suspending the increase will remain in effect on movements of this product to western points, pending public hearings to open March 20. The ban was sought by British Columbia lumber interests and other organizations, who will present evidence at the hearings.

AWARD SEAWAY CONTRACTS

OTTAWA (CP) — Contracts totalling $4,343,000 have been awarded three Montreal firms for manufacture of concrete for locks in the Lachine section of the St. Lawrence seaway, Contracts valued at some $65,000,000 have been awarded so far by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority.

OFFER PRAYER

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow's Baptists offered a prayer of thanksgiving Sunday night that President Eisenhower is "strong enough now to continue to work for peace in the world." The prayer was offered by Rev. Alexei N. Karpov at the regular Sunday evening service attended by some 2,500 Russian Baptists.

Metro Council Wants Part of Racetrack Tax

TORONTO (CP)—A unanimous demand for a share of Ontario's pari-mutuel racetrack tax was approved Tuesday by Metropolitan Toronto council.

The council, which represents 13 area municipalities, suggested the Ontario government be asked to reduce the pari-mutuel tax to six per cent from seven per cent and donate the proposed one-per-cent reduction to municipalities to help meet the cost of education and welfare.

Council also decided to ask the federal government to pay a grant equivalent to the provincial allocation on all federal government buildings in the metropolitan area. The federal government now pays a grant on the basis of two per cent of the assessment.

Autherine Lucy Denies Charge Of Red Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — Autherine Lucy, expelled University of Alabama coed, said Tuesday night she will broadcast over the Voice of America today a denial of a letter attributed in her by a radio broadcast from Communist Vietnam.

"I have never written anything for any Communist cause," Miss Lucy said.

The North Viet Nam broadcast, monitored by the U.S. information agency, quoted a letter attributed to the Negro girl as it attempting to gain admission to the university.

The broadcast asked whether Americans, who "are opposing and despising the American Negroes," were "pretending to be charitable" to the "yellow-skinned south Vietnamese" in order to bring them under the yoke of America.

The Alabama girl was admitted to the university, but ordered to leave after a campaign for her admission. A federal court later ordered her readmitted, but the university thod expelled her on grounds she had made unfounded charges against university officials, a year.

Former Lions President Thinks Student Wrong

GUELPH (CP)—A former president of Lions' International says he thinks Negro student Autherine Lucy is wrong to try furthering her education at the University of Alabama.

"She is wrong," Walter C. Fisher of St. Catharines told members of seven service clubs here Monday, "and I don't care who quotes me."

He was lions president in 1949-50.

He said:

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People "has been very active and done itself the greatest injustice in this matter.

"Lions will never get recognition this way. Understanding and respect from both sides make for harmony."

PILOTS ON STRIKE

BRISTOL, England (AP)—British Overseas Airways Corp. pilots went on strike Friday, forcing seven inbound ships to anchor in the roadstead. Four vessels here were unable to sail. The pilots ask a 25-per-cent increase in net earnings, which now average about £1,460 a year.

GAZA (AP) — One hundred Palestinian Arab girls in this Egyptian-controlled coastal strip have volunteered for the Palestinian national guard. it was announced today. The girls are being trained by Egyptian army officers in the use of firearms.

'Pocket' Tornado Tosses Barn on Top of New Car

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A three-minute "pocket" tornado that whirled havoc through Kent county Wednesday night, swept through a stalle on its way past Tecumseh and sucked up a corn-picker and loosed a barn on the roof of a new car.

But the Lasalle damage centred on the farm of Mrs. Mary Milik, Martin, where greenhouse windows were smashed and a barn and barn damaged. Lawrence Tajot's corn-picker was reported to have been lifted into the air and deposited on a railroad track.

In Lasalle, trees, barns and homes were smashed and power was cut off in many sections.

No injuries were reported.

Commerce Board Spokesman Advocates Trade with Reds

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

MONTREAL (CP)—Inclusion of the Communist world in general world trade was advocated today by R. C. Berkinshaw of Toronto, president of the Canadian council of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Addressing the council's annual meeting, Mr. Berkinshaw said:

"A number of countries outside the Soviet bloc over the last year or so have concluded commercial treaties with the U. S. S. R. Canada is in the process of doing the same.

"Recently there have also been demands by European countries to ease the international controls over trade with Red China. . . .

"If we are to make co-existence a reality, it is necessary that we take a realistic approach—decide to let others live as they will as long as there is no interference with the way of life we have chosen."

Mr. Berkinshaw's comments were released to the press in advance of delivery.

The decade since the end of the war, had been more than a period of recovery, Mr. Berkinshaw said.

The hopes of economic co-operation among the nations of the free world had been quite well justified and, since 1938, the volume of world trade, in terms of U. S. dollars—had more than quadrupled, which meant that physical volume had more than doubled.

The spirit of the Havana International Trade Charter and of the international trade organization was not achieved, and instead, since 1947, there had been the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Much dissatisfaction had been expressed about GATT, partly because not all members of the agreement had lived up to its requirements.

Jail Sinners Spend Money To Save 'Soles'

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Four men teamed up to call the right turn in an East Sunday's 10 rounds at the Lima track and wound up with 1,149,974 soles (about $60,525).

But the lucky quartet won't be able to collect for a while. They are residents of the Lima prison.

The quartet, investing a total of about 50 cents, won the grand prize in a form of turf lottery highly popular here.

The director of prisons will collect the money and deposit it in the bank where the winnings will remain until the four are allowed to collect.

FIRE GUTS STORE

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP)—Fire Monday night gutted a grocery store and second floor apartment and threatened to spread to several nearby homes in the village of Vittoria, seven miles southwest of here. Four fire departments, St. Williams, Port Dover, Simcoe and Delhi, battled the blaze which caused damage estimated at more than $10,000.

Russia's New Ambassador To W. Germany Press Target

BONN, Germany (AP)—Valerian Zorin, Russia's new ambassador to West Germany, has been the target of withering fire by the press, Foreign office officials treat him with icy politeness.

West Germany's largest political party has warned him that "Bonn is not Prague"—a reference to Zorin's mastermind ing of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

Zorin, a deputy foreign minister before his assignment to Bonn, came here eight weeks ago cocky and bouncy. Now, one diplomat says "Zorin is terribly unhappy and very disillusioned."

The Russians, in a Moscow broadcast, particularly objected to stories alleging that Zorin's embassy is tapping_governement wires.

This was just one of a flood of newspaper stories highly critical of Zorin. One paper reported that his chauffeur is a high ranking officer in the Soviet secret police. Other papers lambasted him for allegedly criticizing the Bonn government at public functions.

In an unprecedented move, the Adenauer government in its official bulletin commented on Zorin's cordial remarks when he presented his credentials to President Heuss:

"The ambassador must surely be aware that there are hardly two other countries in the world between which trust and confidence, understanding, have been more thoroughly shaken and abused. It will require more than a declaration of intentions if this regrettable atmosphere is to take on a new complexion."

Zorin's feverish activity to make friends in various phases of German life has come under attack. The newspaper Frankfurter Rundschau commented, "for many people, Zorin's activity is the typical behavior of the subversion expert he allegedly revealed himself to be in Prague in 1948."

Zorin has imported two delegations of experts from Russia to visit German plants and discuss possible orders for equipment. His new embassy already is publishing a news bulletin and it is reliably reported is the planning a information program designed to match similar American and British efforts in Germany.

TOYS FOR TOTS AND PARENTS

Children fortunate enough to be presented with some of the new toys now being manufactured may have to argue with mother and father for possession of them. Toy manufacturers are confident they will appeal to the whole family. This electric-powered car and the hobby-horse tricycle on display in New York are samples of the new—and more expensive—boys. The car sells for $500. (Central Press Canadian).

Canadian Survivor Saw Ship's Hull Going in Wrong Direction

SEATTLE (AP) — "There were three sharp cracks—crack, crack, crack, just like that. And then the general alarm rang. I rushed out of my cabin and there was the hull of the ship streaking by in the other direction.

"It was a sight that will be burned in my memory forever. I thought—this is it!"

That, in the words of Mrs. Vernon Lester of West Vancouver, B.C., is the way the American freighter Washington Mail broke in two in the storm-swept Gulf of Alaska at 1:15 a.m. last Saturday.

That was the start of an afternoon of what could have been "sheer horror—if it hadn't been for these wonderful American seamen."

SAGA OF SEAS

It was the beginning of a saga of the seas, climaxed by an almost miraculous rescue of 93 sailors and passengers by the U.S. navy troopship Gen. H. B. Freeman.

The Lesters, along with 48 of the survivors, landed here Monday aboard a chartered Pacific Northern Airlines plane from Kodiak, Alaska, where the Freeman landed them shortly after noon Monday. Two other survivors remained for a brief time in Kodiak.

It was a second honeymoon for the Lesters. They left their four daughters—13, 11 and 8—at home, and took the Washington Mail for Tokyo.

"On our first honeymoon I ran out of money," remarked Lester. "On this one, we ran out of ship."

FRIENDS CHEER

As the plane pulled into the ramp at Seattle-Tacoma airport, a crowd of relatives and friends raised a loud cheer.

"There was no sign of anything wrong," said Lester. "We had had rough weather, yes, but the sailors said: 'It's nothing to worry about.' And then there were the three tremendous crashes."

"We thought we had hit something," his wife said.

"Our cabin was right next to the lifeboats and as I rushed out on deck there was the bow of the ship rushing by in the other direction. That was when I thought: this is it."

"Yes," interrupted her husband. "But think of what the two priests saw. They had the cabin just ahead of us. When they looked out there was no ship in front of them at all. It had been torn loose just in front of the superstructure."

Lester referred to Brother Charles Lebel, 38, of Montreal, and Brother Charles Govaert, 50, Arlington, Va.

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER

Members of the crew came down at this point to tell them there was no immediate danger. The after section would stay afloat indefinitely.

The portion of the ship torn away carried the regular radio antenna. It was only after an emergency antenna was installed that an S O S went out, to be heard faintly by the Freeman, 65 miles away.

"That was the rough time," Mrs. Lester said of the order to abandon ship. "It was pretty dark by then, and snowing, and the waves were 40 feet high."

The Lesters and a number of others moved toward the lifeboat hanging from davits. As the lifeboat swung in toward the ship the women were lifted and tossed inside. The men waited, then one by one jumped into the swinging boat.

VESSEL SINKS

Two lifeboats were lowered, filled with the 60 sailors and passengers. They made for the Freeman, about 1,000 yards away.

The Washington Mail sank about 13 minutes after the second lifeboat pulled away.

"We're mighty thankful to God that we're here tonight," said Mrs. Lester. "Do you know they say no ship has ever been wrecked in the north Pacific and all of the people aboard saved. But it happened to us. And now I'm going home and I'm never going to leave again."

"BACK ON SCHEDULE!"

"I've taken things for relief from constipation for years. Now, at 73, I'm back on schedule—and that's what you'll get from Kellogg's All-Bran." Mrs. J. W. Lewthwaite, Montreal.

Good-tasting Kellogg's All-Bran succeeds in many cases where other methods fail. All-Bran gets at the common cause of irregularity—lack of bulk in the things we eat. All-Bran is highly nutritious yet inexpensive. Delicious served with milk (hot or cold). Kellogg's—the original ready-to-eat bran cereal. For comfortable, natural regularity.

Dodge Mayfair V-8, 4-door Sedan

Family safety wears a look of glamour and go!

'56 DODGE

Here's the carefree answer to the call of the open road. For Dodge gives special consideration to your safety every minute you're on the go!

Check the safety features listed at the right. All are standard equipment on any Dodge model you choose. Some are brand-new, of course, but Dodge has provided most of them for years.

That's because safety is nothing new with Dodge. Year after year, Dodge has consistently pioneered and developed more and better safety features than any other low-price car.

This year, too, Dodge gives you the power you need for safer motoring. New high-torque 6 and V-8 engines provide up to 200 horsepower, pack plenty of reserve for safer passing, safer acceleration.

There's new driving ease, too. New push-button controls for PowerFlite automatic transmission let you select driving range at the touch of a button. Safety-positioned at the left of the driver, these controls are simple and mechanically operated.

And, if you wish, there are other optional features such as Dodge Safety Seat Belts. These are aircraft style safety harnesses you buckle. Unlike others in the Dodge field, these seat belts are anchored to the frame, with no unsightly fittings on the floor.

See your Dodge-De Soto dealer soon, and let him show you all the carefree, worry-free features of the glamorous new Dodge. Drive a Dodge . . . Canada's "safety-first" car!

Manufactured in Canada by Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Limited

All these safety features are standard equipment on any Dodge model you choose

- LifeGuard door latches. Help keep doors shut tight even under severe impact. Exclusive self-tightening mechanism helps doors rattle-free.
- Safety Sealed-Beam Headlamps. Add 80 feet more visibility for safer night driving. Reduce glare in fog, rain, or snow.
- Nonglare finish on instrument panel top. Eliminates tiring reflected glare for safer daytime driving.
- Safety-Rim wheels. Help keep tires securely on the rim in the event of a blowout. Afford extra control for safer stops.
- Safe-Guard hydraulic brakes. Have two cylinders in each front wheel instead of the usual one, for smooth and predictable stopping power.
- Independent parking brake. A powerful secondary braking system. Gives driver an extra brake for added safety in emergencies.
- Electric windshield wipers. Operate at constant speed, do not slow down when accelerating, passing, or climbing hills.
- Safety-Level tires. Lock buttons of rear doors of sedan models can be pressed down to lock both inside and outside door handles.
- Other Dodge safety features include tubeless tires, safety hood latch, and box-section frame construction.

Watch Climax—Shower of Stars weekly on TV. Check your newspaper for date and time.

Little Benny's Notebook

It was swell Sunday weather yesterday, and pop said to ma, An afternoon like this ought to be taken every fair advantage of. What about going out with me for a walk? he said.

Do you meen going out with you so you can stride along on 7 leeg boots while I puff and pant to keep up with you? ma said, and pop said, Just the contrary, my dear, I meen we'll both amble along like leisurely kindred spirits, conversing pleasantly as we stroll.

Well, that would be more like it, ma said, and pop said, it would be exactly like it.

After all, William, I meen after all, wuddnit for gentle unruffled exercise is one thing, but walking is not an old fashion fire horse.

Well then, William, I dont see why not, ma said. There are quite a few fassinating new shops in the Avenue, and we might take a gentle stroll and kill 2 birds with one stone by looking at the window displays.

On 2nd thoughts, my dear, we'll go walking some Sunday when we find ourselves on a nice open prairie, pop said.

The result being, I took a walk with him, and I had to take about 3 steps to his one to keep up with him while I asked him ditrent questions such as whether it would be agenst the law for the telefone company to hire munkies to clime poles for them, and if he would like me just as much if I was bald headed.

RESCUE TWO

THOROLD, Ont. (CP)—Two St. Catharines residents were pulled uninjured Sunday from the old Welland canal after their car plunged off a 30-foot embankment. Police said A. CURTAIN CALL

Calvert helps build a living Canadian theatre

Each year, all across Canada, theatre groups compete for Calvert Regional Trophies and cash awards in thirteen Regional Drama Festivals. From all these groups, chosen by adjudication, eight are then selected to compete in the Dominion Drama Festival Finals for the main Calvert Trophy and the Calvert $1,000 Cash Award. The Dominion Drama Festival, founded in 1932, has been hailed by the Massey Commission Report as "an important, national movement and a unifying force in our cultural life."

CURTAIN CALL... The play is over. The applause of an appreciative audience rings out. To the players it is a first and full reward for all their weeks of work, for all the doubts and fears of opening night.

And those who take part in these productions — producers, players, back-stage helpers, and all—have the added satisfaction of knowing that, by competing in this great Dominion Drama Festival, they are participating in the only national dramatic movement of its kind in the world. Calvert Distillers are proud that, by their sponsorship of the Dominion Drama Festival, they are playing a part in a great Canadian cultural achievement... helping, indeed, to build a strong and living Canadian theatre.

Shown at the left is the Calvert Regional Trophy, Fawn, by Frances Loring, R.C.A., S.S.C., which will be awarded to the winner of the Eastern Ontario Regional Drama Festival to be held at the P.C.V.S. Auditorium Peterborough, March 14, 16 and 17

YEAH, TEAM, STIRLING!

The final hopes of this immediate district for an Ontario Minor Hockey Association championship rests on the sturdy, capable shoulders of Pete Ulman's Stirling bantam "C" youngsters.

The team, already proven championship calibre, faces the big test, or part of it, here Friday night when it clashes with the Forest, Ont., bantam squad in the first game of a point-a-goal-a-count series. And if previous championship games in which a Stirling team played are a criterion, then Memorial Arena should resound to the cheers of the largest hockey crowd of the season. And don't be surprised to see the box office take exceed 2,000.

The game gets under way at 8.15 and tickets are procurable at Bill Cook's tobacco emporium here; George Noble's drug store, Stirling, or from team manager Doug Robson, Stirling. It should be a thriller with Hastling's youngest at their hockey "bestest."

A PROSPECT!

A rather unique baseball story came to light yesterday. It concerns a youngster who within a year or so after he tossed his first baseball is regarded as a possibility for the upper brackets.

Keith Foster, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Foster, now residing in Kingston, told this department that he has hopes of trying out with the Toronto Maple Leafs in their down south training camp.

Foster's story rings like a Merriwellian novel. To bring it up to date, Foster states he pitched for the Canadian Clippers in the North Hastings baseball league last season and came up with the outstanding record of 11 wins and three ties in fourteen starts. It was his first appearance in organized baseball.

Born in Belleville young Foster amused himself in his younger days with tossing around a softball. He never became associated with kids' baseball teams figuring he was not good enough.

He is a nephew of "Lefty" Weeks, former well-known Belleville athlete and senior baseball hurler. Lefty noticed the youngster playing and figured he had a throwing arm that was out of the ordinary. He took the youngster under his coaching wing and taught him the rudiments and some of the finer points of the pitching art.

Later when he was fifteen, Foster said he went to Kingston and tried out with a city senior baseball team. The manager, Tom O'Connor, signed him but because of his youth and inexperience did not use him in league games.

Foster, a little chagrined at the treatment, took some advice and dropped out of the game for a year or so. Recently he came back and joined the Cannilton Clippers.

Last year he hitch-hiked to Toronto at the close of the International League season and worked out with the Maple Leafs. Apparently he impressed the Leaf coaches. They told him they believed he had possibilities and would hear from them in the spring.

Keith is at present in Corbyville, where he stays with his uncle, Bob Marner. Apparently the youngster has a smoking fast ball, besides a variety of curves. Lefty Weeks and Allen Kelleher seem to think highly of this young baseballer, who thinks nothing of hitch-hiking any distance to try out or play his favorite summer pastime.

Speaking of baseball, there are some underground rumblings in the district, which if they have the vestige of authority, should not be bad fare to diamond addicts.

Manager Jack Carson of the "rent-a-season" Belleville Bntas, says he has had a couple of inquiries wanting to know if Belleville would be interested in a form of international league midway. It seems a group of four clubs just south of the border are interested in hooking up with a Canadian loop insofar as a league or interlocking schedule are concerned.

One of the letters suggested a group here consisting of Belleville, Peterborough, Kingston and Watertown, N.Y., could operate nicely in conjunction with the aforementioned south-of-the-border league. However, nothing of a baseball nature has been apparent in Kingston and Peterborough circles up to now. We are given to understand they will be approached regarding the above set-up.

Manager Carson was optimistic over Belleville's chances of a senior ball club if and when the opportunity to play presents itself. "We don't have to go out of the district to get top-flight players," Jack said. "We have a nucleus of veterans and a fine bunch of young possibilities. Give me a couple of good pitchers and I'm set."

Lady Professor Joins Braves Training Staff

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A pretty lady professor leaves for the south today to teach Milwaukee Braves farm club players to keep their eyes on the ball—and a few other things at the same time.

Mrs. Alice Richardson, a professor at the University of Wisconsin's Milwaukee campus, is a specialist in teaching people to read faster and more accurately. She adapts the same techniques to teaching players to keep their eyes on the ball.

Her chief technique is the use of a projector to flash pictures on a screen for a fraction of a second. The pupil watches and writes down what he believes he saw.

When the pupil improves, he watches while two objects are flashed on the screen in the same instant. This trains a player for such things as fielding a ball while tacking base runners out of the corner of his eye.

Toronto Club 4-Game Winner Western Rink Takes Three; Victor Favored to Win Title

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—A one-time diving champion and a civil servant match their curling skill today with the winner favored to capture the Canadian curling championship.

Ontario and Manitoba, only unconquered teams in the top bonspiel in the country, clash in the fifth round, a trail of the defeated behind them.

Leading the way was Alfie Phillips, 46-year-old water sportsman who skipped the Toronto Granite Club rink to four straight victories. Against him was Bill Walsh, whose Manitoba quartet won the event four years ago.

The Manitoba foursome was unbeaten in three engagements. Walsh had a bye in the third round Tuesday.

Although there were still six rounds to go, the event was wound up Friday, the winner of the Ontario-Manitoba duel was expected to take the works.*

FIRST CHAMPIONSHIPS

Phillips, leading an Ontario team into the Canadian championships for the first time, registered victories in the third and fourth rounds Tuesday. He defeated Quebec 9-8 and Northern Ontario 11-8.

Walsh, a pre-tournament favorite with possibly a stronger rink than he had in 1952, clobbered New Brunswick 14-4.

In other fifth-round games today Newfoundland was matched against Quebec, British Columbia against Saskatchewan, Alberta against Nova Scotia and Northern Ontario against Prince Edward Island.

Phillips, Canadian diving champ who competed in the 1928 and 1932 Olympics, beat Walter Smith's rink from Thetford Golf and Curling Club in Quebec's eastern township on the last rock in the third round.

NEED RULERS

The score was deadlocked 5-5 and Quebec was lying third when the 32-year-old Smith was short with his last rock as he tried to place a close guard. Phillips slipped in behind him. Officials had to use tape measures to call the count. It was Ontario's by a few inches.

The other two witness rinks were Northern Ontario and Newfoundland. Northern Ontario, which has won the title once in the tournament's 29-year history, dropped a 12-8 decision to Ken Burnett and the 11-6 decision to Ontario. It was Newfoundland's fourth straight setback; Northern Ontario's third.

Newfoundland, last in the 11-rink race, fell 12-7 to Matt Baldwin's Alberta representatives in the third round and 22-4 to Saskatchewan in the fourth round.

Alberta was a double winner Tuesday. Baldwin edged British Columbia 7-6 in a thrilling fourth-round match.

ENDS SLUMP

Saskatchewan came up with two after dropping its first two matches Monday. Hill, from Dellale, Sask., blasted Prince Edward Island 15-6 in the third round and rolled over Newfoundland 17-4.

Quebec took a 13-10 fourth-round win over Prince Edward Island.

Nova Scotia, skipped by Gerry Cline, lost too much for British Columbia in the third round, winning 14-7.

In the other third-round match New Brunswick carried all but four ends in defeating Northern Ontario 15-8.

RYDER CUP SITE

LONDON (AP)—The British Professional Golfers' Association said Tuesday it had accepted a $25,000 offer from Sir Stuart Goodwin to stage the 1957 Ryder Cup matches at Lindrick, Yorkshire. Goodwin is a wealthy Yorkshire industrialist and a PGA vice-president.

Marlies Defeat Teepees 5-4 To Even Series

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Toronto Marlboros defeated St. Catharines Teepees Tuesday night to even the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-finals at one game each with one tie. The next game is scheduled Sunday at Toronto.

A sellout crowd of 3,324 fans saw Bob Pollock score the winning goal at 15:58 of the third period after Teepees' Matt Ravlich received a penalty for pushing Marlboros' Charlie Burns in the face.

Burns played in the game despite warnings Teepee coach Rudy Pilous that he was endangering his life by playing. Burns was seriously injured a year ago and has a plate in his head. Pilous told an OHA council meeting Monday Burns shouldn't be allowed to play.

Marlboros led 2-0 at the end of the first period, the first goal coming while Toronto was playing a man short. It was 3-3 after the second.

Bob Baun, Ken Girard, Bob Kennedy and Barry Collins were the other marksmen. Ab McDonald, Wayne Hillman, Mitch Plata and Bob Carter counted for St. Catharines.

Referee Larry Lewin called 11 penalties, seven to Marlboros.

Quebec League

Shawinigan Falls Cataracts, driving for their second straight Quebec Hockey League championship, are only one victory away from their goal.

The Cats maintained their eight-point lead over the runner-up Montreal Royals Tuesday night, edging Quebec Aces 4-3 while the Royals were blanking the tailend Trois-Rivieres Lions 2-0.

Shawinigan Falls and Montreal both have five games remaining in their regular schedules. The Cats now have 81 points, compared with 73 for the Royals.

Podres Had Induction Note Month Ago

By JOE REICHLER

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Johnny Podres, star of Brooklyn Dodgers' world series victory, admitted today he received his notice of induction into the army a month ago.

"But I didn't tell anybody about it," he said with a wry grin, "and I don't know how it got out. I didn't think they were supposed to tell those things."

He added that his notice called for him to report to Ticonderoga, N.Y., March 15 "and from there we take a bus to Albany for induction."

Podres could ask a transfer of his induction to here. If granted, he probably would go in the April quota.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," he answered when asked whether he would seek the transfer.

He also can request another physical examination before he is inducted since his last physical was Nov. 14 and even at 90 days he will have elapsed between the exam and induction date.

Podres, who had a mediocre 9-10 record for the regular season last year, became the toast of Brooklyn when he beat New York Yankee Ken Lehman in the seventh games of the world series last fall.

While no one would come right out and say so, it is apparent that Brooks are hoping Ken Lehman, a left hander, will be good enough to take Podres' place.

Dutchies Take Game Lead Over Mercurys

KITCHENER (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen defeated Owen Sound Mercurys 6-4 Tuesday night to take a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior A semi-final.

It was a tough fight for the Dutchmen who had to come from behind three times before 3,885 fans.

Paul Knox and Jimmy Logan with two goals each were the big guns for Kitchener - Waterloo. George Scholes and Bob White got the others.

Jack Taylor, John Lumley, Elmer Skov and Tommy Burlington scored for the Mercurys.

The Owen Sounders had a big second period edge after the teams had split two goals in the opening period. They outshot, outskated and outplayed the Dutchmen in the middle frame and held a 3-1 edge going into the third. Dutchmen exploded in the third with four goals to Mercury's one.

Mark-Wrecker Jean Beliveau Leads NHL Record-Smashers In Biggest Change in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The record books in the National Hockey League are undergoing one of the greatest wholesale changes in the history of the league.

There are 17 games to go in the 210-game schedule and eight league and 13 club marks have fallen. Another 13 records could be rewritten by the end of the regular season March 18.

Leading the parade of individual record-wreckers is Jean Beliveau with two. The classy Montreal Canadiens centre has also tied another record and is aiming for a fourth. Two club marks have been changed by Beliveau, too.

New York Rangers, picked to finish last this term, are conducting a general housecleaning on their team marks. They have set five records and individual players have erased another three.

NEW PENALTY MARK

Their most surprising mark is the one which defenceman Lou Fontinato set. He has 188 minutes in penalties and still six games to go. The former league mark of 167 minutes was turned in by defenceman Red Horner of Toronto Maple Leafs 20 years ago.

Of the eight league records which have fallen, four are for penalties. Besides Fontinato's mark —it's also the most time ever spent in the penalty box by a defenceman—Beliveau and Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings are holders of badman honors.

Beliveau's 137 minutes is the record for centres in a season and Lindsay has spent more time than forward Gus Mortson with 133 minutes.

Maurice Richard of Montreal, hockey's greatest scorer, sets a record every time he scores a goal or gets an assist. His 458 goals and 792 points are league marks.

TOP CENTRE SNIPER

Beliveau's 44 goals ties him with Joe Malone, former Canadien, as the highest goal-scoring centre in history. His 81 points erased Lorne (Gabby) Howe's total of 80. Malone fired 44 goals in 1917-18 and Lach set his record in 1944-45.

Beliveau is six goals from Richard's 50-goal total as the highest marksman in a season.

Bert Olmstead of Canadiens has a good chance to set a record for most assists in a season. He has 31, four less than the total registered by Lindsay in 1949-50.

Rangers' Bill Gadsby has 46 assists and needs four more to break the mark set by Doug Harvey of Montreal for defencemen last season.

Canadiens have a slim chance of compiling the most points by a team in a season. They have 92 points and six games to play. Red Wings set the record of 101 points in 1950-51.

The league resumes action Thursday after a layoff since Sunday. Toronto visits Montreal, Rangers and Black Hawks play at St. Louis and Boston and Red Wings tackle at Detroit.

Major Sports Attendance Upped Despite Video

NEW YORK (AP) — All major sports showed increases in attendance during 1955 in spite of television, the ninth annual survey of The Morning Telegraph and Daily Racing Form disclosed Tuesday.

Organized baseball drew 35,060,208, a gain of 69,551 over 1954. The National and American League drew 16,097,930, a boost of 681,500, but the minors had a loss of 620,281—13,622,278 compared with 13,963,776 in 1954.

College football attracted 13,231,780 for 504 games, an increase of 725,636 over 1954 when 12,506,144 witnessed 508 games.

The National Football League had a record season, with 2,521,490 customers, a gain of 331,065 over 1954.

Total attendance of 50,473,403 was reported for horse racing, 31,293,784 for the thoroughbreds and 19,242,678 for harness racing. There was a loss of 125,074 for thoroughbreds but there was an increase of 189,892 for the trotters made an overall boost of 64,818.

Trenton Flyers Eke Out Win Over Vimys

NAPANEE: — (Special):— Trenton RCAF Flyers squeezed out a narrow victory here last night, edging the Quinte Vimy Signals 7-6 in the third game of their OHA Intermediate "best-of-seven" playdown series. Signals lead the series 2-1.

Vimys raced from behind to wipe out a three-goal deficit in the third period but Flyer Bill Grenier proved the hero when he scored the winning goal with two minutes to go.

The airboys took a 5-2 lead in the first period with two teams splitting a pair of goals in the second frame. The Signals opened with a furious offensive in the last half, scoring three goals to knot the count before Garnet Gardner scored with the winner.

Wilberforce scored three goals for the winners with Vimy's Mc-Keown coming up with a trio for the army crew.

GREY CUP TENDERS

TORONTO (CP) — Tenders for radio, television, film and program rights to the 1956 Grey Cup game will close at noon, EST, March 22, Harry McBrien, CRU secretary, announced Tuesday.

No Grounds For Protest Dutchies Claim

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen said Tuesday night Owen Sound Mercurys haven't much ground to stand on in their protest of the fourth game of the semi-finals in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A.

Mercurys protested the game on the basis that Ken Laufman of Kitchener was under automatic suspension and therefore ineligible to play.

Mercurys said they checked OHA business manager Bill Hanley Monday and found that Laufman had not paid a $10 fine for a misconduct penalty he received in a game at Kitchener last Thursday.

Chairman manager Ernie Goman said Tuesday night the notification of the fine was received before Monday morning and the money was sent to Toronto the same afternoon. He denied that the rule makes the suspension automatic before it is actually imposed by the OHA.

Goman said the Owen Sound protest was not valid because it was not received by the OHA until Tuesday morning, beyond the 48-hour limit.

Goman also said if Mercurys want to get technical, he is prepared to prove they have been playing an ineligible man all season.

This man, he said has been playing without a proper release. He did not name the player.

Badminton Play Gets Under Way

CALGARY (CP) — The champs post six of the eight Dominion trophies on the line today as Canadian championship play got underway.

Play in the senior events was to extend through to Saturday after-finals. Junior events begin Thursday, and were expected to advance to the finals in the afternoon. Quarter-finals in the main events are scheduled for Thursday evening.

Defending two crowns is 17-year-old Jean Waring of Calgary, who won the women's and girls' championships last year.

Marj Shedd and Joan Hennessy, of Toronto are ranked first in the women's doubles play, also are defending the championship they won in the last two Canadian tourneys.

A Vancouver couple, Bert Fergus and Darryl Thompson, are out again to recapture the men's doubles crown. Thompson also is a member of the team which is trying to retain the mixed doubles crown. He and Jean Bardsley of Vancouver were seeded first in the event.

Harold Moody of Montreal, favored in the boys' singles event, will be defending his crown for the last time this year. By the time next year's championship play rolls around he will have passed the junior age bracket.

Will Represent Ontario at Basketball Trials

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario will be represented at the Canadian Olympic basketball trials, starting in Vancouver, March 23, by a 12-man squad.

Announcement was made here Tuesday night by president R. A. Mitchell of the Ontario Basketball Association following the Toronto Westward-University of Western Ontario game, Western won 75-62.

Five members of the Nortowns, three from Westerns and one each from Assumption of Windsor, Andy's of Toronto, University of Toronto and Sault Ste. Marie Gunners were named to the squad.

Selected from the Nortowns were forwards Coulter Osborne and George Sukac, centre Ed Bogdan and guards Ray Thomas and Ed Mayerick.

Western's representatives will be centre Ray Monnoi, guard Lou Veres and forward Gene Ellis.

Others are forwards Dick Mackenzie of Assumption and Jack Garbutt of Andy's and guards Pete Potter of University of Toronto and Bill Harris of Sault Ste. Marie.

The coach will be Fred Thomas and the manager Alex Fisher, both of Nortowns.

The team is expected to fly from Toronto March 21, with the first game being played in Vancouver March 22.

ODDS DROP

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (AP) The Caliente Kentucky Derby picture took on Like Magic were cut in half Tuesday from 50 to 1 to 25 to 1.

Book officials said an unprecedented amount of bets at the initial odds, posted only a few hours earlier, led to the cut. There was no other price change.

Like Magic, three - year - old brother of Swaps, ran fourth in Saturday's Santa Anita Derby.

Britain's Pro Soccer Players Ready for Strike

LONDON (AP)—England's 2,500 professional footballers are preparing to go on strike against floodlit and televised matches.

The big test comes March 13 when Brentford plays Swindon. The following night Wolverhampton is due to play Bilbao of Spain. Both matches are under lights.

If players' obey their union and refuse to take part a "war" may follow with the clubs fining or suspending players for breach of contract.

The union ordered players to boycott televised and floodlit matches until the Football Association and Football League agree to meet the union and negotiate special pay rates.

SOCCER UNDER LIGHTS

LONDON (AP) — Arsenal defeated Preston North End 2-0 Tuesday night in London's first English League soccer game. A crowd of 34,672 attended the First Division match.

Cricket Players Will Be Scolded Says Wicket-Brass

LONDON (AP) — England's cricket bosses indicated Tuesday they will discipline players who "ragged" an umpire during a match in Pakistan.

The incident occurred during a match between Pakistan and England's "A" team in Peshawar just over a week ago.

The Marylebone Cricket Club, ruling body of cricket in England, announced it has ordered to appear before the club "if this should be in the best interests of maintaining friendly relations." General Iskander Mirza, president of the Pakistan board of control, however, asked that the tour continue.

A group of England cricketers "kidnapped" Pakistan umpire Idrees Baig after an official dinner on the two teams Feb. 26. They drove him to their hotel.

Baig's version of it was as saying: "They gagged me, twisted my arm up my back and sat on me. At their hotel water was poured over me."

Sullivan Has Edge on Labua

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—John L. Sullivan of England, who learned to fight the hard way, was a slight favorite to whip Jackie Labua in their 10-round middleweight bout here tonight.

Labua, mulled at close losses to veteran Gil Turner in his last two starts, promised "I won't leave any question about it this time."

When Sullivan was only 14 he began boxing as a bouts fighter in England. He worked in carnival tents in three-round spurts against three men lined up to take him in the ring with him. The challenger was paid if he could stay three rounds.

The fact that Sullivan came through this rough apprenticeship once fighting 36 three-rounders in three days—seems to indicate he can punch.

So does his record of 36 knockout victories in 83 professional fights (not counting the seven boys). His overall record is 64 wins, 16 losses and three draws.

Labua, 24, has won 25 and lost nine.

Junior Habs Edge Biltmores; Goyer Scores

OTTAWA (CP)—Montreal junior Canadiens fired three goals with a man advantage to edge Guelph Biltmores 4-3 in a hard - fought Eastern Cup hockey game here Tuesday night.

The game, played before a crowd of about 4,000, was the second win over Biltmores by the same score within three days. The Canadiens won Sunday in Montreal.

Centre Ralph Backstrom, who accounted for all four Canadiens markers Sunday, fired his fifth goal in the two-game series to give the winners a 1-0 first period lead.

But Junior Habitants opened fast in the middle stanza and upped their lead to 3-0 at the 31-second mark when Andre Pronovost counted.

Claude Laforge made it 3-0 at 1:48.

Gerry Goyer tallied the first Biltmore goal at 8:45 and Al Cleary made it 3-2 four minutes later.

But Andre Pronovost scored the clincher at 13:41, his second goal of the game, on a long shot which bounced in off the cross bar. The goal was disputed by Guelph.

PLAYER, NOT READER

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Jackie Jensen, Boston Red Sox outfielder, was taking batting practice, the ball he batted turned toward the pitcher.

"Is that the way you do it?" a rookie asked. "I always hold the bat so I can see the trademark."

"When I come to bat, I come to hit, not read," replied Jensen.

Marc Reaume In Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Rookie defenceman Marc Reaume of Toronto Maple Leafs was admitted to hospital Tuesday for observation and possible treatment of a bruised knee. Dr. Hugh Murray, team doctor, said.

The 22-year-old National Hockey League player suffered a recurrence of knee trouble in weekend action.

It was not known how long Reaume will be in hospital.

Tim Horton, benched three weeks ago, was expected to return to the Toronto lineup for Thursday's game at Montreal if Reaume is unfit.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both— Relieves Pain Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without need to go to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while greatly relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that surgery was able to make this astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, of from 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute, Bio-Dyne is now in use in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Many Meals Being Eaten off Trays While Watching TV

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—It's possible that television has dealt a paralyzing blow to the dining room.

For nearly three centuries the dinner hour of English-speaking peoples has been growing progressively later. Fashion has moved it from noon forward to 6, 7 and 8 o'clock. Now television sometimes seems bent on shifting it to 9 and 10 p. m.

This, of course, may be merely an urban phenomenon. But it's certainly not just New York City provincial, for word comes of it happening in such places as Los Angeles and Nashville, Tenn.

Men seem to be getting home from work later. Whatever their individual excuses, there's no denying traffic problems everywhere. When most men come home at evening there days they find their children huddled around the TV set.

In many households the family still eats together regularly. But in others the children have taken to eating while watching TV. Their parents eat together later when the "big programs" come on.

The result is less use of the dining room and more meals eaten off tray-tables before the living-room TV set.

Personally I'm neither pro-dining room nor anti-dining room. I'm merely bemused by the changes television works on social customs. It's a theory I have, however, that you're inclined to eat more while dining off a tray watching TV programs than while seated at the dining room table. For watching television is the most passive sport in the world. It demands your attention, yet elicits absolutely no physical responses except sight and hearing.

The next time you eat while watching TV, notice if you find yourself confusing to wield that fork after you're full or reaching for another chocolate in the box—all done unconsciously, all done in nervous reflex physical habit.

It could turn out that none of the social changes television is subtly working is nearly as bad as the fact that prolonged television watching can make you grow fat.

At The Capitol

"LAST FRONTIER"

In CinemaScope by Technicolor

A motion picture of bold adventure and panoramic excitement, according to Hollywood report, Columbia Pictures' "The Last Frontier" opens Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. "The Last Frontier" stars Victor Mature, Guy Madison and Robert Preston in CinemaScope and color by Technicolor. James Whitmore and Anne Bancroft are costarred and Russell Collins is featured.

"The Last Frontier" is a story of the American wilderness and of the flesh-and-blood men and women who wrested a vast part of this continent from the mightiest of Indian nations, the Sioux. Specifically, "The Last Frontier" tells of one of the last great battles for the American northwest and of an unbridled frontiersman, an Army scout, who opposes his ruthlessly ambitious Army commander when the latter imperils his fortress outpost and the lives of his men by attempting to recapture a lost glory.

SECOND FEATURE
SINGING STAR IN MUSICAL ROLE

Margaret Whiting, famous recording artist, and Forrest Tucker as a musical show producer, head the cast of the elaborate, tuneful and chorus-studded "Paris Follies of 1956" opening Thursday at the Capitol theatre.

The picture, filmed in gorgeous De Luxe color, also stars Barbara Whiting, Martha Hyer, Dick Wesson and Lloyd Corrigan. It features Frank Parker and the Modernaires.

Both attractions are first Belleville showings.

AT THE McCARTHY — This hectic domestic scene in which Tom Ewell plays second fiddle to his wife, Sheree North, a WAF Lieutenant, is one of the many comic situations that help make "The Lieutenant Wore Skirts", opening today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, one of the funniest comedies to come out of Hollywood in years. Frank Tashlin directed and Buddy Adler produced this Twentieth Century-Fox CinemaScope picture, which was filmed in color by De Luxe. Many of the scenes for this picture were filmed on location in Hawaii.

Neckline in French Night Clubs Is Just Belt High

By—BO BTHOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Producer-director-writer Norman Krasna is back in town with a report on how he filmed Frank Sinatra's barefoot from the waist up.

That thing is common in Paris, where Krasna made what he claims is the first American movie with an all-French crew. But his project created a little stir here.

"It's common to see bare bosoms in Paris night clubs," he explained. "In fact, you get so tired of it that you find yourself just waiting until the comedian comes on."

He needed the half-draped showgirls for authenticity's sake, he argued. A sequence showed Olivia DeHavilland, who plays "The Ambassador's Daughter," giving an army sergeant (John Forsythe) a tour of the Parisian nineries.

"The sergeant has to blush," Krasna remarked. "But it wasn't the blush I needed; I could do that with a red light."

So the audience would understand what he was blushing at, Krasna needed the unbloused girls. But he doesn't intend to shock sensibilities on this side of the Atlantic.

"I shot it two ways," he remarked. "In America, you will see the chorus girls waving fans. Then, in the mirror behind the sergeant, you will see the fans raised into the air.

"But the French will wonder if something is missing from the picture if we don't show the girls. . . ."

Grace Kelly is finishing up "High Society" and enjoying a round of social events prior to departing for her marriage to Prince Rainier of Monaco. The big question is: Will she return?

Grace is touchy about answering, since she is caught in the middle. The prince has publicly expressed his opinion that she should not continue her career after their marriage. But she had previously told MGM that she would return after the wedding to do at least one more film.

Lest she upset either the prince or the studio, she has remained mum on the future of her career.

Your Horoscope

THURSDAY, MARCH 8, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Better, planetarily speaking, than yesterday. Good possibilities for achievement, advancement in your particular interests, gainful openings, financial and artistic matters honored.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Progress can be furthered by vigorous action. Affairs pertinent to our armed forces, difficult work in most fields have splendid vibrations. Just be careful how you present yourself.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your Mercury is favorably situated; also Saturn, Jupiter and Mars. A tremendous planetary setup for big accomplishments in many fields. Small and big business can gain. So can you!

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — No room for self-pity or worrying about the past. Be up and doing now. Encouraging influences for new, and old industries, trades, intellectual professions, manufacturing, all worthwhile activities.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — While not an entirely responsive period for seeking favors or a raise in salary, this can be a beneficial day for you and your special interests. Sound plans, hard work at your job will bring credits, others to your aid.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Rays friendly for useful matters, artistic work, science, mental work. Artists, writers, critics, journalists, teachers, students, governmental interests favored.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Venus' aspect advises care in personal matters, how you approach clients, problems. Otherwise day offers benefits, gains for intelligent and sincere efforts. You can advance.

October 24 to November 22 (Scarpio) — A stimulating, challenging day — one to inspire and incite real action, attainment. Both difficult and the more delicate and artistic matters strongly favored. Good going!

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Encouragement all round. Get into action to make your day's (and future) achievement sound, lasting. Plan your schedule wisely and with an eye to the future. You can make this a big day.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)—No need for gloom or doubt. Saturn and other planets augur well for big and small business, employers, employees, teachers, students, governmental interests, clerks.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Not so stimulating for change, expanding (unless imperative) or restless action. But day does encourage developing and improving in work, knowledge, steady gains where, when you can.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Confidential matters and those pertaining to water need meticulous caution and handling now. Most useful everyday interests are honored.

You Born Today possess a variety of interesting and personable qualities. You have more talent and capability than even you perceive. You are often too retiring to try things at which you could succeed. Give yourself a pep talk regularly and strive harder to do credit to your God-given assets. Whatever your work and interests (so long as honest) tackle them with continued determination and faith; have confidence that you will achieve. Birthdate: Oliver W. Holmes, Amer. jurist.

BENNY 22 TODAY
WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP)—Jack Benny is 32 years old today—but, there's a catch.
It was on March 7, 1924, that a circuit court in Waukegan granted Ben Kubelsky's petition to change his name to Jack Benny for theatrical purposes.
Waukegan legal records show that the famous comedian—who for years has claimed to be 39—is only 30 at the time he legally changed his name.

Police at Caledon said traffic on secondary roads was faced with almost impossible conditions.
Provincial police at Barrie reported that heavy rain over secondary roads with several inches of water.
Twenty-four families were evacuated from the Riverside drive district along Duffin's Creek in Pickering township, shortly after midnight. The creek was at its highest level in 12 years.

BRIDGE THREATENED

The highways department set up four road blocks cutting off through traffic from the Kingston way in Pickering village. Water was pouring over the highway fill and ice jammed against the bridge. Easterly traffic to Pickering from Ajax-Whitby was detoured to Ajax two miles away.
At Schomberg, where much of the business area was torn away during hurricane Hazel, 36 men worked all night to keep the Schomberg river clear when ice and logs jammed.

CHICAGO (AP)—Violent March storms struck devastating blows in many parts of the United States Tuesday night.
Tornadic winds and thunderstorms swept a wide area, at least one injured, more than 30 others and caused extensive property damage. The violent midwest state, swept through the Ohio valley today.
The storm, accompanied by hail in advance of a strong cold front, brought warnings of tornadoes to Illinois and most south-central areas.
A snow storm, with gusty winds, hit sections of the Rockies, the central plains states and the upper and middle Mississippi valley.
Showers and thunderstorms also struck the lower Great Lakes region and into New England.
The mid-continent storms struck their most damaging blows in communities in Indiana, Illinois and Missouri. They were centered on the clashing of extremely warm air from the Gulf of Mexico and freezing air spreading across the Great Lakes.

Three Perish In Fire in B.C.

PORT EDWARD, B.C. (CP)—A 19-year-old youth and two small children were burned to death Tuesday night in a house fire in this north coast cannery village.
Dead are Gordon Johnson, 19, son and his sisters, Barbara, 3, and Dixie, 18 months.
They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, employees of the Inlet Bros. Fisheries Ltd. Both were working in the cannery when the fire broke out.
Mrs. Stanley Johnson, their daughter-in-law, and her baby escaped. All the family lived in separate apartments in the two-storey converted duplex.

MORTGAGE LOANS

BRIDGES CLOSED

About a dozen Toronto bridges were closed as a precaution by civil defence officials and many streets, underpassed by the rushing water, were barricaded.
The Don river, which runs through the city's east end, was reported rising in the hills in some sections and workmen piled sandbags against riverside homes.
At least two families in the suburb of Scarborough were forced to prepare for possible evacuation before the rising Rouge river. Motor cars were abandoned on flooded streets.
One of the first indications of trouble came from Kitchener, when police began broadcasting radio and television warnings to residents in the Grand river valley about five hours after rain began. All police posts south to Lake Erie were told to be on watch.
In Brampton, 30 miles northwest of Toronto, merchants moved stock from basements as high waters in streams from a creek inundated a 500-yard section of the main street. At last reports the water was two feet deep.

TRAFFIC ENABLED

York county roads early today were coated with ice but traffic was almost at a standstill.
School buses in King, Vaughan, Whitchurch and parts of Markham township nearby were taken off the roads.
Police at Newmarket, 25 miles north of Toronto, said ice cake rolled into ditches on No. 11 highway at Armitage. No one was injured.
Police at Caledon said traffic on secondary roads was faced with almost impossible conditions.
Provincial police at Barrie reported that heavy rain over secondary roads with several inches of water.
Twenty-four families were evacuated from the Riverside drive district along Duffin's Creek in Pickering township, shortly after midnight. The creek was at its highest level in 12 years.

BULGANIN CALLS

4. If international progress could be made to this point, the U. S. would be prepared to agree that inspection and supervision devices would apply to foreign bases as well as those on a country's own soil.
5. Pending development of a disarmament system, Russia and the U. S. would maintain their "very powerful air forces, including stocks of nuclear weapons."
Eisenhower also appealed work toward an agreement to divert all future atomic production to peaceful uses.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Knox and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Knox, Sr., of Toronto, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Knox and family.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hatley and Mr. and Mrs. John Watt spent the weekend in Ottawa and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Hirst.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Gerald Gibson and family in the loss of her father, Mr. Andrew Wilson, who passed away in Picton on February 29th. Also to Mrs. William Thompson in the loss of her brother, Mr. S. Brooks of Salmon Point, who passed away on February 28th.

Mrs. Alec. Kelson of Exeter, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Rhoda of Dumont, New Jersey, who came to attend the funeral of Mr. A. Wilson, spent a few days with Mrs. Gerald Gibson and Mr. Gibson.

Mrs. Elliott Shannon was the lucky winner of the beautiful food server given by the J. Lyons and Co. Every customer buying a Lyons product was given a ticket during the week and the draw was made by little Miss Patsy Allison on Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. W. J. H. Smythe of Toronto, and Miss Jane Smythe of Belleville, were callers on Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Foster attended the capping ceremonies at the Kingston General Hospital on Friday evening when their daughter, Miss Helen Foster, was one of the 69 student nurses who received their caps. Helen returned with her parents and will enjoy a three weeks' holiday with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans attended the open house at Queen's University, Kingston, last Saturday.

St. Andrew's Guild will hold its annual St. Patrick's tea and food sale in the town hall on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ogilvy and Mrs. Alf Ogilvy and Mrs. Clarence Way, Bloomfield, motored to Kingston on Thursday where they visited Mr. Clarence Way in the General Hospital there. Wellington friends of Mr. Way will be pleased to hear that he returned to his home in Bloomfield on Friday afternoon when Mrs. J. Ogilvy, Mrs. Way and Mrs. Arnold Post motored to Kingston for him.

A good crowd attended the annual cribbage party sponsored by the United Church choir on Friday evening. Everyone enjoyed themselves. After the games were over prizes were given out with Mr. Arthur Morden winning the men's highest score and Mr. Pat Bryant low; Mrs. A. T. Fleming, ladies' high, and Mrs. Clarence Hicks low; Miss Karen Alrea, the children's high score and Larry Snider children's low. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches, pickles, ice cream, cake and coffee were served by those in charge of the evening.

Mrs. Kenneth Woodsworth of West Toronto, spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ross, who have both been ill. All are pleased to say that both Mr. and Mrs. Ross are much better at the time of writing.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Elliott, of Napanee, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Elliott's sister, Mrs. Ben Bishop and Mr. Bishop.

Sorry to report Mrs. Laura Wright, who has been ill for the past week, is still confined to the house and under the doctor's care.

Mrs. Otho Moore, sorry to say, is a patient in the Prince Edward County Hospital.

Mrs. Don MacDonald left on Monday afternoon for Malton, where she will spend a week with her daughter, Mrs. Don Graham, and her family.

Mrs. Sprague (mother of Mrs. Colin Lane), who has been very ill in Toronto, was moved by Weaver's ambulance to the Trenton hospital on Saturday. Her daughter, Mrs. Ellen McMillan, Reg. N., accompanied her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jeffery, Brenda and David were guests on Sunday of Mr. Jeffrey's mother, Mrs. J. J. Jeffrey in Trenton.

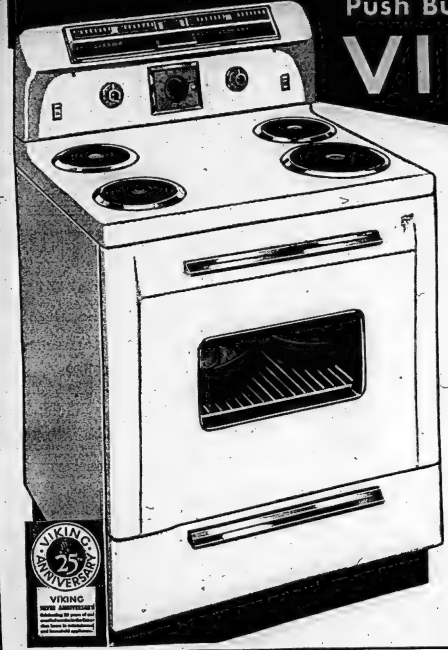
Mrs. Ruth Wells, of Waupoos, and Miss Maizie Carson, Picton, were recent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Carson, Lakeshore road. Sunday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carson were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Guernsey and Harley, of Cherry Valley.

On Friday evening March 9th, the Wellington Consolidated school will hold its annual "parents' night." Every one will be welcome.

LOSES FIRST SOLDIER

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Australia has lost her first serviceman in the nine-year war against Communist terrorists in the Malayan jungles, it was announced today. A non-commissioned officer in the Australian battalion died of wounds suffered in action.

TWO FARMS BURIED



OSLO, Norway (AP)—The newspaper Aftenposten says a snow avalanche buried two farms near the village of Oldra in northern Norway. A 57-year-old farmer and two children were feared dead under the mountain of snow.

23 Monthly Payments of 9.50, 1 payment of 10.50.

The most exciting range news of the years! A VIKING Range at a "Big Deal" price! Months ago, our buyers went to the manufacturer with their idea! They wanted a very special range, to sell at a very special rock-bottom price. It had to be beautiful in styling to make you glow with pride every time you look at it; it had to have luxury features—push-button switches with seven heats, indicator lights for every element, soft glowing built-in lamp, oven light, see-through oven door, minute-minder and, of course, an automatic electric clock. Our buyers specified that "the range" must be a time-saver! Must have fast-heating elements, with automatic clock-controlled oven and appliance outlet, to free the housewife from cooking worries for a full day's activities . . . must be easy to use and easy to keep clean. To say we were gratified at the results is an understatement. We submitted it to test after test. Sturgeon Falls Man Unfit For Trial in Fire Deaths

NORTH BAY (CP)—Percy Olmstead, 31-year-old Sturgeon Falls mechanic, today was found mentally unfit until he tried for murder in the fire-death of his wife last October.

Olmstead was charged only in connection with the death of his 27-year-old wife, Simone, although the bodies of their three children were found in the ashes of their two-room home. It was destroyed by fire last Oct. 11.

Olmstead subsequently disappeared and sparked a search throughout the north, finally surrendering in his discovery and arrest.

Two medical experts Wednesday presented differing opinion on his illness.

Dr. Thomas Dixon, director of Sudbury General Hospital's psychiatric unit, said he would have "no hesitation" in certifying him insane.

Dr. Dennis Roberts, psychologist at the hospital, said he would place Olmstead on the borderline of mental deficiency.

The jury retired this morning to consider the point and returned with its finding shortly after noon.

India Is Annoyed As SEATO Urges Kashmir Vote

By EUGENE LEVIN

NEW DELHI (AP)—SEATO endorsement of a United Nations plebiscite in the disputed state of Kashmir—a move sought by Pakistan and opposed by India—has detonated sharply hostile reaction.

Both Indian and American circles here fear the backing gives Pakistan Wednesday by its partners in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) is tending blow to the coming talks here this week between Prime Minister Dulles of the United States and Prime Minister Nehru.

News reports from Karachi say Dulles and the other seven SEATO foreign ministers at their meeting in the Pakistan capital had urged that the dispute be settled in the UN, or by India and Pakistan directly. The reports from Karachi note that the SEATO ministers did not go into the merits of the claims to the Himalayan state.

But Indian newspapers generally are critical of SEATO for even considering the Kashmir matter, asserting that any Kashmir statement made in Karachi implies support to Pakistan.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Freezing rain, sleet and occasional snow was general over southern Ontario Wednesday night, while central Ontario had a mixture of snow and occasional sleet. The complex storm responsible for this weather pattern is moving northeastward and in its wake, colder air is pushing down across the Great Lakes area. Variable cloudiness and a few snowflurries will accompany colder air today. Friday will be sunny over most of the province, clouding over during the night.

Heart Ailment Claims Life of Soldier, Diplomat

MONTREAL (CP) — Maj.-Gen. Leo R. LaFleche, who bated war but never avoided a battle in either military or civilian life, died suddenly Wednesday night.

A heart ailment claimed the life of the 67-year-veteran soldier, planner and diplomat in a hospital he entered a few days ago for what was considered minor surgery.

Maj.-Gen. LaFleche, who survived near-fatal wounds in the First World War to become one of the youngest generals in Canada's national defence, retired last year after an impressive career in the diplomatic service.

He was deputy minister of national defence before the Second World War, and from 1942 to 1945, headed the national war services ministry which was charged with the supreme mobilization of manpower and resources.

SERIES OF BATTLES

His life was a series of battles—on the battlefield in 1916, against powerful government officials who wanted a retrenchment of Canadian defence expenditures in the 1930's and against sickness that almost ended his career in 1939.

Even in the staid diplomatic service, he had a brush with danger. While ambassador to Argentina and Uruguay, Maj.-Gen. LaFleche left President Juan Peron's palace in Buenos Aires Wednesday only just presented a Canadian Pacific Airlines brief to the now-deposed Argentine dictator when revolutionary planes swept down on the palace. Wednesday in the Canadian embassy were broken but there were no Canadian casualties.

The CPA brief, requesting permission to operate services to Buenos Aires, was lost in the bombing of the palace.

FOUGHT FOR NAVY

As deputy national defence minister and exponent of the theory that Canada should assume full responsibility for its own defence, he led the fight against a movement to abolish the Canadian Navy.

He also drew up a plan for developing Canadian war industries in the 1930's, which was based largely on the theory of increasing volume of production during peace.

He was born in Concordia, Kan., in 1888 but was brought as an infant to Mont Saint Pierre, Que., and received his early education.

Chief Justice J. Pierre Bishop of the Ontario Appeal Court, quashing LeGrandeur's conviction in the death of Pearl Roy in October, 1954, said it had taken the trial jury only nine minutes to determine the question of insanity as a defence.

Rough, Tough All-Star Defenceman In Toronto Loop Exposed as Girl, 8

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of the Toronto Little Hockey League did a double take Wednesday night when they selected their 1955-56 all-star team. They discovered one all-star, a rough, tough defenceman, is an eight-year-old girl.

Red-faced officials said they had been fooled for four months by Abi Hoffman, a standout "star" team's top defensive star and one of the best players in the league.

Abi was chosen to play in a league all-star game March 31 but when officials checked "his" birth certificate they found Abi is short for Abigail.

Her father, Samuel Hoffman, said he had not revealed Abi's sex to officials because "she liked playing, and hockey is a good healthy sport."

She played more than a dozen games during the last four months in her league and in exhibition tilt-pees, without arousing the suspicions of league officials, her coach, manager or 15 team-mates. Little League teams are named after On-tario Hockey Association Junior A teams.

Helped by the Grade Three pupil, Teepees are in second place in the four-team group.

Mr. Hoffman said his daughter was never interested in dolls and has played with hockey sticks since she learned to stand. She got into the league by accident.

He agreed to take her in she league enrolment meeting to "see all-star team. They discovered one all-star, a rough, tough defenceman, is an eight-year-old girl.

Time Signals With Soprano Printers' Error

LONDON (Reuters) — Singing telegrams, singing commercials—now it is singing time signals, says The Radio Times. The program is listing weekly magazine of the BBC.

This week's issue lists, following the program for 3 p.m. Friday: "Greenwich time signal, conducted by Lt.-Col. S. Rhodes with Edith Lewin (mezzo-soprano)."

Numerous misprints have cropped up in The Radio Times since it began publishing in France three weeks ago because of a London printers' strike.

New Trial Ordered

TORONTO (CP)—Joseph Levinson, 38, sentenced to be hanged April 12 for murder in the stabbing death of the woman with whom he had been living, Wednesday was ordered a new trial.

Chief Justice J. Pierre Bishop of the Ontario Appeal Court, quashing LeGrandeur's conviction in the death of Pearl Roy in October, 1954, said it had taken the trial jury only nine minutes to determine the question of insanity as a defence.

Major-General Leo R. Lafleche Dies Suddenly

Freezing Rain, Snow Threaten Major Tie-Ups in Province

TORONTO (CP)—Freezing rain which struck southern Ontario with the sting of a million needles sent motorists slithering into ditches today and threatened major tie-ups in town and country alike.

Ontario Provincial Police reported their hazard warnings and reports poured in of cars abandoned by the roadside in a rash of minor accidents.

Sleet and snow added to the weather woes that began Tuesday night with a flood-bearing thunder and lightning storm.

Hundreds of rural telephones were knocked out as ice forming from the freezing rain covered wires with a dazzling crust.

The Ottawa and upper St. Lawrence valleys also were a weather target with a forecast of three to six inches of snow, ice pellets, heavy drifting and winds gusting to 50 miles an hour.

The Toronto weather office said the complex storm which brought the freezing rain to southern Ontario and a mixture of snow and sleet to central Ontario will move northeastward today.

In its wake, colder air will move down across the Great Lakes area.

At least two persons were reported injured in the Second World War, and from 1942 to 1945, headed the national war services ministry which was charged with the supreme mobilization of manpower and resources.

Western Big Three May Ask For UN Action in Mid-East

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, Britain and France may ask the United Nations Security Council in the next few days to take urgent steps to prevent war in the Middle East.

Such a proposal for action at a special Security Council session would pose a test of Russia's attitude toward the Arab states. The Soviet Union would have to decide whether to veto a warning which would cover the Arab states as well as Israel.

Diplomatic sources said the U. S. and Britain have proposed to France that a special UN session be called, and the French have indicated that they would go along.

What the U. S., Britain and France said to have in mind is a broad resolution calling on the Arabs and the Israelis to take measures designed to avert an outbreak of hostilities. Such a resolution would at least imply that if either side started a new Palestine war, it would come under UN sanctions.

President Eisenhower told his news conference Wednesday that the U. S. believes the UN "should take urgent and early action" regarding the tense Middle East. The American position was that "both sides in the controversy should agree to abide by the United Nations' advice and armistice terms, and avoid initiating incidents so we could get peace started."

The president also implied that he would seriously consider inviting Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin to visit Washington if he ever thought such a step would help to reduce world tensions. But he said that he had not thought about a Bulganin visit as an immediate development."

The Soviet Union recently censured Israel for making a raid into Syrian territory. But the U. S. and Britain apparently feel that the Arabs should also be told to take measures for peace.

Most British Papers Assail Eden and Anthony Nutting

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Eden met with his cabinet today to discuss British policy in the Middle East as most of Britain's mass - circulation press bitterly criticized his part in events in the House of Commons debate Wednesday night.

The key question they say Eden failed to answer before a hostile Parliamentary mood is whether the future policy toward Jordan following the court dismissal of Britain Sir John Glubb, the British officer who commanded Jordan's Arab Legion?

A Conservative newspaper, The Daily Telegraph, says the performance of Eden and Anthony Nutting, his minister of state for foreign affairs, in the House of Commons in scathing terms.

Nutting said "seriously considering of consequence." The Telegraph says, adding that when the Labor benches started jeering "Mr. Nutting gallantly stuck to his colleague."

Eden's speech was "uninspiring," says this usually pro-government newspaper.

PRAISES GAITSKELL

The Times, independent, praises the part of Hugh Gaitskell, opposition leader Hugh Gaitskell who, in contrast to Eden, made a clear and pressive weight of constructive thought likely to enhance greatly the stature as a spokesman on foreign affairs."

Directly opposing Eden on the arms-to-Israel issue, the influential Liberal paper, the Manchester Guardian, calls for a treaty with Israel, saying that any aggression against Israel "is an attack by Jordan—using British arms—would be the "special responsibility" of the British government.

Missing Toronto Waiter Found In Las Vegas

TORONTO (CP) —John Ellis King, Royal York Hotel head waiter missing since Feb. 27, is alive and well but broke and stranded in Las Vegas, Nev.

Police said a telegram was received by the missing man's family at 2 a. m. it asked forgiveness and that $200 be sent to the gambling town—sometimes called "lost wages."

Police said they are sure the 39-year-old home-skipping head waiter, who disappeared 11 days ago, but have wired Las Vegas police for a check.

House to Study Capital Plan Around Ottawa

900-Square-Mile Area Would Be Showplace

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has undertaken a study—first in 12 years — on development of the long-term national capital plan to transform a 900-square-mile area around Parliament into Canada's showplace.

Members unanimously adopted Wednesday a resolution to form a Senate-Commons committee to review the plan already directed by the 20-member Federal District Commission.

There were indications the opposition will seek to speed progress of the multi-million-dollar capital plan and try to have Parliament take a bigger hand in guiding the development.

Opposition leader Drew said Parliament must take a more active part to step up the work if Ottawa is to become an "appropriate show place" of Canada.

MUST DO MORE

He said something more must be done to implement the plan drafted some years ago by Parisian town planner Jacques Greber. The job required a pattern of development recommended by Canadian experts, approved by Parliament. A continuing committee of members should provide constant review.

The committee will make the first Senate-Commons study of the capital's improvement since 1944. The present plan was drawn up in 1946 by the late prime minister Mackenzie King. It accented Ottawa as Kingsmere — the estate bequeathed to the Canadian people by Mackenzie King.

ON BIGGER SCALE

Mr. Drew said the development plan is now on a much bigger scale. Its capabilities in the area could not possibly please a hamstringing—an apparent suggestion that Parliament vote more money.

"We are not for seeing even the beginning of the concept in the plan," he said. "If we don't accept the plan should not be accepted as the final product."

CCF leader Coldwell supported the argument that the committee should study the question of establishing a federal district of Columbia. But he pointed out that effect was ruled out of order.

Engineers, Teachers Unite in Plea To Match Russia's Training Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—Security alone warrants drastic action to improve Canadian education, the Canada economic commission was told today.

Both engineers and teachers expressed concern over reports of tremendous advances in the Soviet in training scientists, engineers and other technical personnel. Spokesmen for both groups appealed for greater federal aid to expand and strengthen Canada's educational system.

The Canadian Teachers' Federation said Canada's educational system and its "system frightening consequences when reports are considered of "great technological and scientific advances resulting from the educational system of the Soviet Union."

The federation, representing 74,-000 teachers excluding the French-speaking province of Quebec, said the national interest that the federal government either through direct grants or tax credits ensure that the provinces get enough money to provide educational facilities which can offer "equal opportunities to all Canadians regardless of geographic location and family economic status."

Enrolment in Canadian universities and colleges probably will double to 122,900 under-graduates and graduates by 1965, the CTF would amount to 10 per cent of the college-age population in the institutions—compared to a current seven per cent. But even so, it said, we will be left behind United States which currently has 20 per cent of its college-age population attending the institutions.

The Engineering Institute of Canada, in its brief on the subject, included a letter from Trade Minister Gordon.

The letter, addressed to institute secretary Fred Austin Wright, said the Canadian shortage of engineers "was never so acute."

Big Three Pledge Seen As Israel's Best Protection

1950 Pact Better Shield Than Arms Sale Says Eden

LONDON (CP) — Britain stood firm today on a Middle East policy planed to the Western Big Three pledge to block any change in Israeli-Arab boundaries by force.

Closing a turbulent House of Commons debate Wednesday night on policy in the tense area, Prime Minister Eden declared that his government and the United States are working closely together to keep peace in Palestine.

Eden ominously warned that Britain, the U. S. and France had undertaken an obligation in their 1950 pledge that is more serious than perhaps many British people realize.

The 1950 pact promises that the Big Three will act against any aggression by either the Arabs or Israel.

LABOR DEMANDS

Eden also turned aside demands by the Labor Opposition that British ship be sold to Israel to match those which Communist Czechoslovakia is supplying Egypt. He said Israel should find the three-power 1950 declaration "infinitely more valuable as an assurance" than to be allowed to buy a certain number more tanks and airplanes and be finitely better in the case if peace than an arms race."

The House of Commons divided along party lines to give Eden's government a 325-232 vote of confidence. The ballot came after the prime minister, in a free-swinging speech, also accused Russia of trying to disrupt Britain's relations with Jordan through inflammatory radio broadcasts.

Jordan touched off consternation and resentment in Britain last week when she fired Lt.-Gen. John Bagot Glubb, veteran British commander of her Arab Legion. In his first statement since his dismissal, Glubb — who has since been knighted—said he had warned Jordan's King Hussein repeatedly that "Israel undoubtedly is stronger numerically than Jordan, which is foremost knowledge."

Now Mailbox In New York Talks Back

NEW YORK (AP) — Now comes the talking mailbox.

It went on duty Wednesday outside a midtown post office so that stamped talk can get answers to any kind of postal question without lining up inside.

A microphone and loud-speaker circuit enable expert clerks inside the post office to fire back the answers. The box also accepts letters and is emptied every half hour.

Ice-Jamming Of Plant Intakes Cuts Power off

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Large sections of Niagara Falls today were reported without power due to ice-jamming of power plant intakes.

The downtown Queen street business area was without power all morning, following a snow and sleet storm.

Parts of Stamford township, surrounding the city, were closed for lack of power.

Five power poles, downed in the storm, blocked the Niagara Falls International Airways eastbound main line north of the city. Trains were rerouted over other tracks.

The Niagara Falls Review says Niagara Falls Power Company plant on the Niagara river has been shut down while the nearby Toronto plant is working at a reduced capacity.

The local Canadian - Niagara Power Company also was reported working at reduced capacity and has shut off power to most customers in the area.

In Toronto, power officials reported, however, their Niagara Falls plants were operating normally.

Fallen trees curtailed early-morning electric deliveries, while Stamford township police radio was cut off.

DAMAGES APARTMENTS

ELORA, Ont. (CP)—Fire which broke out in the basement caused extensive damage to a three-storey brick apartment block for a time threatened the Canadian Legion Hall and nearby homes. Firemen fought through a blinding snow and say they fought the fire believed to have started in the wiring of a water heater.

Montrealers Late for Work Result of Storm

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of Montrealers, crusted in snow and thoroughly chilled, arrived late for work this morning as one of the winter's worst storms threatened to paralyze transportation.

Police reported no major traffic jams or any damage as gusts up to 50 miles an hour riffled a heavy snowfall through the streets, piling up to three to four feet high.

Streetcars, buses, taxis and private cars crawled through the streets as crews tried to clear the fast-drifting snow—delays slowed public transportation or their own cars to walk to their jobs.

The Montreal Star said Montreal's Dorval airport were cancelled early in the morning and some late-morning flights were expected to leave on schedule.

CITY & DISTRICT NEWS

BROKEN GAS LINE SAID CAUSE OF BLAZE

City firemen had one run this morning at 321 Front street when a tractor owned by Mel Bayliss was reported ablaze. A broken gas line was said to be the cause of the fire. No damage to the tractor was reported as result of the fire.

LOCKED CAR BLOCKS ALLEYWAY

Lack of consideration on the part of an unthinking motorist caused a few unkind thoughts on the part of an express company driver this morning.

The express company driver had entered an alleyway at the Salvation Army Citadel to make deliveries at the rear of a Front street store and when he attempted to get back onto Pinnacle street, he found the alleyway blocked by a locked car and nobody in sight.

Apparently the motorist had got stuck in the alleyway and after efforts to get underway failed, simply locked his doors and went away.

Police Blotter

An unsuccessful attempt to force the safe at the office of Pinder Motors was reported by city police this morning.

The patrol officer discovered the break-in at 6:30 this morning with investigation revealing punch marks on the back of the safe. Entry to the building was gained through forcing the hasp and padlock on the showroom door.

Police believe the would-be safe crackers were either scared away or felt that time was getting short. No tools were left at the scene.

Despite bad street conditions only two minor accidents were reported by city police.

Provincial police reported two Marysville girls were returned to their home. The girls, Betty Creighton, 16 and Jean Creighton 14, were believed to have left Bancroft with a motorist. Both girls look younger than their ages.

Pupils Must Be Interested In Education

Students must be interested in education for its own sake, pupils of Quinte Secondary School were told at a special assembly yesterday.

Speaker was A. E. O'Neill, past principal of Oshawa Collegiate and he was addressing the students as part of a special education - week program held in the school auditorium.

"I hope you are not doing your work — just to get it done — but I hope that you have a natural curiosity," he told the students, emphasizing the opportunities held out to them in modern times.

The "be-all-and-end-all" of education was not only to study students cares a career for themselves and make a living in life, he said. "It means this; that you shall so live that you will be a better person and the world will be a better place for your living in it."

He also criticized the intellectual hackneyed attitude of students, telling the pupils it gave him "an awful jolt" to see some young people "reading" comic books and comics.

He said it seemed to him that education has to be more than a preparing of people for jobs and useful work.

"It has to have something to do with the individual," he continued, "to make his life so abundantly that the world not hang heavily on his shoulders," said Mr. O'Neill.

APPLIES TO FUTURE

Particularly does this apply to the future with the introduction of automation, the speaker pictured automation in its ultimate development, saying that what is coming only a few highly-skilled, hard-working technicians."

He also stressed the need for seeing the past in a proper perspective and recognizing its contributions to progress. "By understanding the past we can understand the man read what man has achieved, you become a little humble," he said.

"We are not very humble today. We think we have the worldwide has been achieved in the last few years.

Also during yesterday's assembly some fourteen special perfect-attendance awards were given out to students.

The presentations, by Mrs. Ralph Mitchell, Bay of Quinte District High School Board, marked a new departure in that they were being presented for the first time. "Receiving the awards were: Dorothy Pipe, Peter Dafoe, Gail Wright, Brian Hobbs, John Harwood, Shirley Russell, Paul Ensley, Joy Hall, Lawrence Cameron, Don Cranston, Jane Townsend, Margaret O'Brien, Sheila Drake and Ronald Forde.

Appoint Census Commissioners For This Area

At Ottawa, the names of commissioners appointed to conduct this year's census in Ontario have been released.

Commissioner for Hastings South is Sam Nicolson, R.R. 2, Belleville.

In Hastings - Frontenac riding, Normin Coburn of Enterprise will be in charge of the work.

Wallace Perry of Napanee is the commissioner for the riding of Prince-Edward Lennox.

The census will be taken this summer.

Curlers Ready For Meeting In City Hall

Despite the bad district weather, it is expected a large crowd will be in attendance at the Curling Club meeting to be held at the City Hall chambers this Thursday evening.

Interest is at fever heat over this project and word was likely a number from the Fair Board and Parks Board will be on hand to offer timely advice and assist in getting the campaign under way. Tuesday night's meeting set plans for the new building' will be submitted and changes made that will satisfy both the users of the building.

It is planned that the building will be commenced early in the spring and be ready for occupancy by the Fair Board for the exhibition in August. Following this fair the sheets will be used for the winter's curling.

All curlers from any district and all prospective curlers are invited to attend and by your presence and enthusiasm can the project be successful.

POLIO STRIKES

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Argentine government Wednesday declared an urgent call for nurses and doctors to help battle an alarming polio outbreak. The country reported 44 new cases in the last 24 hours. Of those stricken, 10 died.

Thomas Family Has Had Store For 121 Years at Same Site

Few people in the Quinte district do not know of Thomas' store on Front street. What some people do not know, however, is that it is perhaps the oldest store in this part of Ontario, its name a direct link to the days when Belleville was only a village.

Next week Thomas' will celebrate its 121st anniversary of business on the city's main street, a period of time that has seen four generations of the same name catering to the needs of the public.

Only present day link to the name of Ed Thomas, grandson of the founder, but most of the business is directly managed by his son Don.

Ed has himself a walking directory of history of the Quinte district, treasured tangible data on the exact date of the store's founding is not available.

The store's real clue was when an old man, then in his eighties, told Ed about his father in 1835 when his grandfather first came to Belleville.

WAS GENERAL STORE

A history of the store and the merchandise it has carried is also of a distinct commentary on the passing years in the city. In those days when grandfather was a general store selling everything from patent medicines and sugar and tea and coin a Front street that was a combination of rural fields, urban homes and business locations.

Directly opposite the general store, where the docks of Nova Scotia and James Texts now are located, was a pasture for cows.

It was when grandfather was a lad they forgot to lock the front door of the store and walked down to open for business in the morning, they found the cows had eaten all the cabbages in the shop," Don recalls.

The store, it appears, did a thriving business in those days, not only with the residents of the community and on its fringes but also further afield.

INDIANS BROUGHT FURS

"Even the Indians brought furs up by canoe to trade them in for provisions," Don says.

When the original founder died the store passed on to Don's grandfather and in 1900 the store was inherited by the present owner, Ed Thomas, and his brother.

The change in the store's stock from the days of the biscuit barrel was gradual, always in keeping with the demands of the time.

The first major change, and first step in the store becoming what it is today — a lobsecoist and news agency — happened when Ed Thomas himself took over. Many of the old lines were scrapped and tobacco and cigarets substituted. Gradually, as magazines came increasingly into the market, they also became more prominent on the shelves of the store.

"Today Ed Thomas stocks almost 100 English language magazines published here and in the U. S., with several ethnic publications and three overseas trade journals thrown in for good measure.

The original building was extensively remodelled, however, within the last it might have been good for another 121 years once to light what the supporting beams of the structure were unearthed. The wooden pegs that held it so strong a heavy truck could not extract them and a power saw had to be used to cut through the beams.

Although a family name of Thomas also has been more than a name on a store front through the years. Ed Thomas himself has been considered for his contributions to hockey in Belleville and in the city while Don himself also is carrying on the tradition. Each in turn has contributed much to the community's municipal life as an alderman and a member of many city committees.

Robt. Tanner Describes Life In Electronic World of 1980

VANCOUVER (CP) — The electronic world of 25 years from now was pictured briefly here recently by Robert Tanner, president of the Intendent of development engineering of Canadian Marconi Electric Co., Belleville, Ont.

Mr. Tanner, speaking to a service club, said the world of the 1980s will be largely dependent on electronic devices which will operate factories, cook meals and drive cars.

Mr. Tanner said in the factories the machines will be controlled not by human hands, but by punched cards or plastic tape . . . yet turning out parts of considerable complexity at high speed."

Much routine office work, he said, "will have been taken over by computing machines, with fabulous electronic memories."

Widespread use of high frequency sound waves would be seen in the kitchens. Meals will be cooked in a fraction of the time it now takes, he said.

"Large luminescent panels, perhaps covering all the walls and glowing with a cold and almost mysterious light" would replace the present home lighting system.

The driver of the car of tomorrow would have little to do but adjust a few knobs on the dash and let back. The car, after the destination and average speed have been set, would whisk along the highway guided by radio signals in the traffic lanes. Electronic eyes would swing into action when a traffic signal or another vehicle is encountered.

Four-Inch Mixture of Rain, Sleet And Snow Bogs Down Traffic

Vehicular traffic in the city and district was slowed last night and early today as the area was covered with a four-inch mixture of rain, sleet and snow which in some instances threatened to completely bog down autos.

Everywhere about the city motorists were having difficulty getting their cars underway this morning as a liberal coating of "sugar" snow simply refused to provide traction for spinning wheels.

Motorists got stuck before they got out of their own driveways. Even those who did get out had difficulty in negotiating street intersections.

School buses were up to an hour-and-a-half late in arriving at the two city high schools, while further north in the county at Harmony the buses did not go out at all.

Even highway traffic was bogged down with one man reporting it took him four hours to get from Belleville to Picton, and then only with the assistance of a snowplow when his car failed to find traction in the snow.

The mixture of snow, sleet and freezing rain put a half-inch crust on the snow solid enough to hold up pedestrians.

City road crews were out early clearing bus routes and sidewalks, while all regular public works employees were called out to man shovels.

City Engineer Charles Mott said Front Street and the downtown area would be cleared to the curb before midnight and appealed to motorists to refrain from parking.

Jury Finds Truck Driven At Fast Speed

Leonard Loses, 36, of Deseronto, died from multiple head injuries caused by being thrown from the vehicle in which he was riding as it was being driven at excessive speed on a gravel highway.

This was the finding of a coroner's jury at the inquest held Wednesday evening before Coroner Dr. D. C. McVicker at the Hastings County Court House.

The accident occurred one-and-a-half miles east of Deseronto on No. 2 highway during the early morning of March 3 as Losee and his fellow passengers were eastbound in a small panel truck. The truck was driven by Max Harrison with Losee and Henry Deruhle passengers, of Deseronto.

Seven witnesses were called by Crown Attorney John A. Pringle at the inquest, including Dr. A. E. Ross, pathologist at Belleville General Hospital who said multiple head injuries had been the cause of death.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Games, Entertainment

Inclement weather did not affect the meeting of the Senior Citizens' Club of Bellevile Club, only 50 attendances suffering slightly, the evening being well spent in enjoying good entertainment and games.

President Fred Cooke opened the meeting after the singing of "God Save the Queen," and Mrs. Drummond presented the minutes, which were passed and some correspondence. The president asked all to stand in silence for those members who had been lost to the club by death.

Entertainment was by the Smith family, and Mr. D. Smith was heard in ventriloquism and in songs, with his guitar, and Evon and Doreen Smith were also very entertaining in songs, dancing and guitar playing. Prizes were well received and enjoyed. Miss Kay Brown of the Recreation Commission staff, led a short community sing-song. Jim Brennan played some of his Irish in a step dance.

Games played were cribbage, Chinese checkers and euchre, the latter being most popular. Prizes for euchre were won by Mrs. L. Field and Mrs. V. Conway for ladies and by Mr. Jack Thompson for the men. Mrs. Conway also won the door prize.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Cooke and ladies of the club as a fine evening came to a close.

Manitoba Runs Unbeaten Streak To Six Games

MONCTON, N. B. (CP) — Manitoba defeated Newfoundland 9-7 today to break a tie and remain unbeaten in six in the Canadian curling championships after seven rounds. The Manitoba team, which received a third-round bye, now have a 6-1 record.

The pace-setting rink, skipped by 38-year-old Bill Strelioff, got its wins in dead end and gradually pulled away from the Newfoundland team with Ontario but last. Newfoundland has won only one of seven starts.

Ontario, which received a seventh-round bye, held its second place position with a record of five victories and one defeat.

The third-place Nova Scotia rink skipped by RCMP Sergeant Gerry Glinz made a determined bid to draw even with Ontario but lost a hard-fought 10-8 battle to Quebec. Nova Scotia has a record of four victories and two losses.

In other games, Prince Edward Island scored its second decision of the tournament, defeating New Brunswick 9-6, Northern Ontario edged British Columbia 11-10 and Saskatchewan walloped Alberta 12-4.

IN MEMORIAM

MILTON. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Charles H. Milton, who passed away March 8th, 1951.
Five years ago I had to part
With one I loved with all my heart;
God took him home, it was His will
But I miss him still.
Only those who have lost know how I miss you.
I search your one kind face
Through the mist of anxious tears,
But I know you are not there
dear
And a vacant chair of lonely years.
Sadly missed by his loving wife
Edna.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market moved upward today on the heaviest first-hour trading in more than a week. Leadership again came from western oils. Base metals inched ahead to a record level.

Refining oils, utilities and papers guided industrials forward. Gains were mostly fractional. Selected issues traded briskly. Among the more active stocks ahead were Canadian Oil Companies, Imperial Oil, International Petroleum, CPR, FPM and Simpsons.

Gaspe Copper climbed $2.50 to $40 in the mining division. Consolidated Hollinwell traded heavily for a 12-cent advance to $2.21. International Nickel and Noranda each added 75 cents.

Gunnar gained ½ and Nesbitt Labine was peanuts higher in uranium. Pacific Pete gained ½ in western oils.

PRODUCE MARKET

Gold, Uranium Future Bright

TORONTO CP)—Mines Minister Kelly of Ontario sees a bright future for gold and uranium—and all the other potential wealth in Canada's mineral storehouse.

In his closing speech Wednesday night to the annual convention of the Prospectors and Developers Association Mr. Kelly attacked the pessimistic.

"The future looks bright and fair for gold, uranium and everything else you produce," he said.

Mr. Kelly in effect took exception to statements made at the convention Tuesday by W. J. Bennett, president of the crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd.

Mr. Bennett said the federal government is attempting to lower the cost of uranium for use as fuel in atomic power plants because of the uncertainty of future military demand.

DECRIES PESSIMISM

Mr. Kelly said he regrets some persons are "selling Canada short" by negative talking. He said the United States has contracts for uranium with Australia and the Belgian Congo which last till 1968 and 1967 respectively. He added that there are undeveloped markets in such areas as Pakistan and North Africa.

Mr. Kelly said that Ontario, since the early years of this century, has produced $8,000,000,000 worth for its people. This could be trebled in the next 10 years.

Chatham Wants To Sell Park

TORONTO (CP)—A private bill to let Chatham dispose of a downtown public park was approved today by the Ontario legislature's private bills committee.

D. G. Ross, Chatham city solicitor, told the committee the city wishes to sell part of the park as a site for a home for the aged, and the rest to the board of education to be developed as a collegiate campus.

The money would be used to establish a new park in the north of the city, he said.

The bill, sponsored by G. W. Parry (PC—Kent West), must still be given final approval by the legislature.

Folk School Studies Music For Four Days

Music was the subject under discussion at the recent Folk School in Hastings County with the theme, "Let There Be Music!" Under the capable leadership of Mr. Quirt McKinney, instructor of music at Teachers' College, Peterborough, members delved into the study of this "universal language." Music is always an integral part of Folk School but this is believed the first attempt in the history of Folk Schools in Canada to hold a four-day study of music.

A study was made of the symphonic orchestra by means of a film which showed the various sections of the orchestra—strings, woodwinds, brass and percussion —with close-ups of the different instruments and with accompanying commentary. Symphonic recordings played after this film were heard with deeper appreciation as those present related the music to the various instruments they had observed in action earlier. Opera was also introduced by means of films and later recordings of several operas were enjoyed.

FOUR PERIODS IN MUSIC

A survey was made of world music, taking the four periods: early, classical, romantic and modern. The earliest music was vocal, before instruments were developed, and took the form of folk songs. The oldest known today, a round, "Sumer Is Icumen In," was composed in the thirteenth century. Of the classical period, composers such as Bach, Handel, Gluck, Haydn and Mozart were studied. Some of the greats of the romantic period are Beethoven, Schubert, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Berlioz, Wagner, and more modern composers of this same period, Rimsky Korsakov, Rubenstein, Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, Greig, Dvorak and Sir Edward Elgar. Each person present was assigned to do some research on the life of one of these great men. This activity and recordings heard later served in a very pleasant way to further interest in and knowledge of the subject.

The School was not composed entirely of serious study—handicraft was an enjoyable relaxation each day. Around the long dining table the students gathered, each with a handful of clay and a head full of doubts of ability to make anything recognizable. However, under the kindly guidance of Mr. Basil Kuglin, almost before they knew it things of beauty began to take form and many and varied were the articles modelled from the original mass of clay.

Singing also had a very important place on the program and with Mr. McKinney leading. In Marsh Hill church on Sunday morning, the Folk School sang as a choir, a special arrangement of "Fairest Lord Jesus."

CANADIAN MUSIC

In the study of music the students learned that, although Canadian music is not yet "on the map" we do have music. One hundred and thirty composers have had their work published, but Canada needs more music and sadly needs critics. Musically, however, Canada is going places, because in the schools the younger generation is now being taught to love and appreciate music. As a result of this discussion it was decided that one might encourage Canadian music in the following ways: (1) by starting a record library (2) by attending Canadian concerts, and (3) by helping provide assistance to talented persons in the community so that they might continue their studies.

The committee and leaders are pleased with the success of this Folk School and with the choice and development of the theme. Much of the success is due to Mr. and Mrs. Basil Kuglin of Foxboro, who so kindly offered their spacious home for this event.

Plans are under way for the Summer Folk School and it would be wise for those wishing to attend to make plans early for full time attendance as already many have expressed a desire to participate.

PAY DAMAGES TO BOBBY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives voted today to pay $11,197 to a London bobby severely injured when he tried to eject two gate-crashing American airmen from a dance. Legislators were told the airmen were intoxicated and offered "to fight any Englishman." In the melee, constable Thomas F. Milton fell down a stairway, and was later retired for permanent disability.

Asks Government Relax Uranium Industry Hold

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was urged today to relax its hold on the uranium industry so that it could play a vital role in providing electrical power for the western world.

Gilbert LaBine, president of Gunnar Mines Limited, said the sooner federal restrictions are lifted to be more rapid will be the transition of the industry from dependence on the military to the provision of commercial power.

"We should be working now towards the freedom from government control within the limits of security on the sale of uranium in an open market so that a world price may be established," he told the Gordon economic commission.

"The first logical step is the right to an export permit for the sale of uranium to licensed purchasers throughout the western world."

ONLY ONE BUYER

One of the great mining figures of the northland, Mr. LaBine became known for developing big radium and uranium deposits years ago. His company, Gunnar, operates one of the largest uranium mines in the Beaverlodge area of northwestern Saskatchewan, also the location of the mists of the crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Co.

Commercial operators have to sell all their uranium to Eldorado. Commercial contracts are scheduled to be completed in 1962.

Regulations should be changed, he said, so that private industry can process uranium beyond concentrate or precipitate stage, even to the development of the refused metal as is being done in the United States.

AVALANCHE KILLS EIGHT

BERLIN (AP)—An "unusually large" avalanche which buried three buildings in the Polish Tatra mountains last Friday night, killed at least eight persons, the official East German news agency ADN reported Monday. ADN said another avalanche buried the chairman of the commissioner for ski sport of the Polish Tourist Association.

Find Rabid Dog In North Bay

NORTH BAY (CP)—A rapid dog was picked up here Wednesday as health officials expressed alarm over spreading rabies.

The dog was quarantined after it became ill while tied up for some weeks. Eight persons at the home of the dog's owners are being given Pasteur anti-rabies treatment as a precaution. None was bitten, but all had handled the animal.

Officials also said laboratory tests on a cat which died last Friday showed the animal had rabies.

The cat scratched its owner and his daughter. They are being given the Pasteur treatment.

The new fiareup, together with reports of rabid foxes, has officials worried.

Dr. R. D. Mutrie, head of the northern Ontario health of animals division, has appealed for more help and the federal government is sending him a third veterinarian. Dr. Mutrie's area covers Nipissing, Timiskaming, Sudbury, Parry Sound and Cochrane districts.

Alberta Plans To End Involved Voting System

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta plans to scrap the voting system now in use in her provincial elections and replace it with a traditional "x" system of marking ballots.

A bill introduced in the legislature Wednesday night would do away with the transferable vote system, used in ridings which elect one member, and the proportional representation system, used in the multiple-member ridings of Calgary and Edmonton.

Fred Colborne, Social Credit minister without portfolio who introduced the bill, said the return to the "x" ballot is proposed because of the high percentage of ballots spoiled under the present system.

Provision for the change is made in a bill providing for an entirely new election act, which would replace an act passed in 1942. The bill calls for a wide variety of lesser changes in the provincial election law.

Flood Conditions Plague Broad Section of N.Y.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Miserable flood conditions plagued a broad section of New York state today as rain continued into the third day.

At least two deaths have been attributed to the weather.

While emergency measures in some areas permitted stricken families to return to their homes, fear spread in the southern part of the state as the Susquehanna, Chenango and Chemung rivers continued to rise.

To the west, the Allegheny river was 4½ feet above flood stage at Salamanca and only two inches below the all-time high of 14.2 in 1942. Dozens of families are being evacuated from homes along the river.

ROADS CLOSED

Many roads and schools, closed by the floods Wednesday from Albany west to Buffalo, still were closed today. Power failures added to the trouble.

In the Buffalo, Batavia and Elmira areas, rain froze overnight on power lines and caused many disruptions.

The weather bureau predicted that the rain would change generally to snow or freezing rain and sleet throughout the state during the day. While this would stall the flooding, it would hamper repair work.

The Buffalo suburb of Lackawanna still is in a state of emergency. Mayor Walter Parry reported about 500 families suffered from the flooding, and, estimated damage at $500,000.

ORDER CAPITAL SPENDING

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council Tuesday ordered preparation of a 15-year $1,000,000,000 capital-spending programme.

Preparation will require 13 area municipalities and the metropolitan organization to estimate their combined expenditures to provide expansion of municipal services until 1970.

The program involves extension of an existing 10-year $750,000,000 plan which provides $250,000,000 for the municipalities and $450,000,000 for the metropolitan area.

GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A Negro girl who was only 17 years old at the time was sentenced Tuesday to life in prison for slaying her former employer, a white night club operator. A written confession was introduced in which the girl admitted shooting John Hayda with a pistol last December when the elderly man refused to give her $10.

EDUCATION WEEK

One of the biggest and most exciting stories being told in Canada today is the story of education.

All levels of the school system are in a state of transition and growth unlike anything that has been experienced before and the broader community of all citizens is being affected directly or indirectly.

During the past 10 years immigration and a rising birth rate have propelled the education story onto the front pages of Canada's newspapers. Growth and change are proceeding so swiftly, however, along with demands for more and more extensive services to more and more students, that the present exciting chapter in Canadian life is just the prelude to even more fascinating developments in the future.

This year the general slogan for Education Week is "Education—Everybody's Business."

Education, its purpose, plant and practices, is everybody's concern. Industry and business are demanding more, better-trained personnel. Pressures for more varied curricula are greater than ever. More is expected of students. The problems of expanding basic facilities, adding new curricula and raising teaching are creating financial pressures that directly affect municipal property owners and all taxpayers through provincial grants. Amalgamation of high schools service on an area basis has changed school administration and served to emphasize the scope of educational problems.

This week, everyone is being confronted with a direct appeal to take an interest in education. Parents are being invited to visit schools to see what is being attempted on behalf of their children and to inspect the facilities which they have provided.

It is an opportunity that should not be neglected.

During Education Week, The Ontario Intelligencer is publishing a series of features written for students and teachers about various aspects of education that are not commonly dealt with. This series is designed to expand one's appreciation of the care and concern that professional educators and students are devoting to aspects of modern life that influence the prescribed academic routine.

Every week is education week. An alert, informed public is essential to the proper functioning of our educational system. In the few days officially designated as Education Week there is a special opportunity for every educational system at the local level and to place it in the broader perspective of education in Ontario and throughout Canada.

TWO WAYS TO LOOK AT THIS QUESTION

The Federal Government's recent refusal to accept an Opposition suggestion that health insurance premiums should be deductible from income for income tax purposes is continuing to draw criticism.

C. W. G. Harris, minister of finance, is said to have based his refusal largely on the argument that to make such premiums deductible would favor a particular group in the country, that is those who are already covered by such insurance. It is unfortunate that this argument was advanced. Tax concessions, for a variety of reasons, favor many groups.

One can defend this reason, though. It is possible to advance a good argument for the government's stand. If health insurance premiums, such as those made to Blue Cross and OHSI, were made deductible, many of them there would certainly be no sound reason for permitting a taxpayer to deduct payments made by dependents for the cost of illness. A deduction for the insurance schemes in times of illness, therefore, would already have been granted on the premium; a second deduction would not be logical.

At present, if a taxpayer or a member of his family suffers a long illness, he can deduct from his taxable income that proportion of medical expenses which exceeds three per cent of his net income, up to maximums varying from $1,500 up to $3,000 depending on the marital status of the taxpayer and the number of his dependents. This amount is still deductible from income, even if the taxpayer is relieved from the necessity of paying a major portion of it by the payments made by health insurance plans, such as Blue Cross and PSI. As a result, the man who has taken out health insurance gets a tax reduction at a time when he needs it most, for there are almost always other expenses not covered by any insurance schemes.

Which is, preferable, a regular, but small, tax concession, in times when it is not urgently needed by most, or when other additional demands on the family income, or a system which provides a tax concession only in times of illness, but makes this concession flexible, the larger the drain of sickness on the family bank account the larger the concession?

HISTORY REPEATS

Once in a while the newspaper reader comes across this sort of thing well down on the page: "To the editor. Dear Sir: What is going to happen to this country? Business is terrible. So are prices. What's the use of having a government? Look at ill. It's a disgrace," and more in the same vein.

As he goes along the chill deepens. He's been thinking long enough and the lines himself. Then, at the end, below the signature, he reads: "Published in the London Times, July 18, 1783."

BABIES

In their little cribs they lie,
Babies—just a few hours old.
One way only theirs: to cry
When their hunger must be told.
See them in their blankets
furled,
Size upon them through the glass,
By and by into the world
And the tasks of life they'll pass.

Deep in mystery they sleep.
None can tell us how or why
Or what poets they'll grow to keep
As the years go racing by.

Soon—too soon it sometimes seems—
They will feel the weight of care,
Cling to hopes and cherish
dreams,
Learn to turn to God in prayer.

Helpless now and frail and small,
As I look and smile at you,
This I know for one and all
Time has tasks that you will do.
We who are the older grown
Once were babies for a day.
All the ways of life we've known
As God wills it, you will know.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 8, 1936

Laurie Lewis of this city was elected vice president of the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario at the recent convention of the association in Toronto.

The following members of the Belleville Rotary Club attended an interesting Rotary meeting in Oshawa on Thursday evening: president, Fred Reyce, Jennie Boak, Fred Douglas, Stephen Flintoft, I. G. Hatley, Virgil James, J. Ramsden, G. H. Ketcheson, L. E. McLean and Ross Neal.

Mrs. H. A. Johnson, Miss June Wellbanks and Miss Mary Wallbridge will be the hostesses at the Bachelors' Club party this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Presley celebrated the 58th anniversary of their wedding at their home in Bancroft on Sunday. A host of relatives the congratulations and good wishes of friends. Mr. Presley is 84 years of age and Mrs. Presley is 79 years of age. They were born in Hungerford township and he was born in Camden.

Local Team Nears Championship. The Belleville Intermediate hockey team are near the championship by the defeat of Tweeds here last night by a score of 14 to 8. Twelve hundred people witnessed the game. The following composed the Belleville team: George, W. Wilson, Walter, Finkle, Whalen, S. Symons and Mitchell. The referee was O. Bernhardt of Bradford. The gate receipts amounted to $380.00. The Belleville boys will go to Sarnia tomorrow and will rest there for a day before the big game.

50 YEARS AGO

March 8, 1906

Mr. Walter Fanning shipped a carload of horses from here to Winnipeg today.

Mr. George Wilson spent yesterday at his home at Fenelon Falls.

Mr. R. Lancaster, warden of the county, was in town today on county business at Shire Hall.

Mr. C. W. Strood has left on a business trip to the head office of Strood Bros. in Montreal and he will also go to New York City on business before returning. Mr. Strood has been in charge of the firm's business here since the departure of the former manager, Mr. W. H. Reed, to reside in Edmonton.

Board of Education Meets. The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last evening and the following members were present: J. F. Wills (chairman); J. H. Anderson, George A. Bennett, Arthur E. Lewis, R. Bleasby, W. A. Morden, H. Naylor, W. C. Reid, Charles M. Ponton, Wilton Bennett, Hugh Walker and the Rev. A. L. Geen. The estimates for the year were submitted as follows: public schools — amount required for teachers and other salaries $10,470.; for printing, stationery, repairs, fuel, insurance, grounds, etc., $3,000.; total expenses, $2,929.00 — total $13,399., less government grant and other revenue $1,927.00, leaving the amount to be levied by the city for public schools $11,472.00. High School — amount required for teachers and other salaries $7,575.00; for repairs, stationery, insurance, grounds, etc., $1,153.00 — total $7,127.00, less government grant and other revenue $1,153.00 — total $5,974.00, leaving the amount to be levied for city schools $17,016.00. An extra sum of $600 is included in the high school estimates this year in case another teacher should be found necessary.

A-Bomb Wind Blows Good

(Windsor Star)

There already are indications that the storm clouds here as to what, in the past, no amount of regional pleading has been able to achieve—promotion of a wider decentralization of industry.

The pattern followed, however, reveals inequalities of its own. In the main, the larger centres of population are affected, but naturally not to the same extent in all cases. Strategic location enters the picture, with the result that large seaports are most likely to bear the brunt of the industrial dispersal.

Smaller inland cities are, for the most part, left untouched.

This subject has been touched on by Mr. Blaine Thompson, economist and statistician, in considering the best place for young couples to settle down. Stay away from the cities, he advised, especially the large industrial cities. First of all they are in a stage of transition, because of traffic and other problems of industrial congestion. Then there is the further matter of possible atomic bombing.

"Very few companies," he added, "are now building new factories in these large seaboard cities; instead, many of them are building new factories in interior cities. The most desired locations are in centres with a population of less than 75,000 and even in cities and towns of 10,000 and less."

Mr. Babson was commenting primarily on the United States, when the comparatively small population along the seacoasts are larger and more vulnerable than we are likely to have in this country for many year to come. But the compulsion of 1951 applies to the border probably can be expected here, to a proportionate degree.

The industrial thinking behind protective decentralization in the United States is not stopped by the international boundary. Mr. Babson says he is "bullish" on his country's small cities and towns. Canada has them, too, and feel the same way about their own.

Help Not Always Appreciated

By Ed. Reed

"Now, Mr. Jones, I'm sure you'll appreciate this when you get the bill."

Help Not Of Averages

(Toronto Star)

Canadian businessmen know what country it is, but the organization that represents them often talks the language of the 1800's so far as social reform is concerned. Witness the memorandum sent out by Canadian Chamber of Commerce on health and welfare, submitted to the Gordon economic commission this week.

"The chamber is opposed to compulsory health insurance or state medicine, believing that in a free society the individual has the primary responsibility for medical care for himself and his family. The chamber recognizes, however, that government aid is necessary for the indigent and in the provision of adequate hospital facilities throughout Canada."

They mean for himself except the destitute; let the government pay their medical bills. That is what the brotherhood of man.

The trouble with it is that there are many people below the indigent, many people of lower, middle and even above-average incomes, who cannot afford the cost of long or serious illness. But as a nation we can afford to. In fact, we are paying now, either in doctor and hospital bills which fall with unequal weight on individuals, or in economic losses due to untreated or inadequately treated sickness.

It is true that coverage by non-profit medical and commercial insurance schemes is spreading. But many are not adequate, especially because of previous illness or inability to pay. The great people to benefit are adequate medical care for every citizen, regardless of income, and public health insurance can guarantee that.

The chamber is really being indulgent when it says the government should foot the bill for the indigent. The insurance companies, whose interests the chamber upholds in this matter, would make any money out of the indigent anyway. Everybody else, it seems, should pay his own way, though some insurance company executives would make a profit and overhead that not much is left for the patient's bills.

It is time somebody try to bring its thinking on this subject at least into the 20th century. It is time that Tory-in-good-standing, Winston Churchill, declared: "You must rank me and my colleagues as partisans of national compulsory insurance for the purpose, from the cradle to the grave. We hope to bring the magic of averages to the rescue of millions."

Iron Mountain Put on Scales

(Sahi John Telegram-Journal)

The "iron mountain" that fell out of the sky into Greenland, where it was first seen by Rear Admiral Byrd on a flight over it in 1934, has been weighed at last.

The display in the Hayden Planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History in New York, which has been exhibiting the meteor, is 34 tons and 85 pounds. This gratified the planetarium scientists who, for some 20 years, had believed its weight to be 36 1-2 tons, and accordingly felt that 34 tons was not a good estimate.

Determination of the weight of the "great brown, heaven-born stone" was achieved by building a platform on which it had been hoisted from its base.

Common Cold Cure Coming

(Cornwall Standard-Freeholder)

The annual meeting of the Common Cold Foundation for 1956, in New York, is new history, which records the words of Dr. John S. Wyllie, professor of preventive medicine at Western Reserve University. Dr. Wyllie said there is no known medicine or no known rule of health that can protect a person against colds.

He paid his respects to vitamins, vaccines, antibiotics and antihistamines taken for cold prevention as follows:

Vitamins—no.

But Dr. Dingle and the rest of a panel of eminent epidemiologists are well agreed on something else. They predicted victory over the common cold within five years.

Drunk Drove Reindeer

(Montreal Gazette)

Transportation is moving farther north than ever before. The British and Americans are vying for the transatlantic jet market; helicopters are becoming more powerful, though their delivery intellects aren't; and Atomic submarines plow the deeps.

In Red China, the last rickshaws have probably been sent to a museum. The Red radio didn't tell us that, but the report seems safe, but Communist equality being what it is, the cast of the rickshaw probably has not now everybody-walks.

That's a big change, however. Helsinki reports that a North Finland man has been fined for driving while drunken driving. He was driving a reindeer sleigh.

Want a Job? Be a Pessimist

(Winnipeg Free Press)

The sometimes rhetorical question, "Are you a man or a mouse?" is answered by Dr. Ralph Allen when it relates to a young man looking for a job) by an American personnel manager in Chicago.

The answer: If you want the job, be a pessimist. Be timid, be a hypocritical mouse.

For the young man, full of drive and ambition, and imagination, about to venture forth into the brave new industrial world, Dr. Robert N. McMurray had this disillusioning advice:

"The businessman completely conformist. Not too aggressive. Exemplify the middle-of-the-road (whatever they may be).

And in case this degree of self-abasement should not prove sufficient to snare the job, Dr. McMurray added:

"One of the best ways to get a job is to say at the interview, 'Say, I am very much interested in your company. Tell me about it.' That makes you seem realistic."

One wonders in what shape the Dr. McMurray's mouse could be if bone ever came back!

Sentiments of boundless, hoary and money are numerous. We never member them though they never seem to be expressed. There is one thing I will not loan—that is a prized book and give it away and get a thrill out of it, but I don't like to be out of a book long gone which I know I shall never see again.

There are numerous other things make the practice of borrowing a joke, or story, from a member of one's entertainer, and they try to make a joke out of it all, but the one item upon which the so-called "borrowed", doesn't get the humor of it at all, however good the joke or story, gets so dressed up that even its originator spurs to own it.

"Oh," said the despatcher, "Joe's off. He's gone home." "Why," I said, "He told me he was on to midnight."

"Never buster," said the driver. "Why, I thought . . ." I protested.

"Half the hackies," said he, are guys with TV sets. They're always in a hurry to get back to their home. Those of us that haven't got TV are the ones sure on the jump, nights like this."

Ah, well!

Personal Health Talks

March Is Hard On The Mucosa

The membrane lining the nasal passages, sinuses, Eustachian tube, middle ear cavity, pharynx, larynx, trachea, bronchial tubes and air cells of the lungs (doctors call it the respiratory mucosa) takes about the year around, principally from ubiquitous industrial dusts and gases, but in the winter season, particularly in March, the mucosa takes a cruel beating from a third factor, namely, excessive dryness of the air.

Dusts and gases are more or less inevitable in our industrial civilization, but by employing one or more of the following measures, it is easy to protect the mucosa from excessive dryness in most circumstances — say in living room, bedroom, office, school room, workroom, or shop.

1. Adjust heating or air conditioning apparatus so that humidity never above 65.

2. Always keep one window open with full sash size screen of unbleached muslin.

3. Moisture must be evaporated constantly while the heat is on, therefore heating by coal stove, fireplace, air register, steam or hot water radiator. At least a gallon a day (or more) must be evaporated in a 11 by 18-foot room to keep the relative humidity near the normal or ideal level — that of a perfect autumn day.

In Buffalo for ten years we had a three-storey, 20-room house with eighteen radiators. On most of the radiators I had pans, waterpots or humidifiers, each of which evaporated at least a gallon, sometimes ten gallons of water a day. Boy, was we in for a freezing spell if any of water to those humidifiers, but I'm sure we saved money on fuel, for it is unquestionable that a household temperature of 68 with a fair humidity is more comfortable than a temperature of 72 or higher with low humidity. I believe, too, that the balmy indoor climate we enjoyed wintering in Buffalo kept us reasonably free from respiratory troubles.

The humidifiers we used were made, in lengths to fit the radiators, by a St. Paul company, which, I regret to say, no longer markets them. Including top or cover they were about 4 inches high.

When it is necessary or convenient to hang the washing to dry indoors, don't worry about dampness. The effect is beneficial for everybody in the house, from the baby to the aged one, especially when the parlor stove or the nifty furnace is burning to beat the band.

Some furnaces have a built-in device to add water, when the heat of the furnace evaporates. But the amount of water added to the air is usually insufficient. So is any other means of humidifying, such as that which deporates less than a gallon of water a day in a room of ordinary size.

The efficiency of the humidifier is not increased by adding timing in purgatory depends on capillarity. Hanging a wire screen above the water and dipping into the water are many loops of wicking. The wicking draws up water, which is rapidly evaporated by the warm air passing through the loops.

A do-it yourself man could make such humidifiers of galvanized iron, I should say, in lengths to fit radiators or registers and finishes to match the decor of office or home.

NATURE OF EDUCATION

Our generation puts an almost naive trust in educational processes. Everybody a college education, we seem to say, and the problems of society will be solved.

This of course is not true. Education is a tremendously powerful but hypocritical mouse.

For the young mind, full of dreams and ambition, and imagination, about to venture fourth into the brave new industrial world, Dr. Robert N. McMurray had this disillusioning advice:

"The businessman completely conformist. Not too aggressive. Exemplify the middle-of-the-road (whatever they may be).

And in case this degree of self-abasement should not prove sufficient to snare the job, Dr. McMurray added:

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BORROWING

Borrowing is a vicious habit though it may be looked upon as very innocent. Banks, however, grow rich through loaning to borrowers! There are so many phases to the practice of borrowing. Alexander Smith, the beloved author of "Dreamthorp", started farmward through a book of poetry, but someone accused him of plagiarism and he took it from someone else. He was so hurt that he never wrote any more poetry. Considering that all of his best writing of essays that made him not only famous but wealthy was his "Dreamthorp."

Imagine the man who write continually borrow thoughts from others, mostly unconsciously. But when he gets a thought he adds to our way of thinking, even an expert thought, we know that when he met them on the street. It has long been said that there is nothing new under the sun, but I agree, I read from the Chinese sages who wrote several thousand years ago, and recognize our own thoughts there.

Imagine the book upon one's face should you say: "I just got a thought from you. Can I borrow it?" He knows in his heart that he will never get that thought back!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

"Until quite recently," my taxi driver said over his shoulder, "dirty, rainy nights like this were my biggest time of the week. From about 5 p.m. until around 10 p.m. I'd be busy every night, we were busier than any other time.

But then TV came in, it's all changed. On nights like this, nearly everybody decides to stay home and watch the flickerbox. I'd like to get a look at the official survey of what TV has done to various businesses like the taxi business. Movies, theatres, restaurants, night-dances and all the sort of things that attract people to go in those good old busy days!"

My destination on this taxi ride was a meeting of a writers' club and I belong to that meets once a month, sometimes. I have missed several meetings during the winter, and I felt I had to go on this particular night, despite the misery of the weather, because I had been invited to be present as the speaker of the evening, an old friend.

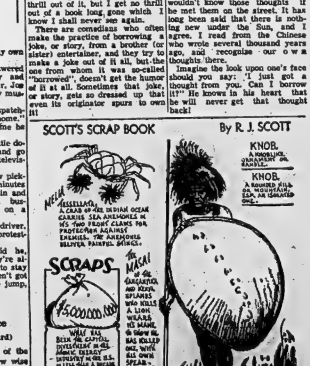
Only eighteen members turned up at the meeting. Two years ago, we would have had forty to sixty present. It was very depressing to attend so small a gathering, for everyone had a consciousness that our little club was failing. It was like a funeral service, more than a club meeting, and we broke up early.

There were no taxis in front of the hotel when we came out, and the doorman said he would telephone for one for me.

"No," I said, "I'll phone my own taxi. I get them regularly."

When I was answered my call, I asked him to try and get the driver's name, and when his name was, with a droopy mustache.

"Oh," said the despatcher, "Joe's off. He's gone home." "Why," I said, "He told me he was on to midnight."



"Never buster," said the driver. "Why, I thought . . ." I protested.

"Half the hackies," said he, are guys with TV sets. They're always in a hurry to get back to their home. Those of us that haven't got TV are the ones sure on the jump, nights like this."

Ah, well!

Stories from Life of Jesus

By April Oursler Armstrong

THE GOOD SAMARITAN

"What kind of Man is this! Jesus!" snorted a haughty - faced man by the roadside. "He looks like a vagabond, a plain ordinary tramp. Why, He and His apostles spend most of their time walking the highways. If He were as good a teacher as men say, why would not He stay put, and let people come to Him!"

And indeed Jesus and His apostles were not impressive to look at. Their robes were dusty and their feet were calloused and hard, as they trudged along the road.

"Why does your Master travel so much!" asked the man.

Peter answered: "He goes to teach the people, to bring His message to those who cannot come to Him. Our Master is not too proud to go to the poorest house, or the farthest town. Man may be too busy to come to Him, but He is never too busy to come to them!"

On that day in November, when the ruts in the road were frozen hard as carved wood, Jesus led His apostles to a small town called Bethany, in Judea. There they stopped at the home of three old friends of the family, two sisters named Martha and Mary, and Lazarus their brother. And, as He often did, Jesus went to preach in the town synagogue.

FAMOUS TEACHER

The congregation crowded the little house of worship that morning, to hear the words of this famous teacher named Jesus. And as they listened Jesus told them that He promised eternal life to all good people in this world. And, what did He mean by eternal life? He meant that even after they had died, and their bodies were buried, they would live with God forever in heaven. That was eternal life.

When Jesus said that, everyone was silent wondering. What kind of person was this Who dared to promise eternal life? For they did not know because He had not told them, that Jesus was the Son of God.

Then one man stood up. He was a lawyer, and he knew the laws of the Scriptures by heart. Perhaps, he thought, I can catch this Jesus in a mistake, for He does not look like a man who has studied anywhere near as much as I have!

With a sly look in his left eye, the lawyer said ever so politely: "Master, what must I do to possess eternal life?"

Jesus knew what was in the lawyer's heart. And so He said: "What is written in the law? How do you read it?"

LOVE GOD

The lawyer blinked. "The law says: 'You shall love the Lord your God with your whole heart, and with your whole soul, and with all your strength and with all your mind. And you shall love your neighbor as yourself.'"

And Jesus said: "You have answered rightly. Do this, and you shall live."

But the lawyer did not sit down. "But who is my neighbor?" he demanded. "Just which people do I have to love to yein eternal life?"

And when he asked that question, the lawyer was hoping to trap Jesus. Because the men to whom Jesus was talking were born Jews, just as Jesus was. And no Jew would have anything to do with the people called Gentiles — or the even worse people called Samaritans.

The lawyer had heard that Jesus had once visited the Samaritans, and eaten with them, and even preached to them. Would He say that even Samaritans were neighbors? That to win eternal life one had to love even such terrible people?

"Master," asked the lawyer raising his eyebrows, "who is my neighbor?"

From where Jesus sat, He could look down the aisle and through the open door to the road beyond, the road that led from Jericho to Jerusalem. That highway was famous as the hiding-place of robbers and thieves, a dangerous place for any traveller. Jesus gazed out at the road, and in answer to the lawyer He began to tell a story, a parable that has never been forgotten.

FELL AMONG ROBBERS

"A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among robbers - - -" Jesus began.

..nd the men listening could see it all in their imaginations as He spoke. They could see that "certain man" packing his bags the night before, his worried wife helping him and begging him not to go alone, but to wait till he could get someone to go with him. No, no — the business was urgent. He must get to Jericho before dawn tomorrow.

Then his ten-year-old son came to him:

"I know someone going on that road tonight — my friend's father. Why not go with him! He comes from Nablus, and he is a Samaritan, and - - -

"What!" roared the father, "What kind of person was this Who dared to promise eternal life? For they did not know because He had not told them, that Jesus was the Son of God.

"What's wrong with Samaritans, Father?" asked the boy. "My friend is very nice."

"Listen, son," said the father. "Samaritans are all dirty, and they cannot be trusted. Hundreds of years ago they—"

"But Father, what does something that happened hundreds of years ago mean to us? My friend wasn't even alive then!"

"That's enough!" the father said sharply. "No more Samaritan friends for you. NoN son of mine may be seen playing with a Samaritan. Do you understand that! And tonight I shall go alone to Jericho."

STARTED ALONE

The father started out on the dark road, alone, and when he was far from town thieves attacked him, and took not only his money, but all his clothes. They left him naked on the ground in the darkbeaten, wounded, and half dead.

And now the crowd was very still as Jesus told them:

"And it chanced that a certain priest went down the same way, and saw him, and passed by.

"And in the same way a Levite when he wa near the place and saw him, passed by.

"But a certain Samaritan, being on his journey, came near him, and seeing him took pity on him."

And the Samaritan did not pass by. He knew it was dangerous to stop on the road for anything, and he too was in a hurry just as the others had been. But still, he stopped.

He went over to the wounded man, and bandaged him, pouring oil and wine into the deep cuts left by the robbers' knives, and tying them up with clean strips of cloth. Then he picked the man up, and put him on his own horse, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him.

SAMARITAN PAID

And the next day, when the Samaritan had to leave, the wounded man was still not well enough to travel. So the Samaritan took money out of his own purse and gave it to the innkeeper, and said:

"Take care of him, and whatever more you may need to spend, I will repay you when I return."

And without even waiting for thanks the Samaritan went on his way.

Jesus paused and looked from the faces of the people straight at the lawyer.

"Which of these three men—the priest, the Levite, or the Samaritan — was a neighbor to the man that fell among the robbers!"

And looking back into the smiling face of the Master the lawyer could answer only:

"He that showed mercy to him." And he meant, the Samaritan.

And Jesus said to him: "Go, and do you in like manner!"

The men and women of Bethany never forgot the story of the Good Samaritan. And even today, wherever it is told, men remember that when God says He wants us to love our neighbors He means for us to love everyone, and hate and despise no one.

49 Are Killed And Missing In Avalanches

LONDON (Reuters)—Thundering white death claimed at least 49 killed and missing in western Europe during the last 36 hours in a grim aftermath of the continent's most severe winter of the century.

Avalanches roared down from the mountains in Norway, snuffing out the lives of 21 persons in the London district off the northwest coast.

In Switzerland, a party of 13 Warsaw skiers near Scuol were bit by an avalanche. Four of the skiers died, police reported Wednesday. Another avalanche killed three Austrian skiers near Bregenz, Austria Tuesday.

CROUPIERS STAGE PROTEST

SPA, Belgium (Reuters) — Riot police dispersed more than 200 demonstrators led by croupiers from the gambling tables at the Casino here Monday night. More than 40 croupiers and attendants, with their wives, children and sympathizers, were demonstrating against the Casino's new management which, they said, had failed to take on 16 employees who worked under the previous management.

Education Week

Powerful Educational Medium TV Aids Teachers, Students

(Editor's Note:—The following is a report on "The Effects of Television on Children" children," prepared by a committee from the local elementary schools. Members of committee are Mrs. C. Calnan, Miss C. Wilson, Sister Mary Claude and Mr. W. Roblin. Mr. Roblin was responsible for the drafting of the following article.)

School children of today are uniquely fortunate. To them has come the opportunity of acquiring easily and pleasantly a broad extramural education. The wise use of television is their delicately potent teacher. As with the automobile, an irresponsible, excessive misuse of television can be disastrous. If children are restricted to carefully selected programs and a limited time for viewing them, the full benefit of television is good.

Many teachers notice an irresistible enthusiasm generated by television science programs. Pupils want to know more precisely how an observed experiment works. They want to perform similar experiments. Teachers must be alerted to the drafting from parents at home can result in a modest laboratory: an interactive, inquiry - type mind been created.

Other programs lead to a valuable interest in plants, animals and pets. Pupils who have watched such programs as "Mr. Wizard" and "Junior Magazine" unquestionably add interest to science lessons.

Pupils today have a broader knowledge of social studies than pre-television children. Even viewing an episode of the boisterous "Long John Silver" or the gallant "Robin Hood" imparts very authentic knowledge of costumes, customs and manners and events of past ages.

"Window On Canada" and "You Are There" are veritable social studies lessons. Many films of travelogues, manufacturing, shipping and agriculture provide the pupil with facts applicable to social studies and composition. Confucius said a picture is worth ten thousand words.

EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT

News on television gives the young viewer, who perhaps has never seen a flood or a hurricane, an impressive eye-witness account. He observes rescue operations, feels sympathy, recognizes notable people in the news. Pupil participation in the current events period is more active, especially for reluctant readers.

We have heard great orchestras, but to see the musicin the making is a fascinating experience that is sometimes the initial step into the realm of music for children. The wonderful coordination among the musicians, the ability to see the instruments responsible for certain sounds, interests them. As they watch, they listen.

It has been claimed, and reasonably so, that television helps to strengthen the family unit. Parents and children share a common pleasure. Television admits children into homes, e.g. "Father Knows Best," "Corliss Archer," "Lassie," where fun, love and like virtues are the normal attributes of home life. Children observe the manners of the characters. It is credible that some lesson will be learned by even the most rowdy viewer. Certainly television keeps the child off the street and his nose out of comic books.

SOME ADVERSE EFFECTS

Although the educational assets of television, when properly used, are undeniable, unfortunately there are some things to be deplored in its adverse effects.

It has been described as the greatest time - killer in the age. This certainly could be true in a great number of homes where the set is turned on in the morning and left to its own sweet will for hours at a time.

In regard to the programs themselves, many intended for the adult observer are not suitable for the child. Tension results, fatigue follows, and questionable moral attitudes may also be developed.

Since television lends to identify himself with the screen characters, fatalities may result, as shown by the number of broken bones following attempts to play at "Peter Pan."

Unwise and prolonged entertainment before the television set results in neglect of homework and chores, loss of sleep, insufficient exercise in the open air, eye-strain, headaches and nervous and tired pupils. Parents should be brought to realize that it is impossible for such pupils to do justice to what goes to make up the pupil's day.

Undesirable social traits can be developed. The viewer does not accustom himself to thinking of the pleasure and comfort of his guests, and the old-fashioned art of hospitality seems destined to disappear.

READING SUFFERS

Neither can one expect the pupil to read books when he has the whole story presented on the screen. Senior pupils especially suffer in this respect.

About five years ago a strike among workmen closed the schools of Philadelphia. Children were taught their lessons by television. This was the beginning of educational television. It served its purpose, but the children were anxious and very happy to get back to school. What counts most is the teacher, not the gadget. But the teacher must be prepared, and the gadget should be as good as possible.

Teaching with audio-visual aids is not an easier, but a more difficult, classroom procedure. Because television is more complex, teachers must be carefully trained to use this more potent and enriched way of stimulating student activity.

Canada has no exclusively educational television station. The United States has 11 active educational television stations, eight more due by midsummer and 38 planned. Starting a station costs upward of one million dollars.

SCHOOL TV PLANNED

Our Department of Education is planning to work out a satisfactory situation in the following way: Beginning on Tuesday, April 17th, a program suitable for grades two to four is being televised. On April 18th grades five to seven are to have such a program, and on April 19th grades eight to ten.

The series is to continue for three weeks, after which time parents, teachers and students will be in a position to evaluate what has been described as "the greatest boon to education since the printing press."

If parents and teachers would interest themselves in what the child is viewing, discuss it with him and use it as a supplemental aid to learning, television would become of real value for the future.

Television's chief aim should be to bring people of all nations closer together and remove obstacles to peaceful co-existence; to bring families closer together by means of good wholesome entertainment, and above all, to spread the word of God.

St. Michael's Regis Club Holds Panel Discussion

St. Michael's Regis club met in the Knights of Columbus hall, Belleville, on Sunday, with the president, Mary McDougall, presiding.

Bob Burke reported on the recent trip to Cobourg, where the two clubs met for a hockey game. Another game is scheduled in Cobourg on March 11. All the members were invited to attend.

Guests at this regular meeting were members of St. Michael's Regis club of Cobourg. A cordial welcome was extended to them by the president.

Jerry O'Sullivan, chairman of the spiritual committee, announced the topic to be discussed by that committee—Mass and Our Lord's Fast in the Desert. A 25-minute discussion followed, with a question period at the end of this time.

PANEL DISCUSSION

The cultural chairman announced that the cultural program would take the form of a panel discussion. The chairman of the panel, Barbara Chapelle, introduced the following members: Gwen McCarthy, Joan Shannon, and Gwen Leguatt. All are employed on the teaching staff at the Ontario School for the Deaf, and their duties at their subject. They spoke about the general administration, each department, admittance, subjects taught, extra curricular activities, social activities, sports, teacher training program, hearing aids, positions filled by the deaf graduate, and method of teaching the deaf. Details of each of these headings were thoroughly covered.

Bernetta O'Brian extended a vote of thanks to the panel for their interesting and informative talk.

The chairman of the social committee, Rose Burke, was then introduced and he conducted the social evening.

Refreshments were served by Margaret Whelan and her committee.

Bay of Quinte High School Board Outlines Activities

At the regular meeting of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School Home and School Association on March 6, the Bay of Quinte High school board outlined its past and future activities.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Williams, the president, who introduced Mr. A. Campbell, chairman of the board. Mr. Campbell acted as chairman of the meeting and in turn introduced the board members of the board.

Mr. Roy Sills, vice-chairman, gave a brief history of the board which, by agreement, started in 1948 as the South Hastings high school district. Since that time Ameliasburg joined forces and in 1951 the South Hastings board amalgamated with the city of Belleville to form the present Bay of Quinte high school district. Members are appointed by the city and township councils. The city of Belleville has six members: Mr. A. Campbell, Mr. H. Seldon, Mr. G. Wishart, Miss J. Tickell, Mr. J. McArthur and Mr. A. Drysdale. Thurlow has three members: Mr. R. Sills, Mr. J. Durrant, Mr. A. Grgatrix. The remaining three districts have one member each. Ameliasburg: Mr. C. Bonesteel; Hamilton: Mr. Brooks Allen and Tyendinaga, Mr. A. English.

The public school representative is Mrs. R. Morden and the separate school representative is Mrs. J. Trudeau. In addition to the board members there is a general secretary-treasurer, Mr. R. Dulmage.

Mr. Sills completed his introductions by saying that the relationship existing the board members was excellent and that they were all working to the best of their abilities to spend the taxpayers' money "as carefully and as wisely as we can."

The 1956-57 budget was shown in round figures to the people and the chairman of the various accounts explained the figures.

Mrs. Marsden discussed the work of Collegiate management committee. The work of this group is divided mainly into the employing of teachers, teacher problems, guidance, studies and extra-curricular activities. Most difficult task is to keep the teaching staff of the two high schools complete and up to a high standard. There is a great shortage of teachers as may be seen in the advertisements in the daily papers; the demand far exceeding the available supply. One paper showed 700 advertisements for teachers and only 300 graduate teachers are ready to come out of Teacher's College this year. Teachers' salaries have improved considerably and, while Belleville teachers are not among the highest paid they are far from the lowest. The board must decide on a middle path to balance both quality of teacher and cost to taxpayer. Mrs. Morden 'appeals' to parents to try to direct their children into the teaching profession. It is a service dedicated to youth and the future of the nation without equal.

Mr. J. Durrant explained the Supply and Maintenance account. These two accounts look after the necessary alterations, repairs and renovations in the two schools. One of the major items for future consideration will be a new transformer room in the Collegiate to handle the increased demands of the school. Mr. Durrant gave a concise breakdown of his account explaining plant operation, (salaries, fuel, power and taxes), maintenance, equipment (two schools 50/50 per cent), cafeteria, supplies (school and office stationery and school texts). Debentures on the collegiate have three years to run while debentures on the Quinte Secondary school have twenty years. Property is valued at $1,750,000, and is insured for $1,-250,000. Quinte Secondary school is valued at $750,000 and insured for $463,400.

Mr. Brooks Allen gave a report on transportation for students to the two schools from the rural areas. He said that in the past parents had to arrange and pay for the bus but that at present this is the responsibility of the Bay of Quinte board. The cost is pro-rated over the entire taxable area. To establish the best possible coverage of transportation, surveys are conducted by Mr. J. Musgrove in both elementary and secondary schools to determine the number of rural children requiring bus service. From these surveys bus routes are established, tenders let, and schedules set. Another responsibility of the board is to see that these routes are kept in a safe condition, winter and summer. At present transportation is being provided for 552 students. Sidney, Sidney, Frankford and the Indian reserve provide their own transportation and take care of 307 students.

Mr. H. Seldon reported for the Sites and Accommodation committee. He outlined the development of the two schools, explaining how the curriculum comprises 50 per cent rural studies, necessitating the building of schools on the rim of the urban area where bus loading and unloading can be provided outside city traffic but still on good roads for easy access. Mr. Seldon advocated the standardization of school designs, thus alleviating the high cost of architects' fees. He also reported on the progress of the playing field at the Quinte Secondary school, which it is hoped will be ready in the near future. When this sports field opens it will have the only regulation track this side of Toronto. The Quinte Secondary school is just about filled to capacity and negotiations are being made to add an addition which will bring the pupil population to 750. The Sites committee must also look for a location for a new school to be built about 1960.

Mrs. Williams thanked the various committees for their informative talks and the meeting was adjourned.

Coffee was served in the bright new collegiate cafeteria. Mr. Orr, supervisor, explained the routine of the cafeteria, saying that it will accommodate 325 students and teachers. One hundred and fifty hot meals are served daily at the cost of 25 cents each. Many students take advantage of this service while others supplement their home lunches with milk or dessert. The color scheme of the cafeteria is sunshine yellow with a contrasting wall of cavalier red. Dishes are most attractive and the kitchen is most up-to-date and practical.

A most enjoyable and profitable evening marred only by the scarcity of parents.

MODELS ACQUIRE AFRICAN ADMIRERS

In Paris to play an engagement at the Theatre des Champs Elysees this week, a Belgian ballet troupe, including two small boys, seven and eight years old, visited the city's fashion houses. Some of the ballet members are shown here admiring Patricia, a fashion mannequin, as she models a native outfit. The little boys, Louba and Yeo, presented Patricia with a grigri belt (a magician's belt) during the visit. (Central Press Canadian).

Spring Tea Sponsored by O.E.S. Chapter 55 Pleasingly Successful

Graceful ferns, pastel mauve sweetpeas in scintillating colorful vases; attractive booths, adorned with entwined ropes of green, yellow, blue, red and white, formed a delightful atmosphere yesterday afternoon in the Masonic Temple, for the 'Spring Tea' sponsored by the Order of the Eastern Star, Chapter 55. In spite of the hazardous walking conditions and brooding skies, there was a fine attendance, and the event was a most successful one.

Receiving the guests at the door was the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Violet Slavin, and the Associate Good, wife of the Worthy Patron, who graciously welcomed each and all, who paid the customary dues to those in charge of the tickets and receipts: Mesdames Elizabeth Taylor, Etta Pinder, Ethel Adams, Bertha Harris and Helen Green, by which the guests went their devious ways, some to the candy booth, and others to that of the aprons, and the home cooking; others yet still, sat down to greet old acquaintances, while those who had finished their purchases, were invited to the tea room by the tea room hostesses, Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon, Mrs. Essie Naylor, Mrs. Jean Adams, Mrs. Beatrice Embury, Mrs. Muriel Smith, Mrs. Getra Baker, Mrs. Bessie Patterson and Mrs. Ethel Stewart.

The tea room was daintily appointed with its long, damask covered table, centred by a beautiful arrangement of yellow daffodils, blue iris, white 'mums, red tulips and asparagus fern in green pottery, from which sprang tall candles in similar colors, again bearing out the colors of the Order. At either end were the silver services, and as an added enhancing accent, little services in the same shades.

Presiding at the tea table were: Mrs. Leah Pitt and Mrs. Mary McLean; Mrs. Maude Elliott and Mrs. Rhoda Gray; Mrs. Ann Davidson and Mrs. Gage Smith.

Those who served the guests at the pretty guest tables with their white cloths, centred by gleaming vases with lovely fragrant mauve sweetpeas, were: Mesdames Dorothy Clarke, Fern Hunt, Rachel Lundy, Ilene Martin, Ruth Denike, Win Quinney, Mary Carmichael, Lola Chaplin, Phyllis Barlow, Edna Morden, Margaret Shaw, Ada McMullen. Replenishing the trays of dainty viands were, Mrs. Susie Pigden, Mrs. Isabel Bolton, Mrs. Cleta Elliott, Mrs. Jessie Warren, Mrs. Marjorie Hatton and Mrs. Eva Hick.

Those who prepared in the kitchen included: Mesdames Bessie Hollinger, Mildred Mills, Margaret Reynolds, Freda LaRue, Mable LaRue, Marjorie Gay, June Howes, Aileen Vanderwater, Cynthia Wright and Marguerite Bush.

SWEET DREAM

The candy booth was a dream of goodies, of maple cream, divinity fudge, Turkish delight, chocolates, all in cellophane bags, and boxes, and little yellow cups with lacey collars, surrounding a gingerbread house with chocolate patties for shingles, and a flower-bordered path of tiny colored suckers, the whole enclosed in a white picket fence of after-dinner mints.—An entrancing piece of goodness. This would go to the holder of the lucky ticket, who chanced to be Mrs. W. MacKeen, in charge of these sweeties were: Mrs. Myrtle Cross and Mrs. Marion Wrennhall, assisted by Mrs. Molly Box and Mrs. Dorothy Durno.

The apron booth, in charge of Mrs. Bessie Clarke and Mrs. Gladys Gray with their assistants, Mesdames Gladys Adams, Nellie Barr, Geraldine Carcallen, Emma Dowsett, Ethel Duffin, Gladys Jeffery, Isabel Jones, Flossie Kerrock, Betty Lou Mitchell, Mary Moon and Anna McGee, drew many a customer with its lovely and dainty aprons in all imaginable designs; white organdy with borders of contrasting prints; red and white nectlie aprons; fruit backgrounds edged with white organdy a springtime apron with bird feeding three little pink fledglings in the nest for a pocket, a heavy duty, brown overall apron, yards of narrow pillowslip lace; blue grounded Paisley patterns, all so nice it would be difficult to make a selection. Two lovely aprons were won by Miss M. Carmichael and Mrs. Gladys Gray.

The homecooking booth was conversed by Mrs. Stella Doucette and Mrs. Pearl Johnston, assisted by Mrs. Ann Parmenter, Mrs. Winnifred MacKeen, Mrs. Helena Darvel, Mrs. Orris Adams, Mrs. Dorothy Sager, Mrs. Dorothy Lough, and Mrs. Anne Stalks. Here one could find some mouthwatering chocolate cakes, golden brown angel cakes, tarts both tarty and cherry, delicate chews; cookies of many types; cherry and lemon pies; quite large fruited pies oozing red juices; raspberry jams; pickle relishes; orange and date loaves; fruit cakes; white layer cake; delicious looking coffee rolls, and a whole throng of dainty cup cakes.

HAMPER OF GROCERIES

There was an attractive hamper of groceries which was filled to overflowing with canned goods, and everything that a kitchen pantry needs for the unexpected guest. This was in charge of Mrs. Bobbie Locke and Mrs. Beverley Shaw, assisted by Mrs. A. Miller. The hamper was won by Mrs. Pearl Johnston.

The floral centre piece became the prospective bride, Miss Eldred and the luscious candy house that of Mrs. W. MacKeen.

A delightfully convened spring tea bringing appreciative thanks to the overall conveners, Mrs. Pearl Kerr and Mrs. Hilda Dewberry and to all others who assisted in its successful conclusion.

Notes on Health

(Dept. of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa)

In the event of any large scale disaster, natural or man-made, one of the most essential projects would be feeding those people who were homeless and hungry. To ensure that the feeding program will be carried out quickly and efficiently, canteens are being trained by civil defence organizations to handle such work. Local civil defence authorities will supply information on emergency feeding and the training courses available for this and other branches of emergency welfare work.

Drinking water supplies in rural areas may be contaminated by surface washings seeping into wells when spring thaws occur. This may cause a high content of nitrates which, while not harmful to adults or children over six months, may, if used in an infant's formulas, cause the baby to turn a blue color. Where well water is to be used for an infant's diet, the water should be tested for nitrates not more than one month previous to such use.

Between now and vacation time, there is time to learn to swim. Most communities have facilities for swimming lessons in school, gymnasiums or recreation centres and this very important art should be mastered, for health as well as for sport.

Illness of the mind, like illness of the body, can often be remedied, provided that it is caught and treated in its earliest stages. Mental indisposition is no longer considered a cause for shame—modern medical science can provide successful treatment in most cases.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

FRIEND YOU NEVER HEARD ABOUT YOU

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a young girl just beginning High School and, have not had much experience with boys.

Before Christmas I was going steady but after five weeks broke up with the boy. Since then I have had only one real date, and that was with a boy who is two years my senior and very nice. Although I don't know him very well, I like him very much and would like to continue dating him. But the trouble is that a girl I know found out that I like this boy and she told him that I am madly in love with him, which isn't true.

I know things of this sort sometimes scare a boy off, so do you think there is any way I could explain to him, and, if so, what should I tell him? — A.H.

Dear A.H.:

I think it would be a mistake to say anything at all to this boy about what he was told by the other girl. It would be very much better to ignore it entirely and just pretend you never even heard about it.

If he asks you for another date, just be yourself and act natural, and I think you'll find he won't be scared off. If a boy really likes a girl enough to ask her for a date, he's not likely to be so easily scared.

IF WOULDN'T BE POSSIBLE TO CONTACT HIM

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Recently I read in your column the letter from the 66-year-old gentleman who was a widower and lonely. I am near this widower's age and very lonely, too, because I have been a widow for some time.

I would like to know how one might contact this gentleman, and also if a person can write you personally. — A.J.

Dear A.J.:

I'm afraid there is no way for you to get in contact with the gentleman, for I do not think it wise to introduce strangers by mail. I am sure you must realize that I do not know personally all the people who write to me, and that under such circumstances I could not take the responsibility of putting any of them in touch with each other.

As for writing me personally, you certainly can, and I would be glad to hear from you any time.

SLEPT THROUGH STORM

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Looking like "a little lump of sand," a 2½-year-old girl was found unharmed after spending a chilly night wedged under a porch five blocks from home. A bath, hot soup and milk restored little Virginia Gardner Tuesday, but she was kept in hospital for observation. Searchers found Virginia under a porch, covered by drifted sand. Apparently she slept through a howling wind storm during which the temperature dropped to 30 degrees.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

BRUNETTES IN THE LIMELIGHT

Brunettes can wear practically any color they choose; have a wider selection of clothes than a blonde.

Until quite recently there was hardly a brunette who at one time or another hadn't yearned to be either a blonde or a redhead—preferably a blonde. After all, didn't the redoubtable Anita Loos prove most convincingly that Gentlemen preferred 'em?

But that's all over now. Today it's the brunettes who are in the limelight. And my own credit the new trend to Italy—and, of course, the movies. Pretty silver screen has always had an influence on beauty preferences but, where Hollywood is concerned, for many years the emphasis has been on blonde beauties. It's true that from time to time brunettes have temporarily dominated the scene—from old time "vamps" like Theda Bara and Valeska Suratt, through Hedy LaMarr and Claudette Colbert and right down to Elizabeth Taylor but, generally speaking, it's been the blondes over which the Hollywood mantle of glamour has been draped. Along came the post-war Italian movies, which were sensation, and their actresses who were still more sensational.

Anna Magnani was among the first to capture the imagination of American audiences. She is not beautiful, it's true, and she's the first to admit it. But she was (and is) sultry, sexy — and brunette. Then Alida Valli and, more recently, Gina Lollobrigida, Elsa Martinelli and Rossana Podesta. All can not only act but are devastatingly beautiful. And movie audiences, the world over, have become extremely brunette - conscious. It should help our dark-haired girls no end. Though why they should need help, this writer will never know.

After all, brunettes have a great deal in their favor.

In the first place, while a blonde has to be truly beautiful to attract attention, this is not so with a brunette. All she needs is an interesting face and with her vivid coloring, she's a standout in any crowd. Secondly, she gets the breaks where clothes and make-up are concerned. There's practically no color that a brunette can't wear—and wear dramatically — from pastels right through to spectacular reds, greens, and brilliant shades of orange, blue and purple. In her make-up she can use all of the so-called sophisticated colors—vivid lipsticks, nail polishes and even unusual shades of mascara and eye-shadow—which would look absolutely freakish on a blonde.

Brunettes also have an edge on blondes in that their glamour does not fade so quickly. Hair and skin tones keep their radiance and vibrancy long after the blonde's has faded with the years. Because of this is probably most important of all—men, regardless of fashion, have always been crazy about "em deep down in their hearts. If you'll remember, the same Anita Loos who proved so convincingly that "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" proved just as convincingly that "they marry brunettes."

So put away that bottle of peroxide, Honey. If you're a brunette, stay the way you are. Whether you realize it or not, you're a lucky gal.

A Lesson from a Salad Master

By Mary Moore

Just at a time when the salads in our meals needed a real lift the food editors in our area were invited to a salad-making demonstration by a masterly Swiss chef whose name is Bob Kreis.

The luncheon tables were beautiful with spring flowers and above them at one end of the dining-room was the chef's table, ready set with a 4-inch thick chopping board at centre, a 16-inch wooden salad bowl, 11 inches left of it, lovely clean salad greens and ingredients in front—and all of us grouped around and agog waiting to see Bob operate.

He hovered over the whole room for besides being naturally tall he had on a chef's uniform complete with a foot-high chef's cap.

He is a dear.

Besides being a salad expert he is the originator of a new blend of salad dressing herbs and spices which are going to be marketed in Canada soon. May it. You can put this dry mix in a special bottle with directions on the package, and add vinegar, water and oil to graduated levels and then just shake.

To watch Bob deftly chop romaine and lettuce and watercress and chives with a murderously sharp knife, while he gaily talked and looked at us, had us all a-tremor for fear that that knife might slip from food to fingers but no—everything was under complete control.

When he was finished the salad contained and looked as follows: CHEF BOB KREIS' SALAD

His salad will serve 18 — enough for a big buffet party. You can cut this down to one-third the size for a party (or a family dinner) for six.

One and one-half heads each Iceburg lettuce and romaine, 1 bunch each of watercress and chives, about 1-inch in diameter at stems, about 1 lb. side bacon fried crisp and chopped after being dried on paper towels, 6 hard-cooked eggs sliced in slicer before chopping, 2 avocadoes, pared sliced and chopped, 3 peeled tomatoes chopped, about 1-3 lb. white turkey meat, a certain amount of crumbled blue cheese (I imagine about 1-3 lb.) and 3 bottles of the new salad dressing—mixed by some of us food editors right there on the spot!

The way Bob arranged the salad appealed to us immensely for it could keep your buffet salad attractive-looking even when it is halfway used up.

All of the ingredients except the lettuce and tomatoes were laid on in rows to give a striped effect, the greens being under them in a mound. The centre row was chopped tomatoes; flanking that on both sides were rows of bacon dice and avocado, further out were the chopped eggs (which had first been put through a slicer), then the cress, then the chives, then some turkey meat and blue cheese on both sides. Then with a grand flourish he poured evenly over all three just-mixed bottles of French dressing. Seemed like a lot but tasted just right. The row arrangement of the colorful ingredients enables you to mix from one end as salad is required by your guests. Bob tossed the whole salad before our eyes and we ate it right away as our first course—down to the last shred. When you serve it you will be the talk of the town—and feel good too.

Women's Activities

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

MARSH HILL — The March meeting of the Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Campbell with nine members present.

The president, Mrs. Leslie Finkle, opened the meeting with the reading of, "The Five Pointed Star."

A litter was read from the Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. R. G. Coulter, saying that the allocation for 1956 would be $160.. Study books were read by Mission Circles; Mission Bands; Baby Bands; Bands, and such groups should go through the W.M.S. channels.

The members sent 16 cards and two letters and made two house calls and one hospital call.

The theme of the worship service was, "The Call to the Mission of the Church Through Evangelism and Missions", and taken by Mrs. Allyn Finkle.

The chapter from the Study-book, "Festival of Song and Story", with Mrs. Bartindale reading, "Handicap into Opportunity" telling how New Canadians want to be active and wanted members of the community.

Mrs. Fred Campbell read the story of, "My Danish Friend, and Mrs. Farley Lidenfelt, "My Friend, Sally."

Mrs. Leslie Finkle read the hymn, "A Safe Stronghold Our God is Still", which had been written by Martin Luther.

After the benediction, the hostess served refreshments.

GOOD MANNERS

WRITING YOUR NAME ON "RETURN" ENVELOPE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My name, let's say, is Rose Smith, and I am not married. When I enclose in a letter a stamped, addressed envelope for a reply, do I have to write Miss in parentheses before my name? (Miss) Rose Smith? — Rose

No. Write Miss before your name, without parentheses. Write your name and address as they would be written on any envelope for the mail:

Miss Rose Smith

WHEN A CATHOLIC MUST REFUSE MEAT AT A DINNER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a Roman Catholic, and there are many days during the year when the eating of meat is not allowed. When I am invited to dinner in the home of a non-Catholic on a Friday or one of the other days when the eating of meat is forbidden, and the main course is meat, how can I graciously refuse the meat? Until now this has not been a problem to me because I have always lived with my family in a small town where everyone knew us and provided for this circumstance. Since recently I have come to live here, where I will, I know meet this problem. Thank you for your guidance. — T.B.

If meat is only one of the items in the main course, you graciously say "No, thank you" as it is passed to you, and help yourself to the vegetables or salad or whatever other items are served. But if the main course is, say, a casserole or stew of meat and vegetables, you would have to refuse the course, and would then have to explain to your hostess, "Please forgive me for any inconvenience. Today is a fast day and I can't eat meat." Then I am positive she will follow the customary hostess procedure for this circumstance and offer you an egg dish, probably asking you how you would prefer the eggs prepared. Don't be at all self-conscious about this situation . . . just be warmly appreciative of thoughtfulness and include your special appreciation in your thank-you note for her hospitality, written a day or so after the dinner. Also in this new social life of yours, you may find it conveniently possible to telephone a hostess well ahead of the dinner date and thoughtfully explain to her . . . this is often done, is accepted procedure.

Ladies!

The location is a bit out of the way,
And as far as the stairs go we know what some of you will say,
But take good advice when we give it to you,
The prices are low, and the styles are all new.

Our Spring styles are arriving and so we made up this rhyme,
Hoping you'll be up to buy them in time,
Remember these are the latest styles and if you wait,
You will probably find, you have come a little too late.

We have lovely Spring dresses, suits, coats and skirts,
Lovely for parties, sports and going to church,
We've formal and wedding gowns too, so take it from us,
You can do your shopping here without high price and fuss.

So come up and see us while the Spring stock is new,
You'll say that you're glad we told all of you.
And after you've seen them you'll soon agree,
That Winnie's is the perfect place to go on a shopping spree.

RAWDON

Four Members Spencer Family Total 353 Years

RAWDON — Mr. G. F. Spencer, Mrs. Merle Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spencer of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, attended a birthday supper and evening party on March 2nd in honor of the 80th birthday anniversary of the former's brother, Mr. Alfred Spencer, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rossbush, Havelock.

The supper guests included, Mrs. Adeline Rutherford and her daughter, Mrs. F. Scott, of Campbellford, and Mr. Ernest Spencer, Havelock.

The three brothers and their sisters totalled 353 years. Various newspaper reporters were present, and took flash pictures of the event.

Mr. G. F. Spencer, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, will be 93 in May. Mrs. Adeline Rutherford, Campbellford, was 91 in January of this year. Mr. Ernest Spencer, Havelock, was 89 in February, and Alfred Spencer, the youngest of the family, was celebrating his 80th anniversary.

There were three lovely birthday cakes, all nicely decorated with letters and candles.

Following the supper, over 100 friends gathered to enjoy a delightful evening. The guests included Members of Havelock Presbyterian church; friends from Silver Valley, Glen Ross, Stirling, Stockdale, and other points. These guests were served birthday cake, cookies and tea.

The evening was spent in reminiscing and all were glad to extend birthday felicitations to Mr. Spencer on this auspicious occasion.

A number of men, women and children attended UnionDale W.I. meeting in the Brookdale school on Thursday evening when Mr Harold Meyers of Truck Farm Supply, Belleville, showed the film "Man With a Thousand Hands," which described the project at Kitimat, B.C.

On Sunday morning the Rev. W. E. G. Dovey spoke on "The Loneliness of Sin". He showed the contrast between the light in the fellowship with Christ and His disciples in the Upper Room, and the darkness when Judas separated himself from this fellowship and went out into the darkness of night and betrayed Christ for 30 pieces of silver. Then he showed there are three steps in the progress of sin: (1) "We lose our ideals; (2) We are separated from our fellowship with our fellowmen and (3) we are separated from our fellowship with God." The challenge was thrown out "which are you going to take, the road to light and fellowship with Christ or the road to darkness and loneliness?"

F.O. George Farmer, Winnipeg, is spending several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Farmer.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pollard spent the dinner hour Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Don Haggerty, West Huntingdon.

The wood-saw is busy on this line this week.

Several families from this community attended the Circuit Congregational supper held at Carmel United Church, Friday evening. Interesting reports were given, each appointment, also several musical numbers. An interesting evening was enjoyed by all.

MAJOR-GENERAL

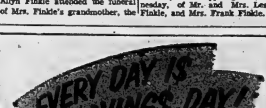
He returned to Canada as a lieutenant-colonel and became prominent in welfare work for former servicemen. He was a founder of the Canadian Legion and later became its president.



He became deputy defence minister in 1932 at a time when the department's activities had been reduced to a minimum by officials clamoring for retrenchment. Later he saw the dangers of the rise of Hitlerism and began advocating his program of the defence of Canada by Canadians.

He was appointed national war services minister in 1942 and won a by-election in Outremont-St. Jean riding, in Montreal for a seat in the Commons. His opponent was Jean Drapeau, now mayor of Montreal, who ran as an anti-conscription candidate.

Survivors include his widow, the former Jean Brady, a native of Scotland; four sons, Brig. Francois, Pierre, Paul and Jean; and one daughter, Mrs. David Dolman.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Saskatchewan's Air Ambulances Ten Years Old

REGINA (CP)—Wails airplanes with the red crosses have logged a decade of humanitarian service to the people of Saskatchewan.

The Saskatchewan government air ambulance service has just completed 10 years of operation, with only a few minor accidents in the log books of its four pilots, four flight nurses and six engineers.

Its planes have flown 2,254,217 miles since February of 1946, saving many lives by flights made at any time of day or night, with landings made anywhere. Some flights have seen emergency operations performed in the air, and babies have been born among the clouds.

MINIMUM COST

The service started with $75,000 invested in one Norseman aircraft and a pilot-nurse team. Today it has four Cessna 195s, a twin-engine Beechcraft and four pilots and four registered flight nurses, along with other employees.

Main base is at Regina, with an auxiliary base at Saskatoon where one machine is stationed with a pilot, a flight nurse and an aircraft engineer to give service to northern areas.

The service charges $25 a patient and $18 a passenger, regardless of distance within the boundaries of the province. If the trips extend beyond provincial borders, cost is 35 cents a mile for patients, seven cents a mile for passengers.

The service however has no facilities in the far north, and regular aircraft companies operating in the north such as Saskatchewan Government Airways handle northern flights.

MID-AIR SURGERY

Aerial ambulances twice have lost the race with the stork, but flight nurses delivered the babies successfully.

Mid-air surgery became necessary on one occasion when a doctor made an abortive attempt to save the life of an 11-year-old boy by making an incision in his throat. The desperate measure was an attempt to allow a young polio patient to breathe.

Air ambulance pilots must have a minimum of 1,500 air hours before joining the service. Nurses must have had at least three years' practical experience after graduation.
